Dussaud, vice-president; Bonnet; Barral; Cauvy;
Mourgue-Tur; Defferre, pharmacist, secretary; Mas-Sal and Bergeron.

Let's not forget to mention that at the Nîmes town hall
The employees are overwhelmingly Protestant.

Recently, the prefect of Gard appointed a commission-Investigation into an expropriation. The Five commissioners are Protestants: Messrs. Maruéjol, Bes-Sière, and Meyruéis, general councillors; Barraudon, district councillor and Reinaud, mayor of Nîmes.

Note the presence of Messrs. Maruéjcl and Bar-= raudon Protestant representatives of the first canton of Nîmes, while the general councillors and the con-_ district seillers of the 2nd and 3rd cantons of the city, Being Catholic, they were excluded.

The expropriation in question took place for the purpose of widening-ment of Curaterie Street.

e
ex

The Herattt is not exactly devoid of prostheses.
times. |

At the head of the procession was the Prefect, Mr. Louis Vincent, a native of the Lozère and who married Ms. Nègre, a Protestant from Mont-Pellier.

He has a brother-in-law, Mr. Bourgnnet, formerly sub-observer of the recording who proved implacable in the application of the unfair tax on congregations tions; he repeated everywhere that he liked to "eat some monk.

Today, this Protestant has confessed.

Mr. Carrieu, a professor at the Faculty of Medicine, is is Protestant.

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 4771

In the judiciary, we don't know, in Gold
For years, only Huguenot judges.

After Penchinat, it was Mr. Verdier, a minor lawyer at Montpellier, now a prosecutor.

We should also mention numerous advisors to the Court:

MM. Roussel-Pelet, Raisin, Pelon, Rauch, president of the room.

In court, out of six judges, three were Protestants.
Today we find Mr. Massé to be a fanatic.

At the prosecutor's office for more than
For two years, the two substitutes have always been protested.
They still are: Messrs. Gaillard and Dumas, former attaché of Trarieux.

Under the pretext of equality, the Agricultural Society of The Hérault region is made up of an equal number of Catholics.

and Protestants,

The Catholic president and Protestant vice-president, are replaced, the following year, by a Protestant president and Catholic vice-president.

Mr. Foex, director of the agricultural school.
today, Inspector General.

6

+

\ ee

Dars le Caer, Mr. Fau, First President of the Court,
Mr. Lauvergeat, tax inspector in Vierzon who, incidentally, one day imposed the bicy- tax cliste to a paralytic; the former justice of the peace of Vierzon, Mr. Bas, a former pastor, is incoherent; the tax collector of Sancerre; the tax collector of a section of Bourges,
Mr. Hugret is Protestant.

– Lauvergeat is very sectarian. He gives lectures at temple and there he sings at the top of his lungs.

ka

The Sgme-et-Oise department is quite invaded by the Huguenots. First, there are the professors at the Versailles high school, then the man named Féron, president

21°

478 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

from the civil court, cold and proper and sectarian; another
The judge would also be Protestant.

The Protestants, who are very wealthy, have many resources.
sources; they inaugurated this year, in Le Raincy, a a splendid temple, which cost a good 200,000 francs, while the Catholics of this city number 10,000
The inhabitants have only a shapeless barn for a church.

'A propaganda center has been reported on the property' the Shades where resided, if he does not still reside there, the Pastor Réveillaud, editor of Le Signal, anticlerical fanatical, a candidate for parliament this year, has Saint Jean-d'Angely where he was outrageously beaten, by Mr. de Loulay; he is a most hateful sectarian, and If he had power, he would be dangerous, because he is cold.
and measured.

There is also in Sèvres a kind of Protestant seminary so much of which L'Éclair has sometimes spoken. They receive there the defrocked priests, like Charbonnel, Bourrier (4) Patel, J. Pô, and they are sent as Protestant ministers of On both sides. They even have a newspaper which they... They are barging the presbyteries; where does the money come from?

There was a priest of that caliber in Versailles, the Abbé Joye. For a long time, he was the bursar of the minor seminary.

Three or four years ago, he left, without fanfare, after having warned the Bishop that his philosophical opinions in- inclined towards Protestantism, and it was learned that he frightened She knows the daughter of an English pastor.

We then remembered that every year he went to England on holiday. Someone even re- encountered in civilian clothes and on a bicycle, in the Bois de Boulogne.

From then on, he had to go to the Protestant seminary in. Sèvres, and was appointed pastor in Passy or Auteuil. He is now in the Drôme; he seems to miss his defection and is still, it seems, in contact with good Catholics; it is claimed that he still reads his breviary and would have asked to join the clergy.

(1) Renegade Carmelite.

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 479

In short, a poor recruit for Protestantism; it is a weak, depraved mind, led astray by the senses, which regrettably his fall, but could not get up, held led astray by his wife and child.

That's about all the Protestants can do. to remove from the clergy. The truly bad priests, those who have a satanic hatred for the Church, which is relentless after what they once loved, and become dangerous enemies men, do not remain in this intermediate state; sort of bastard and hybrid religion; they go to extremes, to the free thought, or simply fall into the mire.

—

This exodus of the clergy, provoked by the se-Huguenot minary of Sèvres for the benefit of the Protestant
The movement, it is rather a purge. It does not constitute one.
less of a danger and shows, in any case, how much active and relentless Protestant propaganda.

Regarding Sèvres, the director of the teacher training college of the schoolteachers, was Protestant; her successor is Also Protestant: Ms. Marion.

If we take a look at a certain region of
In the East, we find not only civil servants Huguenots, but also a pastor we will talk about.
Just a moment.

The purpose of this book is not to recount gossip.
more or less scandalous about the pastors. It is more high.

However, like the newspapers in the pay of the Jewish trio, Freemasons and Protestants have no scruples about Publishing stories about priests, I don't see why
I will not tell stories about pastors.

480 THE POTESTIC CONQUEST

You have read those of pastors Dide, Lecoat and other Bonhomme.

Let's move on to this Eastern pastor who is not necessary to name.

This nabob, from what we know of him, is the son of a poor wretch from Alsace; he came, where he is still today, about thirty years ago, at the state of destitution. Today, it is said, he has 45,000,000 francs in wealth!

Among other ways of getting rich that he had to em-
To bend fruitfully, we tell this one:

Twenty years ago, he was in contact with families of...

Among these families was the widow X...

This widow had a daughter, who was consumptive at the last degree, who was keen to get married, and her mother who knew lost, wanted to give her that satisfaction.

She approached our Pastor to ask him to look among her acquaintances for a husband who would be devoted.

The said pastor discussed these intentions with the mother, But he couldn't find the husband.

After searching for a few months, he came to tell his mother that he had given up hope of finding a husband for her daughter, but that, if she wanted to accept it...

The mother agreed.

The pastor therefore married this young girl who lived on a chaise longue. He buried him the following year, and palpa 5 or 6 million, immediately afterwards.

As this person was the only child of the family—a thousand, the Huguenot pastor, out of Christian charity, has accepted the gifts that his mother gave him to console him for her widowhood.

This obviously has little value to the point of general view that concerns us, and we must also make the part of the gossip; but there's no smoke without fire, as they say, and the preceding information does not. They don't paint a very nice portrait of this pastor.

No, certainly, this fact cannot infringe upon the hor—

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 481

and to the consideration of this minister of Calvin; I don't intend to achieve that result, either. This his— This will be unpleasant for him and his fellow believers. That's all I desire. By acting this way, I am the previous accounts from his family that falsely tell, by For example, that some priest abused young people children, or that a sister gave birth in a train car, which is much more serious than petty misery, very true— dic, reported about the pastor, hero of this golden novel.

We Catholics are being waged war Despicable. I defend myself with the same weapons, although those that I use, by that very fact, are many cleaner than the poisoned arrows used to wind, in our view, the Protestant or Jewish newspapers.

That's fair game.

And moreover, I don't abuse it, believing that I have Enough important facts without dwelling on the scandal.

+

+ *

In Lorre-Ivréigure, Mr. Sibille, deputy, is protesting, without prejudice to the prefect, Mr. Jouglas-Pelous (1).

LL

e *

The Arnecea is invaded by Protestants, if we consider it believe the Vivarais:

There are nine mixed cantons in our department.
along with Catholics, Protestants in proportion serious; at least 10% of the general population.

These cantons are: those of Annonay, Saint-Agrève, and Vernoux, Lamastre, Lavoulte, Chomérac, Pri-vas, de Saint-Pierre-ville et de Vallon.

Everywhere else, Calvinists only form groups isolated. Out of the 43,000 Protestants in the Ardèche, there are some more than 41,000 in these nine cantons, including the population
The total population is approximately 128,000. So there are in

(1) Today, in Meurthe-et-Moselle. Mr. Jouglas-Pelous married a Protestant woman.

482 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

These administrative districts have 87,000 Catholics. against 41,000 Calvinists, meaning that the latter do not cons-
They do not represent a third of the population. (In the Ardèche region)
As a whole, they are the eighth).

Now, we want to know how these mixed cantons, but generally having a Catholic population of more than two times stronger, are they represented in the General Council?

Of these nine cantons, two have councilors. generals of Catholic families (Mr. Garnier in Annonay, and Mr. Le Roy in Saint-Agrève) and seven who have advisors. Generals of Protestant families: Mr. Chalamet in Vernoux, Mr. Seignobos in Lamastre, Mr. Fombarlet in Lavoulte, Mr. Per- Mr. Tromparent in Privas, Mr. Brunel in Saint-Pierre-ville and Mr. Alizon in Vallon.

So that the Protestant population of these nine cantons, has, in the departmental assembly, a representative for 3000 souls, and the Catholic population one representative for 44,000 souls. Or in other words, the first is nine times more represented than the second. Every Catholic voter socially and politically speaking, it is worth nine times less than every Protestant voter.

We will be told: "It's chance!" – Intelligent chance, So, since he hasn't contradicted himself for twenty years. Coincidence. singularly aided by the zeal of the pastors and the consistories and prominent Huguenots, whom everyone can see at work During the election period... and even then, we don't see everything.

We will be told: "It is the superiority of the Protestant notables– so many who impose them as advisors in their cantons.

They are not named because they are Protestants, but because they are more capable, more respected, etc... »

This is a pure and simple lie. There is in the per- As mentioned above, there are two categories of councilors: those who are brilliant... and the others.

We will classify Mr. Cha- in the 1st category, if you will.

lamet, Mr. Seignobos himself; but we will be granted ' that these stars are not of the first magnitude, and that one could find equivalents, outside of the Calvi clan- niste, in the cantons of Lamastre and Vernoux.

As for Messrs. Perrin, Fombarlet, Tromparent and Brunel. all those who know these honorable members of the as- The departmental authorities will seem to agree that they do not shine.

more or less, and that the respective cantons could

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 483

to hire dozens of more qualified spokespeople.

There remains the final reason: they alone are devoted to the Republic, and if we leave aside these good Huguenots, we would only find reactionaries.

This claim is false. The Republic is not the Protestant heritage, although they are almost all republicans since they are revolutionaries.

The real reason is that Protestants are asserting themselves as anticlerical and also that they impose themselves, for example that minorities often give us.

Whether we like it or not, the current struggle in France, is more religious than political. Thus in its de-practicing Catholic department, Mr. de Witt, Protestant, is elected deputy because he is moderate and tolerant for Catholics. If he affected a clear anticlericalism—If expressed correctly, it would be blacboulé.

On the contrary, in the departments where the protests
So many Republicans are elected, it's less because they
They are Protestants only because they eat priests.

And it is worth noting that the conservative protesters
Tants are generally more tolerant than ji Protestant clerics.

They are also fewer in number; it is for these reasons that we see many more Huguenot republicans
In our deliberative assemblies, how many conservatives are there?
Calvinists.

Let us continue to report on the Huguenot conquest.

Mr. Fournat de Brézinaud, regional agricultural inspector culture is a very active agent of the Protestant trade union Ardèche residents during election time.

Let us add Mr. Fabre, labor inspector; Huguenot
Mr. Lambert, sub-inspector of forests in Largentière; Vernet, tax collector in Satillien; Bérard, justice of the peace in Saint-Félicien.

Protestants: Mr. Perrin, deputy; Mr. Fougeirol, senator.

Protestants again, MJJ Roux, former pastor, director

484 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

de la Démocratie, a Dreyfusard publication, and Mr. Albert Sapet, editor of the Ardèche républicaine. The Haute-Ar-dèche is also written by Protestants.

Tournon has just gained two new mobile phones.

Protestant officials: the primary school inspector and the engineer-engineer of bridges and roads.

To conclude the list of invasions...

Protestant, in the Ardèche, the list is instructive, although perhaps incomplete, Protestant officials of the chief town of the canton of Vallon:

The justice of the peace, Mr. Pourquier.

The registrar, Mr. Girard. Protest- as well as the tax collector, Mr. Rouvière, who has distinguished by its vigorous campaign among the con- tribunes in favor of his co-league's candidacy Legionnaire, Mr. Alizon, in the elections for the general council general.

Mr. Bonnet, a road and bridge engineer, Mr. Hugon's creature, to whom he paid quite a bit of Small services. Ms. Aubert, postmistress.

At the boys' school, Mr. Villard, the headmaster, is...

assisted by two deputies, one of whom is Protestant and The other one, naturally.

At the girls' school, there are five teachers; three are Protestants, two Catholics. Which makes, on the 8 members of the teaching staff, 6 Protestants from one and the other sex, and 2 Catholics.

The game warden is Protestant; 3 factors on 6 as well, and 2 road workers out of 4.

Protestants also include the mayor, the fourth deputy mayor, the three quarters of the city council members, the majority part of the distributors, the general councillor.

The same is true in the rest of the canton. A Ruoms, for example, has only 80 Calvinists out of 1300 souls, there are 2 Protestant postmen out of 4, two out of 3 were Protestant teachers, and the headmistress—

The management of the secular girls' school is entrusted to a Protestant aunt,

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 485

If Pon finds that the teaching terms protest—so many are not suitable for this situation, we pray
Please tell us what terms we should use.

In the Arrèes, the cantons of Mas-d'Azil, X..., XX...' XXX..., and Sabarat, have 2400 Calvinists, very intolerant.

A number of them have enriched themselves from national assets.

The Huguenots, although a very small minority, are the masters in these cantons, except in XX..., or
The mayor has been Catholic since last year.

The municipality gave a grant for recons—destroy the church which, as far as anyone can remember, had never nothing received, the town hall having always been in the hands of the Protestants!

In X..., thanks to a pastor, the Catholic processions ques are prohibited on a certain route.

Mas-d'Azil is administered by the Protestants.

The justice of the peace, Mr. Ladevèze, is a priest and a Frenchman." high-ranking member of the Pamiers Lodge.

For him, religion means little. He declares "of philosophical religion",

Nevertheless, it is a cold, sectarian atmosphere.

A young person in his circle wanted to...
Catholic; he did everything he could, in vain, however, to prevent it, in concert with the Protestant faction.

In Pamiers alone, there are:

The director of registration; the director of the postal service and telegraphs; the tax collector di—straight; the Public Prosecutor, all Huguenots, without prejudice to those I intentionally forget in this department.

w]
6 ©

In Paris, the Protestant invasion equaled that of the 'province.

486 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

Mr. Sarrut, Advocate General at the Court of Cassation;

Sauvajol, advisor to the Court of Paris; Alfred Monod advisor to the Court of Cassation – now deceased – are Protestants, without mentioning those I hold in reserve, and in particular the Lutheran president Loew. 1

At the Ministry of Finance, we find the Huguenot
Mr. Courtin, Director of Personnel.

As Chief of Staff to Mr. Cochery, he found a way, in less than two years, to be appointed deputy director, then personnel director, and finally Legion officer of honor.

Mr. Courtin has just turned forty.

The general manager of the fund movement, appointed very recently, has had the same rapid career;
He, too, is a Protestant; he is forty-two years old.

Also Protestant, Mr. Arnauné, director of the control of financial administrations, promoted the year last to the rank of officer of the Legion of Honour at Forty-two years old!

Mr. Arnauné has been director since 1895.

Mr. Courtin is the third pro- director in three years testing by the Ministry of Finance.

Let us add that Mr. de Billy, former inspector of the finances was Protestant.

It's worth noting that all these favorites are forty years old. They have barely risen to the highest positions and have already done so. administrative.

At the Ministry of War, we find Mr. Georges, Nickles, deputy head of office.

Finally, out of 40 academics, I note a minimum of {Protestant kings:

Messrs. Cherbuliez, Loti and de Freycinet.

(1) See page 569.

D ni. ec

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 487

At the Ministry of Colonies, Protestants are legion. Generally speaking, the senior colonial administration _niale is Protestant, and there is little progress that for Protestants.

The Ministry of Colonies has a tradition, since ten years, has always been headed by Protestants or ministers with Protestant ties.

Let us mention Mr. Jamais, who was Under-Secretary of State at Ministry of Colonies; Guieysse, allied with the Protestants The Coquerel family; André Lebon, whose mother married Mr. Paul Pelet, Protestant and teacher at the school of political science (1).

Mr. Binger, one of the two directors of the Ministry of colonies (Africa) is Protestant.

Protestant, Mr. You, deputy director of the office of Madagascar and at the same time a teacher at the colonial school niale. |

The President of the French Colonial Union, Mr. Mer- This vice-president of the Discount Bank is protesting so much.

Mr. Simon, treasurer of the same Colonial Union
He is a Protestant. He is also the director of the Bank of Indochina, under the jurisdiction of the State in a certain measure.

Among the delegates to the Higher Council of Colonies, we find another Simon (Louis) delegate of the Nou-New Caledonia:

He is a Huguenot.

– Mr. Franck Puau, former delegate of Tahiti, former pasteur, has great authority in the Ministry of Colonies;

(1) André Lebon was the son of a freethinker. Baptized despite his mother by a friend of his mother. Around 6 or 7 years old, was con-trusted a Protestant minister. Married a Greek schisma-Tick and her children are raised outside of any religion.

488 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

We often met there when Mr. Lebon was midnister.

He is the brother-in-law of Siegfried, a candidate for the ministry _ colonies.

In Taihiti, some schools are run by Protestants.
Viénot, Ahnne, Banzet and Barrier.

In Lessouto, Morija, the teacher training college has as its director the Huguenot H. Dyke.

®
be © è

At the 1900 exhibition, there will be a subsection:
Mission and education (Colonies).

It is chaired by Mr. Franck Puau.

Mr. Feillet, Governor of New Caledonia, has married M"* Rognon, daughter of a pastor from Nîmes.

Mr. Feillet brought with him, as his secretary and his inspiration, his brother-in-law, Charles Rognon.

Furthermore, Mr. Feillet introduced to New Caledonia

something none of his predecessors had dared to do: the teachers, Anglicanized blacks of the Loyalty Islands (1), partisans of English influence and enemies of French influence came, this, solely out of hatred for the Catholic mission-lique and at the request of the Protestant pastor of Nouméa, Mr. Lengereau.

Let us add that Mr. Feillet, at the last session of the conference of the general council of New Caledonia, asked, in its budget forecasts, a credit for a second Protestant pastor.

However, there are about a hundred Huguenots in Nouméa. different nationalities, the majority of which are not

Not French.

+e

Among the colonial governors, we can mention: Mr. Mouttet,

(1) In the Loyalty Islands, we find Mr. and Mrs. Rousseau Protestant schoolteachers

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 489

relative of Siegfried, current governor of Guyana, where He is assigned to guard the traitor Dreyfus. However, the com- The Dreyfusard plot is essentially Protestant, and Brisson knew perfectly well what he was doing when he appointed the Huguenot Mouttet in French Guiana, last September- deny.

In New Caledonia, the Attorney General at the Court of Appeal, Mr. Verrier is married to a Protestant Englishwoman from Calcutta, of mixed Indian heritage.

The head of the topographical department, Mr. Engler, is protesting.

Protestant, the head of the judicial service of Tahiti, a very young man.

Mr. Marclin Pellet, son-in-law of Scheurer Kestner, is Consul General of France in Venezuela.

Finally, it is claimed that Mr. Trouillot's chief of staff,
The former colonial minister was a Protestant.
Let's finish our list; the publisher is pressing us.
to finish. We are reserving the other documents.

+ &

To summarize these considerations, I say that the protests-- so many hold all the best jobs except Catholics.

Thus, there are 86 prefects in France.

To maintain the balance, I should not point out that one Protestant prefect, two at most, since the Protestants do not represent, in their own and official capacity statements, that 60% of the population.

However, there are TEN PROTESTANT PREFECTS:

MM. Diény, from Alier; Boegner, from Seine-et-Marne; Arnaud, from Finistère; de Luze, from Côtes-du-Nord; Viguié, from Haute-Garonne; Bouguoin, from Haute-Marne; Lem, from La Manche; Vincent de l'Hérault; Jogla

490 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

Pelous, from Meurthe-et-Moselle; Edgard Monteil from the Hollow. I'm intentionally forgetting some, if only Mr. Fournier, who was prefect of the Dordogne and is at-today in another position.

There are a total of 3,400 magistrates.

Proportionally, there should only be 57 protesters. I count more than 80, leaving out thirty-five departments!

There are only 27 Courts of Appeal in France. For the
For the same reason, there shouldn't be more than one first Protestant president. However, I have identified two: Messrs. Fau, from Cher; from Dorne, Maine-et-Loire, for example to mention only these; for I will not cease to repeat, I am far below the truth.

The same observation applies to the general treasurers-paymasters.
raux, of which there are 86, while I counted 4 Protestants:
MM. Teissandier, from Coutouly, Combier and Bonhoure, not to mention the others.

In France, there are 86 general secretaries of prefects. However, I discover, without fully pursuing my investigation; three Huguenots, that is to say twice as many as he— There should be some since they are, once again, only the 60° of the population: MM. Nièvre Steeck, Tregant Geneste, from Vienne, and the secretary general of Aube,

It would be too easy for me to establish the same statistics for agricultural professors, academics, the Members of Parliament and senators.

On average, there are six to eight times more than the proportion would not require it.

Let us pause for a moment to consider the members of parliament and senators; There are approximately 880 of them in total.

I reported 49 parliamentarians, without even giving myself worth mentioning: Freycinet, Ribot, Hébrard, Guieyse Krantz, Pallix, Gerente; Cavaignac, great-grandson of Pasteur, Gaussorgues, Gery Legrand, who lead me to more than thirty. However, the proportion would suggest that they should not Even if it were only 15!

All my readers know perfectly well that our chambers house more than 400 Calvi parliamentarians nists (1).

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 491

And, look how I make it a point of honor to Don't exaggerate, I'm only showing 30 and that's enough for me. enough to be able to shout loudly: the disproportion is Outrageous.

The same applies to all public functions. ques (2). |

What is the cause of this invasion of Protestants?

Are their qualities superior to the qualities of Catholics?

One might be tempted to believe it, seeing them everywhere ins-planted in the top spots.

No! They owe these privileges, one hundred years after 1789, in a country that has had ten revolutions to abolish the privileges, solely due to their status as Protestants.

It's a system; it's the revenge of Protestantism. which has continued since the great revolution.

Under the pretext of combating clerical influence, this is- In other words, Catholic, Protestant influence was favoured.

Because, ultimately, it's undeniable: for more than a For a quarter of a century, the established power has done nothing but comp- to defeat the Catholic religion.

Did he fight the Protestant religion?

I don't see any closed temples, no treatments suppressed pastors, Protestant property belonging- belonging to societies, missions, and congregations Biblical books, sold.

The cause of this infiltration lies in the government's favor national rights enjoyed by Protestants.

You, indifferent, will tell me:

(1) I must have said somewhere that the Huguenot had published that the Chamber of Deputies alone contained 80. However, in the Senate, Protestants are even more numerous.

(2) It is worth noting that many of these Huguenot officials are also Freemasons.

492 _ THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

"I don't care if I have Huguenot prefects and a crowd of officials; I don't care that the pro- The testators are the masters of France, they protest. even if it is not proven to me that the country is suffering from it "Or be a victim of it."

This observation is not without value; but it is precisely because the nation is a victim of invasion the Huguenot uplift and its actions that we Let's raise the alarm.

Is the country suffering? But who divided it in two? irreconcilable camps, unleashing religious war gieuze, if not the Protestants, the Ferrys, the Paul Berts, married to Protestant women; the Ribots, the Freycinets, the Buisson, the Pécauts, the Steegs, etc., etc., all Huguenots?

—~ —

You saw them in action in Madagascar, 'in nosco—:

lonies; you see them in the Dreyfus affair, the Scheurer-Kestner, the Trarieux, the Monod, the Pressenssé, the Leblois, conspiring against France, with the support of the Foreigner, insulting, discrediting, disregarding, leading to giving the army, whose leaders, thus weakened, without authorities would no longer be listened to in times of war, in so that our soldiers would inevitably offer themselves up to the slaughter darling of the enemy!

You saw them create anarchy and make pacts, moreover, with his followers like de Pressenssé, presiding over the meetings of Cyvoct and Sébastien Faure (1), where one voted on resolutions against the army, against the Society herself; where the anarchists claimed as | the work of anarchy, the Dreyfus affair, like this orator

(1) Sébastien Faure, this protector of the poor world, this tom-butter of capitalism, placed in his name, at Crédit Lyonnais of Cannes, two years ago, following conferences he gave in this region, a sum of 5000 francs.

In Marseille, around the same time, he lost his wallet & the train station.

It contained 1,200 francs, and he was lucky enough to find it again. at the police station...

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 493

anarchist who shouted at the meeting on rue d'Angoulême (September 1898).

Anarchist, this bourgeois, from bourgeois newspapers, who comes to us; (1) anarchists, the senators who shake harsh judges and soldiers; anarchists, this rebellious leader who denounces his superiors. Courage, comrades, the Society collapses; one more shoulder charge and the Société is down (2).

This is the work of the Protestants, the Freemasons and Jews.

Having ignited religious war for their own benefit, sought to ruin our colonial influence, they attacked openly targeting France itself, etc. in this The horrible Dreyfus question, they asked, by voice ministers, their accomplices, the grand revision day of a trial that could spark war.

However, war, with a demoralized army, without confidence, like ours, in the person of its leaders, When someone is accused of treason, it's a rout, devastation. tion, the dismemberment of France.

This infamous goal is that of the sects who want to... Let's not forget the dismemberment of certain states in which Catholicism has left roots, deemed too deep, particularly France, the Espagne, Portugal.

Moreover, this is what a wretched journalist admitted. renegade, Mr. Urbain Gohier, in a letter to La Croix, published on September 8, 1898.

I was naive enough, quite often, to demand the maximum freedom for the congregations that make it such

(1) The Huguenot of Pressensé.

(2) The day after this meeting, an Italian anarchist, Luc-cheni, assassinated & Geneva, the Rome of the Huguenots of France, the Empress of Austria.

28

494 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

Dangerous use. I was very poorly rewarded for it. I doubt it. that they take me back.

But I have always been very clear in my writings on the ne-need to closely monitor the clerical faction which has nothing common with religion. When the Count of Paris moved—rut, I strongly advised his son, if he wanted to keep a chance to restore the monarchy, to break first and without mincing words with the politicians of the Church (1). I continues to believe that one of the worst dangers facing the France derives its power from the Congregations whose leaders are foreigners living abroad. I hope to convince you—

I will soon see the firmness of my doctrines in this regard.

So, let's destroy the congregations, the right arm of the ca-
Catholicism, let's destroy the church, that's the conclusion.

To that end, let's make the Dreyfus affair, purely judicial—Initially a tax matter, it was a political—religious affair. It is The plan we followed in requesting the review was correct.

Listen instead to Mr. Géraud—Richard who wrote to his round :

The question now arises of the life or death of the Clerical militarism, DR THE HIGH ARMY placed at the service of the Church.

The revision appears to the Church as the work of the Ante—Christ, and SHE sees RIGHT, for the day when the rot of war offices will be laid bare, the indignant—tion will be such that it will reach their vital principle, not only the reactionary and incompetent armed force, but also the Church, her provider. Nothing will stop the march of truth, of this proclaimed REVOLUTIONARY truth by Jaurès.

The hardest part is done.

(4) I doubt that the Duke of Orléans listened to the advice of named Urbaine Gohier. If, on the contrary, he has a chance to restore The monarchy, like all the Kings did it, like the Count of Chambord and the Count of Paris understood. If we were to have a hostile monarchy or even indifferent, neutral, from a religious point of view, it does not There would be no need to change... republics.

as

Yes, this is a new war against Catholics.
preparations are underway. The Dreyfus affair has been diverted. The tra-
The story of this Jew is just a pretext.

The goal is the destruction of the army and the religion.
Catholic Church. And Freemasonry lifts the mask as evidenced by the following document.

The annual Freemasonry convention was held, from September 20-22, 1898, at the Grand Orient of France its first meeting.

Before the start of the proceedings, the council of the order has proposed and passed unanimously, this resolution
tion:

The Freemasons of the Grand Orient of France, faithful to the traditions which are the pride of Freemasonry; faithful to the principles of the Revolution which legally proclaimed equality of men before the law, regardless of their race, regardless of their philosophical or religious beliefs, and promised to all the guarantees of equal justice; passion-born for the greatness of the French fatherland, in whom these princes cipes were incarnated, and for the honor of his army national which must be the guardian of justice and the sa-_ safeguarding human rights.

They proclaim that any violation of the law is a diminutiontion of the homeland;

They declare, in the current circumstances, as they have already done, whether to defend or excuse, whatever the pre-texts with which they are covered, the illegalities attributed to certain-
For certain military leaders, this is to betray the Revolution, it is to renounce it France in its historical role and its raison d'être, this se-would outrage the army, if it could be reached by solidarities whose insult she rejects;

They point to the conspiracy that has been hatched against legality and who openly calls for force against the defenders of the law; they denounce the clerics as architects of the conspiracy and the cesarean section, united, today as always, by the shared hatred of the Revolution of democracy and of the Republic, conspiring to bring down the France of 1789, to dishonor his national army and deliver it to reaction;

They congratulate the members of the Republican ministry for having finally outwitted the traps of the eternal enemies of freedom.

They encourage them to walk with a firm and rapid step in the paths to democratic progress that their act of loyalty will make them easier and straighter;

And they pledge to support them to the very end. against any offensive return of confessional reaction or Caesarean section, in the accomplishment of the work of justice and of legality that they have courageously undertaken.

We will add nothing to this highly suggestive document.

But let's give some—it's always good to know the names of his enemies, — the constitution of the new Freemasonry office:

President, Dr. Blatin, former deputy, socialist; first supervisor, Mr. Dubief, deputy of Mâcon, radical; second supervisor Mr. Charruault, editor in head of the African Union of Oran, radical-socialist; Speaker, Bourceret; Assistant Speaker, Doctor Laville of Bergerac, radical-socialist; secretary, A. Bouvret, Engineer, socialist; great expert, Doctor Foissac, from Montauban, radical-socialist (1).

(1) At the time when the Lodges and all the enemies of France were relentlessly attacking those of our institutions that had remained Standing, the Duke of Orléans launched this vibrant manifesto.

French !

has

The ringleaders of the heinous plot against honor and security the fatherland, have today thrown off the mask.

Intimidated by them, ministers stooped so low as to... to make them accomplices.

Nothing could make them back down, not even the re- claims blown up with significant brilliance by all those, military or civilians who have served successively at the Ministry of War.

Today, while acknowledging that there is no doubt about the The guilt of the condemned man did not arise in their minds;

Under the false pretext of calming public opinion
'whose authorized representatives they refuse to consult;

In defiance of universal suffrage, without which they are nothing,

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 497

There it is, still open, or at least the sects dear—
They will further accentuate the war against the Church.

We accept it, as I said at the beginning of this book, without thinking that events would give us so quickly, reason.

The Protestant Peril, the work of a patriot and a Catholic who rises, trembling with anger and indignation—tion, is a response to the enemies of God and of the France.

In any case, Brisson, the man of Freemasonry stupidity, has opened the review procedure to at the instigation of the sect. The lodges want it, she will have This place is inevitable, just as it will be FATAL for the Jews and other anti-patriots, if Dreyfus is acquitted.

And this work, Brisson, a cold-hearted sectarian, has accomplished it.

They have come to decide a question which, according to their deliberations Even they prove it, it's a national issue...

They seek to distort a truthful thought for their own benefit.
expressed from the French podium, which touched my heart:
"We are masters in our own house!"

French,

To be master in your own home, you must command, not obey.
However, the submissive servants of a hidden and malevolent power pretend to impose on you the will that they submit to

Will you suffer it?

French,

The Constitution is being torn apart by the very people from whom it was the only title and those who claimed it.
It no longer exists.

Your most sacred rights are being outrageously violated.
Will you suffer it?

French,

Under the pretext of exonerating the man whom the military courts-
They condemned him as a traitor; it's the army we want.
destroy and the France that we want to lose.

French,

We will not allow it.
PHILIPPE, Duke of Orléans.

28°

498 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

bends of its own authority, without any mandate – otherwise the Masonic mandate – since he had not formed his own ministry and obtained a majority only on the condition of being anti-revisionist. He simply betrayed the trust deputies while committing an illegality (1).
Brisson, moreover, is the man of all the illegals-laws, all abuses of power, all base grudges, all the hypocrisies, all the bad-vases actions which are chronic in him and inveterate, like certain shameful diseases.
As for his austerity, one of his compatriots who...

i |

(4) If we are to believe the Libre Parole of September 30, 1898, Here's how Brisson allegedly removed the ministers' vote, his colleagues, for the referral of the Dreyfus case to the Court of Cassation tion, despite the opinion of the Commission's advisory committee who had spoken out against the revision:

"The country is, for the most part, republican. But,
If I may not express myself in this way, the backbone of the Republican party since 1870 it has been constituted by the Israelites, the Protestants and The Freemasons.

"It was with them that the Republicans fought under the empire, with them whom we defeated on May 16th and at May 24; with them we have accomplished the republican reforms. blicaines.

They constitute the most authorized members and the most influential members of the Republican party.

"Now, I am struck to see that Israelites, Protestants and Franks-Freemasons have always been committed to the revision of the Dreyfus trial. And I know that to achieve this, they are determined to... to the worst extremes.

"Is it possible to take action against them, to bring charges against them?" What about the consequences? It would be the Republican party committing suicide. Even so. In my view, a transaction is necessary, and this The transaction can only be obtained by submitting the file. to the Court of Cassation.

"This submission does not in any way guarantee that the revision will be adopted" by the Court of Cassation.

"But this will be a satisfaction granted to the revisionists," And it is likely that their passion will be disarmed. I... Make the commitment on their behalf!!!

"I therefore propose that the case be referred to the Court of Cassation."

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 499

Knowing too much about her sad situation will expose her.

Judge for yourself:

Brisson was born in Bourges, on rue des Arènes, on July 91, 1835, son of a solicitor and a lady named Adèle Wheat.

He was sent to boarding school at the lycée in Bourges, then did his right.

As a student in Paris, it cost an arm and a leg. to his family, as he loved to celebrate so much.

So much so that one day, a friend of Henri's father, he said:

– You will soon be handing over your practice, Mr. Brisson, When you're as rich as you are, there's no need for anything more. to be concerned about business.

"Ah!" replied Father de l'Austère, "Henri me
It costs too much.

D tui was so expensive that he said he was putting a stop to his money transfers.

It was then that Henri Brisson, in order to be able to continue-determined to celebrate anyway, he took a job as a composer
Table at a Parisian building contractor's place!!!...

His boss wasn't even very happy with his employee:
Brisson.

Father Brisson untied the cords of his scholarship, but he soon had to tighten them.

Henry came to Bourges to beg him, and, on these points-made it, a very skillful thief, who no doubt had needing to, he seized the silverware belonging to the lawyer Brisson, leaving only a teaspoonful. We were never able to discover the culprit.

Brisson also later partied at Angelard who was a city councillor in Paris.

He wasn't exactly grateful to his father.
who had tasted so much, no more than for his mother.

He was the despair of his family. He married in May 1863.
after having summoned his parents, with a Saint-Simonian, named Julie, Alexandrine, Clorinde

500 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

Tajan-Rogé, daughter of a sectarian cellist and having numerous Protestant connections. The contract of The Austere's marriage took place at Mr. Leicbure's house.
St-Maur, notary in Paris.

This marriage was one of the main causes of the quarrel among the Brisson family (1).

She became so much so that Henri broke off all relations with her parents "without worrying about the grief that her con-
"The duite was causing us trouble," wrote Ms. Brisson, mother, to Mr. Ca-Cadier, in a letter made public and dated July 46, 1885.

And Mr. Brisson added:

"In the aftermath of my youngest daughter's death, he came to Bourges several times to preside over the general council general, without setting foot in the house, and left to die, his father, without seeing him again.

Finally, six months ago, when he came to attend at my husband's funeral, in these painful circumstances—loureuses which are for everyone an opportunity to rapprochement, not only did he not ask me, But he pretended not to see me; he maintained the same conduct towards my daughters and sons-in-law."

If Brisson is austere today, it's because — His age no longer allows him to party like he used to. the period of his travels in Egypt, for example, where he lives up close with the women of the Seraglio (2).

Some jokers claim that he was so enterprising nant that the Sultan ordered him to be given rank and qua-eunuch's bed...

And indeed, Brisson will leave no descendants...

(1) The consent of Brisson's parents & this marriage It was finally wrested from them on April 18, 1863.

(2) Brisson, having suffered from a laryngeal disease, was in Egypt to breathe the air of this country and take a cure, on the con—a doctor's seal.

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 504

In 1870–71, as there had been talk of doing part—. shooting everyone, Brisson, like a good patriot, made himself known—Sea, deputy mayor of Paris, which protected him Prussian bullets.

It might be useful to point out that the Brisson's cousin, having been, during this war, appointed civil administrator of the Nevers camp, a disorganization A complete organization ensued.

Military supplies accepted by the cousin were unusable. A Commission composed notably of The testimony of Messrs. Jérubin and Jot, saddlers, attested to this.

The military quartermaster having dared to do his duty and to monitor the actions of Henri's cousin, "the Aus—

"tère" once a member of parliament and powerful Freemason boasts of gea, as soon as he could, of this honest officer, by persecuting him-cutting. He had him appointed in a city, then, whatever-months later in another one.

It's so true that an officer attached to the minis-

The warlord and friend of this intendant said to him one day:

My poor friend, you will change garrisons as soon as-wind as much as possible; there are orders given for that;
Here are the cities you need to go to: from north to south, from
From east to west, changes multiplied.

Outraged, the military intendant resigned.
That was what Brisson wanted. His revenge was satisfied.
on the man who had had the great audacity to control the acts of Henri's cousin, Eugène Brisson, with with whom he was then on good terms.

502 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

_ 2¢
7+

In Cher, he served for three years as president of the general council.

However, he had not been elected as a member of that assembly.
It was in 1877. Brisson was running for office in the canton of Vierzon. This city knows him all too well, never having had him Brisson, who was not wanted at any price, was not elected despite the most shameful pressures. He was three votes short, but the Mayor Hurvoy, his creation, proclaimed him elected when same; only he kept the minutes instead of to send them to the prefecture. He hoped that this would...
The statute of limitations would be reached and the trick would be done. Three days would passed, and despite the telegrams from the prefect at the time, Mr. de Jouvenel, Mayor Hurvoy did not send the professionals.
these minutes were requested.

Very surprised, Mr. de Jouvenel dispatched his Secretary-General, Mr. de S'°-Marie, who finally brought them back!

It was observed that Brisson, although proclaimed elected, did not
It wasn't in the least.

The prefect then appealed to the Council of State. The report-

The carrier had already written his report, concluding that there was no election of the austere Brisson; the matter was about to come to a head-cussion, when M. de Jouvenel was replaced by M. Cottu, appointed to Bourges as Republican prefect and to the de-vote of this party.

He simply withdrew the complaint filed by his pre-the successor and the matter, thus hushed up, did not come to light-percussion at the Council of State.

And Mr. Brisson, having been proclaimed elected by the mayor of Vierzon, sat on the general council for six years and in He soon accepted the presidency. One is either austere or one is not. It is not.

6 tg

If you want to know now how far it can go

The hypocrisy of the Austere, know that he had an aunt in

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST _ 803

Estate of Ms. Brenon Fronteau. This aunt was very devout. And Brisson, a Freemason, every time he came In Bourges, he accompanied her to mass and vespers, religiously carrying the good woman's book of hours aunt.

He did even better. On the day of M"! Bre-non-Fronteau and his cousin Brisson, a very pious equal-ment, as well as on their birthday, He never failed to give them a small gift.

And believe me, he wasn't buying them a triangle or a Masonic gavel.

He always offered them religious objects, in particular rosaries, holy water fonts, religious images, etc. etc.

But poor Henri was really unlucky, his his aunt, who had made him her heir, disinherited him a few months before he died.

When we meet at the notary's office, he says:

— Gentlemen, I am going to read you the will-ment.

"We know him," said Henri Brisson, "I have the I've had a copy for many years, inherited from my aunt. Such a good aunt.

"My duty is to read it to you anyway," said the notary.

And he read that Brisson's aunt was bequeathing, by her last In his will, he bequeathed his entire fortune to the municipality of Bourges....

From that time on, Brisson harbored a deadly hatred for his hometown. There are no villains he has spared him. gnées. On bad terms with his cousin Eugène, for family matters to which the succession is subject that the old aunt's [situation] was not foreign, he employed all his influence against the capital of Berry, including his My cousin was the mayor.

The Prefecture of Cher and the judiciary of Bourges were populated by creatures of Henry that paralyzed the The administration, which is not very bright, is as good as possible. from cousin Eugène, Moreover, Henri Brisson has placed a very big name...

#04 | THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

A number of magistrates everywhere: people devoted to him The figure is estimated at 200 (4).

To return to the hatred he harbored for his hometown, It is worth recalling that he went so far as to prevent that The Saint-Maixent school was established at the Camp d'Avor.

Today, his resentment has not yet died down. Like rodents, it has long, sharp teeth. And it has Regarding the issue of tramways, he used his position of the owner of a house located at 37, rue Moyenne, and an influential member of the Republic, to oppose to the tramway, desired by the entire population, circ- culàt in this street.

He did everything he could to delay the signing of the decree of public utility authorizing the city of Bourges to lay tram tracks on the main roads, because that the municipality refused to buy the house the price required by |' Austere.

He even went so far as to keep the case file at home, and when, at the repeated insistence of the Prince of Arenberg, deputy from Bourges, who threatened Turrel, then minister of public works, during an interpellation, he consented. Finally, to sign the decree, he had to send for the file. at Brisson's house, who, suspecting nothing, had it handed to him.

Turrel then signed it in the presence of the deputy from Bourges. to Brisson's great fury.

For the sake of clarity in the narrative, it is useful to say that the Brisson's house, the object of his conflict with the city Berruyère, whom he managed to paralyze for two years

(i) One day, a certain Monsieur Bellonet arrived in Bourges, who A wine merchant in Poitou, he was appointed treasurer-paymaster-general from Cher, thanks to the support of a powerful Freemason figure. It wasn't long before malicious tongues began to whisper that the treasurer The general shared his salary with the Widow's son. S Mr. Henri Brisson, by virtue of his status as a former member of the the Masonic world, knew this Freemason by chance jui placed the treasurer-paymaster Bellonet in Bourges, who then left- He was managing his treatment with his protector, we would recognize him thanking you for informing us.

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 505

The installation of the tramways is subject to alignment.

And Brisson wanted to take advantage of it and took advantage of it for the sale- to pay 1/4 more than its value. He demanded 125,000 francs. Either 125,000 francs or no trams, that was his ultimatum. And Bourges, having no other way out, had to endure the claims of the Austere. Now, the said house was bought by his father, in 1844, at the price of 23600 fr. (1).

All these heinous actions, which originate from a family feud of which Bourges is once again a victim have more than one analogy with the quarrels of the great Sei-old-timers.

Like other laws, these are the subjects that the republicans People of all stripes have depicted the misfortunes that are part of them. victims, which proves that even if times have changed, The men have remained the same.

While we have this henchman of the Lodges, he is not
It might be worth mentioning that Brisson is the little ne-widow of a defrocked priest, Abbot Charles Brisson, who fled the priest of Nohant and a nun, Catherine Boutet. They They were married civilly during the Revolution (2).

d) 23,600 – 125,000 fr. | |

Do we know how much the Brisson building, which the president of the council sold almost by force to the city, costing his father in 1844?

23,600 francs. (Messenger du Cher).

At that time, the house in question was located in a dead-end street.
and it was the city which, by extending the Middle Street, gave it given more value.

So Mr. Brisson, who should be grateful to the city, demonstrated this to her by winning from her the modest sum of 101,500 francs...

(2) The Brisson marriage was not very close, but when the ex-
The abbot died, and his wife was so grief-stricken that on the day of the burial, when the clergy came to perform the removal of the body, She was treating herself to a cup of chocolate, a very analeptic, moreover.

Henri Brisson's father often said that the marriage of The uncle, the former abbot, and the former nun, were not blessed by heaven.
in terms of harmony.

29

506 THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST

Abbot Charles Brisson married on 29 Brumaire (November 49, 1793). His wife was 39 years old. She had made his religious profession among the Benedictines tines of Bourges, under the title of Sister Anastasie, in 1774.

She left the community in 1792 and died on the 41st April 1828 at the age of 74, long after her husband, who,
He died in 1804, after a last-minute marriage in the church.
from Saint-Bonnet.

This uncle of Henri Brisson was a fiery terrorist, as well as his brother, Blaise Brisson, known as the Younger:
who must be the grandfather of the Austere.

Ns are among the signatures on the lists of pros-description (Cher archives, series L. 148 at the time of our research).

From his paternal and maternal grandfathers, Brisson made a rich ancestral heritage.

The said maternal grandfather, named Déséglise, was representing the Convention in the Cher with a named Gangneron.

One day, they receive orders to conduct a search at the home of the Marquis de Bigny, accused of receiving letters from his emigrant parents.

Gangneron was examining the pieces near a large fire of the chimney; and like a good man, he threw indifferentlylying in the fire, which made them all shine, the letters, however perfectly innocent, which might have seemed suspicious.

Suddenly, he unfolds a note designed like this:

"My dear Marquis, despite the horrors of the times,
"You are still the Marquis de Bigny."

Gangneron made a start of fright; nevertheless, he recovered immediately and threw this letter again to
- fire.

But Brisson's grandfather had surprised the move-Gangneron's letter; he rushed to the letter, Par-spitting at the flames.

And his production led to the downfall of M. de Bigny, who was executed
- the same day as his correspondent MX... in order to have

THE PROTESTANT CONQUEST 507

he received a letter in which he was Marquis!!

This is from which thigh Brisson descends.

Wasn't it fitting that he should favor the Jacobites?
bins, his brothers, enemies of the army and defenders of the Traitors?

And these bandits are increasingly attacking with sabers and... aspergillum; as if the sword and the aspergillum had report to a wretch who sold France (1)!

And business is on hold, the Bankruptcies more numerous than ever, concern by-everything, civil war ready to erupt at the slightest shock, the Foreign war at our doorstep.

There you have it, yet another example of Protestantism's work.
allied with Judeo-Masonry.

Wasn't it the Huguenot Scheurer-Kestner who at-
The Dreyfusard bell has been stained!

It is therefore not insignificant that certain prefects or officials, whether Protestant, Jewish or Freemason when we realize all the evils caused by these sec-silences overwhelm France.

As an extra precaution, I will conclude by saying that if a few rare errors in name or religion of function tionaries, cited as Protestants, had slipped in in this chapter, this cannot alter its scope.

Here are a few names that could be mentioned here Inadvertently, I have, in my files, a hundred other names of high-ranking Huguenot officials to throw in their faces sect newspapers which, in order to harm my work, would have the audacious idea of issuing denials against me!

nt

(1) Brisson was overthrown by the House on October 25; he Wen has done no less than incalculable harm. He had time to refer the Dreyfus affair to the Court of Cassation, and the latter has concluded with a request for an investigation. This is a continuation of the actiontation. In the new Dupuy ministry, quite Dreyfusard, and which seems to us to be, from this point of view, the mi-Given the established fact, we find three Huguenots: Freycinet, Krantz and Delombre.

CHAPTER X

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

Sainte-Barbe High School. – Scandalous favors. ==.
Faculty of Protestant Theology. – Interpellation d'Hugues. – The naiveté of Catholics. – The libertarian utopia

Beral. – France is leaving. |

If Protestants are also numerous in the functions public actions, it seems, are because they are protected, favored by the State.

This chapter will prove it.

We don't want to go into too much detail, nor proceed using affirmations or savam- periods combined.

Rhetoric adds nothing to qualities and virtues. of the truth. It doesn't need to be dressed up in it. Ribbons or velvet, lace or silk. That's all to dress her simply, and better still, even more so, in the to lay bare, for she has nothing to hide, and her purity is such that it could not scandalize anyone.

However, in this particular case, it is difficult to consider. even more distressing to observe.

The favoritism enjoyed by Protestants, but You saw him first in the high-level administrative positions adorned by them; I will show it to you in another form, by providing facts, taken at random, in a pile of files.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 509

On April 5, 1897, in the Chamber, the Protestant deputy Camille Krantz interrupts Mr. de Bernis, who is at the 'tribune, and the meaning of its interruption is characterized-tick.

"Yes," said Mr. Krantz, "yes, I am a member of the council." administration of Sainte-Barbe and shareholder of this school institution for several years. That's because that I am familiar with the situation in Sainte-Barbe, and the pretensions that the party may have on this establishment that you represent, that I insisted on for the project of state buyout.

This cynicism struck me so deeply that I will quote the words of Mr. Krantz according to the Official; one will not be able to accusing me of exaggerating.

Mr. Camille Krantz, general rapporteur of the vomit-budget allocation. — I would be very grateful, Mr. de Bernis, not to proceed by insinuation. I have the honor to be part of the board of directors. of Sainte-Barbe.

Count de Bernis. — I never said the contrary.

Mr. Camille Krantz. — I have been a shareholder for quite some time. for years. It never earned me a penny (Very Good! Very good!

Count de Bernis. — I am quite convinced of it!
(Laughter on the right) And it's because I'm convinced of it that I I don't want the State to replace you in this role of sacrifice; that I don't want taxpayers to pay for you. I know you are acting out of devotion, but it shouldn't do not impose your devotion on others.

Mr. Camille Krantz. — Mr. de Bernis, I ask you permission to finish my sentence.

I want to tell my colleagues that it's because I con- I understand the situation in Sainte-Barbe, because I know the future to say that Saint Barbara can have and the claims that few- vent to have on this establishment the parties that you represent- Feel in this room (Very good! Very good on the left), that I insisted on in the Budget Committee for the vote of the project submitted to the House (Very good, very good).

/

510 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

Count de Lanjuinais. — Support Saint Barbara with your money and not taxpayers' money.

Count de Bernis: I am delighted with the explanations. very clear, very straightforward and very loyal that has just been given to us Mr. Krantz; I may establish shortly that in Indeed, that's the only good reason to give. He gave it to us. with the utmost candor, and I thank him for that.

I don't want to put Saint Barbara on trial. I would be very poorly placed for that. But I'm surprised that a student from Saint Barbara, as illustrious as Mr. Krantz, does not know that the party to which I am proud to belong has in no way the intention to wage war on Saint Barbara and wish only- to avoid expenses for the State in this circumstance useless.

How could this establishment not have all our Sympathies? As far as I'm concerned, several members of my family were raised there, and I assure you they are also Royalists, as I myself can be. (Very good, J, very good!) (and laughter on various benches to the right.)

I would add that well before them, we saw people leaving college of Saint Barbara of liberal minds in the true, elevated sense and worthy of the word; and they would never have squandered the finances of the State (Interruptions and protests on the left) in more or less unproductive affairs. These students really illustrious figures associated with Sainte-Barbe included Saint Ignatius of Loyola. Saint Francis de Sales (Exclamations on the far left and left).

I am forced to talk about the students of Sainte-Barbe. A little while ago, Mr. Krantz told me: "Name some names; don't don't engage in vague accusations | I denounce Saint Ignatius of Loyola (Laughter on the right) as having been a student of Sainte-Barbe, and I dare say one of the most illustrious. If they had better followed the traditions they had received there and which he then propagated throughout the world, establishing—current situation, which is led by others and in a different estaken, would probably be more prosperous. If one practiced better the feelings of charity which have probably been preached at Saint-François de Sales by the masters of his game—In nesse, we might have a stronger faith and traditions safer (Very good! very good! to the right).

I was only drawn into this digression by Mr. Krantz. himself, and I return to my subject.

– has

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 511

I wanted to observe that the same system continues Everywhere; it's war—a knife war, one can to say it, — that a certain party does, not knowing exactly what that he does (Noises on various benches). I claim that he doesn't They don't know in the slightest, and the best proof is... that at the very moment he speaks of the old traditions of Saint Barbara, he distances himself from her in the most ridiculous way and It's fair to say, the most violent (Interruptions on the memes) benches). |

Isn't it outrageous to come and take from someone's pocket? of the poor, through taxation, enough to support an institution of—destined. to raise a few fanciful bourgeois who do not want—slow step of true free education (Laughter on the right), which they don't even want regular instruction either high schools?

Mr. de Bernis being a deputy from Gard, where the Protestants have taken over everything, was particularly designated for to expose the little "tricks" of these fake liberals.

As for Mr. Krantz, he was all the more easily caught in his his own traps, which he had declared from the podium, few of moments. Previously, Sainte-Barbe no longer paid its shareholders for eleven years, that its administrators The investors no longer knew which financial saint to turn to, that the situation seemed unmanageable without intervention- tion of public finances through the assistance of the State.

But let's not forget that.

Mr. Krantz was at that time the general rapporteur of the budget. His candid admission was therefore impossible to ignore. more typical. As are his coreligionists and friends had had the Monge school bought back by the State in 1894 bankrupt at the cost of 5 million, he was similarly pushing the state will have to spend another 3 million to buy back Saint Barbara. As a Protestant, he gained positions there. assured, for a multitude of Protestant professors, as a shareholder of the bankrupt company, he was certain- to ensure that the funds advanced by him are guaranteed; as an anti-Catholic, he forced taxpayers to ca- Catholics to take their share of the maintenance of an establishment a place where one would never pray to God. Triple good af- to do for the Protestant: in general and for Krantz especially.

512 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

Needless to say, the T of the Chamber, in front which had raised the specter of the Jesuit, followed the Protestant path without even thinking that it was avoiding a clericalism to fall into something worse.

Clericalism! But it only exists against Catholics! liques. For Protestants and Jews, it is a letter dead.

The government does not fight this kind of clericalism: it protects him, favors him, it's his.

And it's not just in one part of France, it's everywhere. Nothing could be more logical, the State before to favor what is dear to him.

e
+ e

We read in the Salut of October 45, 1895.

We remember that a few months ago, regarding the denunciation-tion of a radical Lyon newspaper, the military authority inflicted two seminarians were given police room punishment soldiers who had committed the abominable crime of serving Mass in uniform.

We have learned that on Sunday afternoon, a corporal
From the 47th, also in uniform, preached at the temple Protestant church of the Place du Naye, in Saint-Servan. The gate of the
The temple was open to the public, and passersby stopped.
Many people came to contemplate this curious spectacle.

This Protestant corporal was never punished.

+
s @

We read in La Libre Parole of September 5, 1893.
If the Dominicans of Le Havre try to reopen the doors of their chapel, quickly the Lantern and the Radical they heat their molds, prepare the anti-clerical paste

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 513

wedge and, in less time than it takes to turn From his hand, he pulls out a piping hot, steaming article.
the cliché article where, in the name of the Immortals, one asks principles and equality before the law, which the government nement plans to do so in the presence of the audacious and deafening machinations of the Jesuits.

It is in the name of the same human rights and the same increasingly immortal principles that we farm in Bordeaux, La-Chapelle des Carmes.

We're not even just closing the chapels.
Catholic Human Rights—which become decidedly quite inconvenient for individual freedom — demand that none more be opened.

Read instead this excerpt from a letter addressed to us the Marquis de Lestrade.

"Owner of the land of Grange Arthuis, in the municipality of Lavan, canton of Saint-Fargeau, department of Yonne,
I had a building constructed there, in the park of my home, chapel. This chapel was built so that M[™] of Les-trade, my wife, whose state of health prevents her from doing any-placement, so that they can attend mass on Sunday, and plu-several times a week. The parish is, in fact, quite far away.
more than two kilometers from Grange-Arthuis.

I have all the necessary religious permissions. But the Mayor of Lavau, Mr. Marlot, a Freemason shoemaker, opposes Opening of this chapel, under the pretext that it will be a a political meeting place, a center of opposition to the government birth.

However, I am not even a registered voter in the department of the Yonne.

The Minister of Religious Affairs, listening to the prefect, who himself Listen, the mayor is going to forbid me from practicing my religion.
in this chapel, and threatens me with the affixing of seals if it is open for worship.

It remains clear that this pertains to private worship and not to... public worship, as mentioned in the 1812 decree: "None
A domestic chapel cannot be given over to worship without the au-government authorization. Under no circumstances should the chapels do-
"The facilities will not be open to the public."

20°

D14 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

This Marlot, shoemaker and mayor of Lavau, who doesn't want not that the Marquise de Lestrade goes to mass, is a true citizen, according to the heart of the Lantern and the Ra-digital.

Three years ago, the church in Lavau was partially

Struck by lightning, the municipality was forced to vote funds to have it covered.

According to the quotes, the new roof was supposed to be surmounted by a "hallmark" and architect's mark – between – for us, it was perhaps a somewhat retrograde mindset – believed that the punch that best suited a church For a Catholic, it was still a burden. So he had it put in place a cross.

The mayor of Lavau soon proved to him that he was not imbued with true principles... On August 45, 1892, he did sawing down the cross during the high parish mass... The prefectural authority remained silent: silence is golden. consent!

It must be said – in defense of the shoemaker Marlot – that the commune of Lavau, of which he is mayor, is led by a person of far greater stature than himself, by an eminent man, by a citizen of the first rank– Mero: We have appointed Mr. Paul Toutée as president chamber at the civil court of the Seine and advisor Mr. Paul Toutée, general of the canton of Saint-Fargeau, son-in-law of the late M[™]* Emile, the former owner of the dal Cows and the March Fair.

Mr. Paul Toutée made the noblest use of the fortune so painstakingly acquired by this honorable lady.

He bought the castle of Bléneau, the Bléneau of Tu– Rennes and Condé, the former residence of the princes of Courtenay, which is located in the vicinity of Saint-Fargeau.

It seems that the new lord Toutée, who te– monk in Paris of religious sentiments, to the point of to have his daughter educated by the nuns, shows himself in Bléneau of a fierce anticlericalism. He is committed, we are told, the inhabitants to be buried in a civil ceremony, and that is to because of him, especially since the young Mr. Poincaré has stubbornly refusing to allow religious services in the chapel erected by the Marquis de Lestrade. The Minister of Cults, in this circumstance, was truly inexcusable. to defer to Mr. Toutée's assessments; he should have reminded this magistrate that, less than who– conch shell, he had the right to deviate from the ideas of tolerance.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 515

rancid...

As for the newspapers we were talking about earlier, to these fanatics of freedom of conscience and equality before the law, we will remind them, among many others other similar events, the one recounted in these terms, the Archives israélites of October 23, 1890.

Mr. and Mrs. Léon Lambert, of Brussels, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Baron Gustave de Rothschild of Paris, have just to build, near Chantilly (Oise) a castle com- also including an Israelite oratory.

Chief Rabbi Zadoc Kahn will, it is said, proceed next- nement, at the inauguration of this small temple, in a region picturesque, where the God of Israel did not yet have an altar.

Come now, Mr. Ranc, you who claim to be the son of the Revolution, you want to tell us, in good faith and in a clear conscience, if one can deny a gentleman French an authorization so easily granted to a Belgian Jew?...

2
se

It was distributed to the Chamber on July 4th or 5th, 1898. a proposed law for the application, in the city of Paris, of common law with regard to payment housing allowances to ministers Protestant and Jewish religious practices.

This bill is signed by Mr. Charles Bos, Clovis-Hugues, Fournier, Alphonse Humbert, Mille- rand, Dejeante, Viviani, etc.

Here is the statement of reasons:

516 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

The ministers of the various religions recognized by the State, in In addition to their treatment, they are entitled to housing or, failing that of accommodation made available to them free of charge, at an in- representative allowance.

In all French municipalities, other than Paris, the responsibility falls to religious institutions to ensure this accommodation or this housing allowance.

In Paris, on the contrary, and only for religious services. Protestant and Jewish, we find ourselves in the presence of an undoubtedly exceptional malice; the only one of all the communes of France, Paris is bound by the obligation to pay housing allowances; in Paris itself, only the steps-Teachers and rabbis are entitled to this compensation, to the exclusion of priests of the Catholic faith.

It is this absolutely exceptional situation that motivates The present proposal: what its authors propose, it is to apply in Paris a rule that has been applied in France and to put an end to a situation that is in no way justified.

We wanted to give the essential parts of the statement of reasons, which is, incidentally, quite interesting so that our readers will find great pleasure in reading it.

We are not the signatories of this proposal, it is not we who are reporting this treaty-the preferential treatment enjoyed by rabbis and pastors.

Despite all the bad faith of the jokers who write in the Temple and Synagogue newspapers, I I challenge you to write that Millerand, Viviani and Alphonse Humbert, to name just one, are clerics.

They simply are, and just as we are we ourselves, supporters of equality, and while Paris includes a tiny minority of Protestants and Jews, They do not want the ministers of these religions to be favored.

Written from Lodève on November 25, 1896.

Recently – Sunday the 22nd of this month, while I was at On business in Lodève, I went to mass and as I waited

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 517

At the time of the service, I saw them leaving the courtroom of justice Peace, which is adjacent to the cathedral, some people endi-handles. My curiosity was piqued and I learned, oh tolerance, that the city of Lodève did not possess a Protestant temple So much so, Mr. Justice of the Peace Pignan, law graduate, former Pasteur, originally from the Gard region, officiated in the courtroom of the The justice of the peace building, which is state-owned. Thus the judge

The House of Peace uses the praetorium to celebrate its services, then that this building is specifically designated for the purpose of rendering the justice.

When state-owned buildings are not used for the Protestant worship, they are made available to the assemblies Masonic unions; this is how Mr. Léon Bourgeois, As a minister, and passing through Lyon in 1896, he was held a Masonic meeting at the Prefecture.

The details were provided by the Public Safety Commission. put a few words in an article, saying that a senator or a member of parliament wishing to enter a room, He was prevented from doing so by a bailiff, who told him that he did not could enter, because the Temple was covered.

At the time of the events in Madagascar, you have you seen Pastors Lauga and Kruger travel the France to denigrate General Gallieni and defend the English Protestants of this French island.

The government didn't even call these people to order. anti-French pastors.

I could give you 50 examples of priests, like the one from Donzy (Nièvre) who was thrown in prison for the offense of a procession; or again, this priest who lives in sup- to prioritize his treatment because he had said from the pulpit to his parishioners, during the election period:

"Vote the way you would have liked to have voted at the time of death.

And since I'm talking about treatment, do we know how much a Does a country priest receive state aid?

318 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

Nine hundred francs.

Do we know how much a low-class pastor earns? corresponding to the country priest?

Eighteen hundred francs.

In Algeria, state loans for Protestants are 2 francs 40 per head; however, they pay 4 francs 46 per head for Catholics.

'If you don't want to believe me, you only have to consult the report prepared by Mr. Burdeau in 1892.

In many Protestant churches, it has been established for a long time, religions have been separate from the State, supported by the faithful, whose number is often more considerable than that of the Protestants who remained attached to the official establishment. Despite these changes, the State continues to appoint to official positions not-authors who, in several cases, are on the budget of the State without having much to do in their church almost abandoned.

Here are some precise facts and figures.

In Tonneins (Lot-et-Garonne) there is one of these independent cults pendants; nevertheless, the number of pastors appointed by the state is the same as before the existence of the new cult, of so that, for thirteen hundred Protestants, there are three in Tonneins pastors receiving state salaries.

The same is true in Montauban.

In Montpellier, three pastors are appointed and paid by the State, while nearly half of the population protests. The church of this city has its own pastors, chosen and paid by the church itself. through her, who perform baptisms, sermons, weddings, funerals in a place of worship built for that purpose.

+
@ +

The state does not maintain Catholic seminaries. subsidizes Protestant seminaries, in particular

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 519

those from Paris and Montauban for a sum of 424,000 francs per year.

He also gave 22,000 francs to Jewish seminaries, which proves that the State is wrongly accused of not having- See more about religion.

He has two.

I don't want to push my investigations any further—
As for the facts, I have already discussed them at length.

However, before concluding, I feel I must publish, the speech delivered by Count Hugues on the 23rd November 1896, in the Chamber of Deputies.

It relates to Protestant theological faculties and it is enlightening.

Count d'Hugues. — Gentlemen, I request that we removes from chapters 7 and 8 the sums allocated to the theo-Protestant logic to report them to religious services,

I was criticized for giving my amendment a Vague wording, not specifying the figure. But I
The answer to this question can be found in Mr. Bouge's report.
jettion.

The Rapporteur himself said at the beginning of these observations—tions on chapter 7.

"This chapter is difficult to read. In the group—" categorizing by faculty makes it difficult to recognize oneself to be born.

That's exactly what the honorable said the other day
Mr. Dufaure, when he reminded us that certain parts of our budgets are incomprehensible. This is also what happens to about the faculties. There is in these two chapters an ena tangle of credits such that one cannot distinguish what These credits apply.

These chapters therefore contain the sums paid for the faculties of Protestant theology. I wonder why—These sums are not allocated to religious institutions. Secondly
One thing: either the Protestant theological faculties

520 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

are a matter of teaching, or else they are a
A matter of worship.

In the first scenario, we must reach an agreement, and not to say, for example, that teaching must be neutral, does not

It shouldn't have a confessional aspect, but then I'm... ask why Protestant teaching would be tolerated by the State, whereas Catholic education is not (Very Good, very good on various benches). I wonder in particular Why was the Catholic theological faculty of the Sorbonne, and why the faculty of theology was retained Protestant church (Very good, very good, on the same benches.) On the far left. Demand the removal of both!

Count Hugh. – It is indeed important, logically-ment, or that the ogedit which is brought to this chapter for either the Protestant theological faculties are abolished, or From the point of view of teaching, that this teaching be rid of this Protestant tint and that you dream- deny secular education, neutral education (Very Good! Very good (on the far left). I'm saying that from the moment where you want secular education and education neutral, you cannot tolerate this teaching either Protestant rather than Catholic.

Mr. Jaurès. – Perfectly! Ask for the i of the If it's approved, we'll vote for it with you!

Count Hugues. I couldn't ask for anything better than to demand the cancellation of the loan. It's even in the the meaning of this process is why I insist on its removal sums allocated in this budget, requesting that they or referred to the chapter on religious worship.

Once this change has been ensured, we will be able to distinguish- war, see clearly what the credit is, and & at that moment the Chamber, I am convinced, as a matter of equality, not to- There will be no better way to support this suppression.

I believe the explanations I gave in response to the observations that have been made to me on this side (extreme left) sufficiently justify my amendment, and I Get off the podium (Very good! Very good! on various benches).

Mr. President. – The floor is now open to the Minister of Ins- public education.

Mr. Alfred Rambaud, Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts. – Gentlemen, I believe there is no more reasons for handing over the faculties to the Ministry of Religious Affairs of Protestant theology that there would be none to put back the law faculties at the Ministry of Justice.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 521

We were asked earlier if we considered the Protestant theological faculties as institutions teaching. I reply: Yes, certainly, we let us consider them as such.

Mr. Mirman. – I request the floor.

Mr. Minister of Public Instruction and Fine Arts.
– If you voted to abolish the faculties of theology Protestant, if you were to allocate their budget to the religious affairs budget, The education of future pastors would take place in establishments similar to Catholic seminaries, in establishments actions of a strictly protestational nature, (Very Good! Very good! o 9

Mr. Jaurès. – Say "confessional."

Mr. Minister. – I said "professional" but it's the The same thing, in this species. Why the faculties of theology– Do the Protestant churches of France wish to remain in the Uni– University of France? Why did they express this desire? in a large number of deliberations? I regret not not having these documents in front of you, because the terms in are sometimes very eloquent and very elevated. That's because they want their students to be more than just educated from this professional or religious point of view, which I I was talking about earlier, but that they receive more education a larger, more liberal and freer university.

Count d'Hugues. – I request the floor.

Mr. Minister. – I therefore believe that we must refer to the wishes of these faculties...

Mr. Gabriel Dufaure. – They are privileged.

Mr. Minister... to the needs of this recruitment in the liberal sense, which I have just indicated and left the budget– get of the faculties in chapters 7 and 8 of the instruction budget– public tion.

A little while ago, Mr. d'Hugues asked why we don't did not treat the faculties of theology pro– testating and the faculties of Catholic theology; in other terms, why we removed the seconds and why We keep the first ones.

You remember, gentlemen, under what conditions and Under the influence of what considerations did the elimination of the budget for Catholic theology faculties. The reason for this is that in the degrees awarded by the faculties In Catholic theology, the State was not taken into consideration for appointments to ecclesiastical positions. That was the main reason, or at least the one that was principalmeat evoked (Ironical exclamations on the right).

On the contrary, as in Protestant denominations, that of Geneva as well as that of Augsburg, it seems desiring that pastors have a university education and university degrees.

Mr. Millerand. – That's none of our business!

Mr. Minister... – These ranks are strictly required– to such an extent that no one can be appointed pastor without produce the bachelor's degree in theology; you understand– It's perfectly clear that Parliament, on a certain day – no my time obviously – made a difference between the two orders of theological teaching.

I therefore ask the House to postpone the fine– presented by Mr. d'Hugues and to leave things as they were the state (Various movements).

Mr. President. – The floor is now open to Mr. Mirman.

Mr. Mirman. – Gentlemen, the question is not to know if the very honorable deans and if the professors of theo– Protestant ideologies have expressed a desire to remain in the Uni– university. The question is whether we should keep them there. (That's what the far left is all about). However, I don't believe that the rai– that the sounds provided to us by the Minister are sufficient.

The Honourable Mr. Rambaud recalled the debate following the– which Catholic theological faculties had been sup– award-winning; I have also referred to them, Mr. Minister, and I wanted to find out what the reasons for what I considered an anomaly – because I call anomaly the existence, in the midst of your teaching su– superior, whose character must remain exclusively secular, of the only Protestant theological faculties.

The reasons we imagined at that time, and that I I will remind you, these are not sufficient, in my opinion, to justify the state of current events. g

The Budget Commission, in 1884, had initially been fa– predisposable to the suppression of two orders of faculties, Catholic-religious and Protestant.

She later partially reversed her decision and...

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 593

proposed to the Chamber the elimination of the only faculties of Catholic theology. The report had been written by Mr. Antonin Dubost, and the author of the report on the proposed law filed by Mr. Paul Bert and seeking the removal of The Catholic theological faculty was Mr. Boysset. Two agreed to specify the reasons that motivated, in their view, the difference in treatment to be applied to Catholic theology faculties that were being eliminated part, and to the Protestant theological faculties that one maintains-held from the other. These were the reasons given.

"Protestant theological faculties fulfill a mandatory preparatory role identical to the role of the Catholic seminaries; indeed, they originally carried The name of Protestant Seminaries was changed. the name does not alter the intended use, which was originally assigned to them. We are reduced to respect the current state of affairs with regard to the "Protestant Seminaries" as much as for the benefit of the "Catholic Seminaries" as they are established both sides.

That is to say, in the minds of the members of the Parliament which, at that time, suppressed the faculties of Catholic theology and respected the faculties of theology Protestant churches were the only breeding grounds where the clergy Protestants could recruit their future pastors; they considered would treat these faculties like Protestant seminaries and this are in fact Protestant seminaries (.i/. the minister (makes a sign of denial). These are seminars at least by their purpose, at least by their destination and future laughter from the young people who are there, and that is why, Gentlemen, I join in the proposal which is This is done and consists of transferring this credit to the budget for religious affairs. where he will truly be in his place.

Whatever their personal worth may be – I don't He does not dispute it – however eminent their minds may be, there is no there is no reason that can justify the presence today in the Higher Council of Public Instruction, of the dean from the Protestant Faculty of Theology.

The Minister of Public Instruction does not want to em-sinning—and on this point he is right—the recruitment of different clergy.

The Protestant clergy has the high and justified ambition that The Minister of Public Instruction has just expressed to us... to prioritize, and which we also know, to make of its pastors of educated men well-prepared for the functions the duties they are called upon to fulfill.

But it is in establishments called seminaries
— it doesn't matter whether or not ranks are awarded there.

Count d'Hugues. — Perfectly!

Mr. Mirman... that such dogmatic preparation is being made tick.

I believe that the Minister of Public Instruction does not does not sufficiently justify the current state of affairs. and whatever the state of mind, very different from ours, which has Having guided the author of the amendment, I ask the House to adopt it (Very good! very good! to Vatrême left).

Count d'Hugues. — After the words of Mr. Mirman, from which it follows that a large number of my colleagues They support the same thesis as me, I give up on going back at the podium and I stand by my amendment.

Mr. President. — The floor is now open to the Minister of Ins-public education.

The Minister of Public Instruction. — Gentlemen, Mr. Mirman supposes that the Protestant theological faculties They are simply seminars. I regret not having before my eyes was the course program of the faculty of theo-Protestant logic of Paris; we could convince ourselves that this program includes history, a very exegesis free, knowledge of the languages necessary for these studies.

Mr. Mirman. — Catholic faculties too!

Mr. Minister... and that it is conceived in such a spirit larger than that of the other faculties.

So we are dealing, not with a seminar, but well to a faculty. Furthermore, this faculty is related intimate with others and takes pride in its bonds of solidarity with them. – There are few students in theology faculty Protestants who are not registered, at the same time, in other faculties.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM _ 525

Mr. Lemire. – The students of the Catholic faculties were formerly in the same situation.

Mr. Minister. – So there is a method of education here, very broad and very liberal, which you must not let down (Very good! Very good! on various benches).

Count d'Hugues. – I request the floor.

Mr. President. – The floor is now open to Mr. d'Hugues.

Count Hugh. – My lord, I cannot come to take that the Minister of Public Instruction comes to support such a thesis from this platform. All in all At the time, he said – I don't think I'm mistaken – that the railway The sound we had put forward – I emphasize this point – was that Pastors had to pass exams and obtain a certificate. of instruction and that it was precisely for this reason that due to the maintenance of Protestant theological faculties.

However, I do not see, at least as far as I am concerned, for What, this teaching certificate couldn't also be obtained? well under the direction of the religious affairs administration as under the directorate of public education administration.

Mr. Lemire. – That's obvious!

Count Hugh. – There is, in my opinion, a point here discussion that I am asking you for, in my capacity as a Catholic-lique, the permission to show in a different light (Movement= various items).

I absolutely want to do it; it won't invalidate anything. the scope of my argument (Speak from various benches to RIGHT).

Indeed, we must say here frankly and completely the his underlying thought. As far as I'm concerned, then, I believe that If this chapter has not been included in the religious texts, the reason is simply that we do not have a minister of religious affairs who defends his subordinates and the people who have dealings to his administration, like the Minister of Education public does so for the people who are under his orders; It's that instead of having a minister of religious affairs, we have A Minister against religions (Very good! very good! on the same benches on the right). Every time it comes to the per-sounds that are subject to the administration of religious affairs, we Let us see how Mr. [Name]'s intervention translates from this platform. Minister of Religious Affairs, not for the defense of those concerned, but on the contrary, for requests to abolish trafficking-either by sending letters like the one that, all recently, he addressed the bishops (Various Movements).

526 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

I repeat; this is a minister against religions that we We have, and not a Minister of Religious Affairs. (Very good! Very good!) various benches on the right).

Mr. President. – Messrs. Millerand, Deville Jaurès, Vaillant and Gérault Richard, propose to reduce it by 89,800 francs. the credit allocated to Protestant theological faculties and by consequently reducing the credit from chapter 7 to 9. 271,878?

Mr. René Goblet. – This entails the suppression of the cult Protestant.

Mr. President. – I understand that Mr. d'Hugues accepted the formula of this arrangement and rallied to it.

Mr. Count d'Hugues. – Perfectly.

Mr. Jules De'afosse. – But first, we would need to decide on the transfer.

Mr. President. – I put to a vote the consideration-the amendment which was rejected by the government by the Commission.

There is a request for a vote signed by Messrs. Rouanet-Chauvière, Coutant, Viviani, Grousset, Vaillant, Pajot Carnaud, wr Turigny, Chassaing, Compayré, Argeliés, Franconia, etc.

The polls are open:

Number of voters: . ee + . 521
Absolute majority. . . . èe . . . 261

For adoption... 200
Against... a ee . 32i

The Chamber of Deputies did not adopt it.

Count Hugh. – I will, then, resume my fine-
Mr. President, and I request the transfer to the budget.
religious services, funding allocated to faculties of theology pro-testante. (Interruption in the middle.) This is not at all the same thing, since there is no reduction in funds.
I hope the House will accept my amendment. (Mouvarious items of clothing.)

Mr. Charles Ferry. – Never.

Count d'Hugues. – I don't see why MC Ferry protests.

Mr. Charles Ferry. – We know why you are that.

Count Hugues. – I know that too (laughter).

Mr. President. – I will now put the question to a vote.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 597

by Mr. d'Hugues – if he does not object, under the in the form of a request for referral to the Budget Committee, which would be required if there were a need to carry out ventilation credits for chapters 7 and 8 (Very good).

I am consulting the House on the referral to the Committee.

(The Chamber of Commerce does not pronounce the referral).

Mr. President. – Consequently, the proposal of Mr. d'Hugues is not adopted.

Count d'Hugues. – We will take up the matter again next year next (Noise).

I don't see what comment could make res-to further highlight the favoritism enjoyed by the protestifying that this interpellation of the Count of Hugh and this vote by the House in favor of maintaining the fa-Protestant theological practices.

Mr. d'Hugues' request was quite logical, we it seems.

Why maintain this privilege for Protestants?
when it was taken away from Catholics several years ago liques?

The Minister – he may be Protestant – defended this power, and it was maintained by 321 votes against 200.

That's strange, because these 321 votes are not votes of Protestants.

How can this be explained?

The Journal des Débats recounts that, in a Conference held in Privas the previous Sunday, we had voted on an agenda to "complain about the hoardingthe influence, positions and functions of the Republic
"public by a religious minority."

The newspaper added that it was Protestantism.
and he moaned about what he called an excitement-tion to religious war.

We should, however, take a closer look at what's going on.

Is maintaining the faculty of theology pro-
The testator at the Sorbonne is not proof of the in-extraordinary influence of Protestants in the administration.

598 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

tion? |

And isn't it true that the Protestants have-Vahi, the ministries where they call the shots?

It's only for them and for the Jews.

These two minorities monopolize everything.

All the good positions are occupied by these people.
there, as we saw in the previous chapter.

As for the results, they are quite disappointing.

It was the Protestant Freycinet who allowed the English to seize Egypt, and that is the diplomacy of the protesting Waddington, our ambassador in London, who made the English so insolent towards us; without to assume that it was the Protestant Laroche who did so well managed to turn our Madagascar colony upside down.

And what about the Dreyfus affair?

The Journal des Débats quotes Louis XIV and the revocation of the Edict of Nantes.

He does not say that, in all the books approved by the University, this political act of the great king has been absothoroughly distorted, and that not one of these books gives to the youth the real reasons for the disgrace of Protestants.

The idea of revoking the Edict of Nantes was one of the wiser than Louis XIV ever had.

Unfortunately, it was not implemented.
as was appropriate, but by revoking the Edict of Nantes, The Sun King was in harmony of feelings with Henry IV, who had granted this edict.

By ceding, almost against his will, these privileges to the pro-by their will, Henry IV had the tacit hope of withdrawing from them little by little, what he granted them.

This is what pastors Couve and others would have said at the Congress of Nantes held in June 1898 and this that we will historically prove to the protesters whenever they want.

Moreover, Louis XIV regarded religious unity

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 529

as a necessary guarantee of political unity and of absolute power.

Had not Bossuet just expounded in the oration fu-
The nephew of Ilenriette of France, that the diversity of sects had the fall of Charles I in England led to this?

Louis XIV feared seeing the same causes proto produce the same effects in France, especially since the French Protestants had begun negotiations secrets with Comwel.

French Calvinists were accused of applauding the
The success of the Calvinists in Holland, and they were said to be everything ready to support a landing by Corneille Tromp on the coasts of Guyenne and Poitou.

Hated by Catholics, they were for some provinces a constant source of concern, and they were going to be a serious danger with the help of the foreigner--ger.

Therefore, public opinion was protesting against them. severe measures like the Protestants of Holland and England used them against the Catholics liques.

We shouldn't judge past centuries with ideas of ours.

The Edict of Nantes was considered a transaction revocable operation, and he had always encountered opposition tion which grew even more during the Dutch War.

Louis XIV followed rather than instigated the movement. general information.

And the revocation of the Edict of Nantes stirred up in France a lively enthusiasm.

Finally, the Protestants reconquered and beyond the 70 strongholds that the Edict of Nantes granted them.

They were in the majority in a recent ministry.

Majorities must not abuse their power. (even against Greece and Spain), but the minorities They are at fault for not respecting social conventions.

However, the Protestant minority is, according to its own 30

530 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

figures, of 650,000 people, and it holds a name-disproportionate number of places and situations.

That's the key point to remember.

++

fl it's not just for Protestant theology faculties—that Protestants are favored; they are favored because the free exercise of their religion, for their meetings of pastors, while bishops and Catholics are hunted down like Native Americans.

The questioning of Mr. Count on March 11, 1897
Hugues will show us this touching inequality.

It will necessarily be recognized that our documents do not are, at least, not fanciful; all are drawn from authorized sources, and in particular the Official Journal or among Protestants themselves.

DISCUSSION OF AN ARREST

Mr. President. — The agenda calls for the dis_ cussion of the interpellation of Count Hugues on the Protestant Congress held in Lyon on November 2, 1896.

Mr. d'Hugues has the floor.

Count Hugh. — Gentlemen, I will go through everything first complete the statement that the President has just read—Chamber tooth.

My request for questioning was a little longer.
Here's how it was designed:

I am requesting to question the Government on the Congress Protestant meeting held in Lyon on November 2, 1896, in a building public gathering of state-employed pastors simultaneously, delegates from the one hundred and four consistories of France and Algeria have expressed wishes of a certain nature essentially political.

Mr. Henri Ricard (Côte-d'Or). — That smells like dis
They must be burned.
D ee AE E EAEN

(4, President of the National Agrarian Party.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 531

Count d'Hugues — No, my dear colleague, he

They shouldn't be burned; I don't know if you are too Protestant, but I'm not asking for them to be burned. All I ask is the same freedom for we only for them. I don't want to prevent the protesting them to meet, no more in Lyon than anywhere else; but I ask that we have the same tolerance for Catholics—and if you shout against Catholics when they They hold conferences, I'm warning you in advance, we will shout every time we see the pro-Testators, Jews, or others hold congresses. That's which is why I am here at this podium.

Mr. Decker David! – What others?

Count d'Hugues. – The Muslims, if you Do you want to, or do your radical friends?

In the letter from the Minister of Justice to the bishops, dated November 17, 1896, there is a sentence that I asks for permission to pass again right before your eyes. It is said:

No meeting foreign to their exclusive destination could not be authorized or tolerated in the buildings domaniaux assigned by the State to the service of the bishops or in the outbuildings of these buildings.

And previously, on November 42, 1896, Mr. Darlan had said from the podium of the House.

We will not have double standards.

Well, gentlemen, let's see if Mr. Darlan hasn't There were no double standards.

Protestant congresses were held in France. congresses have followed one another almost without interruption since A number of years. The last few, I don't know. If I list them correctly in chronological order, they are those of the Rochelle, from Paris, from Le Vigan, from Saint-Quentin, from Mar-Seille, Sedan, Nantes, and finally that of Lyon. November 2nd. In these Congresses, it was taken, I

532 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

I will prove it in a moment, deliberations of which certain-

Some were essentially political.

Since you forbid Catholic priests from to hold deliberative assemblies, since you claim-dez that it is a political goal they are pursuing when they meet "simultaneously" at a point on the ter-
In short, I believe the same criticism can be made of...
Protestant pastors, when they meet in the —~ same conditions.

But let's go even further; you want to ban to Catholics and Catholic priests the right to holding any public assemblies, whereas at These meetings include foreigners. I could hear the other day, by Mr. Gérault-Richard, whom I see at his bench, to cite in particular, as a foreigner, Abbot Cetti, Al-Sacien, who had participated in the anti-Semitic congress in Lyon.

Mr. Gérault-Richard. — I wasn't complaining. I
I was saying that we hadn't taken the same approach towards him measures concerning a certain socialist deputy.
I would have liked both to be given the same freedom,

Count Hugh. — Since that was your
In conclusion, I won't insist.

But at the Congress of Sedan held by the Protestants, I notes the presence not of just one, but of at least Fifteen foreign pastors. I find their names in the Echo.
from the Synod of Sedan, issue of Tuesday, June 2, 1896.

Here they are: Pastor Andry, from Tournai (Belgique); Pastor Dardier, from Geneva (Switzerland); Pastor Dumont, from Neuchâtel (Switzerland); Mr.
Pastor Duncan-Campbell, from Edinburgh (Scotland);
Pastor Kennedy-Anet, from Brussels (Belgium);
Pastor Mac-Kintosch, from London (England);
Pastor Meyhoffer, from Brussels (Belgium);
Pastor Monvert, from Neuchâtel (Switzerland); Mr.
Pastor Necker of Geneva; Pastor Pons, from Torre-Pellice (Italy); Mr. Pastor Porret, from Ge-Neve; Pastor Richard, from Amsterdam (Netherlands); Pastor Rivier, from Aigle (Switzerland); Pastor

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 533

Rochedieu, from Brussels, (Belgium); Pastor

Thélin from Lausanne (Switzerland),

I'm not making this up. All these people, these crazy people— Protestants, including foreigners, did indeed attend the Congress of Sedan, in June 1895. I was not questioned on the Congress of Sedan, but since this Congress preceded that of Lyon, allow me to show you that the situation to which I will draw the attention of the Chamber has already been in existence for a long time. This Congress of Sedan had also been a deliberative assembly and a political assembly. You will judge for yourselves by these simple lines that are extracted verbatim from the speech of our virtue of the president of Sedan, Mr. Pastor Goulden. N said:

"I see the heroic times of the Church of France, with its Protestant princes, its academic— My, his doctors, who, with the help of the spirit of God, competed so powerfully during the 16th century — the 16th century, — Gentlemen, this is the era of the Wars of Religion; we will come back to that in a moment — competed if I may — savantly during the 16th and 17th centuries to raise and to preserve the great building of the Reformed Church in our par— — tie.

I would like to mention two facts from this glorious past.

Firstly, the meticulous care with which the pastors and the professors at the academy have striven to maintain intact the teaching and faith of the reformers including Jesus— Christ and the apostles provided the elements. This faith— The bust was the power that wrested from the Catholic Church the half of its members.

If I quote this sentence and this passage, it is for my— to find that there was indeed a political assembly there.

Politics was also involved in Lyon.

Everywhere, Protestant congresses are appealing to these times heroic battles where they fought against the Catholics, and you You will see later that for the Lyon Congress we went further and they asked for the reinstatement of a central synod, a kind of central committee capable of directing war operations against the party Catholic and to act on the government.

20°

I call upon your full attention to this matter, gentlemen. and I believe it's useful for preventing conflagrations—actions that could take place later. The days—Protestant leaders declared that the Congress of Lyon It was not a political congress.

Mr. Cinrad de Witt. — I request the floor.

Count Hugh. — Well! I affirm, in the con—milking, that it was an essentially political Congress (Noise). I'm annoyed that this question doesn't interest anyone. more so than some of our colleagues, but I will continue still, because it is of very great importance. This is not the first time I've worn This forum raises a new question, a thankless task, but We will soon realize that the Protestant question is worth the most painful of all.

At present, as Mr. Bour— once said geois at this platform, the discussions on the religious idea These are discussions that dominate all politics. See what's happening right now on many points of view in France: all these meetings, all these Congresses, in which religious ideas are invoked gious. Well! Gentlemen, it is good not to en—I'm here to hear a bell. I bring the sound of the micnne and I am convinced that, soon, this will not be the last—'nière. Besides, I know several members of parliament who are inter—I feel the same way I do at the conferences given these days. last ones on all points of our territory, either by Mr. Georges Thiébaud, or rather, Pastor Lauga, either by other speakers. It is therefore useful to bring this Protestant question, although new here before The Chamber.

I was saying that in Lyon, there had been an Assembly—politically deliberative sentiment. I insist on this because I was told that this As—it seemed to have no political character and that I

Year

I had no right to worry about it. You're going to judge.

The Catholic episcopate has been criticized here for having held a political meeting in Reims, solely because that Archbishop Langénieux had convened "simultaneously-Nément" all members of this French episcopate: or, in Lyon, the delegates of the one hundred and four consistories The French had arranged to meet. None of them missed- He answered the call, and each had even four delegates, two pastors and two lay people, per consistory.

And if you want further proof that this synod has It had the essential character of a political assembly and deliberating, please allow me to put under your eyes the following passage from a newspaper.

There are 104 consis- on the territory of France and Algeria the offices of the Reformed Church to serve and administer the worship of 650,000 Calvinists.

These 104 consistories all, without exception, delegated simultaneously in Lyon, a pastor and a layman; and, in addition, as is done for senatorial elections, a step- a substitute teacher and a lay substitute.

These 416 delegates or alternates met in Lyon, on Monday, November 2, 1896, in a public building.

Why, Mr. Minister of Religious Affairs, when I reported the facts to you, didn't you write to the pastors, directors of Protestant consistories including delegates had met in this building?

Mr. Jumel. - Which building?

Count d'Hugues. - The temple in Lyon, that is a public building, subject to concordat rules, by the law of 48 Germinal, year X.

Mr. Jumel. - It is not a concordat.

Count d'Hugues. - So be it! It is a building subject to the regulations of the concordat, if you prefer.

Mr. Jules Guesde. - What is the Concordat for The Protestants?

Count Hugh. - Are you then unaware?

Mr. Guesde, that Calvinist churches fall under the Concordat by the organic articles, as well as the Catholics?

Please do some research and you'll see.

Oh! You can laugh about it, Mr. Guesde (1), but you will not prevent the Protestants, in terms of our current legislation, fall under the Concordat as well although Catholics and Israelites.'

I continue reading:

These 416 delegates or alternates met in Lyon, on Monday, November 2, 1896, in a public building and there held for several days, morning and evening, until exhaustion of their agenda, veritable assemblies deliberative.

The purpose of the meeting and deliberation, as well as this This is noticeable in almost all Protestant affairs. is such that it is impossible for a mind in good faith to separate the political question from the religious question.

The goal was to achieve the Restoration, constantly striving to-followed for a century and constantly rejected by the French state Spanish (except in 1872), of a general synod, which would be invested with the upper echelons of Protestant interests and should to be represented before the government.

(1) "We are loath to play the role of public accusers against the long series of centuries that are behind us. We do not deny- neither give birth to nor insult any of the different phases of evolution. social solution; we classify them, proclaiming their reason for being necessary and successively rendering them justice. That's how it is that in this thirteenth century, to which the other day alluded our colleague Mr. Lemire, the Church - we are not making any the difficulty of admitting it - played a very large and very useful role. It was she who stood up to the men clad in iron. at that time, not only physically but also morally, was the the only intellectual power capable of imposing a limit, of to curb, at least relatively, the brutality and violence everyday inequalities." (Jules Guesde, Official Journal of June 27) 1896).

Why then are the socialists rising up against
The church in all circumstances?
Because they are part of the Masonic lodge.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 537

It was to the "loud applause" of the Assembly, he said.
the minutes of the meeting of Wednesday, November 4, that Messrs. Doumergue and Jalabert have a proposal adopted under the terms of which we will immediately discuss the motions aimed at giving the church a representationtion to the government...

Therefore, we cannot say that the Assembly
It was not political.

And right from the start of the session, Mr. Doumergue had filed a motion according to which a Standing Committee and a delegation, meeting periodically, would form the Church's representation to the government, with power to convene the Assemblies.

And to further clarify the nature of the Restoration, of the Presbyterian synodal system which was for many in the harshness of the religious struggles of previous centuries, Mr. Ja-Labert was able to say, to the acclamations of the Assembly, that he
"It was about returning to the traditions of our fathers."

The whole thing was formulated as a resolution and presented at the morning session the following day, Thursday, November 5, and definitely voted on at the last session of the same day, which ended with music, specifically Luther's chorale.
by the entire Assembly.

Mr. Bovier-Lapierre. – "What is the newspaper that gives
This report?

Count Hugues. – It's the Lightning, and the article bears the signature of Georges Thiébaud, dated the 14th of no-November 1896.

Cardinal Langénieux was carefully reminded, at Reims, that he should not participate in meetings simultaneous.

But let's give the floor to the author for a moment longer:

The promoters of the Calvinist Congress were reminded of Lyon, where the delegated pastors are simultaneously moving. The completeness of the consistories was also unlawful and that the constitution of this general delegation in the Assembly of... liberating, to deal with political matters, touching on the discipline and hierarchy were defended for the protesters

538 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

So much so, as with Catholics?

When one brings to the podium an interpretation of the concordat, according to which members of the secular clergy restate-funded employees would not be able to attend Congresses without risking the criminal penalty of data processing termination, Do the pastors of the Reformed Church, who are also Reformed, funded by the State, and much more expensive even than the des-Catholic servants, – these having 900 francs and the 1,800, some 2,000 and 2,200, others 3.

– are not subject to the same ice regulations disciplinary?

Is this political organization of the consistories, with pastor delegates and lay delegates, accompanied by their alternates deliberating in Lyon, a few hours from Geneva, which is the religious and financial capital . of French Calvinism, does not present any objections other than-serious matters, in the eyes of the State and the government, that The pompous displays of the Archbishopric of Reims?

I believe this article perfectly lays out the situation-tion.

fh there was a Protestant Congress in Lyon which was a A deliberative assembly, without a doubt, and which then became a political assembly, as, moreover, the Congress of Sedan and like other congresses peotes-so much.

That said, I repeat what I said earlier at Pheure to Mr. Minister, regarding the Concordat: For-what is in the interpretation of this Concordat or of the organic articles, from which you do not separate it, two weights and double standards, while the Minister said himself, at this podium, said he would not have double standards. And two measures?

Why, when we had asked this question
To the Minister: "And the Protestant Congress, which in "What are you doing?" Why hasn't the Minister... addressed to the pastors a letter similar to the one he addressed to the bishops?

Certainly, although criticizing the government's attitude

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 539

"Lying, I certainly wouldn't have challenged him."
had done it.

But again, it is these exceptional measures against which I rise up.

As my questioning was taking too long to be addressed, I had the time to carefully consider the situation that should have
Mr. Minister of Religious Affairs with regard to Protestants.

One day, in the meantime, noticing that one had very special favors here for the pro-
As testers, I have already raised another question from the podium.
Regarding them: I asked that the Faculty of Theo-Protestant logy was transferred to:: worship.

If I did it, it was, as you remember, because that once transferred to religious practices, one would have been forced to apply to Protestants, who speak in their Con-willing to wage war on Catholics (1), the same to the extent that Catholics.

We were complaining, once again, about the exceptional measures... tion which are taken against some and which are not actions against others.

What I also desired at that moment – wanting to follow the chamber system, to prioritize the questions, – it was that the Minister of Religious Affairs should have ultimate control over the faculty of Protestant theology, because it It seemed that all Protestant pastors had to-hanging from the Ministry of Religious Affairs, like the members at Catholic clergy, and not be attached to a part to the Ministry of Education.

This may explain why the Minister was unable to to reach the pastors of the Lye Congress. – I say Perhaps, because I'm not sure—it's that some of these pastors were not dependent on the ministry of religious services, but that of Public Instruction.

(1) The religious wars are coming: to our ruin, whether we like it or not or not; they burst: fatally, a joy: relatively Dons Under some random name, but they will burst forth.

940 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

What do these anomalies mean?

When in the past it was a question of abolishing the faculty of Catholic theology, it was Mr. Burdeau who was sponsor of the bill. And Mr. Burdeau, it seems, was favorable to the abolition of the faculty of theology Protestant as well as to the suppression of the faculty of theology-Catholic logic.

But at the insistence of Mr. Franck-Puaux, director from the Christian Review, and who is a well-known Protestant, Mr. Burdeau did not reach that conclusion.

The Catholic theology faculty was abolished and we did not abolish the Protestant theology faculty...

Mr. Alfred Faure. – It's a seminar.

Mr. Count of Hugues. – They tell me: it's a seminaire. We'll come back to that.

We were not the ones who requested the removal faculties of theology; but it was concluded in one sense, and we want logically to move in that direction which has been applied to us; we want – of the The less I speak for myself – the less it applies to us measures that are not applied to others.

I demand equality and justice on this point; and I tells you that, when the next budget is dis-Damn, I'll bring the question up in the gallery.

The Protestant Faculty of Theology was allowed to remain. aunt after having abolished the Catholic faculty.

We did better; we transferred the Protestant faculty to education department, under the pretext that it is a senior that it is a teaching matter (4).

Well! What I deplore, if only for the State, whose neutrality is constantly invoked in Questions like that raise the question of whether the State does not so it's not neutral at all.

—,,

(4) Many professors at the Protestant Faculty of Theology aunts also teach in the state's high schools where they im-pro- students, the majority of whom are Catholic, are encouraged to adopt a pro-
By testing, that's why, in reality, we acted this way.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 641

Mr. Rambeud, Minister of Public Instruction, he told us from this platform that the faculty of theology Protestantism had been preserved because there was no that one point on which it differed from teaching of the state's faculties, it was precisely in this respect that... defines the teaching of Protestant theology, and that, as soon as one received state education there, this the ability had to be preserved.

But don't you see the absurdity to which you Will you succeed?

Here is a faculty that rivals the faculties of the State.

And you tolerate this competition because it-
In addition to your academic abilities, teach the Protestant religion!

And this in the name of neutrality, you say, that you Do not accept from Catholic faculties!

So you, the State, support vocational education... testing; you are forcing us, Catholic taxpayers-liques, to pay for this Protestant teaching, and you don't don't want to hear about Catholic education-It's lique. It's a monstrous absurdity.

I am reporting it to the House.

Moreover, the question will have to come from new 4 the stand.

I simply mention it when talking about the Congress of Lyon, about which the Minister of Religious Affairs has not believed he was taking the same measures he had taken against Catholics.

If you persist in the attitude you have adopted against Catholics, while you show excessive benevolence towards Protestants, by not by not taking similar measures against them, we would be within our rights to tell you that you have a clerical-special line, and a Protestant clericalism. as we We have already demonstrated to you in the past that you had a Jewish clericalism and a Freemason clericalism.

As for the seminars we were talking about earlier Those who belong to the Israelite religion receive 3.

549 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

subsidies; those from Paris and Montauhan, which belong to the Protestant faith, receive a subsidy a grant of 26,500 francs from the State, the ca- seminars Catholics, on the contrary, receive nothing. You see although there is a blatant bias.

Mr. Louis Jourdan (Lozère). – Vote for separation churches and the State.

Count Hugh. – If you wish, but under certain conditions.

You know that the proposal has been made, that Mr. Tabbé Lemire spoke about it without fear the other day.

We wouldn't be far from reaching an agreement. in the event that freedom of association is voted on.

We are not demanding; we are asking only the same measures and the same rights that apply to others.

The State tells us that it is neutral, that it does not hear favoring some at the expense of others; I have told you proven for seminars, for faculties of theology, and I will prove it to you on other points as well, that the State favors Protestants and attacks the ca-Catholics.

It's so obvious that when I brought this question to the podium for the first time of Protestant education, of theological faculties Protestant, the press was abuzz, that the pro- newspapers

Testators wrote articles to defend themselves and that other newspapers, particularly radical newspapers, responded.

The government is preventing low-level civil servants Catholics, all the people who are at the bottom of the administrative level and which depend on him to put their children in the Brothers' schools, their girls at the Sisters' Schools; and, at every moment, we let's see the dismissal of modest figures from this administrative scale only because they have placed their children in religious schools. (Very – Good! Very good! (to the right.) E

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 543

Mr. Albert le Clec'h. ~ This is incorrect!

Count Hugh. – It's not a mistake, if That's not done in Brittany, Mr. Le Clec'h.....

Lieutenant Colonel du Halgouet. – But at the con-Milking! That's done in Brittany.

Mr. Albert le Clec'h. – The opposite is happening in Brittany!

Count Hugh... that's certainly how it's done in other regions. Only senior officials from the Republic that can afford this luxury without Don't tell them anything.

R fell before my eyes yesterday, a few verses thus conceived:

Mr. Rivaud (1) is a prefect
From the Third Republic
It's very good, it's perfect.
Especially in politics:
He is radical.
Anticlerical,
~ When he is at La Guille;
But out of devotion
The procession follows
At his daughter's convent.

Yes, gentlemen, there are only the prefects, and the one from Lyon, among others, which can afford this luxury;

But for low-level Catholic civil servants, it seems that it is forbidden for them.

If this new Protestant question raised in the tribune does not
The Chamber doesn't excite, it provokes, on the other hand
On the one hand, there was a lot of emotion, I assure you, in certain-certain circles, particularly in the administrative world, We wonder when the powerful invasion will end.
in the administration.

I followed it a bit, to observe the progress of the

| (1) Rivaud has just been placed on leave by Brisson, who
He probably found it too lukewarm (October 28, 1898).

544 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

Protestant finance in France for several years the same method that Drumont had adopted the premier, to make the French aware of Jewish power,
And that's how I learned about Protestant finance, without being as tightly controlled in a few hands as finance Jewish is however perhaps also powerful (1).

On the left. – That's a mistake.

Count Hugh. – Perhaps that's a mistake;
I don't know.

Moreover, Mr. Rouanet spoke about it the other day.

Mr. Gustave Rouanet. – Yes, and the Catholics of This side (the right) voted "against" our proposals.

Count d'Hugues: I did not vote "against."

Mr. Gustave Rouanet. – You may have been the alone !

– Count Hugh. – I don't believe it; but That is why these questions must be brought to the platform, in order to shed light on even some of my friends. | °

Mr. Carnaud, – Try to use your influence to-near them!

Count Hugh. – I don't know if my influence is as great as yours among your friends; but

I assure you that I will do everything possible for the
To convince, if you'll let me speak.

Mr. Gustave Rouanet. – Our party is for the empire
The sound of those rascals!

Mr. President. – Gentlemen, please keep the silence; the discussion cannot degenerate into a converprivate stations.

Count d'Hugues. – My party, Mr. Rouanet, has quite often called for the imprisonment of Cornelius Herz, whom a ministry you supported has left

(1) Protestants are, in fact, very rich, both through themselves-same as through their banks, all very powerful, more powerful-Health, perhaps, is linked to Jewish banks.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 545

escape, so that you have no right to recrimination to fight against him (Very good! to the right).

But I'll leave aside this question of pro- finance testating, and I say that in France the invasion of the Protestants in the administration is a fact that it is important to to worry.

Apart from the Universal Evangelical Alliance which has Its headquarters are in Paris and it is very active; I had the curiosity to find out what is happening in the different branches of the administration, and I am having reached this conclusion that French education everything is in the hands of Protestantism

Mr. Marcel Habert. – On this point you have absolutely-Lument reason.

Count Hugh... – And, strangely enough, this Invasion occurs in almost all categories of our social organization.

At the same time, we saw the general who is at the head of the École Polytechnique, the commandant of the application school, and the commander of the military forces all three were from Paris and were Protestants.

In embassies, in the navy, in the colonies, to religious institutions, in the prefectures, all the senior staff is Protestant.

I draw your attention to this (Interruptions).

Please allow me to explain, gentlemen;

This is a question I have studied extensively and which interests me to a high degree.

Protestants represent one sixtieth – according to their own figures – of the total population of the France and, in certain administrations, they are in infinite number.

I will cite, among others, the Gard department, which is three-quarters Catholic and whose magistracy is three-quarters Protestant.

This department alone supplied over one hundred ma-Protestant scribes, and you find them everywhere, gentlemen. This Protestant invasion.

546 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

— Mr. Gérault-Richard. — If there was a pro-invasion: testing, it has been performed in Germany since the re-purpose of the Edict of Nantes.

Count Hugues. — And in France too, you Go see Mr. Gérault-Richard, who's interrupting me. I I'll get to that.

Mr. Rouanet said the other day that there were 108 de-prostitutes who are part of boards of directors.

I could tell you in turn that all the protests tants, who are only one sixtieth of the population of France has more than 60 representatives in this chamber.

— times, that is to say at least one-tenth.

However, there is another point which is much more elevated, much more interesting still, and on which I I also want to draw the attention of the House.

This one relates to national defense.

Throughout history, as you know, all governments tried to exert influence in neighboring countries sins.

Thus, Cardinal Richelieu supported the Protestants.
in Germany through our subsidies and even through our weapons, to defend France's policy.

On several benches: That's not the point!

(At this moment Mr. Sarrien, Vice-President, is replaced in the chair by President Henri Bris-her.

Py. the Count of Hugh. – Please let me ex-
Let me explain for a moment, gentlemen, you'll see that I
I am absolutely on the same page.

Throughout history, I say, our governments have sought to create a French party in England, Germany and in all neighboring countries.

However, the Protestant nations have done their part among we did what we did with ours.

With regard in particular to the two Protestant countries those who surround us, England and Germany,
This is a fact that deeply moved me, and I believe it is my duty to submit it to the House, an agreement would be done against France for a very long time (4).

~

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 547

Moreover, at present, it exists in France and has ~ on our side, in Algeria, and further afield in Madagascar, and in almost all French possessions, propaganda organizations that are supposed to put us in beware of this English party of which Mr. de was speaking.
Mahy and several of our colleagues (2).

Yes, there are organized groups on certain points from our territory, from where a protest propaganda originates active aunt who is reminiscent of English propaganda that I gives a glimpse.

Note that I am not accusing anyone and that I do not want to-
I wouldn't, in turn, be making a trial of tendency to person.

But when there are ties as strong as those of the religion, which links people to a neighboring country, It is easy to understand that the propaganda of these country can be practiced more easily in the midst of these per-sounds.

Moreover, this has been pointed out many times by several from our colleagues.

Here is what Mr. Pourquery de Boisserin said, the year
lastly, in his report on Algeria's budget:

"Our duty is to point out to the government the skill with which, under the guise of Protestant missions, the English Methodists, aided by zealous deaconesses, do Anti-French propaganda in Algeria.

(i) We saw in a previous chapter that this agreement
It actually exists. It is cemented by a recent alliance.
which proves that Mr. d'Hugues was right when he made his question.

(2) We must be grateful to Mr. de Mahy for thus condemning him the Protestants; but it is fitting to reserve our praise for him.
Mr. de Mahy, who only associates with Methodists, no doubt because he belongs to another Protestant sect, in fact raising his daughters in the Reformed religion and marrying them off to Temple.

548 – PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

They extend their actions to both the natives and on Europeans of foreign nationality.

To the former, they offer a glimpse of the purported benefits.
of an English occupation, and say that the administration French people continue to engage in harassment and persecutions... »

Mr. Conrad de Witt. – You provide proof of What are you saying?

Count d'Hugues. – It is Mr. Pourquery de Bois-Serin, who said that the previous year, in the report of the budget that was discussed in the House and that You know it as well as I do.

"...To the latter, they dangle the chimerical hope before them."

of the Constitution of a powerfully pro- independent state Tégé...

the government absolutely must decide to ex-to immediately pulse throughout the entire colony these apostles of discord and revolt.

But Mr. Pourquery de Boisserin was not the only one;
Mr. Saint-Germain, another of our colleagues, was going _ further than him (4).

And with regard in particular to the protest congresses times in which representatives of all the synods are included of France, "Greniers Congress which are held in the buildings of the State and which are true deliberative assemblies or political assemblies, I don't see why,
And by what law can you forbid the clergy
Catholics should do the same.

In other words, I want freedom for all.
But I don't see what right you have to have double standards – and two measures. (Very good! Very good! on various benches on the right.)

(1) See, chapter: Protestants in Madagascar and in Algeria, arrest in Saint-Germain.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM $49

Catholics are, fundamentally, of the same opinion on this point.
from Count Hugues, whose interpellation was as planned, ended with the vote on the agenda item and simple (4); but they are incredibly naive.

There are men born like that.

Try to make some people understand that two
And two make four, you will not succeed.

Try to persuade them that France is a na-Catholic tradition, you will achieve even less.

"Are you quite certain of your figures?" they ask.
they ?

Are there really 36 million Catholics in France?
religious, and only 2 million Protestants, Jews, Muslims or freethinkers?

– That's absolutely certain.

– But how is it then that in a country organized like France, where the voice of the Catholic has the same value as that of the Freemason or the protestant so much so, it is the latter who hold today All the influence and all the power?

(1) If we had been in the place of the person who called out to us, Mr. Count Hugues, we would have submitted the following agenda, which It might not have been voted on, but it would at least have reflects the mindset of the sectarian majority.

Agenda.

The Chamber,

Determined to pursue its policy of anti-clerical concentration eale on the backs of French Catholics as long as they, disunited and less astute than Belgian Catholics, did not understand– will not be sufficient, also what is the importance of the press, public meetings, and active propaganda and continues, in our era of parliamentarism;

Invites the government to persevere in its attitude of exaggerated benevolence towards proletarians, Jews, the Freemasons, Turkish Muslims and others;

And move on to the agenda.

550 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

What can be said in response to that, except that Catholics are So stupid and so clumsy!... Like a huge hole– plaintive sheepskin, driven and harassed by a Half a dozen dogs! Just by showing them From time to time their fangs, just by strangling here and there by the sheep to scare the others, the dogs remain the absolute masters of the situation. And all the The flock goes "Baa! Baa!" just like in the Mascot!

Such are also the Catholics led by a minority intrigue involving Protestants, Jews, and Freemasons.

Very skillfully, the members of this minority, The roles are shared. They have also slipped into all camps.

They have a foothold everywhere today and are, whatever one can say, the soul of the corrupt coterie that presides over destinies of France.

The good times of the Protestants, which have lasted since too many years, however, more particularly—
It all started back when Freycinet was President of the Council of Ministers.

What a wicked man this cunning reformer is!

What harm hasn't he done to our country with his com-Protestant fathers Herbette and Wadington, not forgetting his close friend Cornelius Herz, to whom he owes the rank higher in our Legion of Honour?

I imagine that the Freycinet plan, infamous in our public works, will have a very special place in the darkest pages of our history.

And his responsibilities in the compromises of Panama, its pressure tactics on behalf of Cornelius Herz, the receipts for the newspaper the "Telegraph!" And his conduct towards the inventor of Melinite, Turpin? And his singular tactic in what concerns the question of Egypt, lost forever
For us since?

Why are the socialists barking like a pack from the outset? that we make a priest's cassock dance, have they never Did you talk about these things from the podium?

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 551

4

They have avowed sympathies for causes that have always seemed incomprehensible to me.

In 1896, they went to England to attend the Congress socialist to whom they are invited, and shortly afterwards, it's Jules Guesde is asking the government why it did expel German MPs from France, with Bébel at the forefront, who came to spread the good word to the socialists French.

And when Count Hugh questioned the governor—ment on the Protestant question, all the interruptions tions, or something like them, which have broken up his speech are coming from the socialist benches.

Why these marked favors for everything that is of Protestant essence or from a Protestant country?

It has been said and repeated, I know, and it's the truth, that the Current French socialism was itself essentially German, like Protestantism.

The situation is nonetheless unusual.

Perhaps this fact reveals an underlying mistrust—distinctive of all peoples of Latin race for the sociallism thus personified.

Because, it is obvious that the socialists, despite all their talent, despite the activity they have sometimes deployed for Good and popular causes will never succeed in a sustainable way, to implant their utopias in the French people.

At first glance, the idea seems appealing, but a invincible defiance eventually enveloped the leaders of movement as soon as they appeared.

A similar thing happened in Austria when, in In March 1897, the city of Vienna made the first application of universal suffrage.

There were five members of parliament to be elected.

At the last moment, the socialists, leaving openhow to drop the masks, they agreed with the liberraux, that is to say with the opportunists, anticlerical of the Austrian capital.

552 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

The focus was on combating anti-Semites.
otherwise known there as "social Christians".

And here is what he said, in particular on the eve of the election... tin la Neue Freie Presse, the great Jewish newspaper of libersectarian realism

"Vienna will finally decide whether the knights of industry po-litigious, who have conquered domination in the capital and in Lower Austria, to put himself at the service of the Clerical reactions are truly an expression of feelings of the people, as they have constantly proclaimed.

What happened? The socialists united for the circumstances—
The criticisms leveled at the liberals were soundly defeated by the anti-Semites, who had always enshrined freedom of conscience and peace in their pro-electoral programs.

Dr. Lueger, leader of the anti-Semites, was elected by 29,000 votes against 18,000 for his opponent and his friends Proschka, Axman, Mittermayer and Belohalwek, were elected officials also won by overwhelming majorities.

In France, many conservatives, in my opinion,
They don't know how to take advantage of events.

And their greatest lack of political sense, perhaps to be, comes from their stubborn persistence, to too closely aligning their cause with that of the liberals, in the fear of the socialists.

Gentlemen, the Jacobin bourgeois of the Great Revolution
Were they not as bloodthirsty as the re-Presenters of the Third Party?...

Rest assured, the liberals will go with the revolutionaries.
Revolutionaries as soon as you disturb them in their digestion-
tion.

And the so-called liberal school will always make common cause with the radical socialists when his interest requires it.

Look at Belgium. The Jibéraux led by Bulls or Are Orban hesitating to ally with the socialists against Clergymen of all stripes?

Look at Italy. The liberal Freemasons of Cola-

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 552

Don't Janni and the socialists make common cause?
Anticlerical?... It is true that Lemmi and Nathan, who are the leaders of Freemasonry and their associate crony Crispi, are the courtier dishes of monarchical powerchicque, in order to exploit it better, perhaps.

No, France will never be seduced by the vain theories of socialist collectivism, born on the soil German, in the voice of the Jew Karl Marx.

But France is currently under the yoke of falsehood Protestant liberalism, more English than German, perhaps—being, who has already sown our country with Revolutions and ruins.

We too must escape this yoke, that we routed these sectarians who take the name of liberals — the name, moreover, does nothing to the matter — that we break the ties definitively.

Let us remember that all the promised reforms
These so-called liberals have only succeeded in... to give increases in charges and that we re-to increasingly embrace socialism.

What! Is there still anyone who doubts that the Liberalism has failed in all its promises, in waiting for bankruptcy, brought about by its misfortune management, shattering beneath our feet?

The Protestant Léon Say was part of this minority. intriguing character I mentioned. He was president of the council
The Chamber of Ministers. The suspension of the free strike of The money he decreed caused us to lose thousands.
liards.

Read what Chabry wrote on the subject, you will be built.

All in all, the liberal spirit of our time
I confuse it with the Protestant spirit (1) it's the same

(1) In politics, Protestantism, stemming from liberalism, is not—Isn't fl the auxiliary of the sectarian Republic that we are subjected to?

One could almost say, with Mr. Arthur Loth, that he is the founder.

554 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

The same trend, the same hypocrisy.

So many examples could be cited!

On March 17, 1880, the Protestant party played one of his most abominable comedies in the Chamber of De-whores.

The law against higher education had returned in the Senate and it had just been voted on by removing the far better article 7 of Jules Ferry.

So, a friend of the Anglicans of Auvergne, whose name was later to be among the first to be splashed in Panama, Devès filed a motion to arrest him. to order the government to disperse the Catholic orders by force and violence.

At six-thirty in the evening, the Protestant Minister Freycinet, the president of the council, accepted the order of day written by Jules Ferry, married to an Englishwoman protesting, and by her friends.

All the Liberals in the House voted for the order of day and the religious figures were expelled.

Now, a singular coincidence to note, thirteen years then, on March 17, 1893, at six-thirty in the evening, Jules Ferry died suddenly at home, the day before the day he was to take possession of the Petit Luxembourg, having been appointed President of the Senate.

If the Frenchman were not carefree by nature, he

The idea of a Republic only appeared in France with the Reform.

From its origins, French Protestantism has been republican. sometimes openly, sometimes secretly, and a republican to the point of conspiring with foreign powers to overthrow the old monarchy Catholicism and to replace it with the political regime whose Revolution had received from him in France, the formula and the model outside.

'The moral and political affinities of Protestantism with the Republic explains the favor he enjoys under the regime current, a favor such that it perhaps surpasses in influence the importance that Judaism has acquired, by La Gans our company.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 553

would realize the vile, learned calculations to which he was bound. They saw the reformers as a way to Protestantize it.

There is nothing of even slight importance in the way of... elementary school that does not receive the Protestant imprint.

This is Jules Siegfried, the nefarious man of the cable of the Azores, which is the rapporteur for the bill authorizing the Madagascar colony to convert the loan contracted in 1886 and to proceed with the issuance of amort- bonds woven over sixty years, guaranteed by the government.

The Calvinist Odilon-Barrot is the rapporteur. of the proposed law aimed at restoring of the list ballot.

Etc. Etc. Etc; 40, Summer...

In the eyes of the public, who doesn't know that our re-
The parliamentary system is English in nature, and made for the Protestant customs, that doesn't say much.

But one fine morning, a scandal occurs which It surprises everyone.

We learn, for example, that French transport concessions for the Madagascar war were granted to English shipowners.

This caused a huge uproar in the independent press.
Dante:

Hey! What! they cry from all sides, we depend-sounds hundreds of millions each year for
To arrive at this result! It's shameful! And who was it?
Minister of the Navy at the time of this abhorrent deal-neat? |

Félix Faure...

From the moment the leather merchant assumed the presidency, Félix Faure, I didn't hesitate to say that he was a kind of British President of the French Republic.

I knew them just as well as the Panamanians, who have elevated him to this dignity of which he is unworthy, the situation of this cosmopolitan trafficker.

But what I didn't know was that he would have been capable, at one
At a certain point, to oblige General Mercier, Minister of the

556 PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

War, to entrust to an English company the transport of our war materiel in Madagascar.

... In the past, traitors were put to the sword; but at-today, French chivalry shelters under the turban Rothschild, and with Freemasonry receives the word
On Adriano Lemmi's orders, the traitors are Viceroy and por-wear the grand cordon of the Legion of Honour en sautoir.

Whose lines are these?

From a brilliant, irritated writer, Mazon, who made them to appear in an Algerian newspaper on February 3rd
viier 4895. | |

What would he have said if he had known that General Mercier...
Also, was he married to an Englishwoman?

Soon afterwards, the press fell completely silent.

Or if some independent newspaper threw in a note
High-pitched, but quickly clamor drowned out the voice.
isolated.

Many people wondered if it was due to rain.
It was thanks to Danaë that this sudden calming effect occurred!

How many others tried to count then the Protestant journalists or those with Protestant ties aunts in the various major organs of the Capital!

Counting them is not very easy, but
It will happen little by little, just as it was done for the Jews.

However, let us quote Messrs. Grosclaude, from the Echo de Paris, de Pressensé, Delhombre (1), Mohrardt du Temps, Chantavoine, de Montclar, Rod, Ditz, des Débats;
Paul Gaveau, de Cottens, du Soir; Fuster, etc.

It was especially not easy to do at the time of that uproar, because the Ministry of Colonies had just been entrusted to Lebon.

(1) Delhombre, Paul was born in Maubeuge, Nord, on March 18, 1848, Lawyer at the Paris Court of Appeal; Officer of the Legion of Honour Neur. Publicist. Editor at Le Temps. Economist. Member of the Paris Society of Political Economy and the Cobden Club London.

It is to Le Royer, the Genevan Protestant, that we have
He is the president of the Senate, to whom he owes his fortune.

Lebon was Le Royer's secretary

When he was forced to leave his armchair president following stories that would make a sa-Fear, he resigned; Lebon was as silent as a... carp

The compensation was not long in coming; he was appointed Minister of Colonies.

It is now one of the most beautiful ornaments of the clique, with Reinach, Raynal, Rouvier, Dumay, Dar-Ian, Bourgeois, Boissy d'Anglas, and so many others!

As for the conservatives, they don't want to see anything, nothing.
hear.

Their nerves cannot withstand the slightest strain.
of energy or social struggle.

And as soon as an independent and vengeful voice rises up from the midst of this crowd that is being whipped, bitten, and... theft, which is so blatantly dishonored that it is incited to incite mutual disgrace To eat, the other Catholics say to this voice: "Tai-Hurry, good heavens!

Be quiet! You'll draw attention to "Us! Your language is too violent! Be quiet!"

Isn't that how things always happen?
days ?

Don't we usually treat auda-skies of madmen, when each of us should -
To be even bolder and more militant than that one?
Do we not have the deplorable instinct to consider, at On the contrary, like men of order and common sense, the timid people who allow things to happen right under their noses every day through lack of courage or thirst for honors neurs, the worst atrocities and the worst infamies?

Also, while the Judeo-Masonic clique is in his role by leading us with whips, we We Catholics have nothing to defend ourselves with but... representatives of a stupid weakness.

Some of them, I don't deny, excellent family men and honest citizens, not can – parliamentary speaking – compare than to owls, so afraid are they of their own shadow and of the light.

Meanwhile, Catholics are considered as mercenaries, outlaws, pariahs.

From the society they make up, they have all the charges; Jews, Freemasons, and Protestants, all the advantages.

For them, neither liberty nor equality, we will say with the Cross of Touraine.

There are children who go to the town hall.

"Vote for us," they said, "some clothes for the hi-"
ver. |

– Which school do you go to?

– The Brothers' School.

– You will not have any clothes,

*
ee

There are women in rags who go to the office of charity: |

– Give me a piece of bread for myself and my small.

– What are you putting your daughters in!

– At the nuns' school: the law allows it.

– It's possible. We don't allow it.

You will not have any bread. E

+

ee

There are old people who go to the door of the hospice:

– Give me a bed: I am old and penniless and without family.

– Are you a friend of the priest?

– Like all poor people, sir,

– You will not have a bed.

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 559

'There are young people who will find the State:

– Give us jobs that you pay for.

I will fulfill my duties faithfully and devotedly.

– Are you Catholic?

– Like the vast majority of French people, sir.

– You will not get a job.

e |

e

There are officials who would like to remember,

At times, they have a soul, going to mass with their wives, celebrate Easter, etc. But what? Go to Mass and celebrating Easter, doesn't that bother them?

It wouldn't hurt to add their numbers together correctly, to add them together correctly.
paving roads, distinguishing a bridge from a river, a locomotive disc?

– Be careful, you won't get a promotion.

There is a head of state who was a student of the Brothers.

Beneath the dome of heaven, facing France
Clovis, Charlemagne, and Saint Louis, between the emperors Father of Germany who invokes the God of Armies, and the President of the United States who does He appealed to Providence and will deliver a speech.

But one voice was heard.

– If you pronounce the name of God, you are not a friend of Caesar.

– Caesar?... But I am Caesar.

– No, no; it's us, the Lodges!...

And you are not allowed to even pronounce the name of God.

–

560 _ PROTESTANT FAVORITISM

*

© +

There are women who have given up everything to become:
to dedicate oneself to the relief of human suffering.
Your money or your life! Choose.

– But I have little money. And even then it's not – Me; it was given to me for my poor.

– Choose! I tell you.

– I will choose nothing.

– Well then! I'll choose for you. I'll take first the stock market, and at this hour I will take life.

You are not permitted to do good.

e

ee

There are dead people who repented before they died.

They said to their wives and daughters:

"I am dying a Catholic; I want to be buried in ca-Catholic.

But the sympathizers, Satan's undertakers, are there.
And they take the corpse away and bury it.

with freedom.

Liberty, those about to die salute you.

@

ee

In the past, hearts and minds were nurtured, we trained children and young people who respected their father and mother, who listened to their conscience, who were filled with enthusiasm for the beautiful and tall things.

Today, we are only concerned about the city.

matter.

I'm not the one saying this; it's an anti-key newspaper. rical, l'Echo de Paris.

"The young generation coming into the world has known the benefits of secular education,

PROTESTANT FAVORITISM 561

"This generation terrifies me."

"I sense an unleashing of barbarity."

2

++

There were once women who loved their husbands, and husbands who respected their wives.

Since the Naquet law, it is possible to marry in order to separate RER!

e

++

Our population is decreasing.

The statistics reveal a terrible reality.

And meanwhile, England wins every year 300,000 citizens; r Protestant Germany 500,000.

In fifty or sixty years, we will be at our most thirty-nine million French people, and we will have to... eighty million Germans!

O Impiety! This is your work.

France is leaving.

Gentlemen, salute the dying Fatherland.

CONCLUSION

We have now reached the end of the journey. We have the ~ _ conviction of having written a useful work.

Perhaps, among other criticisms, one will find that
We have overused quotes and documents.

We thought that to seriously address a new subject, it was necessary to establish, rather than once, the validity of our claims.

Through his admirable work which surpasses all those nationalist writers from whose school we
We flatter ourselves with belonging, Drumont denounced the harmful Israel's actions.

A valiant phalanx of Catholic writers has signaled and reports on Freemason activities every day.

We have shown the Protestant peril.

Catholics now know, in a way as complete as possible, the enemies of their Faith, of their Law, their Right.

That's not enough, we must overcome it, or rather it
We must not allow them to oppress us indefinitely
ment. |

Therefore, it is essential to reorganize the army.
Catholic, but this reorganization is only possible if if all its scattered fractions, and for that very reason im-powerful, they unite on the same battlefield.

For it would be childish to deny it: the Catholic party-
The lique is disunited, and it is this disunity that causes its weakness. wounds. Each of its fractions pulls towards itself. the cover and all of them are sleeping badly.

um

CONCLUSION 563

Let us unite; let us be strong and our enemies will be weak.

Socialism, an export of German origin, and consequently The Protestant community, however, grows more and more each day; by by the very force of circumstances, it will encompass the entire party Jewish, Freemason and Protestant who claims to be of the etirepublican quest.

Let us oppose it with the great nationalist Catholic party.
From then on, there will only be two parties involved:
the socialists and the nationalists; the former formed of all the thwarted ambitions, all the hatreds, all the enemies of France; the second composed of all the believers, of all the oppressed, of all the victims, who.
will truly represent the aspirations of the country.

L
se

'I attended several Political Action Congresses, ca-
Catholic, royalist, or Christian democratic.

In my opinion, what emerges from these Congresses – excellent-slow, certainly – it's their lack of practical sense members.

In Paris, as in Blois and Lyon, there was talk, there was talk.
he shouted: Long live the Pope! Long live the King! Long live the Catholics!
Finally, we shouted: forward! then we separated.

No one thought of going up to the podium:
to tell the delegates:

"It's all well and good to be agitated, but it would be better to to organize, that is to say, to unite and subordinate everything to this concern

The means?

All that's needed is to stop looking at each other with suspicion.
earthenware and to go towards each other with hands held loyally open elements.

That the Catholic luminaries belonging to different existing political nuances come together.

Nothing could be simpler.

If they have any political sense whatsoever, they will confess frankly, none of their groups are enough powerful enough to march into battle and win with its its own flag, with its own weapons.

This is regrettable from the point of view of expectations.
It's possible that everyone has their own personal circumstances, but that's how it is.

We must take the facts as they are; we cannot not to make what is not to be; one cannot do Let what is not be, be it.

Not being, by themselves, powerful enough immediately directly to achieve their dreams political factions within the Catholic forces must so to group together to carry in principle, in theory, the resistance on the ground of Catholic demands.

Moreover, political struggles are, well, just struggles | religious; and if, for example, the Catholics triumph-as Catholics, it is certain that the es-taken from race, the national spirit, the spirit of tradition would soon make its presence known.

Expressing these views is not the same as being a supporter;
It is not being recalcitrant to write: "with the triumph-the Catholics, the national spirit and tradition do not "would soon show themselves": that's being Catholic
And impartiality means writing the truth.

Royalist-Imperialist, rallied, these are names of baptism; our family name is Catholic.

– But, some will object, that's the conservative union that you resurrect under another name.

'– Not in the least, it's the Catholic Union,' much broader, more open than the conservative union trice, because there are good Catholics who are not Royalists or imperialists.

And moreover, even if this union had not the first result being to stop the rout of Catholic forces, that would already be huge: we would have Rebuilt our army.

But with a reconstituted army, one can fight with some chance of success,

has

But we shouldn't limit ourselves to this army of old conservative Catholic troops...

It would be necessary to appeal to the citizens who want freedom for all and not oppression of the majority by intriguing minorities.

Among these supporters of true freedom are nationalist anti-Semites, whose numbers are growing, day by day.

Let us therefore organize a large nationalist party.

A party requires soldiers, leaders, munitions, that is to say, money.

We have soldiers and leaders, but very few of money.

To get it, you have to ask for it.

And that is why I advocate a meeting of the some mites of the Catholic political world, which would designate a few people, tasked with going throughout the France, on a given order, to solicit sub-conventions from castle to castle, from town to town, of from village to village, from presbytery to presbytery, from Door to door if necessary.

At a time that I could specify, the means has been employed.

It exceeded all expectations.

This is what we should do. And it is permissible to believing that if there was money in the till, the nuances would become less intense, less irritating, would less discussed...

With gold spent wisely, and not clumsily, as in the days of Boulangism, by For example, where so much has been wasted, one would establish in Paris a central committee that would have affiliated subcommittees in all the county towns, then in all the municipalities munes.

The central committee would set its direction, would give the watchword to the subcommittees that would observe the discipline, as in all strong parties, solidly organized, like these imperishable congregations religious traditions.

32

566 | CONCLUSION

It would be a kind of Catholic Freemasonry counterbalancing atheist, Jewish and Freemasonry Protestant.

Add to that the constant propaganda, in the most multiple forms, a reorganization complete press coverage, particularly from the provinces From a dissemination standpoint, a firm hand and no retreat not backing down from the means, directing this vast organization, and the results would soon be evident. to fester.

And how easy it would be to come to an agreement with them Points of view!

Although the chosen electoral ground would be theoretical: the nationalist terrain, as in 1889, the terrain Revisionist, this would not be a formal obligation for the candidates.

In electoral practice, one would comply with political demands of the different regions.

Thus, in a constituency where a Catholic candidate— A royalist faction would have a better chance of being elected than a Catholic converts, all these latter, the democrats, Christians Look, the imperialists and the anti-Semitic nationalists, as one, they would vote for this Catholic royalist.

On the contrary, in a constituency where a demo— A Christian craves would be more certain of triumphing than a Catholic royalist, rallied, imperialist or anti-Semitic-nationalist, all these political shades would vote for this Christian Democrat, and vice versa for: the Having rallied, the imperialists and the nationalist anti-Semites...

Ultimately, the idea of any organization is so natural that it should already be put into practice.

– What will you do with the royalist Protestants, imperialists or tolerant republicans in the group of the party you advocate? because there are royals– lists of imperialists and tolerant republicans who are Protestants.

CONCLUSION 567

– Certainly, but they are very rare, and moreover for– Why reject them outright? Let's take them for lack of a better option.

Furthermore, minorities have the right to be represented tés.

Between a sectarian Freemason or a Jew and a protesting tolerant, if Catholics could not have of candidate, with a chance of being elected, their choice should focus on this Protestant.

This is a case that has occurred in some departments, particularly in Deux-Sèvres where Mr. de la Chevrelière was elected to the General Council thanks to the fractious conservative Protestant faction against the candidate of Republican Protestants.

This is what will happen in Indre-et-Loire when, In all likelihood, Mr. Raoul Duval, protesting so royalist and tolerant, will happily succeed, at Palais Bourbon, to the abject Wilson.

And besides, that's a selection that will be made by her. even without an absolute principle being established.

Gentlemen, the Protestants will at least give me this justice that I am neither a sectarian nor an energumén. leads me to say that I am not asking for measures against them. of repression.

Certainly, I would like to see them return to the fold of Pégglise; but I will always oppose the followers of Luther and Calvin who are part of the prominent French families are treated as outcasts, specifically because they act this way towards the Catholics.

Hypothetically, I am in favor of religious tolerance.

gieuse; what I desire is that every Frenchman have the right to the same rights, and not just to a sectarian minority it arrogates all prerogatives to itself.

You will see that there will still be Catholics.
to blame me for having this pretension.

868 CONCLUSION

These unfortunate people are so obtuse that they don't have still understood, for example, the role of the Press which their opponents make such skillful use of it.

Do we know how many Catholic newspapers there are in France?

420. |

However, there are 1130 anti-Catholic newspapers.

Under these conditions, how can you not to be beaten? |

You succumb to the law of numbers.

I don't want to dwell on what can be done with the Press which, regularly stumbling upon a sphere Any individual will eventually leave their mark there.
imprint, like a drop of water falling on the rodear one eventually pierced it.

I will summarize my thoughts with these simple words:

When Catholics have the press, they will be the masters, and they will be masters when they know the to want.

This truth should be obvious to them, the number of their newspapers dwindling day by day, while anti-Catholic publications are multiplying in favor of socialism, the fruit of atheism, the last word of libera-Ism, which is growing and threatens to engulf everything.

Once again, let's organize ourselves in a practical way.
tick,

Then we will be strong, and when we are strong,
Our enemies will no longer oppress us.

APPENDIX

LEW ET Cie

This work being cliché and, moreover, rushed by the tirage and the demands of the sale, it was not possible for us to—
It is possible to place this document in the appropriate location, page 486.

That is why we have included it in the appendix.

Loew is originally from Strasbourg; he is the son of a Jewish brewer from this town.

His father, although he had earned some money, made him to study at the government's expense in July and
The young Loew was destined for a career in law.

He was appointed Deputy Judge, substitute, in Altkiéch, in Colmar, then Strasbourg, then prosecutor and president of the Mulhouse court.

This city then comprised two categories of clearly defined divisions: Jews and Protestants...
tists, whose sympathies lay entirely with Prussia and which, later, were to illuminate in honor of the victorious German soldiers, and Catholics, loving France.

Loew had all his most intimate relationships with the first ones.

He soon married Ms. Naegeli, a Protestant, daughter of an industrialist from Mulhouse.

32*

570 APPENDIX °

To make this marriage happen, he had to convert to Protestantism, because while being just as anti-French as the Jews, the pro—
The testators had, for the sons of Judah, only a sym—rather mediocre pathetic.

Rachitic, yellow, bilious, Loew has the greedy soul of Jewish, and his conversion, with his left hand, to Protestantism

This makes me think that he sometimes writes in the same style.
left hand, his right arm not being very functional, Apparently, for a reason I won't go into...

In 1870, at the time of the invasion, then the conquest for Alsace-Lorraine, Loew was President of the Tri-Mulhouse town hall.

And some indiscreet caterer might say the dinners succulent dishes that Loew shared with the officers Prussians, and during which his brother, the notary Strasbourg natives offered toasts of a gentle patriotism They were delighted by the applause of the guests.

The moment arrived when a choice had to be made between France and France.
or for Germany.

Loew did not hesitate.

He made overtures to the Prussian government; he de-
He ordered favors.

They were promised to him if he obtained certain functions-
French citizens also opted for Germany.

Loew then took the following steps with them:
pressing.

He did everything he could to succeed.

But faced with the indignant refusals he encountered from of those WHOM WE COULD NAME and that the
The German government was keen to secure its position; it had to re-to renounce his attempts and his hopes.

While he was engaged in these exploits of high patriotism-his brother, on the other hand, had become decidedly Prussian, at the outcome of a family gathering <tnue at the President's from the Mulhouse Court, our Læw.

Unable to obtain the support of the officials that he urged to opt for Germany, he was refused, to seize the advantages, considerable indeed, that he is requesting-

APPENDIX 574

was of Prussia and left his brother alone to become a subject German.

Toutelois, before making a defiant decision-nitive, he came to find Crémicux and Gambetta, and spoke to them of his love (?) for France and was bombed in a promotion position, in Le Havre.

This is the man who is in charge of presiding over a court.
supreme court ruling on a crime of High Treason, sar
A grave offense against the Fatherland!

– I am French because I could not be Prussian his own, because I didn't find enough advantages in to be a subject of William, Loew must say when he mis-said in his office or when he confides in him to Picquart, bringing him a grog, and that's me who holds in his hands the honor of the army, of the flag, of the France!...

Yet this is where we are.

France is very badly affected.

That's not all.

Loew lived in Mulhouse for a long time, and there he met the family of ALFRED DREYFUS, whose parents were engaged in a white goods trade – that's the expression – in this city.

He finally got to know them during a
A brilliant evening given by a wealthy Jewish woman, Ms. Lamtz.
WHOSE TWO DAUGHTERS MARRIED
DREYFUS, to the Mulhouse company.

Although I don't have particularly strong sympathies for Jews and Protestants attended this evening at the-
to which they had been invited, initially out of curiosity; then, sustained relations were established between Jews and Protestants.
so many from Mulhouse, to such an extent that at the time of the
They were openly waging war with the Pietists.
in particular, some vœv: for the success of Prussia.

To be more precise, I will add this simple detail:
Loew was also with the family at that party
Leblois, yes, the Leblois family, friend of Picquart, ori-Ginaire, moreover, like him, Picquart, and like Lew, also, from Strasbourg, where they had connections frequent, family relationships.

Leblois is the son of a postman from Strasbourg.

All these people know each other perfectly and For a long time, I affirm this in the most formal way and – I challenge them to deny it without lying!

Isn't it disturbing and strange, first and foremost, to to find these same men involved in the same tragedy _ appalling, the consequences of which for our country, appalooming on the horizon like a menacing specter?

I said, with the Free Speech, Uncompromising, L'Eclair, La Gazette de France, l'Echo de Paris, La.
Cross, Authority, the Little Journal, the Universe, the Daynal, La Vérité, La Presse, le Moniteur Universel, La Fatherland, the Country, etc., etc..., that the Dreyfus affair was which has become a matter of family, of race, that is to say of religion.

The proof is there today.

The main players are old acquaintances.

They want to save Dreyfus at all costs, even though the sa-guilty song.

To achieve this, it is necessary to involve parents and trusted friends.
and fellow believers.

We speak to our own people the same way we speak to other people whom we know to ask for a favor.

This is a summary of the facts I have gathered.

I deliver them to advertising.

And if, by chance, those concerned were to deign to...
To follow up before the courts, I would add even more this documentation by disclosing new facts in the very interest of justice and truth.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Alison, 481,

Alquier, 21.

Adrets (Baron des) 32, 90.

Andrieux, 49.

Andry, 68.

Abovine (d'), 92.

Arton, 141, 373.

Arniu (d'), 160.

Arenber (Prince d'), 212, 213.

Anguetin, 303.

Andler, 303.

Abt, 304.

Alméras, 304.

Aroles, 304,

André (Edouard), 304.

Anglas, 304.

Ajalbert (Jean), 305.

Abeille (Jacq), 305,

Adam (Paul), 305.

Alexis (Paul), 305.

Aucoin, 318.

André, 355.

Allengry, 356.

Allier, 358.

Andler, 362, 363

Ammann, 363,

—

Ascher, 363.

Arnoux, 367.

Aquinas (d^, 402.

Adhémar (d'), 418, 419, 420,

422.

Ausset, 436.
Angles, 439,
André, 442.
Arnaud, 442, 489, Auzières, 443.
Abric, 458,
Ausset, 460.
Azuilora, 463,
Arnal, 472,
Araud (Achille), 472,
Abram, 475.
Abauzit, 475.
Alizon, 484.
Aubert, 484.
Arnauné, 486.
Andry, 532.

Bas, 477.
Bourrier, 478.
Bruel, 482.
Binger, 6, 497.

Brisson, 8, 9, 25, 77, 180, 131,

574
153, 200, 315, 317, 325, 330,

473, 497, 498, 499, 500, 501,

502, 503, 504, 505, 506, 507.

Bora (Catherine), 16.

Bernard Saint-Afrique, 24.

Boissy d'Anglas, 21.

Boussion, 22.

Barnave, 24, 25.

Billaud-Varenne, 25, 39.

Beza (Theodore de), 26, 87, 90.

Brownrig, 51.

Bismark (de), 55, 4112, 113, 114.

Ball, 61.

Bullinger, 61, 87.

Borel, 72.

Bretau, 92,

Bess, 92.

– Brault, 92.

Boullenger, 92, 154.

Bertillon, 93.

Billot, 93, 94, 104, 102, 145,
116, 117, 118, 149, 154, 200,
204, 368.

Baker, 110, 152, 155.

Bodenheimer, 113, 114.

Barabant, 114.

Bernier (Victor), 121.

Bouvier (Jean), 122.

Bruno (Désiré), 122.

Bancieux (Alfred), 122,

Bérardi, 124.

Blowitz (de), 124, 163.

Bulow (de), 125, 126,

Boisdeffre (de), 113.

Bournon, 138.

Berger, 138.

Baron (Gabriel), 141, 142,

Bertulus, 152.

Bourgeois (Léon), 153, 302, 317, 372, 375, 371.

Boissandré (de), 154, 344,

169,

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Broussuvuloux Dhoor, 189.

Blavet, 216, 238.

Brunet (Louis), 219.

Berthelot, 225, 283, 362.

Buisson, 166, 243, 244, 276,
280, 281, 292, 302, 303, 310,
311, 312, 327, 336, 359, 361, 447.

Barthou (Louis), 264.

Bayet, 283.

Bérard, 303.

Bouglé, 303.

Brunot, 303.

Bourguet, 303, _

Bury, 303.

Beck, 303.

Beslais, 303.

Babut, 304. .

Brunet, 304.

Bouzat, 304.

Byse (Robert), 304.

Brissac (Henri), 304

Bloch, 304. ~

Bidault, 304.

Bonzon (Jacques), 304.

Blondeau (Amédée), 305.

Brulat (Paul), 305.

Bizet (Jacques), 305.

Bauer (Henri) 305.

Bouchor (Mauritius), 305.

Buyse, 305.

Blond (Marc), 305.. |

Bachaknand (Robert), 305. –

Bartoud, 325.

Beauvisage, 353,

Bruston, 354.

Baudrillard, 355.

Biville, 355.

Bizos, 356.

Bertin, 356.

Brouilhet, 356.

Bonnet, 356.

:INDEX OF NAMES CITED 579

Shepherd (Paul), 357, 362. White, 461.

Blondel, 358. Barbedette, 462.

Berger, 358, 361. Bonhomme, 462.

Bonnet-Maury, 358, White, 463. |

Beck, 358. Bonhoure, 465, 490.

Braeunig, 358. Berges, 466.

Bonnet, 359. Bezy, 467.

Bonnaric, 359. Bucbun, 467.

Bossert, 361. Blachon, 467.

'Brulh, 362. Barbey, 458.

Beljame, 362, 363. Bernard Lavergne, 468.

Boutroux, 363. Bravd, 468.

Braun, 363. Bresson, 471.

Bloch, 363.: Beauregard (de), 472.

Bauer, 364. Barrell, 473.

Bovier Lapierre, $66. Bonnes, 474.

Béguin, 367. Bonifas, 475.

Berland (Eugène), 367. Bonnet, 476.

Bonnet, 367. Barrał, 476.

Bayet, 373. Bergeron, 476.

Bon (Joseph), 387. Bessièrès, 476.

Blancs (Maréchal), 394. Barraudon, 476.

Barme (de), 399, Bourguet, 476.

Bennett (Gordon), 400, Berard, 483.

Brunetière, 419. Bonret, 484.

Office (P), 419. Belly (de), 486.

Bretonnier (abbot), 419. Blam, 496.

Bourgeois, 433. Bernis (de) 510.

Bouchard (Paul), 433. Bos (Charles), 515.

Biville. G

Bouquet (Emmanuel), 437. |

Bœgner, 437, 438, 439, 440, Carrieu, 476.

489. Cauvy, 476.

Beau (Le), 440. Charbonnel, 478.

Beaumé, 449. Cambon, 10.

Buit (Du), 450. Carlostadt, 16,

Boudet, 458. 'Calvin, 16, 19, 20, 26, 79, 80,

'Boret-Brun, 458. 82, 86, 87, 169, 390, 429.

Boissières, 458. Charles V, 16.

Bernard (Abel), 458. Castellion, 21.

Bougouin, 460, 489. Cavaignac, 22.

Cloutz, 22.

Collot d'Herbois, 25, 39.

Ciermont-Tonnerre (Stanislas de), 24.

Charles IX, 28, 36.

Colligny, 28, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36,

Coudé, 34.

Glaude, 40.

. Chaudordy (de), 45, 222.

Childe (Dr), 54, |

Chagny (Louis Marthin), 524

Coroforth, 77.

Cochefert, 92,

Colard, 92.

Cuny, 93.

Chuton, 93.

Charavay, 93.

Crépieux (Jasmin), 94, 148.

Cavaignac (Godefroy), 102,149, :

151, 152, 153, 183, 199, 290, 201, 202, 203, 204.

Canon, 102.

Chevannier (Albert), 122.

Crispi, 125.

Chambaraud, 139.

Cruppi (Jean), 144.

Cassel (Van), 148.

Crémieux, 148.

Cuneo d'Ornano, 151, 262.

Cassagnac (Paul de), 159, 311, 358, 413.

Clemenceau, 159, 160, 162, 163, 164, 155, 168, 183, 344.

Couat, 166.

Cyvoc, 205.

Curzon, 218, 219, 220, 224.

Carle des Perrières, 238,

Camboué (Father), 239.

Colin, 254.

Combes, 263, 320, 340.

Cligny, 303.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Cettier, 303.

Cans, 304.

Caho (Gustave), 304.

Cazalis (Isère), 304

Cresp, (Jean: 304.

Collet (Georges), 304.

Clemenceau (Georges), 305.

Cattier (Eumond), 305.

Chauiey, 355.

Carrieu, 355,

Chausse, 356.

Canink (ds).

Clermoat (Philippe de), 357.

Chantavoine, 358.

Cart, 361, 363.

Cahen (Emile), 362.

Coppinger, 362.

Cottler, 363.

Créhange, 354.

Cocula, 364.

Chenavaz, 364.

Chien Ducollet, 364,

Christophe, 366.

` Collin, 367.

Cougny, 367.

Constans, 374.

Chamberlain, 398.

Chaudordw, 404.

Coppée, 419.

Coubé (Father), 425.

Courtisigny (de), 435.

Coularou, 436.

Coutouly (de), 437, 490.

Castaing, 437, 439.

Coueslant, 442,

Cosson, 444.

Cléry, 449.

Coulondre, 458

Caladou, 458..

Combier, 461, 490.

Chalamet, 461.

Chevalier, 462.

Charruguey, 462.

Calvet, 462,

Conat, 464.

Cazalet, 465.

Capdepic, 466.

Combes, 468.

Compayré, 468.

Courtisigny (de), 468.
Crégut, 468.
Chaudey, 474.
Cazot, 474.
Cauvy, 474.
Cavalier, 475.
Cambécedès, 475.
Cabrol, 475,
Cambon, 475.
Causse, 475.
Chalainet, 482.
Courtin, 486.
Cochery, 486.
Cherbuliez, 486.
Coquerel, 487.
Charruault, 496.
Callens (de), 556.

D

Drumont, 1, 49, 115, 152, 166.
308.

Dide, 47.

Denizel, 22.

Dupin (of Saint-André), 38.

Ducrot, 40.

Dreyfus (Alfred), 45, 90, 19.92,
93, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 101,
102, 103, 184, 107, 109, 118,
120, 121, 124, 120, 130, 131,
149, 166, 167, 183, 187, 188,
199, 200, 202, 203, 204, 205,
224, 308, 309.

Dussaud, 476.

Defferre, 476.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Dumas, 477.

Dardier, 532.

Dumont, 532.

Duncan–Campbell, 532.

Derouléde, 45.

Dardier, 68.

Dumont, 68.

Duncan–Campbell, 68.

Delbruck, 70.

Decaillet, 71.

Deluze, 72.

Damay, 77.

Demange, 92, 136.

Dreyfus (Mathieu), 93, 94, 96,
401, 104, 117, 119, 120, 134,
150.

Dervieu, 93.

Demédle, 109.

Dutrieux (Auguste), 122.

Delegorgue, 122.

Duclaux, 137, 303.

Darlan, 142.

Delcassé, 153.

Denécheau, 158, 159.

Develle, 164.

Duchene, 213.

Delafosse (Jules), 282.

Dureng, 303.

Dubreuil, 303.

Duguet, 304.

Dumas, 301.

Debet.

Desjardin (Paul), 304.

Desachy (Paul), 305.

Destrem (Hugue), 305.

Dubois (Philippe), 205.

Deville (Jean), 305.

Debousquet (Emmanuel, 306. |

Dubois, 305.

David, 305. |

Dupuy (Charles), 315, 364, 376.

Destieux (Junca), 315.

33

578

Doumer, 353,

Dequaire Grobel, 353, 354.

Dubreuil, 354.

Ducamp, 356.

Darboux, 359, 362,

Dalzel, 359.

Ducroq, 360, 361.

Darbout, 360.

Dreyfus-Brisac, 361.

'Dietz, 361.

Denis, 363.

Dhombre, 363.

Dandin, 364.

Desmelles, 364.

Dupuy, 374.

Danton, 389,

Desquers, 402.

Delaborde, 433.

Daniel, 436, 489.

Dombey, 449.

Durier, 449,

Delmas, 462.

Denis, 465.

Dubreuilh, 467.
Dautheville (Rolland), 470.
Daumas, 474,

Desmons, 474.
Delon-Soubiran, 474.
Doumergue, 474.

Deveze, 474.

Dussaud, 474.

Dombre, 474.

Dumény, 475.

Ditz, 556.

E

Edward VI, 45.

Echemann, 91.

Esterhazy, 94, 101, 102, 103,
W118, 119, 120, 124, 134, 136,
Emery, 121.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Esclangeon, 304.
Eost, 354.
Ehrardt, 358.
Erlanger, 433.
Estrabaud, 468,

F

Fau, 477, 490.

Faex, 477. .

Francis I, 12, 26, 27.

Farel (Guillaume), 19.

Freyci and (de), 45, 225, 283, 345, 346, 486, 492, 550.

Faure (Félix), 57, 78, 205, 340, 401, 411.

Frank, 82.

Florentin, 91.

Freystatter, 92. a

Fabre, 92, 292.

Ferry (Jules), 106, 4114, 236,
273, 274, 279, 283, 287, 291,
309, 312, 314, 315, 319, 327,
335, 446, 555.

Floquet, 106, 114, 283, 374.

Froment (A), 112.

Fouquet (Charles), 121.

Frank, 134, 148.

Faure (Sébastien), 189.

Faure (Maurice), 252.

Ferrouillat, 279.

Fournions, 304.

== Friedel (Charles), 304, 358, 362.

Fazy (Edmond), 304. .

Fau (Fernand), 304.

France (Anatole), 305.

Fénéon, 305.

Flers (Robert de), 305.

Fick (Henri), 305.

Fort (Paul), 305.

Fabre (Joseph), (343, 344.

Floutier, 356.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Flach (Jacques Geoffroy), 357.

Flammand, 357.

Fraissinet, 361.

Funck-Brentano, 362.

Farabœuf, 362. –

Fontane, 373.

Fridich, 402.

Fremont (abbot), 419.

Faucher, 433.

Fould, 433.

Fousset, 439, 440.

Fournier, 449.

Fayau, 459.

Faure (Maurice), 461.

Foissac," 467.

Forquet (of Dorne), 470.

Fiaissières, 474.

Forcrand, 475.

Feroand, 475.

Francezon, 475.

Fournat (de Brézenaud), 483.

Fabre, 423.

Fougeire), 483.

Franck-Puau, 487, 488.

Feillet, 488.

Fournier, 515.

Fombaret, 482.

Fuster, 550.

G

Gaillard, 477.

Guise, 28, 33, 34, 35.

Guizot, 3f. <

Gambier, 60.
Gisbeaurne, 61.
Guillon, 61.
Godet, 69.

= Goguel, 74.
Greig, 77.
Gallet, 92.
Gonse, 92.

$79

Gribelin, 92, 119.

Gendron, 93.

Gobert, 93.

William IT, 98, 115, 126, 385, 387, 407, 409, 410, 411.

Gunther, 98, 99.

Gobron, 109, 410.

Gavart, 4114.

Gressin (Edouard), 421.

Grimanx, 130, 304.

Giry, 138, 362.

Guyot (Yves), 168, 305.

Gérault-Richard, 186, 342.

Galbeni, 215, 217, 218, 225,
229, 230, 231, 236.

Guérin (colonel), 250, 254,

Guieysse, 283, 469,

Goepp-Othon, 303.

Gauthier, 304.

Galland, 304.

Genty (Paul), 304,

Ghil (René), 304.

Guinaudeau, 304.

Gregh (Fernand) 305.

Gros, 305.

Guillard (Pierre), 305.

Geoffroi (Henri), 305.

Gohier (Urbain), 305, 493, 494,

Girand (Albert), 305.

Golberg (Mécilas), 305.

Guiche (de la), 307.

Gambetta, 335.

Girault, 343, 366, 367, 369, 370, 371, 372, 375.

Grescent, 353.

Guillemot, 354.

Gide (Charles), 356.

Guittau, 358.

Graveroi, 359.

Gal, 359,

Giraud (Gaston) 359.

#80 INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Guieyesse, 362, Hannoteaux, 26, 36, 37.

Glottz, 363. Henry IV, 29, 38.

Galabert, 364. Habdul-Hamid, 37.

Gomez (Maxime), 394. Hugh (Count of) 65, 283, 519, Godré (Nemours), 400, 520, 521, 524, 525, 526, 527)

Gost (the), 435. 530, 531, 535, 536, 537, 544.
Galland, 435. Heintz, 71. |
Geay, 444. Heerni, 71.
_ Guérin (Urbain), 444. Hale, 83.
Gund (Theophilus), 458. Heshussius, 87.
Gounouilhou, 464. Henry, 92, 419, 200, 202, 203, Gébelin, 464, 205, 311.
Garrisson, 466. Hénin (d') 111.
Keep, 466. . 'Huet (Charles), 122.
Guiraud, 467. Habert, 139, 257, 261, 266.
Gaubel, 467. Humann, 164.
Galup, 468. Hubbard, 168, 219.
Gros Ciaude, 469, 556. Herr (Lucien), 303.
Guieyesse, 470, 487. Halévy (Elie), 303.
Honorat (André), 305.
Galup, 471. Huart (Marcel), 305.
Goutier, 471. Halévy (Daniel), 305.
Guérin, 471. Hérold, 305.
Gerard, 473. | Hugo (Victor), 343.
Gauger, 475. Hemon, 344.
Guibal, 475. Himly, 357, 358, 361, 363.

Galzin, 475.

Grill (Leon), 475.
Guérin, 475.
Germain (Benoît), 475.
Garnier, 482.

Girard, 484.
Manager, 490.
Géry-Légrand, 490.
Gaussorgues, 490.
Géraud-Richard, 494, Goblet, 526.
Gouldon, 533.
Gaveau (Paul), 556,

Hartmann, 363.
Haranguier, (d'), 380.
Hecker (Father), 404, 405, 406,
407. |
Hebrard, 407, 490.
Habert, 436.
Haviland, 443.
Hérold, 449.
Huguenel, 461.
Haffier, 464.
Hadamard, 465, Huguet, 477.

Hugon, 484.
H Hugues (Clovis), 515.

Henry VIII, 45.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED.

J

Jullien, 22.
Jeanne-Darc, 28, 52.
Jud, 40.
Jourde (Antoine), 121.
Jaurès, 137, 149, 151, 189, 197, 198, 351, 352, 356.
Judet (Ernest), 162, 164, 180, 181, 312.
Joly (abbot), 162.
Jarry, 308.
Jeatman (Léon), 305.
Jilkin (Yvan), 305.
Jansin (Paul), 305,
Jourdan, 342.
Jost, 365.
Jost (Guillaume), 357.
Jannin, 359,
Julian, 360.
Jacob, 363.
Joliet, 374.
Juikins, 455.
Jolibois, 468.
Jeanvrot, 470.
Joye, 478.
Never, 487.
Jougla-Pelous, 489.

K

Knox (Jean), 26.
Knedy-Anet, 68.
Keller (Auguste), 114.
Kruger, 239, 517.
Kergomar, 283.

Kæchlin (Raymond), 305, 361.

Kergomard, 355.

Koenigs, 363.

Klein (Abbot Félix), 404, 405.

Krantz, 490, 509, 510, 544.

Kennedy, 532.

581

Laroche, 6.

Leroy, 10.

Leo X, 12, 14,

Luthsr, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 26, 79, 80, 86, 87,
166, 167, 169, 389, 390, 458.

Lagasse, 18.

Lasource, 22.

Laumonier (Jean), 31.

Louis XIV, 38, 41, 57, 222.

Louis-Philippe, 39.

Lebon, 45, 75, 227, 231, 240, 463, 487.

Lusignan, 52.

Lecot, 59, 60, 62, 455, 456, 457
458.

Leblois, 94, 97, 100, 101, 419, 120, 180, 492.

Lalance, 106.

Laveaucoupet (de), 116.

Laurier, 122, 123.

Labori, 133, 134, 148, 165, 168, 181.

Lebrun Renault, 149.

Lockroy (Edouard), 153.

Lucipia, 161, 162.

Laroche, 215, 217, 226, 228,
234, 239.

Lauga, 215, 217, 225, 239, 240, 517.

Lambling, 215

Langénieux, 216. |

Vilers Myre, 218, 21%
221. | |

Lemire (abbot), 265.

Liard, 283, 361.

Lapie, 303.

Lebesgue, 303. .

582

Loeve 303.

Lecomte, 304.

Labrousse, 304.

Lagrosillière, 304.

Lavallée, 305.

Level (Mauritius), 305.

Lefèvre (Pierre), 305.

Letailleur, 305.

Lano (Pierre de) 305.

Laporte, 305.

Lhermite, 305.

Lugné-Poé, 305.

Lagarde (Paul), 305.

Lacour (Leopold*, 305.

Laumonier (Camille), 305.

Leyret (Henri), 305.

Levy, 305.

Leiourneau (Marcel-Etienne), 305.

Lavy, 319.

Laserre, 345, 346.

Lalessan (de), 353.

Louveau, 353.

Lafond, 354.

Lichten shepherd, 355, 358, 363.

Lods, 358.

Lods, 358.

Lods, 358.

Lévy (Maurice), 361.

Lawy, 361.

Lange, 363.

Lafont, 363.

Lang, 363.

Lapparent (de), 382, 419. |

Lions (Lord), 404.

Leo XIII, 409.

Lemire (abbot), 419.

Leroy (Etienne), 419.

Lamouroux, 433.

Ledoux, 433.

Leroux (Alfred), 433.

Garoché, 433.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Lemaitre (Arthur), 435. –

Leroux, 444.

Lacen, 449.

Le Corfec, 456.

Lefébure, 460.

Leleux (Léon), 463.

Hare, 465.

Lacaze, 466.

Lafont, 466.

Lagude, 466.

Langlade, 466.

Laroque, 467,

Ledelin, 471.

Luny, 471.

Lem, 472, 489.

Liénard, 475.

Lavandes, 475.

Laget, 475.

Lamouroux, 475.

Lauvergeat, 477.

Lambert, 483.

Ladevèze, 485.

Loti (Pierre), 486.

Luze (de), 489.

Lestrade (de), 513.

Mahy (de), 6, 65, 66, 67, 75.76, 128, 208, 210, 230, 232, 261,

– 265, 267, 269, 271.

Mourgue-Tur, 476.

Massal, 476.

Maret, 10.

Morus (Thomas), 15.

Munzer, 16.

Melanchthon, 46, 21.

Marat, 22, 39.

Maury, 22, 23, 24.

Mirabeau, 22, 24.

'Martin, 25.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Méré (Poltrot de), 35. –
Medici (Catherine de), 36.
Mac-Mahon, 45.

Mac-Kintush, 68.

Monvert, 68.

Méline, 08, 132, 183, 276, 315
316, 317, 318, 319, 321, 325:
326.

Monod (Gustave), 70, 90, 94, 171, 175.

Mende, 71.

Merz, 71.

Mignot, 72.

Mac-All, 77.

Morgenstern (Benedict), 86.

Maurel, 91.

Mercier, 91, 102, 133, 200.

Mourot (Bertin), 92.

Mercier-Milou, 92.

Maistre, 93.

Mung (de), 94, 150, 153.

Monod (Gabriel), 96, 97, 448, 150, 167, 170, 174, 178, 179.

Monniot, 104, 117.

Moureire (Joseph), 122.

Moreau (A.), 130.

Mirman, 132.

Meyer (Paul), 138.

Molinier, 138.

Manau, 139.

Billion, 141.

Maruéjouls, 153.

Mougeot, 153, 168.

Meyer (Jacques), 158, 159.

Monod (the), 170, 171, 173, 176, 178, 179, 195.

Monod (Jean), 170, 171, 172, 173.

Monod (Jacques) 171, 173, 177.

Monod (Gaspard), 172.

Monod (Frédéric), 176, 178.

Monod (Edouard), 178.

Maurras (Charles), 195.
Metzinger, 210,

Mizon, 242.

Monod, 233.

Marion (Mrs), 284.
Monicat (Pierre), 291.
Mettin, 303,

Marotte, 303.

Mège, 303.

Mouton, 303.
Massoulier, 303.
Merlant, 304.

Meslier, 304.

Maroyer, 304.
Montégut, 304.
Magnard (Alberic), 304.
Mormérot, 304.

Maze (Paul), 304.
Manière (Adrien), 304.
Meunier (Lucien-Victor), 305 Mirbeau (Octave), 305.
Marchand (Léon), 305.
Marlicw (Georges), 305.
Sir, 305.
Museux, 305.

Mauclair (Camille):

Montfort (Eugène), 305.

Murray, 305.
Millevoeye, 309,
Moltke (de), 309.

– Maret, 335, 373.

Merchant, 354.

Marty, 354.
Malmende, 355.
Ménégoz, 355.
Mairet, 356.
Monod, 357.
Marillier. .
Ménégoz, 358.
Martinenche, 359.
Mazauric, 359.
Manual, 361.

584

Household, 367.
Martinet, 367.

Monteil (Edgard), 373, 374, 316,

490.
Maruéjoul, 398.

Meignen (Charles), 405, 406.

. Molo (Mgr), 417.

Mary (of the Sacred Heart), 48,

419, 420, 423, 424, 495.
Magdelaine, 425.
Morrellet, 436.
Merchant, 458.
Mathivet, 463.
Marchegay, 464.
Mames, 464.
Meister, 466,

Marty, 466.

Moutet, 467.

– Mieilhe, 467.
Montrison, 467.
Mieulet, 467.

Moll, 471.

Maigne (Henri), 472.

March (of the). 475.

Martel-Teulon, 475.

Maruéjol, 476.

Meyruéis, 476.

Massé, 471.

Marion, 479.

Mercet, 487.

Mouttet, 488, 489.

Millerand, 515, 516, 522.

Mirman, 522.

Mac-Kintosch, 532,

Montvert, 532.

Mazon, 556.

N

Napoleon, 7, 274.

Necker, 22, 39, 112.

Naquet, 52.

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Necker (Pasteur), 68

Nicolas, (Auguste), 80.

Nigon, 121.

Nullet (E), 130,

Meuvialle, 354.

Nicolas, 354.

Nicholas 11, 385, 386, 391.

Naudet, 419.

Nadig, 450.

Nicolas, 466.

Negro, 474.

Negro, 476.

Nickels, 486,

0

Oecolampadius, 16, 19,
Obrecht, 71.

P

Payne, 22.
Pritchard, 39, 243,

Poinsot, 40.
Because, 51.

Pourquery de Boisserin,
232, 237, 272,

66, 228, 231,
548.
Pons, 68.
Porret, 68.

Pourtalès (Maurice de), 69.

Pétavel, 72.
Périllard, 72.
Piton, 73.

65,

Presented (of), 90, 205, 280, 305,

429, 433, 492.

Paty de Clam (du), 92,

200, 310.
Pelletier, 93.

152,

Picquart, 100, 119, 130, 150.

Prévost De Launay, 105.

Pelet (Marcelin), 407, 114, 120

INDEX OF NAMES CITED 883

Pontbriand (de), 444. Per in, 483.

Pulitzer, 125. For juier, 484.

Pauffin de Saint-Morel, 133. Pelet (Pai D), 457.

Pellieux (de), 133, 134, 200. Pelet (Marcelin), 489, Poitevin (Le), 141. Pallex, 490.

Psichari, 148. Pons, 532.

Pachmann (de), 165. Porret, 532.

Pécaut 166, 244, 277, 278, 281,

282, 285, 291, 294, 310, 359, Quinet, 78, 79, 80, 343.

492. Bui i

Pige d D de Buiu epaire, 409,

Pas:y (Frédéric), 283. Quet (Edouard), 304.

Perrin (Jean), 303, Quillard (Pierre), 305.

Pottevin, 304. Querenet, 453.

Pischari, 304.

Proust, 305. R

Poincaré, 320. Réveillaud, 9, 10, 63, 78, 429,

Poujade, 354, 468, 478.

Planchon, 356. Rabaud Saint-Etienne, 22.

Payot, 357. Rabaud-Pommier, 22.

Planchon, 358. Robespierre, 25, 389,

Passy (Paul), 358, 362. Richelieu, 30, 46.

Paul, 359, 7 Rochefoucauld (de la), 36.

Pierre, 359. Ribot, 45, 138, 293, 446, 490.

Perrot (G), 360, 361, 363. Richard, 68.

Petit (Edouard), 364. Rivier, 68.

Pochon, 364, 369. Rochedien, 68.

Pilate (Leon). Regamey 73.

Péreire, 433. Ranc, 90, 94, 123, 150, 183,

Small, 437, 368, 516.

Picard, 449. Roche, 92,

Pineton, 453. Roy, 93.

Puecb, 462. Rougemont (de), 94.

Pataille, 469. Roger (Charles), 97.

Peyron, 473. Rodays (de), 104, 105.
Puech, 474. Rochefort, 109, 117, 150, 154, Penchinat, 475. 348, 350, 351.

Reinach (Joseph), 109, 450, 152,
Pelon, 477. 182, 183, 193, 305.
Patel, 478, Rothschild, 111, 112, 115, 294,
Pd, 478. Roche (Ernest), 118,

Perrin, 482, 483, Riesler, 120, 437, .

586

Rigaud, 138.

Rosebery (Lord), 164.

Rieder, 178.

Rouanet, 186, 544, 545.

Royer (Clémence), 186.

Roget, 204.

Ranavalo, 227.

Rivet (Gustave), 246.

Rabier, 283, 293.

Rist, 303.

Rey, 303.

Rocques, 303.

Rivoire (André), 305.

Ruyssen, 305.

Rictus (Jehan), 305

Rouquès (Amédée), 305.

Reclus (Elie), 305.

Royer (Emile), 305

Rolland (de Marrès), 305.

Rainaldy (Henri), 305.

Roger (Emile), 305.

Roban-Rochefort, 307.

Rambaud, 320. |

Rivaud, 342.

Raspide, 354.

Rouville (de), 356.

Ripet, 356.

Reclus, 357.

Réville (Jean), 358.

Réville ee 358.

Reclus, 358

Roehn, 360, 361.

Rabier, 360, 361.

Ribot, 361.

Riemann, 363.

Rosenthal, 364.

Reymond, 366.

Rousseau (Camille), 366, 367, 369.

Rousseau (J.-J.), 389.

Renou (Mgr), 419.

Renan, 420,

INDEX OF NAMES

Renouvier, 429, 483,

Rosseuw Saint-Hilaire, 433,

Ricard, 436.

Rigault, 449,

Roche, 461.

Robert, 462.

Reverdin, 468.

Roux, 470.

Roche, 474.

Rancurel, 474.

Roger, 475.

Redhead), 475.

Roussel-Pelet, 477

Raisin, 4717.

Rauch, 477.

Roux, 483.

Rouvière, 484.

Kidney, 488.

Richard, 532.

Rivier, 532.

Rochedien, 533.

Rod, 556.

S

Somerset, 15.

. Storck, 16.

Say (Leon), 21, 292.

Servel (Michel), 20

Scheurer-Kestner, 45, 90, 93,
94, 97, 100, 101, 102, 103,
104, 105, 106, 107, 108, 109,
110, 111, 113, 114, 120, 137,
148, 167, 180, 192, 200, 204, 357.

Scholl (Aurélien), 154.

Somerville, 61.

Savoye, 61.

Sizeranne (de la), 63.

Schickler (de), 70, 427.

Saillens, 74.

Sisborne, 77.

Salisbury, 77. .

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Ségur, 79.

Sibille, 93.

Servan, 106.

Saussier, 136.

Sarrien, 153.

Stapfer, 166, 195.

Sizeranne (de la), 212.

Schaw, 243.

Saint-Germain, 244, 250, 251, 252, 255, 257, 259, 261, 262, 265.

Steeg, 276, 278, 283, 359, 446, 447,

Simon (Jules), 279, 281.

Sabatier, 284.

Simiand, 303.

Sweat, 304, 419, 422.

Sorel, 304.

Séailles (Gabriel), 304.

Séchet, 304.

Stapfer, 304.

Souber (Gustave), 304,

Saint-Georges (of – Bouhelier, 305.

Room (Louis de la), 305.

Solvay (Lucien), 305.

Salkin, 305.

Souchon (Paul), 305.

Saiat-Maurice, 307.

Sombreuil, 307.

Stanislas (Father), 325.

Sabatier, 356, 358.

Soulés, 358.

Stapfer, 358.

Solomon, 359, 363.

Schmit, 360.

Schlumberger, 364.

Stephan, 361.

Seignabos, 363, 481.

Sirvent, 363.

Samuel, 364

Priest, 366.

587

Stéphane Jay, 364.

Schmitz, 402.

Sourrieu (Mgr), 419.
Stapfer (Edmond), 428.
Sarcet (Francisque), 429.
Siegfried, 436, 488, 489, 555.
Stromeyer, 437.

Serr, 441, 442.

Selves (de), 442.

Savre, 458,

Steck, 459.
Schændoerffer, 463.
Silhol, 474.

Sauze, 475.

Rooms, 475.

Sibille, 481.

Sapet (Albert), 484.
Sarrut, 486.

Sauvajal, 486.

Simon, 487.

T

Taine, i.

Tiébaud, 6, 8, 10, 29, 56, 63,
97, 237.

Talleyrand, 22.

Trochu, 40.

Trarieux, 45, 97, 109, 138, 152, 153, 154, 155, 156, 168, 227,
228, 235, 236, 477.

Thélin, 68 *

Tavernier (Eugène), 70.

Tocanne, 93.

Teyssonnières, 93

Tézenas, 103

Tolain, 109.

Tréveneuc (de`, 142.

Trouillot, 153, 346, 375.

Thévenet, 158, 159, 168.

Toussaint, 194.

Talmeyr, 284.

Treffel, 303

588 INDEX OF NAMES CITED,

Tournade, 304. Veillet (Charles), 304.

Thebault, 304. _ Vaugan (Ernest), 305.:

Tarbouriech, 305. + Vaucaire (Mauritius), 305.

Tailhade (Laurent), 305. Vallabrégues (Marius), 305.

Toisoul (Arthur), 305. Vaillandé, 354.

T'essier, 355. Vernes (Maurice), 358.

Tannery, 360, 362. Vaucher, 358.

Théry, 390. Vabre, 359.

Teste (Los), 410. Vidil, 359.

Thureau-Dangin, 419. Voguë (de), 366, 369.

Turinaz (Mgr), 423. Veuillot, 402. l

Turquet, 433. ` Veuillot (Pierre), 402.

Tessier, 435. Valcourt (de), 433.

Teissandier, 437, 490. Vaugelgesang, 436.

Trarieux, 443, 464. - Vivien, 453.

Templar, 449. Verdet (Ernest), 458.

Tri gant-Geneste, 465. Verdet (Gabriel), 458.

Teyssier, 467, Verdet (Théodore), 458.

Tissier, 475. Vigué, 460.

Teulon, 475. Verdier, 461.

Thibal, 475. Viazac, 464.

Tur, 475. Valler, 464.

Transparent, 482. | Vigué, 466.

Toutée (Paul), 514, Vidal, 467.

Thelin, 533. Vardon, 473.

Vassas, 475.

U Verdier, 476.

Viviani, 515, 546,

Underhill, 61. Vincent, 476, 489.

Uri, 360. Vernet, 483.

y Villard, 484.
Glassmaker, 489.
Voreaux, 7i. Vigué, 489.
Viau (Raphaël), 108.
Vacher, 110. wW
Vaillant, 147.
Viger, 153. Wolmar (Melchior), 20, 86.
Valley, 153. Wadington, 45, 227, 247, 436.
Viviani, 260. William, 50.
Vieillefond, 303, Witt (de), 76, 435.
Valdagne (Pierre), 804, Weill, 120, 121, 362, 363.

Vibert /Paul), 804. Wilson, 228.

Weiss (René), 304.
Wahl (Lucien), 304.

Wisseman, 360,

Wahl, 363.

Weiss (J.-J.), 412.
Winckam, 449, 450, 454.

Walty, 464.

You, 6, 487.
Yon, 475.

Y

INDEX OF NAMES CITED

Z
Zwingli, 16, 19, 86,

87.

Zola, 102, 421, 123, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 134, 132, 133,

312, 379.

Zurlinden, 102, 201.

Zadoc-Kahn, 120,

195.

Zuber, 304.

Zévoit, 355, 435.

121,

134, 137, 139, 148, 149, 165,
168, 180, 181, 192, 198, 282,

150,

Digitized by Google

,

TABLE OF CONTENTS

I. — The Protestant question. . . e + + e »

II. — The origins of the Reformation . . ee è.

III. — The patriotism of Protestants. . . . +

IV. — Protestant propaganda. . . . has

V. — Protestants and the Dreyfus affair.

VI. — Protestants in Madagascar and Algeria.

VII. — Protestants and the University. . . .

VIII. — Americanism + è o

IX. — The Protestant conquest. , . . e è o

X. — Protestant favoritism. . . . e . to

CONCLUSION eo «© 0è eee ee o 00 «© © 0 0 @

Appendix. s ee © ew ee
Index of names cited. . è * ss © « « o

Digitized by Google

AT THE SAME BOOKSTORE

– JUST PUBLISHED

LONG LIVE THE ARMY!

By Gustave NERCY
FORMER CAVALRY CAPTAIN COMMANDER
KNIGHT OF THE LEGION OF HONOR

4 large volumes in-18, Jesus, 700 pages. Price: 3.50 francs

Available in all bookstores and train stations

Jews and Anti-Semites

By Jean de Ligneau

4 large volumes in-18, Jesus (10th edition). Price: 8.50 francs

Leo XIII before his contemporaries

By BOYER D'AGEN

4 large volumes in-18, Jesus. Price: 3 francs 50

THERE

MR. HUYSMANS' CONVERSION

By Father F. BELLEVILLE

4 pretty volumes in-18, Jesus. Price... "© . _ 2 francs

SAINT-AMAND (CHER). – DESTENAY PRINTERS, BUSSIÈRE BROTHERS

Digitized by Google

PP EE ENE

+ =

—

That che

A ng

~. $ E

HAS

~*

50 numbered copies printed for the press on Dutch paper.

And 15 numbered copies at the press on imperial paper from Japan.

PREFACE

TO MR. JACQUES DE BIEZ

General Delegate
From the National Anti-Semitic League of France.

My dear friend,

It is a joy for me to place at the top of this volume the name of the General Delegate of the Anti-League Semitic of France.

A brilliant writer for the Republican Press, a friend of powerful people of the day, it would have been entirely up to you to take takes part in the feeding frenzy by remaining among these men "whose
The left hand is filled with iniquities, and the right hand "Full of presents."

You didn't want it.

vi PREFACE

The Republic you loved was the Republic French, and not the Jewish Republic; the Republic represented for you what she had represented for your father and for mine: an ideal of selflessness of fraternity and justice, and you have diverted, with contempt, from this ignominious regime which,
Despite its disappointing label, it is not the Republic

Frenchmen, but the Rothschild monarchy.

You and Mores have had your share of insults and slanders that have not been spared me, and it is just that, while awaiting the final triumph, we affirm—Let us demonstrate before everyone the fraternal friendship that unites us. All three of them.

This volume temporarily concludes the series of my books, devoted to psychological and social study of the present time. There is indeed a time for everything, and we must hurry to publish these kinds of books, very moderate at heart, but sometimes a little sharp in the form, when one still has a strong hand and foot firm, at the age when you will be sought out all the less petty quarrels that we know you're better off in state of being responsible for everything you have written.

This time, I wanted to emphasize it more energetically in the manner of the points on which I had not been sufficient—emphasizing the point, complete with a more forceful line and to be more precise, which seemed to me too cursory. outlined in my previous volumes.

First and foremost, I made every effort to put in This fact, which seems to me to dominate the situation, highlights the point where we are struggling: the drying up of all sources of truth to which the men of this time can water.

PREFACE VII

It is at this sign that Satan, the father of Lies, the being of darkness, clearly reveals itself as the Master of the present moment. The current organization is indeed the masterpiece of this king of imposture and of The malevolent irony. He engineered this society of so that the man appears to have all the appa—the benefits of freedom and, in reality, that he cannot to hear for himself or to make his brothers hear a Words of truth.

For the superficial, these countless newspapers which appear every morning and every evening are Absolutely free. You have to have lived like us in behind the scenes at the press to find out that all these people Anyone who frolics, fidgets, or gesticulates is condemned. to remain within a certain circle of ideas, in order to con—to be born that the most demonstrative have a string to their bow that we fire at a certain point and that prevents them to write what they do not hesitate to tell us in the conversations.

These thousands of priests who, every Sunday, gra-screw the steps of a pulpit in a small church or large ones seem free, they too; materially They are not covered in chains; they are not forced to submit their sermons to censorship. And However, the faithful people, who so desperately need to be guided and informed in detail of the masonry maneuvers-Niques and Jewish women, never hear a word that touches acute concerns of the moment.

With the sermon writers of the Middle Ages, we can reconstruct-would kill the lives of past generations, we would have a a sincere and vivid portrayal of the feelings that Having endured the trials of our ancestors, we would rediscover the joys, the pains, flaws, and even the fashions of each era. By putting together all the sermons that one pronounced in France for twelve words, one could not absolutely nothing about what happened during the year: we would have a more or less eloquent paraphrase of catechism – and that's all.

VIII PREFACE

This explains why our ideas, while penetrating into the spirits, have not yet been able to take one of the forms under which men today conceive the success.

The French do have a vague perception of the com-The Jewish-German plot that we have denounced so many times times, and of which international finance holds all the sons; they feel caught in something unsettling- So much and so much obscurity. They vaguely realize desperate efforts that the Semites are making to em-to fish for the Franco-Russian alliance; they guess that there is secret machinations, in these flatteries which We are suddenly addressed by people who, there until recently, they were firing on our officers censures at the border, – in the inexplicable journey of this Empress Mother who receives Ephrussi on the day of his arrival and who is still talking with Alphonse de Rothschild at the time of his departure.

The opinion rose up against these sudden changes—faces of artists who, after having owed their fame to a boisterous chauvinism, seemed for a moment wanting to seek fortune in platitudes lackeys... We also appreciated their noble attitude and worthy of our old masters, of Frémiet, of Puvis from Chavannes, to our friend Yvon, the elder of our military painters, whose letter of protest was

:

PREFACE IX

So touching and so simple, to all these kind-hearted men who, without ever stooping to patriotism a sales article remembered, when it came time, of our peasants shot during the armistice and of the pe-little children disemboweled on the Maine road by the shells from an enemy who was bombing "for pleasure", since he was aware of the capitulation of Paris

It was now only a matter of days.

For many, unfortunately, all of this remains the printing state; they cannot achieve coor-To give them all these ideas, they cannot manage to comto assume that it is cosmopolitan Jewry that leads the movement. The newspapers should take charge.
to explain the situation to them, and the newspapers, almost all in the pay of Israel, strive, on the contrary, to to muddy everything and hide everything...

Our work will nonetheless have been fruitful, and a Adventurer, who is not far away, will take care of showing it.
the range.

The days of cosmopolitan high finance are counted. Thanks to us, the names of the plutocrats in which embodies the possessive and manipulative Jewishness are imprinted in the very fabric of the brains popular and nothing could erase them. It does not depend—it wouldn't even be up to us to destroy what we have Done. Tomorrow the princes of Israel would cover us of gold and we will decide to celebrate their praises of From morning till night, what is written will remain written.

that what we have sown would remain at the bottom of all intelligences, incorporated, in a way, to the soul of our fellow citizens.

"The works of a man," said Carlyle, "when you x PREFACE

you would bury them under mountains of guano, under the obscene filth of the most disgusting birds, no do not perish and cannot perish. What there was of eternal light within a man and in his life
This, precisely, is added to eternities; this subsists forever, like a new and divine portion of the sum of things: TO A NEW DIVINE PORTION OF THE SUM OF THINGS.

When the time came, the idea became action. The Jews will not prevent that hour from striking, and what must be done, will be done.

The Conservatives lacked the courage to unite.
to us to try to reconstruct French society French on the basis of justice; they preferred to associate-to link their cause to that of the dying Jewry; they will collapse with her.

The Boulangist party, which for a time pa-but personifying the awakening of the national spirit, did not wanted to be with us; he placed himself in the hands of Meyer and the Naquets... As soon as it became Jewish, this party who, the day before, had been radiant and full of hope, has
He was lost and, in a few months, he became a wreck. that we encounter today on the path without knowing exactly what it is.

These lessons may be useful to others.

A man of the people, a socialist leader, who will have refused to imitate his classmates and to be subsidized to function, like them, through the Synagogue, will resume our campaign; he will gather around him these thousands of beings awakened, educated by us, these dispossessed of all classes, these small shopkeepers ruined by the department stores, these city workers and of the fields crushed under all the monopolies, to which we we showed where the enemy was.

PREFACE XI

There you have it, my dear friend, a perspective that offers some consolation.
many attacks and which makes one consider the future with the serenity that comes from the certainty of having faithfully fulfilled he fulfilled his duty as a Frenchman and worthily the high-ranking writer.

Yours sincerely.

ÉDOUARD DRUMONT.

Digitized by Google

THE WILL

FROM AN ANTISEMITIC

BOOK ONE

TESTAMENTARY WORDS

-I saw a passionate and valiant man to assert himself as the representative of the idea
In revenge, write the Soldier's Songs.
to find a moment to establish with the League Patriots, a generous association like this Tugend-bund which raised the Prussia after Jena... I've seen since then man, whose name is Paul Déroulède, put his hand in Naquet's hand and impose as vice-president To his Leaguers, this infamous Jew who, to enrich a financial company, had sold to our enemies the secret of the powder without smoke.

I admired and loved Albert de Mun, the soldier of Christ, successor of Monta-Lembert, the eloquent champion of France Catholic. I then saw this man, which seemed to be the very honor of being included in a committee organized to restore the great French monarchy side by side with Arthur Meyer, who, as all of Paris knew, had been the Mercury of a gallant woman which we called Blanchs d'Antigny....

I saw the Pope's Nuncio, Rotelli, kissing on the mouth Léo Taxil, the author of Secret Loves of Pius IX. Following the example of

*"Jesus, my divine Master, I had taken the 1 and the exploiters of the poor people.

I saw the representative in my face of the Vicar of Jesus Christ to unite with that who covered Notre-Sei- with filth gneur and the Most Blessed Virgin Mary, who wrote that the priests of our Church were all pederasts and it was necessary to castrate them; who recounts that Pius IX, of holy and sweet memory, was being delivered by the Jesuits, virgins whom he defiled...
When a psycholugua saw all this in the short space of a year, he has There's not much left to see and he doesn't
All that remains for him is to make his will before
The final catastrophe.
(Epouar» DRUMONT. Letter to a friend.)

The reason for this book's existence. – Why has antisemitism not Not triumphed yet? – Good advice. – A memory of Frohsdorff. – A false conception of the situation. – There Fiction and reality. – History is made. – The Cardinal of Lavigerie and M. de Vanssay. – The Count of Chambord and Madame Récamier. – A true Capetian. – The year of the confession. –
The Conservatives. – Rothschild's fear. – Dupont to Bayien. – The religious orders. – The generation formed by The Jesuits. – The Jesuit party. – All the Catholic leaders liques contie nous. – Before and after May 4th. – Article 7 reappears. – The Zanterne and the Dominicans of Le Havre. – The Jacobin domesticated. – “Unleash the dog!” – Brisson is working. – A review of human miseries. – Cheap meat. – Jeanvrot gets involved. – A village in Seine-et-Marne in 1890. – The true dead hand. – Dialogue between the cow and the Jew. – At Vaux de Cernay. – Palanquin and chamber pot. – The Jew by turns insolent and vile. – The impetuous Woodcock, – A Gentleman concierge. – The first act of The Parisians. Oppert by Blowitz. – The inauguration of the Exhibition. – This that the Anti-Semitic League received. – Edouard de Rothschild and Baron Hirsch at the Cercle de la rue Royale. – The descent of

|
:
2 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC defense of the oppressed against thieves
the Boulangist court. – One gets used to the mud. – |

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 3

The Duchess's purse rumor. – The Jews in the Boulangism. – The rabbit trainer. – “Fin de siècle” and at the end of Fiance”. – The Duchess of Uzès. – The Right of Asaka-Meropie. – The Jew operates in the world. – Arthur Meyer and Bocher. – The Philistine defeated by the Jew. – The triumph of the clothing shop.

This book is not a testament to anti-Semitism.
Never has the Jewish system been more threatened, never the No Jew has ever been the object of more justified hatred and evil-more unanimous pronouncements, never the desire to end to its harmful exploitation was no longer ardent at all. This book is, quite simply, the testament of all.
The personal journal of an anti-Semite and the struggles of a man who was the initiator in France of a great movement and realizes that the ine-
The execution will probably be carried out by others than by him.

This book is first and foremost a book about friends, a book that
We write for those who love us.

Those who are interested in our efforts, those in front

"We have opened up new horizons for them," they complain.
when they go too long without reading us; they

They write, they ask us why success has not
"It wasn't any faster. "How is that possible, they tell us—" they, that this Jew so universally hated, this Jew which is devouring France, which has affected all French people, not only in their highest sentiments, but also in their material interests, which has denied the right to life; how is it that this Jew that she is not yet on the ground, that all the victims "Didn't they gather around you?"

To answer such a question, one must enter in the analysis of many very complex things, to show once again the state of mind of our contemporaries porains, also acknowledge the tribute I paid to some misconceptions and how this misjudgment my own actions have influenced the development of our work of liberation.

4 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

My experience can be useful to others and all those
Those who can understand this book will find it useful lesson.

For all those who dream of attempting something useful for their country, remember what I told them Say: "Never believe conservatives, there's nothing "To do with them!"

This reminds me of a lovely anecdote that someone told me.
one of the Count of Chambord's close associates.

One of the prince's loyal followers had suffered the pain of to lose his mother; he had gone to close her eyes and he re-came to take up his post in Frohsdorff.

– Well, my dear de X, said the Count of Cham-On board, you arrived in time to kiss my-
Your mother, you have received her last rites.
Words. What did she tell you?

– Your Grace, it's very difficult to repeat.

– What? The last words of a mourante, of a woman of high merit and piety
As profound as your mother?

– My lord, if you so order...

– Speak.

– Well! Before dying, while kissing me
Last time, my mother told me: "My child, don't you Never rally to the Orléans! They're all ca-nailles... »

– Hey! hey! said the Count of Chambord, madam Your mother has always had a lot of common sense. And he got up to go and repeat what he had said to the Countess of Chambord, who had a somewhat lazy ear, like M": Carnot, moreover, who occupies his place on the throne from France.

"Never get involved with conservatives," would I repeat it again if I were, like the good lady, at the hour of death.

My fundamental mistake was believing that it existed–
It was still an old France, a collection of brave people people, gentlemen, bourgeois, small landowners,

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 5

faithful to feelings of honor, to traditions of their race and who, lost and led astray by the turlutaines that they have been told for a hundred years, would resume conscience of themselves if they were shown the situation as it is and would come together to try to save their country.

I was the most reformist, the most progressive man, the most devoted to social justice in France; this My mistake made me look like a reactionary, she made me... lifted all action on the mass. The mass, in fact, more surely guided by her instinct, which we are not to our knowledge, a horror of the Conservative party;
She moves away from him like horses from a place where There's a dead person...

To be fair, I must add that it was very difficult for me–
It is futile to try to avoid this misfortune. Indeed, it is in vain.
that we keep our minds alert to look closely and to make an independent judgment on what is happening around us; we are involuntarily influenced by the ambient atmosphere.

For twenty years we have lived with this idea that "it
There were two parties; on one side the true Frenchmen, honest, generous, and devoted to the greatness of their country; The other, exploiters, cynical Republicans, shameless manipulators, persecuting and oppressing the real ones Honest French people. Many naive people devoted themselves. during those twenty years, they fought with all their forces, prayed with all their souls in the hope that at one At this moment, which was always predicted to be near, the Right representing honest French people would succeed in em- to the Left, which seemed to personify all the infamies.

This design is absolutely erratic. In reality
There are not two political parties, there is one regime. General, there is a system, the capitalist and Jewish system to which the representatives of the department are also affiliated those who vie for power. To this system the Republicans-

6 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The greediest citizens, because they are more industrious, perhaps they demand more immediate gratification; They perhaps demonstrate more harshness and impudency, but the Conservatives are also committed to this regime than the Republicans: they perhaps have more of interest that they have in its duration and they do not intend that we it touches.

When we closely study the twenty years that have just passed, we will realize that what they characterize it as fiction, imposture, a lie. general, the verbal and written display of feelings that we didn't really feel, the perpetual threat to perform acts that one had no intention of doing to execute.

When I noted this point and tried to paint it exactly- the figure of the Count of Chambord, M. de Vanssay, called it "Bloody Outrage", and sent pro-indignant testimonies to the Hope of the People.

He's a guy Mr. de Vanssas knew; he must have seen him play. Jenneval in Nantes and he seems to have taken on the appearance of a lodramatiques of this provincial Frédérick Lemaitre. "Bloody outrage" is his favorite word and, as soon as one Try to reconstruct a bit of contemporary history,

He bursts into violent exclamations and reproaches you.
to drag everything respectable through the mud.
Note that, of all the friends of the Count of Chambord,
He is certainly the one least authorized to take done and done for his memory since, in the last years into the prince's life, he was estranged from him and had ceased all service to Frohsdorff; he never saw the Count of Chambord for only a few moments
'during the illness that took his life.

Barely two years have passed and Bishop Lavigerie comes to confirm in the most undeniable way, by citing the the prince's own words, what I had written in the
The end of an era.

Mr. de Vanssay is not deterred by this statement.
so precise; he replies by quoting a confidential letter of the cardinal who, far from denying what Bishop Lavigerie what he said only further corroborates his statement.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 7

A man of action, of movement, and even a little of intrigue, Bishop Lavigerie gave in 1874 to the count of Chambord, advice that a Richea place where Mazarin had a prince who would have been in
In such circumstances, he proposed that she take action; the other refuses to act, and Bishop Lavigerie concludes that he does not want to milk would not reign, since he refused to use the means necessary to reach the throne (1).

This reasoning seems irrefutably logical and

(1) Here is a very precise letter addressed on this question to a editor of the French Observer by General Goethals, an-Former Minister of War in Belgium:

"During my stay in Venice (winter of 1852 to 1853), I had the honor-pleased to be presented to JL. AA. RR. the Count and Countess of Chambord. One day, while talking with him about France, the count said to me that he did not understand why the French were quite ab-sure of choosing an adventurer like the prince as their sovereign Napoleon, when they could choose the head of the monarchy among princes born and raised in France, who served and fought with them, and all, distinguished Frenchmen at heart.

"I replied to him:"

– And you, my lord?

"Oh! Me," he said, "they don't know me. I'd barely arrived." to be born when the 1830 revolution took place. And then, I have neither the physique nor the character required to please the French of other Today. There are still too many prejudices among them, and besides... I have no children.

Later, when I took my leave of him, upon leaving Venice, he He was kind enough to tell me that he sincerely hoped I wouldn't forget him. no, and that I would come to see him wherever we could meet.

"I certainly hope so," I replied, "to introduce you to my hom—" Magi at the Tuileries.

"Don't get your hopes up," he told me then, "unless there's a unanimous vote." France doesn't remind me of the tione. But, if my return to My country must cost a drop of blood, I will never consent to it. but. '

"Then I said to him: 'Your ancestor, Henry IV, didn't look a gift horse in the mouth.'" so close and he brought happiness to France.

'– Yes,' replied the Count of Chambord, 'but it was Henry IV,' And I am not.

8 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It's not very clear what Mr. de Vanssay could to respond to this demonstration. The Count of Cham-Borde did not want to reconquer his kingdom by force Like Henry IV, he would not have wanted to be restored by foreign bayonets, like Louis XVII, he did not have did not want to owe his crown to an Assembly like Louis-Philippe; he would not have wanted to be elected by plebiscite. Like Napoleon III. How could he have wanted to return? At the licu dese indulge in romantic imprecations, Mr. de Vanssay should give a clear answer once and for all. to answer this question.

These controversies are more interesting than gold. dinner the retrospective discussions, in the sense that they explain the current situation by letting us know the French soul since 1870. During these twenty years, the Conservatives have never even considered looking at themselves– not even able to look at others; incapable of anything intellectual effort, they waited to form an opinion union on their leaders that chance brought to light do-unpublished comments.

In any case, here is a finished legend and it will be found certainly a man who will have lived in the area of the prince and which, in pages that can only be read in In a few years, this phy- will be restored to us ad vivum The king's sionomy that the Count of Vanssay reproached me for for having insulted me, and who, on the contrary, has always inspired me 'a deep tenderness.

The Count of Chambord has always struck me as to represent among the leaders of peoples what M^{re} Récamier represented among the lovers.

You glimpse, in a greyish tone, this inte-Mr. Récamier's laughter. The worshippers did not renounced the declarations; they are still asking for "the" supreme favors," only they ask for them from-then twenty years. If we took them at their word, they would do to the best of their ability, but they might be embarrassed; Fortunately, things never go that far. words which, during the time of the Directory, had been real-

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 9

The ardent expressions of a material desire, have not The accent is no longer the same in this retirement home. in the honest atmosphere of the Abbaye-aux-Bois.

Frohsdorff is the Abbaye-aux-Bois, a convent comfortable like those found in Austria. You can hear it all-days of fighting words as we heard them words of love about the beauty queen, and the king never says no.

The lady watches all this with her peaceful smile. She experienced joys and anguish, she pushed a so-her eyes filled with satisfaction when she saw that the fa-The letter from Salzburg had been published by the Union; She trembled for "her Henry" when he went to France confers with Mac-Mahon; she watched him do the trunk while crying like M^{re} Dupuis in the Village; she was afraid that bad advice would be given to traveler. With adventurous souls determined to do anything, like Chesnelong, we don't know what might happen. He would be quite capable of going, like Persigny to Strasbourg, haranguing the regiments in their barracks and doing To draw the swords of the cavalry. Today Henry is back, he's gone back to his old habits: "My God, be blessed. May the French be happy; they killed part of my family, I don't want them I don't want them, but they should leave us alone in This castle where one feels so at home.

He is entirely in keeping with the traditions of his race; he is the true Capetian and, to understand him, one must con- to be born in the history of France, to know to what extent this The Capetian dynasty was united from the beginning, identified with the country, consubstantial with France... We say: "The Children of France, a Son of France. » « Open it, it's "the fortune of France," replied Philippe VI after Crécy, knocking on the door of a manor house. Jeanne Vaubernier, the milliner turned royal harlot, has the same The King's idea that all the good people of Paris, and that's the more naively than she cries out to Louis XV: "France, your coffee's a joke!"

1.

10 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

For this people, who are the very flesh of his flesh, the The king has a father's heart. The Thiers, the Favres, the Simon transforms Paris into a slaughterhouse, without a shadow with a hesitation; the Ferrys, the Constans, the Rouviers will kill, if necessary, thirty thousand men to con- To serve power for one more minute. The King of France cannot; he orders the Swiss to cease He fired like Louis XVI, and walked away without a fight. Like Charles X, he remains by his fireside, like Henry V.

When it is no longer spoiled by pompous declarations Vanssay's observations, all of this appears simple, logical And touching like the truth. It seems amusing. also, because deep down we sense that if there are contenders of this kind are surrounded by so many tributes, it's that, thanks to them, their supporters seemed all the more more ready for heroism than they had the vague certainty that they would never be put in a corner.

Charette trying to do something, instead of Parading his Zouaves on the Touriste would have been abominable.
as Morès was for a month.

However, if Mores had stuck to the speech of Had he remained in Neuilly, even if he had only been a half-hearted dreamer, he would h in his world. As soon as we saw him go to the people, dear-keen to bring together men of action whom, moreover, he did not have Not found, prepare to go down into the street, he
This aroused genuine fury. "So he won't be stopped."
"No!" That was the word of the clubs.

The same was true for me. As long as the Anti-Semitism-
The idea hasn't come out of the book yet, we haven't said much. From the outset that I have expressed the intention of entering public life to arrive to the City Council and perhaps to pass a a condemnation of disgrace or a vow for expulsion from Rothschild, all the Conservatives in my neighborhood have

. was against me; they went to get Taxil! « The convict Leo XIII, the Pederast Brothers, Abbot Galofez, the images distributed to passers-by and representing

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 11

priests giving tongue lessons to nuns. All rather than Drumont!

1890 marked the end of this strange period which It couldn't go on indefinitely. And the hypocrisy is such a hateful thing, that this year of beautiful debasement-complete prostration and prostration was not without something charming, because she possessed sincerity.
rite.

These situations are familiar in Parisian life.
The handsome aging man of fifty-five is still fighting, he pro-leads through the salons with his victorious airs and his beard of an inexorable black; he stretches out his leg, he paws the ground Again, he pretends to go to imaginary appointments.
People laugh at him.

Then comes the great disease that lies in wait for men around this age; the brilliant bon vivant confined to bed disappears from traffic for a while. After three

He comes back a month later; he's completely white; he took advantage of the opportunity to avoid unpleasant transitions and to enter at Les Invalides; and, seen like this, it is pleasing and no longer makes one laugh...

He confesses.

The Boulanger crisis allowed the Conservatives to execute this evolution; they went to find a mercenaire, a Saltabadil to pull off the deed they didn't dare. Not wanting to try it themselves, they met a weary old man. Because someone smarter than them took their money and got away with it. They went to live off their investments in Jersey. This experience... cooled down and, on May 1st, they had for the first time showed the depths of their hearts, entirely filled with a death of the Peacekeeper.

We saw the terraces of the grand, elegant clubs. cheering the officers who rushed at the passers-by and We heard them exclaim with each turn of the puzzle: "Bravo, Constans!" We saw the Conservatives are vying with the Republicans in their servility. when it came to voting on a motion of confidence In Constans, people were seen coming to congratulate him at his bench.

12 THE WILL OF AN ANTISENITOR

said that others put their arms around his neck to talk with him more closely.

This evolution, this admission of fear, has nothing that It may displease the social historian; it makes his task easier, it eliminates all that fiction, all that lies, all that theatrical, this oratorical and journalistic declamation which filled the coming years with a disappointing smoke-nent d'eve d'eve.

It is now established that there is no such thing in France party determined to fight the regime by all means Masonic and Jewish, a Catholic and French party-decided not to let themselves be oppressed.

When the Germanic and Frankish conquerors, united to the pure Gauls and the Celts, constituted truly-how France had lost its vigor, the element Gallo-Roman prevailed, the Latin race regained the upper hand; However, this race is made for tyranny, since it has no sense of conscience; she worships an idol im-a fool, an idol of marble or plaster called the Law, and in the name of that Law, she endures everything.

The Law is the lictor who comes from Cesar to announce to the Roman citizen that he is condemned to die, but let him choose his own form of torture; that is the Revolution's policeman who sometimes comes alone arrest five or six people and take them to Luxembourg or the Conciergerie, where another gendarme comes to get them to take them to the guillotine. He never entered the minds of those whom we thus halted the idea of starting by killing the gendarme. This is an extraordinary spectacle and there is no never before in France has a government been able to call itself first, as if by a constitutional designation: the Terror.

There's no point in discussing it further, and all that's left is to constate the obvious. You will not find in most-part of the influential Conservatives than liars, of Deceitful, eternal seekers of oblique paths... Met-' Put them on the main road to Versailles, on that road wide enough to parade a front division, which is called the Pavement of rot; tell them: "You see, that's all Straight ahead, you just have to walk, you'll see the palace "From here." After a few moments, you find them again-ground floor in infamous little alleyways, lost, filthy, bogged down, groaning and relying on the skill of Mackau to pull them out of there.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 13

They have no idea what a Right. Everyone has rights, the important thing is to know them. defend them. The hundred peoples that Xerxes and Darius trailing behind them were the Lydians, the Ionians, the Me- They had as many rights as the Greeks. Only, The Greeks were valiant, robust, and made supple by the life of the gymnasium, and they proved that they had rights by the mere fact that they defended them.

Bismarck never said: "Might makes right"; He said, "Might makes right"; and he heard this The word Force in its etymological and true sense: screw or virtus, virility, manly virtue, the energy of man.

It is especially in religious matters that the principle is Right. What is the criterion, the measure to which...

People who don't believe can measure belief from others?

– You tell me you believe. Why do you want to–
I rely on you; for in the end, you... talk about an abstraction, something I don't see No? Do you really believe that?

– I believe enough to be ready to die, but natu–
Actually, before reaching that extreme, I com–
I will start by shooting you.

– Excellent! Now that's a tangible statement!
a basis for discussion.

That's what the Vendéans did, who were not Gallo-Romans, but Celts. When they had killed a thousand blues, that we had killed as many of their own and that we saw that it would always have to be done again, he A sensible man was found who said, "Perhaps it would be–

14 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It would be simpler to let those people go to mass.
since they insist on it... »

That's how it is with everything. The Freemasons, with their insignia, the Republicans, with their flags, will A procession to pay tribute to Baudin. It doesn't hurt. to no one. Why shouldn't Catholics have the right to cross the city in procession with their banners and the Blessed Sacrament?

It is quite certain that if, without resorting to blows of rifle, 1,500 Catholics came, in the vicinity of the Corpus Christi, regularly whistling Rothschild or Carnot Every time they go out, we would end up saying to these Catholics: "Conduct your procession peacefully"
"And leave us in peace!" The freethinkers agree– would be with the believers so as not to clog the way public on the same day. In short, it would happen as in America, where Catholics, Protestants, Che– Labourers, Presbyterians, Wesleylyers organi– they feel all the processions that suit them, without
No one is thinking of complaining about it.

What I said about the Conservatives explains why they have taken sides against me on the anti-Semitic issue.

Perhaps we would have understood if they could not rise to the ideal of justice and reparation so-commercial that we are pursuing, but, if they had had a glimmer of honesty and common sense, the sole concern of the in-religious interests that they claim to defend should have inspired a different attitude in them.

In every battle, there is a key point. the whole position, a place where you just need to wear all his strength to decide the day's winnings. Here, it didn't take an exceptional glance to discover the strategic point to be struck.

What governs? Is it these poor fantom-ches who have no other concerns than to protect themselves? Fold the pocket? Absolutely not.

Who is the true master?

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 15

He's the Jew.

It is the Jew who holds everything in his hands.

The day you attack the Jew, you take the Jew. In a close, physical confrontation, you confront your true enemy.

However, the Jew was at the mercy of the Conservative.

We will never know the fear that Rothschild felt for a few months. A few people who have it Close-up views informed us about this panic which was absolutely Shakespearean.

Lozé himself eventually became exasperated by the perpetrators. This man's alarm bells started ringing. One day, while he was talking with a lady, the police prefect, to explain the favors he granted to the Rothschilds, skipping the line and other agreements, claimed the street banker Saint-Florentin was very generous to the treasury of assistance from former employees of the Prefecture of police; suddenly he had a burst of sincerity: "After 'Anything,'" he cried, "that animal can surely do something."

Something for us, it's been two weeks since he started taking my half of my staff.

Rothschild was not yet reassured by all these police officers, he would have liked a division for the Keep it. Without fear of dishonoring the army, Freycinet He did this nameless thing: he sent a regiment of dragons camped around the home of a banker of Frankfurt. The dragoons spent two nights there. In On the night of May 1st to 2nd, all the troops had de- then long ago returned to their barracks which can be seen- was still carrying the dragons on Rue Saint-Florentin. "I don't "I don't understand," a quartermaster sergeant said to a ca- Nonsense, they're talking about going to fight the Prussians... their own, since we are forced to serve as their guards- bodies when they are with us.

If this man had felt hunted everywhere, attacked on On all points, it is certain that he would have compromised at name of the Jewish quarter and offered to Catholics a modus Vivendi is acceptable, a kind of recognition of their rights similar to those obtained by the Huguenots with the Edict of Nantes.

16 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The Conservatives never understood that; instead Instead of fighting, they surrender in open country as Dupont in Baylen – and for the same reasons as him: They have dysentery and they want to save their luggage...

This capitulation of Baylen. Dupont has ten times the means to make his way to Baylen. Dupont has ten times through the Spanish army, unfortunately he is dragging his feet after him six hundred wagons filled with looted goods Cordoba. So he negotiates: "We will deliver everything, but on one condition, you will not visit our ovens "gons."

General Védel, who has no luggage, arrives with his division; he attacks Castanos, he defeats him. During the At night he sends an emissary to Dupont, telling him: "Make an effort on your end, and I'll make one on mine and We will certainly break through enemy lines and We will join hands.

Dupont always replies: "And my vans?"

In short, Védél, who continues to have no luggage,
He decides to leave. He goes off with music in his head, drum-
The fighting spirit... The Spanish are trying hard to stop him,
But they are repelled. He is fifteen leagues from Baylen, free, assured of his communications with Cadiz during-then an officer arrives and brings him the order to return following in his footsteps and becoming a prisoner with his soil-Castanos had demanded this order and Dupont had given, always to save his vans...

Of course, the vans were not saved; the
The surrender was violated. The soldiers went to die in the horror of the English prison hulks; others were thrown onto rocks on deserted islands and one would find, he
A few months ago, the bleached bones of these ill-happy ones who, for five years, agonized in the suffering from the tortures of hunger, feeding on herbs and coskittles...

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 17

This is the story of the Conservatives: they want to save their vans! The grandfathers got rich by national assets; during the fifty years when The bourgeoisie governed without checks and balances; the sons have exercised on the workers the most monstrous exploitation tion that the world has seen; the grandsons have titles of annuities, bonds, they are primarily thinking about guaranteeing
This is in response to indiscreet demands... Gladly
They would act like Dupont with Védél, with the brave ones.
people who, by rushing upon the Jews, succeeded in an ins-so much so as to rout them; they would order them to to throw down their weapons and surrender to Israel. Which prevents Conservative Party leaders from formulating This absurd injunction is the certainty that we... would tell him to get lost.

What can one rely on in that world? The clergy is rendered powerless by the Concordat. There is no da-religious order advantage in which one can find a support, which personifies, like certain orders of the
In the Middle Ages, the resistance of Aryan genius against the invasion Jewish Zion.

I studied with a kind of intellectual curiosity

these Jesuits, whose radicals threaten as if by a scarecrow what they call modern society and which is, in reality, a society as old as the hills, like the streets of Jerusalem. I counted among these Precious friendships with the Jesuits, and I have kept from my memories... ports with these beings of high virtue a feeling of profound admiration.

In our century of universal decline, it is perhaps- It is among the children of Loyola that man reveals himself the greatest in this sovereign mastery of himself- even which makes him, not only a stranger to all fear, but which also gives him a certain easy quality, smiling and serious at the same time. Not all Jesuits were not born into the upper classes and all of them nevertheless- displaying affable and noble manners; they resembled each other

18 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They are won over by an air of simple dignity that captivates the more hostile. They are truly men, men worthy of all respect and who honor nature human.

What influence did contemporary events have on... porains this order so powerfully constituted and which has re- Has it withstood so many attacks? None.

As I've already said, it happens because of the orders, which is what produced for individuals; at a certain point they have Having reached their stage of development, they are fully im- First, they can no longer learn anything. The beautiful The Jesuits' moment was the seventeenth century; that is where that they fought their great battle to try to have the direction of the world; in this struggle they pushed their will to the point of genius, they possessed both diplomatic skills. incomparable mates in the Courts and, in their Mis- we were, in Canada for example, martyrs who suffered they heroically endured tortures more dreadful than those of the first Christians; they undoubtedly failed But their failure was not without grandeur. Guizot himself- even, although Protestant, could not help but give a tribute to the energy they expended.

Today they are powerless in the face of a world which escapes them. They are portrayed as conspirators failures; they don't conspire, at most they are somewhat intriguing. In this respect, they are still ten-seventh century, from the time of the register of benefices, cabinet negotiations, favors granted by the channel of a character on credit; they employ enormous forces, they display incredible perseverance. Incredible; they move mountains to achieve all tiny things, to increase the prosperity of a college.

A tree can only be judged by its fruit: now, the fruits that Jesuit education produces are not brilliant. I have witnessed the tireless dedication of these educators, their constant attentiveness, their Truly magnificent selflessness. What students!

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 19

Do they produce at the cost of so much effort? "We tell them "Let's ask them to make men for us," one of them told me. prelate who, in a Catholic University, was in rapport with many Jesuit students, they en- "They see communicants!"

Among all these young people, almost all of whom were at ease, a few fabulously rich, we do not have found help, dedication, support. The Press Jewish woman dragged them and their masters into the piss-Germiny's territory; their faces were smeared with this impure wave. It did nothing to them. They are indifferent to everything, completely foreign to tradition French Christian. Of all the teachings of The Church, they retained little more than the fear of Hell which remain within them like those childhood terrors which never completely disappear; around Easter this The Devil's thoughts trouble them, they torment them in their pleasures, and they go to confession... They are all a bit like that Marquis de Créquy we were talking about Rivarol: "They do not believe in God, they fear in God. "

You see the contrast between us and those people. I was raised at the Lycée Charlemagne, I never had anything I received them from the Jesuits, but they were never of any use to me. At the time of the decrees, I saw in them citizens, intelligent men persecuted by the Jews vomited on we went through all the ghettos of Germany and I did what I was able to get into the newspapers to serve their cause. I have appeals to the chivalrous generosity of Albert Duruy And, to defend the Jesuits, this son of an academic has undertaken in the Revue des Deux-Mondes a camlincloth which, moreover, honored him in the eyes of all.

Not a single one of the wealthy Jesuit students
I remembered that I had defended the teachers of his youth, not a single one, in the age of enthusiasms and impulses, did he told us, "Do you need ammunition? What can I-I will do my best to help you in your war against the Jews?

20 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This is a fact to which there is no response.
The Jesuits I like the most would all be around to tell myself: "We think these things, but we don't write them down" that I would still write what I think; I will always repeat to them: "These are the students that you have done.

For the past twenty years, it has been the Jesuits who have raised the elite of Catholic youth, and they were able to raising him in conditions of absolute freedom, with this extra strength, this sort of halo that the persecution.

I would add that it would be unjust to make the good Fathers entirely responsible for this result; the fabric, the virile substance was lacking in these offspring of the Aristocracy and the upper bourgeoisie who represent finite races. But even on these soft natures it seems-
It is better to have a more masculine, less respectful education.
social conventions, more contemptuous of wealth whose origin is shameful, could have had a certain action.

Not only did the Jesuit students not have no help in our work of social salvation, but the
The Jesuit party was absolutely against us in the last elections.

What is this Jesuit party that everyone keeps talking about?
The thing is easier to understand than to explain.
Take the Jesuits individually; they are all very Valiant, very loyal, very sincere. The educated students by these courageous and upright men are, for the most part for their part, perfectly selfish, generally partygoers, although always in a somewhat sneaky way, very attached to material interests, but not malicious. Finally among these students augmented by recruits of different origins rent forms like a strange precipitate, it constitutes, as if by some bizarre selection, a party completely deceitful, deceitful, and corrupt; that's the party which is called, using an expression that is not Exactly, "the Jesuit party" – that's the dominant party

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 21

On the Right side of the House, it is the party that wants todays to deceive and who is eternally deceived, the party that He divides his admiration between Constans and Rothschild.

In their hatred of the noble ideas that we representations, these people didn't even consider, in taking up the cause of the Jews against us, to their to demand certain guarantees; and inevitably what what was supposed to happen happened.

From the day that Anti-Semitism asserted its existence,
The attacks against priests and religious figures ceased.
rent almost completely. The Jews had the fire their buttocks and, naturally, they were only thinking about to go out...

You couldn't open a newspaper without reading a article on tolerance, the need to put an end to religious wars; these were found everywhere articles there: there was the pathetic article, the indi-Ugh, what a whiny article...

You spotted a friend running...

– Where are you going so fast?

– Don't hold me back... I'll wither you.... I have a article to be written on the tolerance that was expressed to me-Ordered by X. He cares about it a lot...

– What! That old scoundrel who wanted us to Gut our priests!

– Precisely! He has become tolerance itself...
No religious war... freedom for all, peace between French citizens... You see the issue from here.
Good morning!

In the aftermath of the municipal elections, I wrote to a prominent religious figure among my friends: "The Conservatives were infamous towards us, as is, moreover—theirs, their habit. Look at the date of my letter and Remember that I announced to you on that date that The campaign for decrees was about to resume. The platform—The format of the upcoming elections will be strict enforcement. decrees, »

22 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The religious figures, as you can well imagine, did not hold out they paid the slightest attention to what I told them; they did They wrapped their trunks, their stiff collars in articles on tolerance that the Jews had made them hold back in order to convince them of the purity of their 'intentions and they prepared to move from Canterbury and to come and resettle in France.

Their illusion was short-lived. The Jew Mayer began by declaring in the Lantern that the private school in Boulogne-sur-Mer was full of sodomites. The director protested with indignation that one can conceive; then Mayer attacked the open air: "And the decrees?"

Several "individuals", to speak like the Lantern, belonging to expelled congregations, had taken the liberty of returning to their home in Le Havre and the Lantern, in the name of tolerance, asked that they were expelled again. This event seems having put Mayer in a state of extreme over-excitement ordinary.

What is the Minister of the Interior thinking? Where is he? What Does he do it?

The facts are not disputed. His sub-prefect has acknowledged. The violation of the law is undeniable. The scandal is general, since the entire opinion has been put to current through complaints from the republican press and by the provocative challenges of the clerical sheets among which The Journal des Débats is particularly noteworthy.

How can we explain that the necessary repression is taking place? to wait even longer, and that Mr. Constans has not already given some Orders accordingly?

By this incredible desertion of the easiest of his duties,
Does the Minister of the Interior want to imply that after Having so completely disavowed it, he resolved to resume and to implement the policy of compromise with the faction clerical, whose program he had outlined in his speech From Périgueux?

It would at least have been more dignified, if that is indeed the thought the minister, to make this about-face in the presence of the Cham-

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 93

br, and not to wait for the impunity of an inter-parliamentary session (4).

The thing seemed all the more cheerful to me because it was Dominicans whom this Jew wanted to throw out into the street.
However, at the school's last awards ceremony
Father Didon from Arcueil had spoken in glowing terms of these "great Semites of whom the Jews are today" the successors.

What do you want? Father Didon is not indifferent
In advertising, he is not indifferent to a Notebook from Gallic.

From what I have been told by various sources and sure, Father Monsabré, one of the Dominicans of Haven that the "great Semites" claimed to flank at the door, is of a more French and more virile soul.
If he is resigned to everything as a religious man, he must suffer as a patriot and as a French citizen of what is:
passing today.

Isn't it shameful, indeed: a Jew from Cologne dragging behind him all the shames of a family pres-
. that exclusively composed of repeat offenders, of an exisignominious personal attack, referring to him as an "individual" the great orator of Notre-Dame and demanding impe-Jerky, that they throw him out of his cell?

So suggest to a Conservative MP that he ask-before entering the home of this "individual" who is called Baron Rothschild. You will see the head of the deputy. "Calling Baron Rothschild a "Individual!" What are you thinking?

Flaubert was right when he wrote about a dictionary naire: "Synonyms: there isn't any."

You must always use the same words to express the same idea. Cowards! Sycophants! Cowards! Must-he repeats to all those Catholics who allow themselves to be humiliated

(1) Lantern, August 21, 1890.

24 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

in this way in their country and who disavow or who strive to strike from behind those who dare to attack Get rid of the enemy!

To the Dominicans as to the Jesuits, it is necessary to repeat
Also: "This is the generation you have created."

Never, moreover, was there a more favorable opportunity to see how little the Jew can hold in his hand all those Republican priest-eaters.

What a fine type of domesticated Jacobin this Bris-Sound! We know this gloomy man: he laughs, as they say the people, every time he glances at them; he has he never made others laugh except once, and even then, only once.
did not take part in this outburst of hilarity. When he manifested the intention to present himself as a candidate for the Presidency
In the Republic, some citizens were ma-
He laughed so hard, but he himself caught jaundice.
seeing the fit of gaiety he had aroused.

As long as public attention was drawn to the monstrous fortunes made by the Jews through force of extortion and stock market manipulation, this enemy of con-
The group remained calm; he was like my dog, Thos: As long as there are strawberries in the garden, we
He is given his food in the kennel. As soon as the anti- danger-Semitic seemed to be dismissed, one heard, on a Sinai blazing with the reflections of gold, a voice said:
"Unleash the dogs, unmuzzle Brisson!"

Brisson, unmuzzled, immediately went to bark in the Lantern against the holy women who raise orphans and take in old people; he asked that they were stripped of their possessions to render them unable to exercise cer la charité (1).

(1) We know what the fiscal measures are, including those Brisson, vigoustrongly supported by Jewish newspapers such as La Lanterne, demands its retention. It's outright confiscation. The tax authorities first claims nearly two-thirds of the fictitious inheritance of all a member of a congregation who happens to die; that's already rigorous-

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 25

In order for him to carry out his despicable task, one installed my Brisson at the Director of the Registry-and the newspapers were careful to teach us that we had set up an office for him and put an em-submitted to his orders.

For many long days, the files of congregations at the table of this enemy of the poor,
And you can see from here all the misery and suffering that has passed by.
devotions before this vile man.

All that Charity, that daughter of heaven, the gene-reuse pity for pure souls, the spirit of sacrifice, the ex-the ingenuity of simple and naive hearts, skillful only-to do good, they were able to imagine ways to help
Human suffering is present in these cases.

Here are the Little Sisters of the Poor, sublime beggars that the women of the market know well with their little black caps, running around the markets, stop at the doors of restaurants to ask for rous, but, what is monstrous, he intends to infringe upon this right to-as many times as there are different establishments in the congress-gation. In addition, a law of Ventôse imposes a minimum of 20 francs for any registration transaction.

|

Let's take, for example, the Daughters of Charity. The Daughters of Charity has a property worth approximately 23 million encumbered by charges -of all kinds, including links between hospices and orphanages. These There are approximately 410,000 holy women in France.
cune therefore has a share of approximately 2,800 francs in the common good.

When a Sister dies, the record obliges the congregation to make a statement in each registration office land registry within whose jurisdiction she owns a plot of property. This That's 800 declarations to be made in 800 offices. Let's say for Each declaration has a minimum value of 20 francs; the Girls Charity will have to pay, at a rate of 11.25 percent on a value of 20 francs, 2.25 francs, plus the sheet of stamped paper 60 centimes; that makes a total of 2.85 francs per office. And I don't This does not include accessories: receipt stamp, cost of the power of attorney, travel expenses, etc. If you multiply 2.85 francs Based on 800 offices, you arrive at a figure of 2,230 francs for a death.

You see what each Sister has left from her share of 2,300 francs.

2

26. THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

what to do to support their elderly, sometimes covered in infirmaries disgusting mites and that they treat with a matern-neat concern.

These are the Brothers of Saint John of God, adopted so many, on Lecourbe Street, children born to syphilitic parents and of alcoholics, received as their entire inheritance, upon coming to world, paralysis or epilepsy, and focus on their melancholic faces of toddlers, the stigmata of all the ancestral debaucheries.

Here is the file of my neighbors on Uni- Street university which directs the work of the Young Economists. This they are not orphans whom they take in; this are children of working-class families who succumb to grief; they thus save countless lives. poor little girls not only from hunger, but from early corruption, vagrancy, frequenting bad conditions!

What small dramas in these impoverished families! The mother died; the father, now a widower, set himself up, as It is said that she will be with another woman and the girl will become a little girl. martyrdom. Elsewhere, the widower remains faithful to the memory from his first wife and he continues to live with his daughter, but he is forced to leave her alone at home.

when he leaves for work; he takes her to dinner at cabaret with him since he has no interior. The bad-
So she grew up happily amidst the talk obscene and, already half-perversed, she is defiled a day in a corner by a drunkard.

Once inside the hospice, these beings so severely bruised by life, they breathe, they expand, seem to be reborn. One of my windows overlooks the garden where these little girls play and the joyful noise of Their games and bursts of laughter rise towards me at recess time. The parents who come... Visitors barely recognize them, and sometimes you hear... in these interviews, in these words that paint a picture society, like that word which was spoken in the Youth Parliament's visiting room Thrifty, by a little boy left on the pavement at his sister, whose happiness he envied: "What, you eat?"

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 27

"Every day, you 7..."

Looking at these files, a lewd flash passes over the Brisson's gloomy face. 11 believes there isn't enough little girls approaching gentlemen in the evening in dark angles: "Bloom yourself, sir, a "Little bouquet..." And very quietly: "Would you like to see my "Rose?" It's not always to be dismissed. My goodness!
when you leave a formal dinner, after you've eaten lots of truffles and drank the choice wines that the Taxpayers pay, you can feel the old passions... turn it back on.

It is certain that if, with the help of good tax laws, The orphanages and workshops were emptied into the streets. where chaste children sleep under the protection of the great Christ who extends his arms over them in the dormitory, the prices of human livestock would fall in crossroads, and we would have cheap meat.

These concerns would once have seemed to require quite foreign to the gloomy deputy from Paris. He is of those Tartuffes who manage for a long time to keep their mask of austerity; they seem so boring that we imagine them to be virtuous. Psychologists de-Routed people seek to understand and say to themselves: "Com-
How can a man considered honest commit such a crime?
"Such villainy?" But everything comes to an end; a

One fine day the poorly fastened mask falls to the ground, we glimpses the hidden aspects of these lives, and what seems—
The dark cloud is explained quite naturally.

That's how, at the end of last December, Paris... learned, with understandable astonishment, that the solemn Brisson had been, along with Paul Bert, one of the té-less than Toutée, when this worthy magistrate married the daughter of M^{re} Émile, the matron of a rou-leuses, stoneuses and barrier prowlers that we call-Milk from the Bay of Cows. Then it was explained why, In the last elections, Brisson had run in the district of Rue de la Lune.

28 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

By ruining orphanages and asylums, Brisson travaille to provide staff for the Cow Balls of the future. I don't think, in fact, that he's pushing the plea-health to the point of claiming that Assistance would be sufficient to everything. It's Brisson's political friends who are at Public assistance, that is to say, one steals there with training (1). We saw families of seven per- .
Sonnes commit suicide and we heard a mayor Jewish to declare that the funds paid by all contributors indiscriminately deductible should only benefit the Republicans, and by this word "Republicans," this good Jew probably meant to refer only to the Jews. Jules Simon, who sometimes has moments of honesty, told us the story of this mother of four-children to whom six pounds of bread were granted per fortnight. The employee realized she was going to have a fifth child and, faced with this lack of respect Malthus, he completely crossed out the unfortunate woman's name and him eliminated all assistance.

Let us not disturb Brisson with untimely re-bending... He is always in front of his files; when He took a bundle of cash and said to the employee: "At an autre.

And, in the proscriber with the head of D, the parade continuous, grim and touching, heartbreaking in its miseries

(1) We read in the Battle of September 21, 1890:

"Yesterday, at two o'clock, Citizen Navarre, a municipal councilor, member of the Higher Council of Public Assistance, went in the offices of the Assistance, where he conducted an investigation, accompanied by Mr. Derouin, Secretary General.

"To his astonishment, Citizen Navarre found in a corner 148 cases of unfortunate single mothers who have been waiting since On average, it takes three months for the administration to respond.

"It's no wonder, then, that every day the newspapers record—suicides and child abandonment occur, due to the indecent fault of deniable from Public Assistance.

"Citizen Navarre also discovered things of a

TESTAMENTARY TAROLS 29

which he lists, magnificent in the devotions he
It always shows itself near every misery. It seems that In this ordinary ministerial office, we are witnessing a re—a completely new kind of view, and one sees them all gathered together the unfortunates of life, all the vanquished, all the hatched—the poor, the whole sorrowful army of the wretched and the suffering frants... We hear the heavy footsteps of people who are walking sing with crutches, children's sighs that they groan and are consoled by a nun, coughs of old beggars who spit out their filthy lice mons et to which a patrician woman brings herbal tea with the good grace she would once have put into a living room to offer a cup of tea to some guest illustrative. °

Brisson marks all of this with formidable taxes, and, while he marks, the employee who deposits the bundles of files on the table, looks with disdain at this bourgeois Jacobin, bent over his abject task. He has read our books, this employee, like all the men of the younger generation, and a word, a name that would like to emerge—
The shot tears at his throat; he wants to shout: "And Roth—Schild, Mr. Puritan, why don't you talk about it?
Never? The three billion (1) wrested from the French Are they therefore more sacred because of stock market fluctuations?
the tax authorities that the humble assets of these good people who joined forces to try and rescue their sene—bla—

of such gravity, that it is preferable to let him speak, and he does not will certainly not refuse to provide one of our editors with additional information that is most enlightening.

"There is also talk of several thousand francs embezzled by scoundrels, to celebrate with the money intended to procure "Aid for the poor."

In the following issue, citizen Navarre confirmed by a letter the existence of these heinous acts.

(1) We have already noted that these three billion, which inspire—they show such religious respect to Brisson and his accomplices, representing were the wages of three million workers working an entire A year without a single day off at three francs a day. Here's what—better right of increase to this global fortune which doubles every ten years" (1).

2.

80 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Unhappy employee, be quiet! Wait for the hour Uprisings are coming! This enemy of the poor of France is a friend of the rich in Germany, he has for rallying cry, the cry of all Republicans opposed Tutians or radicals: "Down with France! Long live France!" "Strong!" He has the soul of a snitch; if you were to speak with The Rothschilds' irreverence towards him, he would go to you Denounce someone and you'll be replaced tomorrow by a Jew. native of Hamburg or Wilna....

In this order, we also have Jeanvrot. He is a new; he is an advisor at the Court of Appeal of Angers, and I believe I will act wisely by avoiding going to me to have a trial in that country.

Jeanvrot counted all the hectares owned the congregations, the factories, the seminaries, the bishoprics; he found 88,000 of them and he was frightened.

Here are some more figures that can help to get an idea of this what is the monstrous fortune of a single man? Three billion would weigh:

In silver..... 15,090,000 kilograms.
Ea or... 967.710 –
In thousand-franc notes. 5,340 =
In hundred-franc notes. 34,500 –

For the transport of three billion, assuming that a man

To carry 100 kilograms, it would require:
In thousand franc notes. 514 men .
In hundred-franc notes. 845 –
In gold.....,.....,.... 9,675 –
In silver.....,6,150,000 –

Three billion in thousand-franc notes would make 6,000 volumes of 1,500 leaves, .

(1) It is unnecessary to say that neither Mr. Piou nor his friends treated the a question from this point of view, which would have interested public opinion. They ha left the Freemason Brisson to denounce the covetousness of his band the five million of the Brothers of Saint John of God. without ask him what he thinks of Mr. de's three thousand million Rothschild.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 31

Within these hectares, there is, it must always be repeated, orphanages, asylums for the elderly and for children, hospitals for the sick, workshops and agricultural settlements, and these hectares, distributed among Approximately 200,000 people would only give one good
A small plot of land for each person. Jeanvrot doesn't have one.
I was less frightened.

It is true that in the beautiful book entitled: The Agrarian Reform and Poverty, by Fernand Meurice we learned that the Rothschilds owned 200,000 hectares of land in France, but that doesn't scare Jeanvrot.

That only one family of German Jews owns 200,000 hectares of our French land, that's good: that 200,000 French people own 88,000 hectares, that is appalling. This reasoning naturally appealed to A Jew from Cologne who runs the Lantern, he also calls Jeanvrot, "a courageous magistrate".

This Jeanvrot seems to have a taste for reading and

I don't believe that, even before the Court of Angers, one could condemn me for having said that. Since he is interested in agrarian issues, I recommend to her a small brochure; it is entitled: ViZ/eneuve-Saint-Denis, or the Great Estate; it is the work of a village mayor, Mr. Levesque, whom I have already mentioned to Regarding hunting and its abuses.

The author makes no claim to be a writer and he will be surprised if I tell him here that for those who think, This brochure is more suggestive, more interesting a thousand times that the amplifications of pornographic rhetoric- The graph that Zola pretentiously calls: The Earth.

Writing this is, I know, going against the opinion of some academics who, evidently, are attracted towards Zola.

Mr. Levesque shows us what Zola didn't know
See: the real life of a village near Paris in 1890.

These pages seem like a commentary on what

32 ' THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC.

The Church Fathers wrote about the execrable power Money. In this village, everything dies under the breath of this property without obligations that the Revolution created. Much to Jeanvrot's chagrin, this is indeed the true Main- 'Dead, the hand that kills.'

The Jewish millionaires are pressuring the small French peasant- It's like being in a vise. We besiege it, we invest it, we put up wire mesh around himself; imprisoned in this railway network, he no longer even has the right to move. at his home; his domestic animals are killed in front of his door: ticks, his dog or his cat, and he is not allowed to complain. If the unfortunate man ventures to the edge from a Jewish wood to pee in, in the name of principles From 89, it costs him twenty francs.

- Twenty francs?

- Exactly... it's the feudal system. The Jew has the right of high and low justice, and the guardian of the Jew puts the villain to ransom. If the peasant resists, they will go to the judge who is complacent and a parasite of the lord of the manor, and the recalcitrant one will have to pay a hundred francs; he likes better to pay twenty francs right away (1).

Everything dies, once again, around these petty squires. Semitic; they have completely distorted the property which, in Christian law, was tempered by the Coutume, through tolerances and customary rights, burdened of a kind of mortgage of Poverty on the Richesse.

In the hamlet of La Denicherie, thanks to the faculty What did the women of the country have to do with going to cut grass? In the woods, there were thirty cows whose milk nourished laughed at the children and helped the poor people to to live; there was still one in 1889, at the time of the Centenary; there were none left in 1890...

a) "Yes," writes Mr. Levesque, "you have to be from the country to believe it." And here I'm only talking about Villeneuve-Saint-Denis: putting a foot on the edge of the woods to pick a mushroom, to gather a a pinch of lily of the valley or satisfying a natural need; passing over a

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 33

The last cow! What a lovely subject for a fantasy. social!

You can almost hear the dialogue between the cow and the Jew.

The poor French cow wants to eat a little of grass and the Jew, who came to France in rags and pro- now the owner, thanks to his thefts, of castles historical sites, princely hunts, and immense parks, said to the cow: "I have guards on my livery, you don't have "They don't have the right to graze in my pasture."

The peasant's wife is stubborn and goes to cut some of the A little greenery was secretly planted. Then the judge intervened.

You know this judge from the Paris area; He is both the official jester and the hired executioner of castle.

When Michu, the independent farmer, the bad village head, demonstrates the intention to enforce His rights are being addressed by sending a dinner invitation to the judge. In his seat, the judge thinks about the good dinner he will have in the beautiful, stately dining room; he is implacable for the slightest offense committed against the sacrosanct property of the Jew. At dinner, he boasts of his ferocity to the old baroness, painted up to her navel, gloved up-a patch of uncultivated land, in the middle of winter, without causing the slightest cr and with no other intention than to shorten his journey, it is ex- to pose to lawsuits and all sorts of indignities, and these lawsuits are sometimes so ridiculous that the person who made them doesn't dare grasp the tri- competent authorities; then, to be sure of being right, he renders the justice itself in the same summary way as follows: it sends to tell the alleged offenders: "If you do not pay immediately, in the hands of my guard (or so-and-so) 20, 40 or 50 francs, "The trial is about to begin," and the unfortunate, frightened people don't do it. Don't say it twice: if they don't have money, they borrow it. tent; what an abomination! This way of setting oneself up as judge without official mandate and to have money delivered by this means Isn't being unlawful a crime defined and punishable by law?

"If one of our dogs escapes and frightens a partridge, quickly A 10-franc fine, or 20-franc fine, if he isn't killed. As for . to these gentlemen's dogs, they have the right, of course, to go-

- to frolic at their leisure, to bite us occasionally and to strangle our cats... >>

34 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

that at the elbow: "Your Michu! I salted him, that one... He That'll take a month. Ah! The fellow! We'll relegate him "If necessary."

And the judge laughed loudly... The baroness, more dis- tinguée, only laughs through her teeth; she looks lovingly, an even younger gentleman distinguished as she was. The young man, however, did not laugh at her. Everything. He came to dangle the big carrot in front of the baron. But he notices that the baroness is giving him the eye. And he told himself that he had to go through with it. He consoled himself by thinking that a little later, when he's had enough of The mother, he will have the option of marrying the daughter.

The triumphant one in all this is the Pheasant. The beast he- The raldic and stupid sacred animal had passed away. Cybele had his priests, the Orgiacs, who constantly beat the drum around its sanctuaries; the pheasant has its servants who whistle all day, play the crethose, they shake noisy instruments for the empe-It's expensive to move. You don't find them in prisons.

departments surrounding Paris than people who They're here for pheasant stories...

It's not enough to read, you have to see. If Jeanvrot wants come and chat with me during one of his trips to Paris.
I will take him to the Vaux de Cernay.

That's where Baroness Nathaniel de Rothschild is housed in the abbey founded by Simon de Montfort, Constable of France, and which was inhabited by Blanche of Castile.

Naturally, the Jews acted there as they did everywhere else and brought death and ruin with them. There were some there mills that had been turning happily for five or six hundred years; the Rothschilds wanted to buy them, the The millers refused. What did the Rothschilds do? They installed other mills that operated at half price and the ruined millers had to leave.

On a splendid autumn day like that
Where I am writing, Jeanvrot would have an interesting spectacle there.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 35

In a vast property, a mass of fat almost inert, a mountain of edematous flesh is sprawled in a kind of palanquin; behind the
In a palanquin, a chamber pot is paraded. The man does not
He could hardly restrain himself; he feared that if he squatted down, he would collapses and he chases after it with his chamber pot.
Him! For this man hunts, he presses with a trembling finger-he pulls the trigger of a rifle and shoots down in the crowd little creatures, creatures of God. This disabled man has a a thrill of joy when he removed one of those little winged lives.

What a striking picture for this powerful and strange man.
Villette's visionary! The dramatic landscape of Vaux de Cernay, plays of light around the trees, with those amusing arabesques of light which, in the thickets, in autumn, they give singular tones to tie to the lilac heathers and the ferns already turning yellow!... and Arthur de Rothschild half-dead in his hoist-quin with his chamber pot behind him...

In the distance, at the end of those park avenues which, at this time of year, still green at the entrance, take on orangey hues in the backgrounds, we could add a group of radicals, of those false friends of the People who always attack the Sisters of Charity and do not speak Never any Rothschilds: Brisson, Clemenceau, Pelletan Lockroy, Maret. Insensitive to the beauty of the site, they they only have eyes for this man who could... to give a little gold; they are very keen to offer themselves for to wipe; only, we don't want them: we find that they don't have clean enough hands.

It doesn't matter, the Jews didn't take long to revert to stop their venom against the Church. It is not Their fault: that's just how they are.

I can still see poor Henry de Pène sitting in an armchair at the foot of my bed, at the moment when I was wounded and saying these profound words to me: "Arthur Meyer, we're being unfair to him... I assure you he has

36 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It's good, but he needs to receive a [payment] every month. a kick in the pants; when he's lacking that, He's becoming unbearable.

When he's afraid, the Jew is truly charming. We we saw this around May 1st, at a time when... We were visited by ultra-millionaire bankers; they They were perfectly well-mannered; they asked for the time. to which they could come, they told us about anecdotes, and they were often very interesting to listen. I was thinking to myself: "Society is definitely-" "It's starting to reorganize, everyone is finding their place."

Unfortunately, it doesn't last. As soon as they believe the masters, the Jews return to their ghaprimary ism.

At every moment in Parisian life, we witness scenes that justify what I'm saying.

Who doesn't remember the lovely story that happened this year? at the Auteuil races? One of our friends who is an anti-A determined Semite, offered his arm to the Countess of X

who was for a long time and still is one of the queens of the True elegance.

A baroness of high barony, who is called in the world "The Impertinent Woodcock", passes in front of the countess without greeting her. The countess calls out to the insou- slow and said to him, "What is this nonsense?"
12? You are being given far too much credit by re- cevant and you only respond to these good practices that by using vulgar language. I forbid you to reproduce- to feel at home, »

The baroness is in despair; she sends a friend accommodating to the countess to negotiate the return in grace. :

"So be it!" replied the countess, "but be sure to tell that one who sends you that I demand that in the future not only She greets me first, but let her greet my friends too. my cook and even my dog.

The baroness accepted these conditions and carried them out. with infinite grace: she met the cook-

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 37

He denied it in the courtyard and complimented him on his sauces. - which made this man happy; she caressed civil- The dog seemed flattered by this attention.

The baroness in question, moreover, has a specialty in to receive similar lessons. It was she who attracted this clever repartee which has the tone of the eighteenth century. One day she arrives at a friend's house in the Faubourg and him. said: "My dear, I'm sorry, I'm not happy."
I just kicked my concierge out.
Wouldn't you happen to know an old gentleman to whom this Would that job be suitable?

"Don't do that, Baroness," replied the lady. which she was addressing, everyone would stop at the lodge and nobody would come to your place anymore.

Stupid impertinence is the specialty of this bran_che-là. The daughter inherited that from her mother.

A young man from Parisian high society, the Count X, was heartbroken following the departure of a great Spanish lady to whom he was attached a deep affection. He comes to visit the daughter of the "Impertinent woodcock."

– Well, my dear Count, you must be well sad. Mrs. Z' has left Paris. You have, moreover—theirs, fellow sufferers... It seems that you You weren't the only one...

– My God, madam, so many things are said... said that madam, your mother has been the maternity ward for twenty years. Baron Y's braid. Is that true?

With the Jew, it always seems that we are witnessing the a lovely scene which opens one of the best Barrière plays: The Parisians.

Desgenais arrives and finds in the antechamber a Grand footman, hat on his head. Desgenais raises politely, his hat said to the servant: "My friend, Would you be so kind as to tell me if your master is Visible?

The valet sizes up Desgenais and, without revealing himself, in 8

38 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Suppressing a yawn, he replies over his shoulder: "I don't know."

With a blow of his riding crop, Desgenais makes the chaiskin of the insolent one.

Then the valet bows down to the ground:

– Whom shall I have the honor of announcing?

The Jew is the Oriental: he only knows the blow of truncheon; as soon as you speak to him politely, he will... He believes you are weak; as soon as he believes you are weak, he seeks to... to trample.

Before May 1st, Blowitz didn't say a word against us. Fifteen days later, when we appeared defeated, he recounted in the Times that the Antisemites had wanted to assassinate Mr. Cornelius Herz by a man none of us had ever seen and who, incidentally, never murdered anyone.

I know what the Times is worth: it's a mercenary paper. par excellence; Time is money, as the saying goes. I However, they wanted to get to the bottom of this romantic situation. I had an invention; I went to Mr. Amiel's house but couldn't find him. but who, a few days later, protested vigorously, in the Lightning, against Blowitz's lies. One Months later, I learned that he had died suddenly. That's And so the story ended.

Why would the Jews hold back?

One of my colleagues, to whom I was speaking about Blowitz, he told me a small story that shows the baseness of the government is facing these people.

Our friend was attending, along with the other representatives of The press was there at the opening of the Exhibition. They were all there. In suits, white ties. Only a few. had kept their overcoats on.

An assistant to the ceremonies arrives, Mr. Protocole, in short, responsible for organizing the procession; he He addressed the journalists in a gruff tone and said:

– You can't keep your overcoats on.... It's contrary to etiquette.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 39

– Come on, you're joking. We're in uniform Black, it's very chilly. We have every right to keep our overcoats.

– Take off your overcoats, I tell you.

– Excuse me, Mr. Protocol, what is this fat poussah, wearing the officer's cross of the Legion of Honourneur, who appears in the presidential motorcade with a light blue dressing gown and wide-legged trousers Tiles?... That one, you don't give him any attention– ventions.

– Oh! That one... that one... replied Protocol with Respect, that's different! That's Mr. de Blowitz... There you have it. Enough. If you don't take off your overcoats, I'll make you expel.

You can see from here the lackey, flat in front of the Jew foreign, rude in front of French writers.

I asked my con- for the name of this character brother; he didn't know. It must be one of those German Jews mandates, including those of which Spüller from Baden populated the ministry of Foreign Affairs so that they can exercise more easily their job as spies.

I believe I have clearly indicated this to the discerning reader the causes that temporarily prevented the Antisemitism of actually taking the place it occupies in ideas.

It would be unfair to blame me for not having seen clear. It has been encountered in all eras of the decadence of policies that failed in their generous designs because the environment was so corrupt that salvation was no longer possible. There are people who Some people arrive too early, and others too late.

He was probably at the Battle of Rosbach a sergeant who had Hoche's genius and who saw dis- it was a tinkling sound, how could we have won the battle? he retreated with his comrades and he went dying in a corner of France without anyone had ever heard of him. Tolstoy, in some

40 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

...lines of a very subtle psychology, we have very well showed that Bismarck was nothing exceptional. The unity of Germany had been a long-held dream. before him by people who died very unknown; the. Bismarck's only merit was arriving in circumstances particularly favorable conditions.

In another era, I might have found ardent competition and save France by ridding it of the exploitation of the Jewish quarter. I didn't encounter any support among representatives of the ruling classes.

At its inception, the Anti-Semitic League sucked, as As Shakespeare said, "the bitter milk of Poverty"; it is married to Poverty. It seems that she has, as I-mant, a sui generis property; the magnet attracts iron, We are moving the gold away.

The case is quite extraordinary; it seems a special vocation, because finally there is money to be made provision of companies least suited for ins-Worn the sacrifice. Strangely organized beings donate considerable sums to the campaign anti-slavery, and I'll be granted that the dark-skinned people from Congo are much less interesting than the white negroes whose trade is the Jew's. Some demented They have a passion for the leather-bound bureaucrat: they bequeath their fortune to the Public Assistance system, which leaves entire families behind to suffocate for lack of the most basic help. The authors of these singular wills die happy in pen-sant that Mr. Peyron's staff will conduct an exis-comfortable tenancy, thanks to the bequests that will have been made to the poor.

We have never found a brave man who loved his country enough to support our efforts. This is not It's not us who would be embarrassed by being asked: "Where "Where does the money come from?" It doesn't.

Do you know, after the immense movement produced by our publications worldwide, what we What have we received for anti-Semitic propaganda?

I once received 5,000 francs from the Marquis de Morès, and we blessed him. Unfortunately, at the time of During the election campaign, Morès took back those 5,000 francs from me; Let's not even talk about it. Those 5,000 francs were intended to make noise; therefore, it is not surprising that This money, which came by trumpet, has gone by the drum; that's probably why Mores, in When handing it to me, he said: "This will be a fund of rolling.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 4.

A gentleman from Normandy who, according to his letters, must be a very remarkable mind, but that

I don't know any other way, he sent me one day
1,000 francs.

Finally, I received 1,200 francs in several installments from one of My very wealthy friends are very concerned about the issue.
social, but not anti-Semitic, and 300 francs from a of my colleagues. Republican and absolutely bre- :
thinker.

The costs of anti-Semitic propaganda have never considerable progress has been made, thanks to the individual dedication of committee members. They were all covered by the small membership fees for the League of, 3 francs, a few; but in small numbers near 20 to 50 francs.

The publication of these figures will delight Hadnon the Cahen of the Israeli Archives, which will see there a proof of our powerlessness; it will also please me, because it seems to me an excellent social document: we
So we are both happy.

Cahen, for example, would be wrong to draw a conclusion from this fact -Proof that Jews are loved: they are universal-

They are hated everywhere; only the softened French Today's people don't have the energy to do what it would take to free oneself from it.

What more complete testimony of this could there be than what is It's happening in circles! The first movement of people even those who dined at the homes of Jewish barons or who were To be included in their celebrations is to vote against them.

4? THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Edouard de Rothschild, Alphonse's son, knows about it something: after being enthusiastically rejected Having lost his grip on the Jockey Club and the Union, he turned to the Circle on Rue Royale; he received the same welcome there. II
He tried the Amazing; he was shamefully turned away.
"Good reputation," said one of the members on this occasion.
the most witty members of the Circle, better than a spyglass golden.

Édouard de Rothschild did not give up. The Father had wept over this failure right there in the Circle, but he had not uttered a loud protest; he was told thanks to this humility, and, last January, the The offspring of the Rothschilds was admitted to rue Royale.

The unfortunate Hirsch was left alone at the door.

At the risk of agreeing with my witty colleague, Paul Foucher, who claimed in Gi! Blas that the Baron Hirsch had bought Bob from me for 600,000 francs for the to bring into his racing stable, I must say that This one is starting to inspire a certain admiration in me. This stubbornness in the struggle is not soulful. commune. We tried everything to let this Jew in. in the world. The Prince of Sagan, who had opened the campaign, succumbed to grief; General de Biré has It was abandoned as insufficient. This is the rescue of Barbarossa in the Cydnus:

In vain the strongest rushed forward,
Sixty-two marquises and two counts died there.
It was in vain...

The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Chartres were there then they put themselves in charge; they enlisted the Duke of the Trémoille and, last October, we all seen embarking on the Orient Express to go hunting to be on the baron's land. During the journey, the baron was happy and chirping...

As a practical man, the Prince of Wales had his plan; he intended to slip the baron into a package, and he wrote to Count Festetics that he was going to come and see him with a few friends. The baron was beaming. The next day A letter arrived, in which Count Festetics said that he was certainly very touched, but that he loved better to renounce the honor that the Prince of Wales, what a pleasure to receive the Baron!

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 43

The heir to the English throne and the Duke of Chartres got back into the carriage, telling themselves that their The package was proving decidedly difficult to place. The baron did not it chirped more.

The Truth of London, which devoted itself to misfortunes from the baron part of his Christmas issue, and who has even celebrated in a lament, fixed this scene painful. The people in the suite went to knock on the gate of Festetics Castle; the Prince of Wales and Hirsch are waiting outside. The Prince of Wales has looking vexed and grumpy; as for the Jewish baron, wearing a Tyrolean hat and armed from head to toe for hunting, He listens intently with an expression of anguish that would soften a tiger.

What has this man done to deserve being treated like this? That? He is neither more nor less scrupulous than the Rothschild, the Ephrussi, the Camondo, the Stern, who constitute-kill the ornament of the Circle of the rue Royale; he gave. to the great lords all the money they wanted; he He took Lord Beresford as his master of the stables; he is Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour, thanks to the Duke Decazes.

He's just unlucky, that's all; he's dishonest-unknown head. One of his guards, obeying orders ferocious of the Jewish owners, shoots a French officer Frenchman who was passing with his dog in the woods of Versailles which became the baron's domain; he The officer is missing and kills the dog... This happens every day. days, and Republican newspapers believe that this is Very well. It turns out that the officer, Mr. de F, is a members of the Circle, that he has blood under his fingernails and that he declares that if the baron is received, he will slap him the day he sets foot in the living room.

44 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The baron remained obstinate. The Circle did not want him; he buys the house for 2,700,000 francs where the Circle was and he announces that he will in turn Those who ousted him were shown the door. It was a mistake in-core, the baron understood this and, reasoned with by his friends, he He humbled himself and renewed the lease under the same conditions. tions than before and said to these cruel men: "Be "Happy, but let me hope that one day..."

Make no mistake: this is the prettiest documentary any information you might have about the Jew.

Consider, in fact, that he who, in the presence of all

Paris, which laughs, thus assumes this posture of a poor dog sitting on his backside and showing off wildly facing barbarians who send him to sleep, is already a old man, that he has six hundred million, that he is in life ordinary, most brutal, most vulgar of 'men,' infinitely more arrogant than the Rothschilds.

You will have the key to the Jewish character. The Jew could not to arrive at this feeling of honor, this respect for oneself, to that native pride, which is unique to 'superior races and which were common among the plebeians' of yesteryear. Centuries have passed over him without the og proud; he remained a man of the old Eastern civilizations, tales, rolled in the dust the day before and the next-hand placing its heel on the heads of others.

As I have demonstrated to you, these great swindlers Financial queries aren't even concepts. original; these are very childish machinations.

Theirs, the deceptions of highly corrupt savages. When his desire takes hold of him, this supposedly civilized man is not re-held by nothing; for the Boursé coup to be made or for He is not deterred by thought, despite the baseness he is about to commit. of the judgment that the next person will pass on him... Believe although, if that were to secure his admission, the baron Hirsch would kneel at the bottom of the stairs of the Circle of the rue Royale, even if it means showing off, for an hour afterwards, more insolent than ever.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 45

These stirrings of revolt did not last, moreover, in the aristocracy. The next day, the Jew resumes possession a session of weak beings who, after all, need him. Even though they are independent by virtue of their situation, representatives of Parisian high society they lazily place in the hands of the Jew; they do not they can't take a step without having a Jew for the to guide them, to show them the way.

As for us, we did our duty:

We showed the Conservatives where the Way was, Truth and Life. We told them, "Support- You, your race, regain your strength like Antaeus by embracing the homeland; with such a foundation you You are invincible... At first, we won't understand.

not very good, because the breed instinct is momentarily overwhelmed and drowned in the ideas of Jewish cosmopolitanism, but this permanent feeling deep within souls, like the granite at the bottom of the sea. Scams, exactions, the stock market coups of the German Jews work for you; for every wrong committed, point the finger the culprit, the financier, the Jew, and we will end up looking at-point in the direction of your finger. Everyone who Those who suffer under the Jewish system will rally around you.
who represent the idea of Fatherland, and an explosion is pro-Dura, who will cast out the corrupters and invaders outside the border.

We know how the Conservatives listened to us.
The most well-disposed among them, while loving us, they declared us compromising and, in order not to compromise with people you've never been able to these circum- men, who are accused of wrongdoing, cannot be held accountable against th spects sided with Boulangism, they united publically to all the swindlers, to all the scoundrels, to All the thugs of Paris!...

"A flood of ink has been spilled on Boulangism," writes on him enough volumes to furnish a library, and, despite everything, attention is still paid as soon as we talk about it.

8.

46 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

For eight days, the people who had seen, from their balconies, the descent of the Courtille, the real one, the grand one descent, had in their ears the rumor of this a human river carrying, for hours and hours hours, all the intoxications, all the abjections, all the ignominies, all the prostitution, all the crapulerie of a capital like Paris; at the slightest tu-
In the street, they opened their windows and...
They said, "It's not over! There's more. They are "Latecomers are arriving."

That's France for you; it's in vain that time tries to... sinks; she hasn't forgotten that liquidation yet, she always kept in mind that unforgettable procession, in-plausible and fabulous, where tenderly entwined, strolling arm in arm, they walked pell-mixes duchesses and courtesans, dukes and stoups neurs, members of the major Circles and regulars from the stream, the old parliamentarians and the ruffians, the street vendors from all over, the outcasts of all gone, the crooks of every stripe, the doers of all the categories, the scoundrels of all countries, the Most unusual parliamentary candidates: Médéric Roux with his black man; Chevial, the former shack owner fo-Raines; Abadie, the brother of M°° de's valet Bonnemain. In the middle, like the notary who, in At the old carnival, one could see in a horse-drawn carriage, very Mackau, a good choice among the tank tops and the chic ones.

full of gravity, it represented Order and Religion.

It is also picturesque, one might say, as the Revo-Solution: it's a frenzy of mud instead of a frenzy blood. It's, as it was a hundred years ago, a world that is... go; only, instead of going away in the cart, si-Minister, "the rolling beer," he goes into a tomb-garbage bin.

We get used to mud as we get used to blood. In the prisons, the great lords and the great ladies of-were getting bored with their wigmaker; to pass the time,
We used to have fun placing two chairs one on top of the other.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 47

to represent the tipping point and to jokingly guillotine each other, while waiting to be guillotined for good. Today-Today, the most prudish are the first to laugh at good heart when they've been thoroughly splashed.

Who would have said, fifteen years ago, that we would ever see Albert de Mun involved in stories like these?

Fifteen years ago, de Mun was young, eloquent and handsome,
He is the very embodiment of honor, a knight of Faith, a spotless gentleman, taking up the defense of the people, in the name of this Christ who so loved the poor those who suffer.

Fifteen years later, here he is recommending to his elect-Lorient residents, leaning near Lambilly, an adventurer Top-floor killer!

On this point, there is not the slightest doubt. All Paris knows of the existence of this strange character, of this a count who was not a count, of this father who was not a father only half, of this poor man who called himself rich and who is not richer than ever since he declared himself poor. That didn't fail in the most qualified, the most upscale, the most high—they were trying to make this man their friend.

Who would have thought, just six years ago, that from Mun, a an officer, a gentleman would be on a committee with

. the former secretary of a girl, the man who held the accounts and carried messages from Blanche d'Antigny with a wretch who unfairly strikes an adversary Saire in a duel?

There's no room for doubt on this; there's no question about it, As we used to say a few years ago:

"We employ Meyer as an agent for low-level tasks that we wouldn't want to do ourselves."

There was a royalist action committee, the "committee of the duchess's purse," and, on this committee, were on the same footing, in absolute equality, the Marquis of Breteuil, the Count of Mun, the Count of Martimprey and. Arthur Meyer.

It was not I who stated that, and certainly I have—I would have known that I would have hesitated to tell the story. These are the royalists themselves, the informants of the Backstage Boulangism for everything concerning the party monarchists who revealed this detail to us.

48 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Under these conditions, I have every right, to From the perspective of social history, to express the rebending of all the Parisians who saw Meyer's debut, to translate the kind of saddened nausea that aroused such an assembly.

The Count of Martimprey would send me twenty-five tellers, my chest would be pierced right through. by a sword that would come out of my back, that I would I would say again, if I could speak: "When one is the son of a general respected by all, when one wore Wearing the uniform oneself requires a strong moral compass. atrophied to appear on a committee, next of a man who has dishonored the sword. There is one thing which a Frenchman shouldn't spit on, is the honor of the sword, and that feeling, you should have to experience it, not only for yourself, but for the children that you will have or that you may have.

Nothing could have been simpler, indeed, we must admit, for these gentlemen and officers, what to say: "We We'll conspire with bandits, if you like, but ja- "But with Jews, pimps, and cowards."

The only one in there who will be fair to me is Al Bert de Mun. Deep down, he'll find that I'm right. It is through this sincerity that this generous soul and Belle reveals herself to be quite different from the Pharisaical beings. that surround him. It is in this aspect that he will appear, increasingly veiled in melancholy, this face endearing and always noble even in her weaknesses. De Munsait better than anyone how much I admire him and I love him, and how much he deserves it in so many ways! this admiration and affection that he inspires in everyone; he will consider it perfectly natural that, wanting to make veridiscs, I always write under the impression of what I see and from what I feel.

In reality, de Mun remained what he had been fifteen years ago

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 49

years; he did not sell himself, he did not get involved in any operations financial ratio; it's the environment, the "milieu", say the English, who have changed and who accept him- to ter what he would once have rejected with indignation. He has not He didn't fall, he descended gradually with everyone, as the ground collapsed and the France was going down; he tumbled down with the house.

The Jews created a society for us in their own image. soul, and this society from which all notion of modesty or honor has disappeared, it should have been the society that we Let's see. You have to be with us or with them. The Con-Servants, led by Mun, do not want to be with we must react against what triumphs: they must be with the Jews, and consequently that they adapt to a regime they refuse to openly fight. From the moment you live with people, it is necessary to accept their ideas, their mentality, their way to judge matters of conscience, otherwise life social life would be hell.

Ultimately, it was the Jews who ended up screwing everything up. to lead in this Boulangist campaign, which is one of the Israel's most admirable operations. The Jews have assumed that the time was climacteric, that it would be fatal-how to produce a reaction movement, a protest national stance against Judeo-Germanic exploitation which has been devouring France for the past few years. If, instead of being a Mecklenburger, the Count of Paris had Having French blood in his veins, he would have started to head of the movement; he would have given it the meaning of a resurgence of awareness of the Gallic soul against the tyrant-Semitic denial. He didn't give it a second thought, and the Jews, They very skillfully seized upon this movement which at its core was directed against them; they made an im-cosmopolitan, shady and boulevard speculation dière. :

The end echoes the beginning: Israel emerges with a green neck of glory from this adventure. The Deutz of the affair, this trembling and that traitor Naquet, who first, in hiding from his colleagues on the National Committee, signed his Boulanger's passport, gave this incompetent general the a small piece of paper which, moreover, he urgently needed, is shown to us in an almost heroic light.

50 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

At the time when the question of arresting the members was raised of the Committee, this hunchback, as treacherous as he was cowardly, remained, It is said that he spent forty-eight hours hidden in a trunk. Mermeix did not tell us about this episode; in revanche, he presents us with a Naquet sporting a skull-Augereau's panache and violently demanding a coup d'état: a little more, Mermeix would claim that he was ready to do it all by himself. As for Arthur Meyer, that the same Mermeix used to drag through the mud, he He is portrayed as the perfect gallant man.

In short, the only people dishonored in all this are those from The Right. The royalist collaborators behind the scenes thought it appropriate to release the name of to advertising Mun, but they were careful not to pronounce the name of Baron Hirsch.

If I hadn't revealed my part in the conspiracy by that crooked Bavarian, whose business is none of ours in no way would the public have been unaware that he was In that context. Mermeix again judged regarding me to deny and to declare imperturbably that the Baron Hirsch had paid nothing. He didn't have a newspaper.
at my disposal, I would have remained under the weight of this denial, if a kind reporter from the 19th century has not-had the idea of going to Soisy. Never interviewed was better received and it was a joy for me to close the Mermeix was told unequivocally, in a categorical statement.
against which those who had informed him implicated him not to protest.

Naturally, the Conservatives who got their hands dirty
Those within Boulangism don't see all of this; they don't
They have no doubt about the role they were made to play, and deep down,
They think they had a lot of fun. This promise-
Having a drink with all sorts of weird people entertained them.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 51

That's the tone of today's salons: people laugh at everything. One that evening, we had invited a very grand lady famous rabbit tamer, who is the mistress of a young duke.

"Introduce me to my sister-in-law then," he said, laughing.
the little duke's sister.

- Isn't that right, my dear, that it's quite /in of century? a marquis said to a Russian friend of his, in telling him the anecdote.

"Excuse me, my dear," replied the Russian, "I am
As a foreigner, I cannot judge exactly; for myself, I
I think it's a bit like a French jinx.

You would try to demonstrate to the Duchess of Uzès that she was tricked by the Jews, that she doesn't listen to you-
It wouldn't even do that. And yet, it's one of the best.
But she is of her time; she likes advertising by-
Above all, she feels the need to get people talking about her.
In this respect, she is somewhat similar to Ms. Adam.
The Duchess of Uzès is M"*° Adam playing the horn of hunting.

In reality, she's not a grand lady in the slightest;

Indeed, she lacked what characterized the great ladies of yesteryear: sensitivity in all matters bravery.

"I didn't know it was such a blonde thing as the
"a man's reputation," said Madame de Sévigné in her beautiful language, about an officer ostracized from the society, because he was suspected of having been afraid.
The Duchess of Uzès does not have these delicate sensibilities.
Chevreuse or Longueville; she likes cowards.
She was walking arm in arm with the Jew Meyer when the Public contempt surrounded this man; she continued to subsidizing Boulanger while the girls of our
The suburbs that had believed in him, they too, were doing:
"Ugh!" when the name of the fugitive was pronounced at never dishonored.

Beneath the silver helmet that crowns him, the stopper of champagne reveals the expensive Clicquot brand

52 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

to the friends of joyous feasts. Under the ducal crown
He finds the bourgeois woman again, more human, more pitiable.
perhaps the patrician women of yesteryear, but of a a less lofty and less proud soul, having for the failingslances of the man of indulgences that would never have but had the aristocratic heroines of yesteryear.

What is extraordinary is the attraction that theatre life,
The stage has an impact on everyone. The Duchess is like the others, she composes dramas like Heart and Blood; she plays them herself; they shout:
"The author! The author!" And she comes back to greet the audience!

At the second performance, the duchess dressed in Cleopatra!

Nothing is missing; not even the asp.

And the one of Cleopatra at the Porte Saint-Martin, if you please "Please!" exclaimed Meyer. A friend of the house had gone, at the de-dressed, see Mrs. Sarah Bernhardt, and had asked her to lend one of the harmless snakes from his accessory shop-evenings.

The great artist graciously parted with one of her gentler reptiles, and that was no small attraction of the party that this little crawling boarder of Mr. Duquesnel. The duchess would occasionally wrap it around her arm, withdrew it in front of the gentle little cries of the frightened ones and, As a thoughtful hostess, she made him swallow milk without waiting his request. Yet another one who will remember Bonnelles with a heartfelt recognition (1)!

Is this mother of a rather delirious and grotesque figure? from a respectable family, this woman in her fifties who has just... marrying off his daughter, who will soon be a grandmother, and who show everyone in the guise of Cleopatra!

'Henry Monnier would have told us a scene from this kind of thing, which would have been accused of exaggeration and overreaction.

The setbacks have not weakened the confidence that the The duchess has placed Meyer in charge; he will lead her to the In the end, he will make her fail in a furnished hotel, he will () Gauloss, December 17, 1890.

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 53

will ruin her, her children and her loved ones, by placing him funds in any state banks; it will put the Duchy of Uzès up for grabs, he will melt the Louis XIII silver which is at Dampierre and to be carried to the Drouot hotel, Minerveivoire, silver and gold from Simart. The people of Uzès and the people of Luynes will always be happy.

These people, moreover, have no reason to be either happy or discontented. They belong to Meyer; he has the power over them. dual law: Asaka-Méropie law, Asaka law on the properties (from the bowels of the earth down- than to the depths of the heavens: read the book of Kahal) – Meropius's right over persons.

The most violent regions are Russia, Romania, and Galicia. Anti-Semites never try to resist the Jew to whom in the Heder-Kahal the right of Asaka was awarded on They know there's nothing to be done and that they don't even have Not permission to change Jews. Their harvests would dry out on the vine, would rot in the barns,

But nobody, within a radius of twenty leagues, would want to: buy them outside of the Jewish community authorized by the Kahal.

This is the doctrine: everything belongs to Israel. The Gentile Being from the seed of cattle, he is not a man, he cannot dispose of itself; all the properties of Goyms, as well as the Goyms themselves, are Hefkher (subject to free exploitation until ruin). For:

avoid competition and rivalries between brothers Jews and at the same time to replenish the coffers of the community, the Kahal puts these up for auction Ownerless properties and these men without rights.

All the Jewish tribes help their coreligionist to to assert the right of Asaka-Méropie; armchair Jews, Jewish circles, Jewish anterooms, Jewish theatre women Jews of the press, they all work together and They're getting the job done. I know a young lord at Paris, which owed a million before reaching its majority and out of that million he had received three hundred thousand francs!

In any case, the Uzès and Luynes families are

?

,

54 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

devoted to Meyer; they must do nothing without him and in In reality, they do nothing. When they want to escape, we They are taken back like runaway slaves.

This poor Duke of Luynes, whom the crowd had made such a warm welcome at the Neuilly meeting, dare not- would write a letter without submitting it to Meyer, and that is He and Meyer presented themselves at Constans's house. who, certainly, must have had a good laugh that day.

All of high society is there. Our friend Morès has was personally a victim of dishonest acts by the Meyer's part; he told me this story—even: he nonetheless carried kindness to the point of to declare in open court, to the astonishment of those seated tance, that Mevyer, the man who seized the sword of his opponent with the left hand to strike him more safely—

He was, in fact, "a perfect gentleman."

As he got off the train, Bocher, when he returned From England, he stops by Meyer's to report back to him.
of his trip.

— Have a consommé and a wing of poultry, Meyer was saying to an office boy at the Gau-laws, in front of one of our friends.

— Are you waiting?

— Oh! no... I'm waiting for Bobber who's arriving tonight from Sheen-House.

You can just picture the confrontation: old Philippotard, the fashionable gentleman of Louis-Philippe, making midnight with a woman's former secretary gallant.

There are fifty years of history in there. It's the defeat of the Grocer; the Grocer, the Philistine as one called the Bourgeois during the reign of Louis-Philippe, a Cabron was defeated, but he was defeated by the Jew, which Moreover, this had already happened to the Philistines of Palestine.

The prince with the azure eyes, the Duke of Orléans who had a minute awakened the sympathies around him by a youthful impulsive act, is now Judaized like the others. He used to speak about the Jews in

TESTAMENTARY WORDS 55

particularly crude terms. "I'm going to write to the "Jews" was his word when he went to the secret place. There are
For a few months he drove the Rothschilds around in his car and all of London laughed at him when he ran behind the scenes after old Sarah's skirts Bernhard.

It's a triumph for the clothing trade...

Did you hear that clothes-up thing! in certain neighborhoods at certain times, at the beginning of winter, for example, at the edge of night, when all the street noises have a particular resonance and seem to be accompanied by the plaintive the melody of the icy wind or the shivering of old men near the fireless hearth... This cry then takes on intonations in turmoil, he is first grieved like a a moan, chanted in a drawling voice: chand of clothes! Then clear, almost glorious, launched like A provocation: a clothes swap!

We stop to listen and follow the man who goes off into the distance; indifferent to everything like the The undertaker, except for the profit, walks on, his head a little low under a whitish, milky sky; he comments ironically the nothingness of life through the disparate assembly—the jumble of the miscellaneous effects he collected in his race and door, pell-mell, mourning veils and ball shoes, a summer dress with a bodice of which A dried flower sometimes remained attached, some uniforms on which a bit of braid still shines.

This is how Arthur Meyer, son of Chand, appears clothes, the clothes dealer himself... As the The wind blows and night falls around us more Thick, this silhouette seems to grow, to gain weight relief, reaching almost fantastic proportions. This walk through Paris feels like a stroll. by Henri Heine, illustrated by the realistic pencil drawings of Rafaelli.

With his blouse-like face and his round, glassy eyes,

56 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

his model-like immobility, this man becomes like a symbol; it disappears over the horizon, fully laden of spoils, bent under the weight of their clothes, he has a sash the Bonnelles horn, and on his head the grey hat de la Trémoille; with that left hand, which restored So many services, he drags himself along as best he can, tied down with a prostitute's garter, Martim-'s sword prey, Albert de Mun's cuirass, the pai- cloak the Duchess of Uzès's headdress; in the right hand he wears the crown of France.

As he walked away, he repeated, out of force of habit, his eternal coat of clothes! but he doesn't solicit the passersby, he no longer stops in front of houses; he & The satisfied air of a man whose day is done. Would he want more? He went down in history as

He used to enter the courtyards, raising his head to:

look at which floor he was called to and the Count of Paris He gestured for him to get in. One could write a book about it. titled: Arthur Meyer, and it would be a history book. As happy as his colleagues who, while unsewing old cloaks, sometimes discover for- He found millions in a butt-fucking party. Mathieux, where I saw fifteen louis refused to a journalist a 70-year-old royalist who was literally dying of hunger.

He hasn't said his last word yet, by the way: he's counting on it. He has a few more cloaks to unpick. He has a He has a good clientele and he thinks there's still potential for takeaway. something illustrious dwelling something that will have been big. He's not mistaken, and if the Prince with the eyes Azure manages to defeat Rothschild and takes over From Boulanger, Meyer is sure to be part of the celebration. It's so in a cheerful and hopeful tone that the Youtre

'triumphant lance in the night which begins to give:'

The latest fashion show is all vague shapes!... Dress shop... Dress with braid!

BOOK TWO

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION

People often complain these days of what we call the condition of dese organized society: so many forces regularized by the Company poorly done their work; so many forces then- health issues that we see working in a ma- devastating, chaotic, utterly Undocumented. That's a very valid complaint. as we all know. But maybe-

to be, if we consider this question Books and Writers, we will find—we here so to speak the summary of any other disorganization; a kind of heart, from where and towards where any other confusion circulates around the world.

CARLYLE.

ORGANIZATIONAL CONSIDERATIONS AND THE FUNCTIONING OF CONTEMPORARY JOURNALISM

Obstacles to the development of antisemitism posed by the gold Current organization of the Press. — What the Masters of Thought thinks of the venality of the Press. — Pasteur,

58 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Jules Simon, and Mézières at the Crédit Foncier. — Mr. Le Trésor de La Rocque. — The Crédit Foncier advertisement. — The Association
Republican journalists and blackmail. — The fake
The currency of words. — Difference between Advertising and Chan-tage. — A social pantomime. — Raid and counter-raid, —
The deputies who are affected. — A speech by Mr. de Lamarzelle.
— Literary articles. — Journalism of yesterday and today.
Today. — Old and young. — A few portraits of journalists:
Mr. Francis Magnard, Paul de Cassagnac, Sarcey, Henri Ro-cheffort. — The end of Thrases. — Paul Strauss or the secularization-a teacher for others. — Séverine and Violette. — Socialism of the Boulevard. — The image that Charity would take if it were to-ash fell upon the earth. — Gyp's laughter.

One of the causes that most contributed to leading to
To see the Anti-Semites in their work of salvation is the resistance they found in a press which, except With very rare exceptions, it lives off subsidies from Israel.

This question from the press always comes up under our pen, and, in fact, it is the vital question.
The French no longer think, no longer have the time to
They no longer know how to think; they only think through Their newspaper, they have a paper brain. If the
The men who supply this paper are sold, who do not
Can you imagine the intellectual and moral chaos that will ensue?

Once you have a good understanding of the organization of the Press, that is to say the functioning of the General Thought-General in France, you will know everything about your time that it is necessary to know. What remedy do you want? Would you give it to a sick person who is mentally ill?

To see this clearly, you need to do the opposite of what is done, do not stop at first at petty gossip, rumors, and negotiations... The gossipmongers' quizzes. How important is it? that this filthy reporter of yesterday has become a millionaire in a few years because he ran from newspaper to newspaper distribute the sports sheet of a financial establishment crier? Everyone knows their story. Very young and suffering-Frant, suffering from the disease of impecuniousness, he was walking melancholically on the terrace of Saint-Germain, when he heard someone speaking badly terms from a relative of Mr. Christophe; he provoked this no man. Christophe learned of this and, as a reward-Ser, the one who had defended his family, he entrusted the advertising for Crédit Foncier; our man earned two million from this profession, a castle with the surroundings Parisian rons, a villa in Trouville and all sorts of good again.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 59

There are things like that in Parisian life. The man in charge of reports for some time now princes of Israel with the press, at the time when, after the European impact of the Neuilly meeting, This service was reorganized; it was at the Discount Bank at the time of the disaster. The collapse, as we know, was determined by the order sent by the government Russian to pay twenty million from the last loan. Some time later a telegram arrived who gave the opposite order; the shrewd employee judged the events as they were, kept the dispatch, did not He did not warn Denfert-Rochereau and let him kill himself. The princes of Israel rewarded this intelligent man-linking him by creating a magnificent situation for him.

Among the colleagues who bought houses town and country houses with sheds which were made to them on the money paid to the newspapers by financial companies to deceive the gullible and taking their savings, we plan to excel-slow comrades with whom we enjoy to chat and have dinner. Attacking them would be falling into a A completely provincial Juvenalism that covers us-ridiculous.

What is important to look for is the attitude that
The Masters of Thought, the intellectual powers vis-Regarding these despicable dealings... What does a bigwig think?
scholar, a famous philosopher, an eminent critic of This venality of the press?

The Crédit Foncier affair, which caused such a stir a while ago...

60 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

A few months is a good opportunity for us to to inquire on this point.

Mr. Christophe, governor of Crédit Foncier, is a of those who have contributed most to debasing the Press, a of those who have most openly, most cynically-has been lavished with money to buy consciences.
There is nothing to add to what has already been observed on this matter.
in Mr. Machard's report and at the podium of the Bedroom. :

Who do you find among Mr. Chris's collaborators?
Tome, among the directors of Crédit Foncier, among those who, consequently, had to be informed Mr. Christophe's methods and approve them then-that they remained in their positions?

You find men like Mr. Pasteur,
Mr. Jules Simon, Mr. Mézières.

There you have it, once again, the key point.

Consider, indeed, what Mr. Pasteur is. Admi-
His discoveries secured him first place in science. He did not seek to exploit these discoveries.
Green, that's possible, but in the end he was rewarded for it;
He was granted a pension of 12,000 francs; he was also paid underwritten for the Pasteur Institute; he has a personal fortune-nelle, a retirement home; her daughter married one of our colleagues, Mr. Vallery-Radot, who is a charming young man, very...
at ease,

Frankly, is Mr. Pasteur's place in these houses, so ambiguous, so obscure, so dubious that we are forced to put a golden gag on the Press to stop him from speaking? What specialized knowledge—Mr. Pasteur may have some influence on the reports to which Crédit Foncier is now surrendering, while its only purpose would be to be useful to industry and agriculture. culture by lending money on properties?

The same can be said of Mr. Jules Simon and of Mr. Mézières. What are the relationships between books and Duty? and studies on Shakespeare and Goethe have with Stock market manipulation?

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 61

So here are academics, men who represent—They feel Thought in what it should have most disinterested and of a higher order who approve that we systematically breaks this Press by which Only a word of truth could reach this crowd who no longer has time to read books.

This is not about that advertisement which, as well as as we have always pointed out, is perfectly legitimate and which consists of announcing a broadcast, to inform the public that ticket counters will be open at such times hour, at such and such a place. The aim is to prevent the newspapers to say what they know and to suppress all criticism.

There is no ambiguity about this. Two years ago, in a series of highly regarded articles, Mr. Charles Laurent undertook a vigorous campaign in Paris against The Crédit Foncier. What did Mr. Christophe do? He bought simply and simply the newspaper and mitàla tête de Paris Mr. Canivet, who, along with Mr. Batiau, is one of the distributors from the Crédit Foncier advertisement. At the time of the campaign The Evil One's loincloth against the Crédit Foncier, we could see the Paris celebrates in every way an establishment that Some time before he had attacked with the most violent way. Proudhon, Bastiat or Karl Marx would have If we had been in Mr. Charles Laurent's place, we would have acted Exactly the same with them.

These are acts to which they lend themselves, to which they associate themselves actually acted as administrators of Crédit Foncier men who have already reached old age and who have no vices to justify their conduct. That does not prevent them, in the sessions of the Institute, from to make their turluts, to speak of the honor of writers, the dignity of letters, and so on and so forth...

It suffices, moreover, to read Mr. Machard's report(1)

(1) Official Journal, June 29, 1:90.

Mr. Christophe's response to Mr. Machard's report is interesting, by the way.

At the time of Numa Gilly's trial in Nîmes, Mr. Alphonse de Rothschild had stated that the railway companies and Mr. Christophe's attempt at refutation to overcome the ignominious nature of this advertisement which has risen to twenty-two million in just a few years and which is constantly increasing.

4

62 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Subsidies to the press, says Mr. Machard, exceed 41,600,000 francs on average per year. They always go to increasing and reached 2 million during each of the three last years; it would still be appropriate to add to that some special subsidies allocated for all emissions including Crédit Foncier took charge of the (Exhibition Bonds. Bonds to lots, etc.). We do not have to examine this advertising access—evening whose expenses were not paid by means of the the institution's own resources.

Undoubtedly, Crédit Foncier, a private institution although under state supervision, is free to determine himself—even to what extent it is appropriate for him to resort to the publicity, provided that these expenses are regularly authorized that they be carried out, executed, and charged to the accounts who have to put up with them.

Instead of being made at the counter, these payments are made with all sorts of mysteries like payments of secret agents. Mr. Christophe himself admits it.

had not distributed any money to the Press at the time of the conventions, when it would have been enough to open the account book of a journal to have proof to the contrary, while, in the halls editorial directors spoke openly about this as of a very ordinary affair. Mr. Christophe's rejection demonstrates, which everyone knows, by the way, that the Companies distribute subsidies to newspapers to prevent them from taking on hands 'public interest and to draw attention to abuses of all kinds of actions committed by the administration of paths of iron.

"I don't want to end on this particular point," said Mr. Christophe, without making one last remark. It's that the major companies... railway companies themselves, although they are insured of a guarantee of interest, recognize the usefulness of continuous support and the effectiveness of the press, and they continue to use it. The distribution allowances, in the various forms they take, is or-dinner prepared in each Company by the secretary general, who enjoys very extensive power.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 63

It is true that we could have, as is done in many Companies, pay for this advertising at the regular counter of payments. The payment would have been recorded in the ledger. expenses, and the receipt would have been filed away, mixed in with all the others day's expenses. It seemed to me that it was preferable, for all sorts of reasons of discretion and good order, to have the advertising payments made to office of the secretary-general, by an agent under his orders and having his confidence. The Secretary-General receives, for this purpose, the principal cashier issues a receipt for the funds for which he gives and his receipt is immediately forwarded to accounting general. The agent placed under the orders of the secretary general pays the newspapers the monthly sums allocated to them according to the instructions of the Secretary-General and according to the lists agreed upon between the latter and our advertising agents.

What does discretion have to do with a
A question of advertising? The very nature of anything that touches Isn't the point of advertising to be public? What a shame!
Could the editor of an honest newspaper experience so that people know that an announcement was made at his home so many lines which, after justification, were paid to him That price? Don't the shareholders have the right to know?
How are their money used?

The precautions taken should have demonstrated to administrators that what was happening in the establishment The Rue des Capucines is a place of dark and shady things. which we regret to see mixed with names like. those of Pasteur, Jules Simon and even Mézières.

The same applies to all administrators. That's it. for example, Mr. Le Trésor de la Rocque.

Mr. Le Trésor de la Rocque, whose name seemed destined to deal with financial matters, has published a very remarkable book: The Finances of the Republic.

It is impossible to peel more thoroughly a budget. The author is ruthless about the slightest virelment, for the slightest error in the allocation of a Credit. Reading it, one says: "It's Sully himself."

Administrator of the Crédit Foncier, Mr. Le Trésor de la

64 'THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC'

Rocque does not protest when the de-think of advertising on the account of premiums to be amortized. It is clear, however, that the shareholder is being deceived. when, instead of amortizing premiums, one uses one's ar-gent to pay for the literature of Mr. Canivet and Mr. Ranc.

Mr. Le Trésor de la Rocque undoubtedly had knowledge as administrator of singular uses liers to which the funds of the Crédit foncier were employed. If he had been the meticulous accountant he pretended to be When it came to dissecting the budget, he reportedly demanded the full publication of the advertising budget. Advertising... publication. public. That's it, yet another one: times, has the same etymology; everything that is advertising must be published and submitted to public consideration.(1).

You saw what all those .bad- thought of them
. own operations of the men who occupy the sum-intellectual dishes; let's now ask for his opinion to Journalism taken as a whole, to Journalism. constituted body.

I quoted for you in Jewish France the excerpt from Official Journal report showing at work the Jewish blackmailer Eugène Meyer; I reproduce

() Mr. Le Trésor de la Rocque, moreover, had his part in the discreet rebuke that FipReseDle Rouvier inflicted on the administrators authors.

"Without claiming to determine the amount of advertising costs" that the Society believes is useful to its interests, I consider the expenses of this nature, made in recent years, are notably exaggerated and will have to be reduced significantly. I He also believes, along with the finance inspectorate, that these expenses constitute overhead costs to be charged to the profit account and losses, whenever they do not apply to emissions ongoing. Under no circumstances could they burden the loans. closed.

"I am convinced, Mr. Governor, that the council of ad- The administration will take, in agreement with you, all necessary measures necessary for Crédit Foncier to comply with these principles.

Rouvier is right. Be honest and, after starting without One penny like Christophe, you'll have sixty million like him.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 65

this passage so that there is no hesitation in the es- taken from the reader.

Meyer had started by trying to intimidate by articles in Financial Reform, but these ar- The articles had not produced the expected result.

"What do we do?" said Mr. Albert Christophe. "We gather these articles." in one volume; this volume is put on sale in the shop windows of booksellers. A fairly legitimate, quite natural emotion, arose- part of those who were in charge of this establishment.

So this happens; the edition is bought, the price is fixed; a sum of thirty thousand francs is paid to the author from the book.

The sale, completed by payment, was carried out in At the same time, by the complete delivery of copies. The entire edition The whole thing was delivered, then it was destroyed by those to whom It had been sold, and presumably nothing remains. of this book there is no other copy than the one I possess.

A member on the right. – He has value.

Mr. Hamille. – We should put it in a lottery!

Mr. Albert Christophe. – Now, gentlemen, what were the Who were the authors of this publication? Who were the manufacturers of this booklet, those who put it on sale, those who made– Are you aware of the shameful trafficking I am denouncing to you? Gentlemen, this these are the very same ones that we find in the current debate;
These are the very same people who received the money and who sti–
These are the same people who then used this money to revitalize and make the newspaper prosper
The Lantern.

This is the fact that I present for your consideration without adding anything further.
No comment. That's the fact that I can, without exaggeration, language, to call an act of financial blackmail (1).

So there's the singer caught in the act, putting on a volume on the throat of a financial company and is made– He was willing to pay 30,000 francs to keep quiet. He then became the ardent defender of this Christopher whom he was attacking
He did so violently, yet he made enormous sums of money from it.
(750,000 francs, a newspaper said) and nothing is more amu–
It is amazing to see with what indignation he condemns

(4) Official Journal, July 2, 1879.

66 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Edwards and Le Matin to allow themselves in turn to attack Crédit Foncier.

The Morning and the Land

The campaign to reduce costs. – The director's days off.
Morning.

Mr. Edwards continues in his newspaper, Le Matin, the campaign against Crédit foncier; the goal he pursues, the Lanterne has already indicated that the decline in securities, in order to be able to to buy back at the lowest possible price the shares he has sold.

This is so noticeable that on days when the Stock Exchange is closed, like Whit Monday or Sunday, Mr. Edwards has nothing to say, a curious coincidence. On Saturday, he announces that he will give the governor of Mortgage loan.

This audacity is truly too pleasing. Mr. Edwards is suspending his campaign for two days because that yesterday was Sunday, and that today the 16th, liquid- day Regarding the fortnightly values, we don't deal with it. many stocks on the stock market that are only liquidated at the end of the month.

One cannot more naively reveal the less-than-avowed goal than we continue (1).

Let us now take the Press Directory of a Another Meyer: Meyer-Avenel. This Meyer-Avenel operated, As we know, with Proust in the famous lottery of the Arts decorative arts and he had a lawsuit on this subject which was fruitful in strange revelations. As for Proust, he avoided with He, too, took care to provide the accounts that were requested of him. dait. The lottery had been authorized at fourteen million; twelve million one-franc notes were issued and the The total amount paid was five million eight hundred only a thousand francs. A former Minister of Fine Arts Arts, which had been concerned about its honor, would have held to give, down to the last cent, a detailed account of the use of six million two hundred thousand francs which constituted the difference between the money placed and the amounts paid out. Proust refrained from any explanation.

(1) Lantern, June 17, 1890.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 67

In any case, Meyer-Avenel published last year A Press Directory that is useful as a book documentary.

The Parisian Press Union is listed at the beginning of the volume. "This union," the author informs us, open to all opinions, has the exclusive mandate to

To represent the press to public authorities, to ensure the safeguarding of its rights and the defense of professional interests of journalists.

Here is the composition of the committee for the year 1890-91.

Mr. Adrien Hébrard (Temps), Chairman; Philippe Jourde, honorary president; Edouard Hervé (Soleil), Vice-President; J. Reinach (French Republic), secretary; Marinoni (Petit Journal), treasurer; Paul de Cassagnac (Authority), member; Clemenceau (Justice), member; Guyon (Patrie), member; F. Magnard (Figaro), member; Eugène Meyer (Lanterne), member; Portalis (10th century), member; Victor Simond (Radical), member; P. Véron (Charivari), member.

Many members of this committee are of absolute integrity; they nonetheless hold their seats next to Eugène Meyer and they call him: "My dear colleague. "

So you see, blackmail is officially recognized.
by the French press, represented by what it has of higher. You saw Mézières, a former professor, having studied Goethe all his life, a member of the Institute, approve of Christophe when he uses it to bribe the Press of the funds entrusted to him for any other custom. You see, Mr. Edouard Hervé, a worthy man.
In all personal opinion, very charming in manner.
and prided on a certain distinction of feelings, to cordially extend a hand to a singing master.

So you have a very valuable document on the prevailing ideas in the field of the Press.

68 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This is, moreover, how history should be written. social history. It would seem that a man like Wilson was much better armed than anyone with his 27,000 files, to show what society is like present. In reality, this man will never write anything because he has a vile soul. We, on the other hand, have no
We don't need all that; we're even leaving it out our personal notes, we take a phone book don-determining the composition of the board of directors of Crédit foncier, a Press Directory, an issue from the Official Journal and we are writing a chapter which It makes you think. There are people in the provinces who will read this.

in quiet places and who will say to themselves: "I He's beginning to understand what the press is.

This does not prevent a court from convicting
From time to time someone uses blackmail, like the futile one.
unfortunate anarchist to whom President Toutée, who, at at that time, it was not as well known as it is today.
today, he reproached Morès for having handed over some subsides. r

If Morès, who has the disdainful gentleness of all the strong, had been in a cantankerous mood, he could have responded to this president: "You know very well that this anarchist is a spotless lamb compared to the directors of newspapers more or less decorated with the sign of honor who practice this lucrative industry at the expense of Financial companies. If you would be so kind as to take the It's hardly worth studying the current economic system, you you would easily convince yourself that it would be absolutely impossible-
It was possible for these newspaper editors to live honorably.
lying, having a well-kept house and putting their children in good boarding schools, if they do not
"They did not give in to blackmail."

As for the president, if he had been kindly frank which characterized the regulars of the Bat des Vaches, he should have replied to Mores: "You have perfectly Reason, sir, only everything is in the way of
"To do things."

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 69

The Jew, in fact, created for the singular society that he he established a very special vocabulary, he distorted the dictionary, because it distorts everything, it has made false Money is as important with words as it is with finances.
Credo has become the credit exploited by fraudsters at at the expense of the naive; the word action which expresses the effort of an acting man now applies to a morthat of inert paper which remains in the hands of a:
A man who expects to receive without doing anything. A horse.
who has "good deeds" is an elegant and vi- animal goureux who raises his head high and gallops gracefully; a man who has "good deeds" is very often an impotent man whose marrow is half-emptied and that we take for a ride in a small car.

The Jews invented for their vile negotiations token words, words that are both insignificant like intrinsic value and brilliant like the na- cards create circles, words that have only one meaning conventional action and which do not compromise anyone. With the word "sympathy," which is a lovely word, one can to carry out the dirtiest operations.

A sort of Panama has just been founded. The representative-scent of a newspaper arrives at the secretary general's office advertising manager.

- I've come to talk with you and establish a little bit of our relations with the newspaper. I must tell you first of all that we are very friendly to you.

- Believe me, it's mutual... You don't have not a considerable print run...

- Do you still believe in the lottery? We We certainly won't be drawing as much as Le Petit Journal. But we represent a force. The force of honor-breast.... It's something in these times... Our The director recently displayed a very positive attitude.

- Finally, my dear friend, I am obliged to move within my budget, however, I cannot you treat on the foot of newspapers like Le Figaro or Le Petit Journal.

70 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

- Under these conditions, we prefer to con- to serve our independence.

A few days later, a note appeared in the newspaper. vaguely worrying. "The new company doesn't does not seem to justify all the sympathies that had him welcomed at the beginning. Our readers write to us from all over. the sides to ask us for information at this Subject. As usual, we don't want anything to assert anything that isn't absolutely true... That our readers They are waiting patiently! We will tell them the truth soon. The whole truth, nothing but the truth.

The company director meets with the director of newspaper.

– What do you have against us?

– My dear fellow, we were very kind to you,
But your secretary-general has no sympathy.
for us.

– We'll take care of that.

The company director told his secretary-General: "Give them what they ask for."

Two days later, the newspaper published an interview with the friendly secretary general.

"We found the friendly secretary to be..."
nal in this study which is a museum, surrounded of maps and plans (followed by the description of the room). It It suffices to see the radiant face of the one who re-sees to understand that everything is fine (follows the description) (tion of the Secretary-General).

"As we took our leave of the one who had been so cordial to us" Upon receipt, we informed him of the attacks which had been the subject of the company to which he gives the con-
In the course of his devotion... "Ah!" he exclaimed, "if I "I told you everything. Not all newspapers are as..."
"Disinterested like yours. What does it matter! The public doesn't
"He's not mistaken. He knows who we are and, for us
"To defend ourselves, we simply have to tell the truth..."

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 71

Of the two forms of journalism today, advertising And blackmail, each of which, moreover, has its supporters and its theorists.

A newspaper editor, belonging to a family honorable above all others, a brilliant conversationalist and much loved in private settings, he often practiced his profession among close friends.
of faith on this subject. "There are two systems," he said, "the Advertising and blackmail. I personally find it abhorrent-Disgraceful and, above all, shameful to deceive the public using false advertising, deceiving and ruining Poor fathers who trusted me, who believed what I wrote. As for the blackmail, it doesn't It doesn't inspire the same revulsion in me; I look as perfectly natural to force pirates to me to give them a share of their catch.

Our colleague acts as he speaks. It was he who did an operation that has become legendary; he forced the Panama to pay him 160,000 francs in one lump sum.

Cowards, scheming bastards, and sycophants make advertising; the shameless, the bold, the people of temp- They are blackmailing each other.

In reality, I am inclined to admit that the last method That's better. Our journalist with 160,000 francs hasn't He didn't fool the little ones; he told de Lesseps and his band: "You are swindlers and knights - of industry (which was absolutely correct). You have stolen fourteen hundred million from the public, give me my "Wherever I happen to run into you."

Arthur Meyer, on the other hand, was the claimant. He knew, at Without a doubt, the situation in Panama and he announced the upcoming inauguration; he praised de Lesseps on all the tones; he urged the poor devils to bring there their savings! That's the man the good duchess received in his private life and that of Mun and Martim- They treated him like a friend!

The Jews have established their customs of Be- Douins, and, if you would like to see the situation of the Current press, you have to imagine a series of scenes which would, moreover, make an admirable pantomime so- commercial for the Chat-Noir theatre.

72 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The financier, a raider by trade, surprised the sheep of the next one thanks to the claimants who brought down the owners in an ambush.

He sets off with his loot, but he is not without worries, because he has to cross the gorges of the Atlas, that is to say the area around the Boulevard.

He spots a cloud of dust rising to the ho- Rize... No doubt about it! It's the counter-raid...

As the convoy passes by with the fleeces of ac- The journalist steps forward and says to the financier:

"Hold on! It seems to me you've made a nice
"Aha! We have to give my friends a chance, or I'll attack..."
Speaking, he snapped the battery of his Damascus rifle.
He's a bit of a snob and sometimes lets his dog bark a little. "Is-
Is it true that...? What is the basis for that?"

The raider surrenders, the dog is recalled and
The convoy continues on its way.

In the distance, confused shouts can be heard.
shouts of: "Stop him!" These are the owners of the Sheep chasing after the thief.

We eventually reach the shopping cart.

The cadì does not operate on the main boulevards; dressed in black or red and full of dignity, he is tranquilsettled on the left bank and he awaits the events-ments. When the sheep owners did bursting into the courtroom, he severely interrogated the abductor.

– Do you have a lot of sheep, sir?

– Mr. President, I have a few, but I would have much more if those scoundrels of the day-lists hadn't removed a good third of them from me in the
The route from the Faubourg Montmartre to the Madeleine. There one in particular was large, with small eyes in twister, who felt that I never gave him enough.

– These are people who lack moral sense...
What do you plan to do with all these sheep?

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 73

– The most commendable custom, Mr. President;
I have already offered a portion of it to the constituted bodies of Our beautiful homeland: to His Integrity, the Keeper of the Seals,
To the Most Illustrious Senators, to the Honorable Members of Parliament.
The most beautiful ones, those with the softest fleece under the caressing hand, are at your home, sir.
president. Others, less greasy, but still shiny, are with your worthy acolytes.

– These methods do you credit... We ac-Let us leave with praise, and I have no doubt that a distinction-honorary title.

– Thank you from the bottom of my heart, Mr. President, but this is my third operation and I'm already commander.

– Well then! Stay that way! It's a great honor for the Order.

The man who raided went to his castle; he lived there in lordly luxury, hunting with hounds, gives parties; one day he said to his wife: "Put our children at the Fathers' house. It's very distinguished. You bring them—" "You will get a sheep from me."

The good religious person, who is generally quite good informed about what is happening in the world, is not without any concern about the origin of this sheep, But he thought to himself, "After all, I wasn't there when this..." The sheep was taken; moreover, there is a papal brief which recommends being cautious on restitution issues so as not to unnecessarily alarm people; Let's not alarm this man's conscience! Sum However, I still prefer a man who politely offers me a sheep to those who overwhelm me every day with disgusting and undeserved insults.

When the prize-giving ceremony arrives, Father places on the platform, this financier who does very well with his private of commander.

As for the stolen goods, they are still there at the Palace of justice. They went to find another judge; they did They spent their last pennies on the procedure.

6

74 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

to write on very expensive paper specious things that one never reads; they paid for men in robes to come and appear before the court puppet-like gestures that the magistrates ignore No; they are ruined, they die in the hospital, their daughters prostitute themselves to eat. Some of these evil-happy return in front of a third cad, but this time between two municipal guards.

- Are you wandering around?...
- I have nothing left.
- And you're unfamiliar with labor law?
- I have worked, Mr. President, and the fruit of My work was stolen from me by financiers that you You have paid because they paid you.
- Ah! my fellow, you are insulting the Magistrate. We're going to give you two years in prison: fifteen days for vagrancy and two years for contempt. The two sentences will not be confused with each other.

All of this is worth watching because we will not understand well the policy of the last ten years that, during- that after the final debacle, it will have been possible to penetrate into the interior of these large establishments which hide so carefully their accounting. Without this information- we can only analyze very roughly the current situation, and I explain to myself that Taïne leaves so much time elapsed between the various volumes of his Origins of contemporary France. For the Past He has the Archives and the Memoirs, but, as far as con- He grasps the Present, he is reduced to a perception of it vague description of a very particular state of affairs on which he ._ is insufficiently informed, and he is afraid to write to side.

These establishments, in fact, do not fit into anything. of what we have seen so far; they were not foreseen in no constitution, they have a governmental character mental, because the government draws on it for its business- political stances and his election campaigns and he

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 75

It would be very difficult to do otherwise. It's not with 1,800,000 francs of secret funds, on which there are 800,000 to 900,000 francs in purely administrative expenses negotiations, that the government could have stood up to 8 million that have been wagered on various sides for the baker's campaign.

It was with the money from Crédit Foncier that we com- defeated Boulangism and paid off the judges of the High Court

Cour, and that's what saved Christophe. At the moment to release the funds, he was not satisfied with a letter from Constans, he demanded a letter from Carnot himself and This letter now serves as his talisman. Constans, who has any hope of succeeding Carnot, would not have been angry that the incident escalated. But all the world formed a chain to extinguish the fire and Levesque He himself, who had attached the bell, no longer gave sign of life and, like Romulus, disappeared into the twilight.

Everyone gets involved in that. ministers hold the deputies who, in turn, hold the ministers, while the ministers on their side have, with the list of monthly payments, the means to stop net conservative journalists who would like to go too far. At a certain point, you think everything will be alright. to discover, but like all those people, Conservatives and Republicans, are all in agreement on the issues With enough money, everything always works out in the end.

Mr. de Lamarzelle having decided to climb onto his big horses and attacking the press about the Crédit foncier had a moment of success in the Chamber, But the press quickly silenced him and warned the deputies not to adopt austere expressions which they suited them very badly.

The incident, moreover, is interesting.

"I said, Mr. Minister," exclaimed Mr. de Lamarzelle, that you could do something, and the proof That's what you yourself say in your letter to Mr. Christophe, that advertising expenses are excessive. But

76 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This single sentence from your letter is not enough for me! Com- Lies! Your inspectors tell you that the Crédit Foncier buy consciences for sale, and you are content with to reply that we pay them too much!

But, you will say, what remedy can I offer for this situation? Would you like me to suggest one? Publish it List of all the newspapers that signed. (Loud applause) (mentions on several benches.)

Yes, publish the list of all the newspapers that are paying out, with the sums in question, and I now challenge any of these newspapers to attack the Crédit Foncier. (News applauded—seeds.)

I am happy with these rounds of applause that come from all the benches in the House. This is not a work of po—
The argument I have come to make at this podium is a work sanitation to which all my colleagues must associate (Applause from the right.)

Rouvier simply replied, with his characteristic lack of embarrassment usual, that these were the customs of the day; that the days—
The benefits of Mr. de Lamarzelle's friends were as the republican newspapers and that everything was for the better.

The newspapers did not take it so well and replied to Mr. de Lamarzelle that the members of Parliament was among the strongest participant in these clandestine money distributions.

I will not be blamed, wrote the columnist, speaking—Figaro's commentary, to gloss over what concerns the days—nals, but Mr. de Lamarzelle might perhaps be criticized for only targeted the subsidies of the press. There are others, many others, and it was readily said in the corridors, even in the room, that the Press only counted for a third in the gifts of the Crédit Foncier. Believe—
Are you seriously saying that all the money went to the newspapers? Aren't there people, subscribers, who receive without to write ?

Pessard, who has a very special skill, then—that he has long been part of a union of pu—financial authority, treated the deputies like a man who... knows.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 77

These puritans strongly approved the proposal to publish the names of the newspapers that advertised for the Crédit Foncier account. Fine. But publication for publica—tion. We will in turn draw up the list of deputies and of senators who are paid by financial companies that accept it as a lightning rod against legal repercussions. We will seek by what miracle men, the day they won the trust of universal suffrage, were insolvent and unable to pay the costs of their elections are currently progressing very nicely, although they ostensibly practice no other profession than that of librarian legislators.

Under this title, The Upstarts of Parliament, Denis Guibert administered a beating to Lamarzelle.

Indeed, Mr. de Lamar- needs a certain self-confidence zelle to dare ask a merchant like Rou- to do moral work by publishing the names of journalists who work in financial companies. The founder of the Auxiliary Company of the Che- mins of iron doesn't even know what mo- is rale; but it is only fair to give him this credit that he makes no claims in this regard.

A man was in a position to accomplish this work of public health. That one was a tall gentleman wearing a tie, posing for virtue, praised by the leaves conservatives as the representative of principles. He was a former magistrate, a Minister of Law and Order moral.

He was the court-appointed liquidator of a huge fraud- A query that has completely ruined hundreds of ordinary people. One might have hoped that such a man solemnly, he would finally tell the truth: he gave his approval to... entrepreneurs in shameful conditions; he has wrested one hundred thousand francs from the unfortunate victims and He left with that to go to bed; he is there

78 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

He died, moreover, shortly afterwards and probably he did not take the hundred thousand francs with him in his coffin for which he had sold his conscience.

This man was Mr. Brunet, a political friend of Mr. de Lamarzelle. Why then did he never speak of it to the Opinion piece? Why didn't he request publication?

the names of politicians and journalists who received insane sums of money to deceive the public in the Panama affair?

It is curious that, every time the deputies of The Right are talking about a nasty operation, let's be clear.
their own who played the least important role in this honorable.

What cannot be disputed is that the
The press is currently going through a phase that is not Not brilliant. As a breakdown, it was rough-quickly. Daudet spoke of the "boats" that transported
They were from different generations. To us, who were watching Gifts from the top of the landing dock, it seems that that every day is Sunday and that we multiply the voyages; there are boat arrivals every five minutes and, indeed, the last ones to dock trans.
sometimes carry very peculiar passengers.

Go back ten years: we wouldn't have had the idea of charging for a literary article. The thing begins to is becoming commonplace today.

One of my editors receives a visit from the director of a major newspaper. "The article on Mr. Drumont's book"

"It is ready, it will appear tomorrow; only I come to you ask for a favor in return... I have 2,000 francs to to receive, in a few days, at such and such bank, for advertising in the Serbian loan; please be so kind as to me
"To move them forward." The publisher wanted to have an article;
He pays the money upfront and goes to the bank; the other man had not Absolutely nothing to touch.

Another publisher is asking for exactly 500 francs for an item.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 79

Another writer was content with 300 francs, to which-the idea that he would be given 10 francs every time he would be talking about a volume of the house.

This is a completely different conception of journalism.
tinted like the one we used to have. For the Jews this

It all seems quite simple. A little Jewish boy, who isn't mean. and who is forty million rich, takes the lead effective from a newspaper I know; he hurries naturally to kick them out, to replace them by Touddis from different countries, writers who had been there for many years and who believed they were assured of the next day; then he summoned the music critic, who also covers the new theatrical works. He is a talented musician who has had great successes and a few setbacks, and which, in a very short timeframe, will be a member of the Institute.

– You see, my dear fellow, the theaters must They make it. You speak well of a young actress, she He gives you 200 francs; another woman reads this and is tempted. and gives you 500... You have an advantage there and The newspaper too.

You can imagine the terror that this casts in the offices of drafting this sudden intervention of Capital which has his neurosis and which suddenly falls on the back of minus habentes who expect nothing. The execution is always done in the Eastern, Semitic style, because the Jew cannot admit that a Christian has any right whatsoever. One of the editors I mentioned earlier had read, according to custom, his article before the assembled council, and He was warmly congratulated. As he went to sit down He goes to his place, looks in his box and finds his letter. leave.

That's very kind of the young people who run the boulevard cafes, the first ones, the races, the places a meeting of all of Paris; they always find an opportunity casino and they know so much that they go where they They want. The old, on the contrary, are frightened by the The thought of announcing to their family that the place is perdue; therefore, they are the most terrible against us. It is the Cimbrian who wanted to kill Marius, the Cimbrian who sold out as a slave and who eventually found a job as Public executioner. That's the pelican, if you prefer. Nothing is more cruel than the pelican: before deciding He prefers to cut open his belly to feed his children. to open the bellies of others, and he has no desire, for to please you, to sacrifice his bread to serve the Semitic question.

80 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

To leave a door slightly ajar from time to time, he
You need to talk to the elders who were lucky enough to arrive. Certain feelings still linger within them.
of men of letters whom the new generation does not recognize no longer exists: respect for the written word, the concept of law to the discussion that the truly worthy writer has that name.

You'll find that at Magnard. Absolutely useless. is no less anti-Semitic. He is the man of letters—proprie-to remain silent; he experienced the bitterness of the beginnings in this that they have the most bitter taste, and he now tastes the joys of fortune in their most complete and Moreover, charming.

No doubt the common sense that characterizes the director
Le Figaro clearly shows him that the anti- regime social in the midst of which France is dying cannot to remain as he is, but his optimism as a man happy proves to him, for excellent reasons, that this this state of affairs will last as long as he does: that is precisely this slight capitalist thrill that lends a partisan appeal familiar with the short articles in Le Figaro. The rentier re-knows in this small, fleeting fear that appears from from time to time through the lines, and it is all the more so more reassured than he feels that it is one of his brothers in caa pitiaism that brings him words of hope. "My God! he repeats with Magnard, the current system is not Not perfect... it will collapse one of these days, but that won't
"It won't be over our heads."

Nevertheless, you may need to respond to a slanderous attack.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 81

a little too strong, to defend yourself against an attack a little too treacherous, you will still find Magnard as I saw him around 1867, an obliging and cultured comrade, He was curious about intellectual discussions. He was, in those In distant times, the editorial secretary of the Grand Journal, and I was publishing an article there about the Palais-Royal.
He took me to Fleurus Street by omnibus to correct my trials and he paid me the imperial; today he He might take me in his coupe, but he didn't would require more articles.

Even the most belligerent of the past are all like that.

the current hour. Paul de Cassagnac valiantly held out the campaign for over twenty years; he gave He took quite a few sword blows, and he received a few himself. has a newspaper that's doing very well because it responds accurately- the somewhat naive need that some Con- servants to hear every morning the Republic predict- The clerics will be reduced to sausage meat. That's the journalistic absinthe of peaceful people who, in ordinary life, they drink only orgeat and who have They fled, without asking for their change, when they saw, under the Commune, to bring out the first battalions of Belle-city.

Under these conditions, the Director of the Authority does not He just wants to be left alone and has no desire to to turn the entire Jewish community against them by taking sides with us. I have no complaints about him: he has been very kindly inserted a long letter relating to the matter Marcel Desprez, and he might give me another office on occasion; but it is clear that the Authority us is more hostile than friendly.

The most typical one there is this excellent Sarcey. He suddenly discovered that there was a question Semitic through letters written to him by readers, He expressed extreme surprise on this matter, and Moreover, it wasn't feigned. It's the story of a brave man man, who entered the theater at seven o'clock in the weather superb, and who suddenly realizes that it's snowing heavily

5.

82 THE WILL OF AN ANTISENITOR

snowflakes. For twenty years Sarcey was exclusively busy watching Anatole marry Victorine, and he is astonished when he was told that during those twenty years The Jews conquered Paris, accumulated disasters and the ruins and excited by the hatreds that are just waiting for a an opportunity to manifest itself in the most terrible way.

This Jewish influence is wreaking havoc everywhere. Even in a newspaper that is not Jewish in spirit, you Find the Jew always lurking. I can quote you The Intransigent. We have some good ones there. comrades. I have painted a sincere portrait of Rochefort and who had nothing hostile about him; we have friends common and he had no reason to attack me.

But there is the Dutch Jew Van Oven or Vanhoven, who is watching over us to serve the grudges of Israel. A relative of this Van Oven exploits the advertising of Religious Weeks (1), while Van Oven himself—even exploits the judicial publicity of the sheets which have no religion. In charge of the report of courts at the transgressive Zntransigeant, under the name of Varennes, This Van Oven son has dishonored the legal press, which has long remained quite impartial and quite own. When he comes to take his place in the middle of his colleagues, these move away as if by a movement—involuntary movement and create a bit of a void around him.

It was, as we know, my secretary, Mr. Bournand, who

() I have already spoken on numerous occasions about the shameful trafficking to which gives rise to the bulletin of small religious newspapers, which is almost everywhere monopolized by the Jews. 11 there would be veri— pages on this They are too sad to write.

"We could reveal things on this subject," said La Croix. strange things about the actions of Jews within the jewelers who haunt so many rectories. In one of these newspapers, an editor tells us he said, "Out of twenty editors, seven of us are Jewish." In one another newspaper, widely read in Brittany, one of the best newspapers conservatives, moreover, the religious chronicle is written by a Jewish, and it is to a Jew that all the sacer— correspondence passes dowry.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 83

in a fatal duel, was one of the witnesses to the unfortunate Dupuis. As soon as I learned that he was involved in this debate, I I sent him a telegram in which I recommended— dais to settle the matter at all costs. This telegram, which preceded the four-day meeting, was handed over to investigating judge; it was in the file with the stamp of the post and telegraph office that certified the date.

What did Van Oven do? He dared to print that it was me who had incited the duel, who had been the determining cause—minante of the duel.

A Jew is never caught. Van Oven could have pretenderly stated that he had reported on the trial without attending it. and that he was at the Stock Exchange at that time. Why didn't he-Didn't he correct his lie when, in a moment of feeling-a gesture of good brotherhood for which I thank him, Figaro published the documents that proved, even to the point of obviousness, since I had done everything to prevent this fatal event encounter ?

The same was true with Mores. What Mores has spent money to make the application successful, at Toulouse, de Susini, the friend of the Intransigent, is initiated Imaginable. If a newspaper had to be favorable to the victim of Constans' hatreds, it is certainly the Rochefort's newspaper; now, L'Intransigent published from this the most venomous and falsified trial of the accounts renderings (1).

The thing was so disgusting that one of the editors-members of L'Intransigent, who must be one of our friends, put a few kind lines on the front page for this gentleman who became the defender of the People and slandered denied by a Jew in a newspaper that calls itself socialist.

Upon reading this, Rochefort will certainly experience a movement of disgust; I also want to acknowledge his availability-tion the Figaro issue which proves Van's infamy

(4) Morès provided me with the stenographic record of his trial, which bears no resemblance whatsoever to Van Oven's account.

84 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Oven; he will exclaim: "Let's throw this Jew in the..."
"But Vaughan is Rochefort's treasurer."
He's known him for a long time, he'll tell Van Oven:
"Let the storm pass." Rochefort will want to of a Van Ostade or an old Vaughan profiter of the opportunity to gently insinuate: "If we Let's keep Van Oven, he's making us money. (4) »

When it comes to money, Rochefort thinks like Eugène
Süe. The author of The Mysteries of the People and other novels Mans Socialist had ordered his servant to to soap all the louis that were presented to him so as not to

Not to get their hands dirty with their filth. Rochefort knows that well. that the money Vaughan brings him comes generally— some rather sordid advertising operations on the Panama and other financial companies; he also does the— see this money before touching it with his aristocratic fingers— crats.

As for the Republican newspapers, you have nothing to do with them. to hope for it. Journalism has once again taken on a particular form; it has become an annex of the state of existing things; it has two corridors: one commun— one with the Jewish Bank, the other overlooks the bu— reaux of the Ministry of the Interior.

Here again, the study is intriguing and, to take pleasure, one must have belonged to another time, to have given the image that some people presented twenty-five years ago— some of the men who are in there. It's the compensation for the weariness of living that this im— pressure, similar to that felt when living You admired the same patch of land for a long time. In spring, a tree, proud of its plume, standing amidst fresh greenery, and you re—

(1) Vaughan also does business on his own; he had done buy the Petit Lyonnais by Dillon and probably Rochefort was somewhat involved, because in those cases, Rochefort didn't hesitate to He never said, "It wasn't me, it was Vaughan!"

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 85

find in December all black, with soiled leaves Rain-soaked at her feet, under a sooty sky, by a gloomy, migraine-inducing day.

Some men, like Ranc, give you a
The same feeling. It seems that this life is a
A fragment found from the books of Tacitus which have so sadly disappeared: the end of Thrasesas.

In this fragment, we learn that Thrasesas is not not dead, as we had believed, a victim of his love fierce for Virtue; he was pardoned at the last minute and he outlived the tyrant who had outlawed him; only—As he got older, he fell into the most low-level jobs: by day, he is attached to a shop foenerator who has his tables on the Forum, between the arc of Fabius and the Temple of Fortune, and, in the evening, he empties the latrines in the Suburra slum where Messalina had its cabin and its sign on the door under the Lycisca's nom de guerre.

This is the story of that unfortunate Ranc. Under the Em-Worse, he appeared to everyone as an austere man; we
They would show it to the café in Madrid and people would say to you: "Te-Nose, that fat guy on the left who relights his cigar, he braved 'Caesar and he was deported to the deserts of Libya' for having regretted, while talking with Labienus, the gran-"abolished ancestors of the Roman race."

Today, the unfortunate man is subject to all kinds of repugnant treatment.
nagging tasks. This world of journalism opportune-Nist and Jewish is truly the froth of Paris intellectual. Some run gambling dens; others steal the funds deposited in the association's coffers by their comrades, and, after a short stay in Mazas, We find them on the boulevard, more brazen and more more sprightly than ever; some, like the council-
The municipal councilor Strauss was sentenced to two years public works for desertion (4).

(1) This Strauss is naturally a fanatical free-fearer and A great secularist. Only, he is careful not to secularize himself.
himself.

86 THE WILL OF AN ANTISENITOR

A scandal erupts at any moment. So we Ranc was brought in to wipe it all up with his coat of a stoic who has become a kind of fetid rag.
It is his responsibility to speak, as he said in his own unique way: "in the name of the moral interests of the corporation.

To truly see the degradation of this man, it is necessary-would once again refer back to twenty-five years in backwards, contrasting today's face with the mask of yesteryear, to place opposite this indulgent smile of cynical the withering movement of lips with which These incorruptible men were talking about the corruptions of the Empire.

Secret funds! Imagine someone excusant the secret funds at the Renaissance café! A Like Crémieux, the radical deputy, he remains loyal – and this is to his credit – he only fights against the religion of his fathers the religion of our fathers. In this, the city councilor The 9th arrondissement is, moreover, in line with Jewish logic: "You are, as the Talmud teaches, the seed of be-Tail, you don't need religion, but I am from the The race chosen by Jehovah, and I need it. You are born, you You mate, you die like animals, that's perfect. But I insist that God's representative intervene. in all the important acts of my life.

The Jewish Archives of November 27, 1890, inform us that This topic:

"One of our most prominent colleagues in the republican press, they say, Mr. Paul Strauss, a member of the City Council of Paris, has just married Miss Bernard. The religious wedding took place a place of strict privacy. It is Chief Rabbi Lehmann. director of the Israelite Seminary, cousin of the groom, who gave to "The wedding blessing takes place at home."

That's still Aurélien Scholl's word, from when he was anti-mite: "The Jews are freethinkers... in the religion of others. "

You see a candidate in the 1Xth district, married by the director of the Seminarian of Saint-Sulpice. "He's a cleric," Lanterne would say, He receives cassocked men, Vobiscum, Fathers of all kinds." Mr. Chief Rabbi Lehmann comes to bless his cousin's wedding. That's great!

Do the French people in this neighborhood have to be vile to be included? to have made such a choice!

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 87

Outclassed by a great deal of wit and little luck, Charles de Bussy was accused of having received some subsidies for a small two-liard printed newspaper with nail heads on candle paper. Ranc and his friends gave a lovely concert on this occasion.

Note that Charles de Bussy died at the hospital – which demonstrates that he should not have received a lot – and that no trace of his name has been found in the countless small papers that have been published after the fall of the Empire – which would tend to prove that he had received absolutely nothing.

Some time ago, O Thraseas! you also had to judge one of your own guilty of this crime. This time, There was no doubt about it. We all had in the hands, through the care of a former official from the Ministry of the Interior, the autographed documents and the facsimile of the receipts themselves. There is no contesting is possible, since the committee's decision itself acknowledged the fact.

But it was you, Thraseas, who defended the accused before the committee of the Journalists' Association Republican lists, it is you who have been energetic– The statement pronounced against any exclusionary measure is... It is thanks to you that this exclusion was not pronounced. You did the right thing, by the way, since we could have... to answer that most of the newspapers in which You wrote that they lived off this ministerial windfall.

Note that I am in no way criticizing this writer who continues to occupy a prominent place in the press brilliant situation; he has talent, he has even published in an impartial and pres– article about one of my books how kind, and I thanked him warmly for it. lying. It is obvious that the journalists who defend The government cannot live by sucking its own dice. inch, and it seems to me infinitely more honorable to receiving money from a Minister of the Interior for to support his policy, rather than receiving it from Panama to ruin the poor world.

88 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

What I set out to do, when sketching this a figure that gained some prominence at the end of the Empire, it's about exposing the immeasurable hypocrisy of everyone These Jacobins, their roguish and deceitful side, the falseness of Their attitude is to say to my readers: "Here "Look how these people end up!" (1)

Among the writers newly born to fame, those very ones whom a certain commiseration for the The people would seem to have to decide to fight with We, against the Jewish plutocracy, are afraid to see ourselves close the newspaper door and take every opportunity– sion the defense of the Judeo-Germanic band.

The name of Ms. Séverine is one that the public has learned recently. There really is in the development of this literary individuality A most curious phenomenon: transmission to a pupil of his master, possessing a very particular style and accent. Sonnel, of an original temperament.

Séverine is Vallès himself, with that gift for tra- to directly convey a vision on a single, quick page of a sometimes striking power, of an intensity of a very special life, without resorting to these tricks of force, to these arduous explorations in the dictionary, to these balancing acts in which the decadent. At Séverine's, as at Vallès', the words, however old they may be, always sound

(1) At the time when Ranc was elected senator, it was Eugène Mayer who organized a banquet in his honor! Ranc y viut et y pro- Nonça, a speech!

This trait gives you an idea of the generation's moral compass Republican who advocated austerity at the end of the Empire. That does not prevent conservative newspapers, such as Guuluis and Figaro, to publish articles in which Ranc is portrayed as a bronze man.

These little aspects of Parisian life are fun to observe. While not definitive, our work is a precious an attempt at classification and sorting that will help historians of the future to see everyone already in their place.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT _ 89

like brand new words, words struck by yesterday, the writer rejuvenates them and restores all their value through the use he knows how to make of it.

Woman, in what she always has of the feline, of the diplomatic... matic and cunning, is found in infinite art with Which one does Séverine, Jacqueline, or Renée excel at speaking? the humble and the suffering, without ever naming the These Jewish financiers were the true perpetrators of social evil. who extract billions from the labor of workers their people, who ruthlessly exploited those who had nothing, and stripped bare, using stock market or corporate maneuvers rotten, those who had managed to save some thing. Like in Venice, Portia still hides her waist elegant under the lawyer's robe, but that's no longer the case. to defend the unfortunate Bassanio is to praise Shylock...

M: Séverine is as knowledgeable as we are about the monstrous atrocities committed by Israel, but it is visible. She was completely mesmerized by the Rothschild fortune; is like those daughters of Eve that one sometimes glimpses at Palais-Royal or rue de la Paix immobilized and as in ecstasy before these jewelers' windows where the pendants, earrings and diamond necklaces blaze and sparkle brilliantly.

In the paintings of popular misery that Séverine succeeds so well, the Jewish baronesses appear always like earthly Providences, like tireless alms-givers emptying full purses gold in the hands of sobbing little children of tenderness.

This is Boulevard Socialism. You're making a fortune, Raizia, you grab one hundred or one hundred and fifty million. Among the victims, some hang themselves, others...

...drown. The next day, you send noisily a few louis for a subscription, and every day. They shower you with flowers.

This is the cry of Violette, another woman of letters. "The Rothschild mansion, if it weren't the palace of Good-

90 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

In fact, it would be the Palace of Art itself, and I know that, if Charity descended to earth, it would take their figure » (4).

There's no doubt about it, Violette knows it. Another one a subject of social fantasy for the Salis theatre. At the first. In the blue moment, we glimpse the divine Charity preparing herself to descend to earth; she hides for a moment behind a cloud to take off her wings; suddenly she appears with dirty sideburns, rheumy eyes and a rat's snout... What Violet had predicted is arrived: Charity took on the form of Rothschild...

I acknowledge that Ms. Séverine, who is clever, ma-denies the censor with a lighter hand and that the incense
The fact that it burns is of a more delicate nature. It is likely,
Moreover, if I had the pleasure of talking with her,
She would explain to me that if she didn't give that grade, his articles would be stopped in passing and that we would not have the pleasure of reading them – which, in truth,
That would be a shame.

It doesn't matter, once you've read Séverine and Violette, you loves to hear the joyful laughter of our good Gaulish woman de Gyp, who, without flattering the People at every turn, has truly a less servile soul and a slightly more French.

(4) Echo of Paris, November 14, 1890.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 91

he

THE BOULANGIST PARTY AND ANTISEMITISM

Always the question of money. – Paul Déroulède's Variations Lède. – The vice-president of the Patriots' League and the gunpowder smoke-free. – The munitions suppliers of the Triple Alliance. – A sensitive Boulangist journalist. – Laguerre and Rothschild.
– The 135,000 francs of the Count of Paris. – Quite a bold move.
The greatness of the humble.

Money! It's always money that has the last word.
our era; it blocks the path to ideas and, in a
With a flick of the wrist, he transforms friends into adversaries and turning adversaries into friends.

When Mr. Paul Déroulède came to rage against the Jews in Neuilly, to deliver a speech that was more more violent than mine, he knew what to expect on the Semitic question, he had had time to make a name for himself opinion on this subject.

One can choose not to be anti-Semitic, but no one admits to will show that a writer of Déroulède's caliber could have, in just a few weeks, changing my mind twice about this point.

A few weeks after the Neuilly speech, Déroulede came to Gros-Cailhou to declare, with the same gestures, the same intonations, the same apparent passion, that Anti-Semitism was the shame of our century, that the Jews were the model of all virtues and that those who attacked them used disgraceful language from a civilized era.

So what had happened?

Naquet had begun one of those negotiations in which he is incomparable and Rothschild had

92 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

gave 200,000 francs to the Boulangists for the elections municipal elections, provided that the candidates do not they would not be positioning themselves on anti-Semitic ground.

No doubt Déroulede will deny it. It's not a to be of noble simplicity, like Mun, who finds It's only natural that we don't approve of everything he does. The former president of the League of Patriots has a nose for trouble. of Punchinello, and Punchinello in the Italian Comedy-lienne is a type of martial art in which a little of deceit or at least of cunning.

The fact of the 200,000 francs paid by the Rothschilds is nonetheless well known to everyone in the League of Patriots. The Duchess of Uzès alluded to it in an interview. A zealous member of the League, a friend of Déroulede, invested by the general, was fought in below by the National Committee because he presented himself absolutely as an anti-Semite.

I am not accusing Déroulede of having sold out, of having put With that money in his pocket, everyone knows he sacrificed a Part of his fortune went to his ideas. However, it is What happens to all politicians happened, he needed money to continue the fight and he passed under the yoke of the Jews. This inexorable necessity is precisely the dramatic side of the situation-current tion.

What logic, by the way, what follow-through in the projects Do you want to ask a man who tells you, "I I suffer terribly from the humiliation of my homeland, I

I want her to regain her place in the world, I believe a league for this purpose and I'm taking on the role of vice-president from this league a man who is responsible for providing our enemies the way to kill our soldiers more surely
"In the next war?"

The general incoherence is such that brains are at this point of disarray that this extravagance does not impress—Sion only mediocrely; but in a time of good that would have raised public opinion.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 93

Enter in thought into these Tugend- meetings Bund, where the Germans grouped together after Lena, where old generals like Blücher, and of young poets like Arndt fraternized in the idea of revenge. A man arrives and says to these patriots assembled: "I propose that we appoint this old Jew as vice-president of your company.

– What did he do?

– There you go... We've discovered a powder of a war that guaranteed us a certain superiority. This The Jew took it upon himself to supply our enemies with this powder that they did not possess.

You can imagine the reception that the German patriots gave to... would have responded to this outlandish proposal.

Déroulède and his friends found this perfectly natural.

No doubt, if I brought up this subject in a meeting
In public, Déroulède would make his most extraordinary gestures Dinars and the Leaguers would impose silence on me.
Here I am at home, in my book; I ask a question—tion and the public would be happy to see the president of the Patriots' League will respond to this matter with a ma—clear and precise, since it has always been impossible—
It is possible to obtain an explanation from Naquet.

Does the patriotism you display consist of reveal our secrets to the enemy and supply them with ammunition?

I don't think Mr. Déroulède is pushing the issue.
true faith to the point of denying the fact.

There is a Central Dynamite Company which exploits the patents of the Nobel chemist. This company is almost entirely composed of Jews, thankfully for the honor of our country; it counts among its administrators Naquet, Arnold, Halphen, L. Bloch, Eugène Pereire, S. Halfon, Goudchaux, Bunau-Varilla and finally General Lambert, who, in the refusal of all the army officers recently agreed to do so part.

This company is represented abroad by so-

94 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

subsidiary companies closely linked to it and whose parent company oversees the operations.

It was this Central Dynamite Company which, through the foreign companies that are offshoots of it—even took it upon itself to supply gunpowder without fumes. linked to Germany and Italy.

On this point, there can be no doubt. All the newspapers, in fact, gave details about the ma- Works made with smokeless powder in Germany and in Italy and, last February, the Parliament The Italians definitively adopted this powder. Here is the dispatch published on this subject by Le Radical:

Rome, February 20.

In its session the day before yesterday, the Chamber of Deputies adopted the conclusions of the report submitted by General Pelloux, opening a credit of 18 million to the Ministry of War Lions for arms reform.

General Pelloux's report contains the following statements following:

The Italian Dynamite Society NoBeL, whose factory is located in Avigliana, on the Turin to Mont Cenis line. committed, by contract with the Ministry of War, to be supplied quickly, within a few months, the smokeless powder needed to make the new cartridges.

The same Italian Nobel Dynamite Company accepted an initial order of 450,000 kilograms of the new new smokeless powder.

By separate contract, the government purchased from him, FOR A PERIOD OF TWELVE YEARS, the exclusive right to manufacture to obtain the new smokeless powder himself, by means of a royalty of 1 fr. 45 c. per kilogram of powder fa-polished.

However, this is not disputed by Mr. Naquet himself. that the Avigliana company is not one of the companies subsidiaries that depend on the parent company, including Mr. Na-quet is one of the administrators.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 95

A notice of a shareholders' meeting
The Central Society indicated the following agenda:

- a. Reading of the report of the censors of the Avi- factory gliana.
- b. Appointment of censorship commissioners for Avigliana and Isleten and the setting of their fees.
- c. Shares must be filed at least five days before the meeting, in Pays, at Mr. Geo Vian's, 53, rue de Châteaudun.

We have further evidence of the intimate union which exists between subsidiary companies and the parent company.

The Dynamite Company has a body called:
The Financial Awakening.

This newspaper is owned by a civil society whose
One of the administrators is Mr. Geo Vian, administrator-also the head of the Dynamite Company, to which his Patriotism recently earned him the nomination as a member of parliament.
by the patriotic voters of Rambouillet.

At the time when the experiments with powder without Smoke was being exchanged in Germany and Italy, the Awakening the financier invited his shareholders to rejoice with him of this happy success by making them predict the rise of their actions.

The Financial Awakening published, in its issue of August 10, 1889, the following short article:

Central Dynamite Company.

We understand that there are very large orders Nobel's new smokeless powder has just been made at one of the dynamite factories, and that some of the par- Those working towards the same goal are currently engaged by various governments, with other companies in the group the Central Society.

In its August 18th issue, Le Réveil, pushing for the rise in dynamite company shares, he said:

We commit the shareholders of the Company to

96 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It is advisable to keep these securities in the portfolio; at current prices, The potential for growth is not exhausted, far from it, because the most- The value of these securities is due to their exploitation by its factories. of dynamite, engineer's new smokeless powder Swedish, Mr. Alfred Nobel, which opens up a field of the most vast and extremely productive for all societies that exploit his patents.

In the same issue, he added:

We indicated in our last issue the com- important orders for the new Nobel smokeless powder, made at one of the dynamite factories of the group of the Centrale and the talks initiated with other companies of this group: therefore, these companies, already so productive tives, will receive a profit supplement which will naturally benefit the shareholders of each of them and also to the holders of the Central Society's litres.

In its September 7th issue, the organ of the So-famous dynamite companies, in a major article, the chances of increase that the manufacture and sale of the Nobel smokeless powder ensures the actions of these Companies. This article begins with the following paragraph-before:

The horizon of the Central Dynamite Company is now more extensive: it has the good fortune that the Latin Societies who gather around her, and of which she is the usufructuary and the regulatory, will produce Nobel smokeless powder, which we will soon be able to appreciate from the point of view technique through precise explanations due to a piume authorized, but which for the moment we only want to envy-sager the financial results.

It is impossible to put it more bluntly in action. naires: "Rejoice, we have sold abroad, enough to kill your children, you will receive "Great dividends!"

It is worth remembering that Colonel de Bange did not never wanted to sell a single cannon to the nations that... could have used it against France, and that he resisted to the proposals made to him in this regard, notably by Ilalia. As for Mr. Giffard, the inventor of the rifle of that name, he thus concluded an interview with a Editor of the Zintransigeant: "I will be obliged to you to add that at my request he was formally stipué, in all contracts, that, whatever happens, the countries comprising the Triple Alliance: Germany, Austria-cheating and Italy, would not be able to buy the patent Giffard.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 97

Perhaps one can understand, at a stretch, that stateless financiers, even industrialists, say: "After all, we are not in a state to war, we have the right to supply, we supply-sounds.

The improbable, baroque, comical side that I have As already pointed out in so many things of that time, it is to see a public figure, a member of parliament engaging in operations of this kind – it's hearing a poet like Dé-Roulede, which the Muse of the Fatherland has often well ins-Piré, to tell you:

"Among the French there is a group of citizens who are more patriotic than the others, they are the Patriotissimes, the members of the Patriots' League. There are a man in this League who is the second patriot of France, the vice-president of the League of Ultra-patriots... he's the one who supplies gunpowder without fumes.
"We are being led to our enemies."

Frankly, Robert Macaire himself wouldn't have It's not permissible to mock the world in this way.

To give these observations their true rhythm s0-Given the absurdity of such a preposterous incoherence, it would be necessary to to be able to suddenly make the gallop of Orpheus heard, the crazy music of disheveled gossip and legs
In the air: La, la, la, la, la, la, la, la, la! Only then
We would be in the modality, in the tuning fork.

We should be able to show you the composure with which
This good Naquet presents these situations with a truly illogical...

6

98 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

astonishing table. The deputy of the 5th arrondissementhe walks around in there as he walks around in Moulin Rouge on the arm of her partner Mermeiix, With a peaceful smile, he is not surprised by anything and betrayed France as he betrayed all parties (1).
It's in his nature and, in his genre, he is almost as interesting as Meyer. Arthur Meyer, for his part,
It's the Jew who insinuates himself, who sticks on viscously

(1) This, moreover, is the eternal Jewish betrayal. Judas sells his God. Deutz sells a woman who confided in him. The Jews of the dhene sell the Fatherland.

Michel, the employee of the Ministry of War, who was guillotined Place de Grève, in 1812, for having delivered the plans of the operations military personnel at the Russian ambassador's office were Jewish. The boy from Bureau, who was responsible for taking the books to the bookbinding department every two a general overview of the situation of all arms and which delivered This state, belonging to Michel, was called Mosé, and the employee at the magazines, who We had secured his complicity; his name was Salomon.

Glaser, the German spy, was also a Jew.

the courage to remain for many years in a minor job at Northern Railway, to realize the slightest details tails and who, during the Franco-Prussian War of 1870, became the general manager German railways in northern France.

Lieutenant-Colonel Schmidt, who was hanged a few days ago months, in Russia, for having sold documents to England Regarding the Russian fleet, he was of Jewish origin. The Russians, from the The rest have preserved in this respect the good traditions of Napoleon. Leon, and they don't settle for half measures. As for the They distrust the Jews like the plague; they do not let them prowl around their war zones.

"We know," say the Jewish Archives of October 22, 1890, that The mixed port of Sevastopol will be transformed into an exclusive port. military matter. A decision by the Czar stipulates that the stay of this Place de Guerre will be off-limits to Jews as soon as this transformation will have been operated on.

+ Crimea had hitherto been one of the strongholds of the Russian Empire' in which Jews were allowed to establish their homes permanently.
"Permanent."

It should be noted that the Jews who lived there belonged to the the Karaite sect, which we have already discussed in France Jewish, and that, by everyone's admission, they were entirely superior to the other Jews of Russia. It doesn't matter, the race is there and Russia doesn't trust.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 99

to a party like an octopus to a rock and who lives on this rock. Naquet is the traveler; the restless one, He is, above all, the quintessential Jewish imposter.

The great Jewish lie is displayed in him in all its impudence. In Religion, Property, Family, he... declare that there is no religion, that property is a crime and that the family must be eliminated: as for He becomes epileptic as soon as anyone touches on his religion; he is constantly involved in all societies financial means to increase his property value, and he likes so much so that when he turns fifteen days in London, he travels like a patriarch of Biblical times: he takes with him his sister, his brother-in-law brother, his two sisters-in-law..

It is true that Naquet finds a way to make people pay all this by Boulanger, that is to say by the duchess from Uzès, who might refuse to cooperate with a truly national work and one that sells its share in the exploitation of Champagne wine to feed everyone the loudmouths of Paris.

It must be admitted that the Boulangist general staff and the Jews were made to understand each other from the point of view of harshness. For money, the incredible shamelessness of changing conviction as soon as it was in their interest. In Neuilly, when we were the ones putting on the tablecloth and Morès appeared to have brought back a cargo from the United States of dollars, the Boulangists were all fired up flame for Anti-Semitism; they distanced themselves from it as soon as that they saw that there was a cause there and no cash register.

'I told my constituents in Gros-Caillou in under what circumstances Mr. de Belleval, Mr. Delagneau and Mr. de Chambure had come to my house. They were going to tell me about their intention to transform their newspaper, Le Démocrate, into an anti-Semitic newspaper tick, and they asked me to give them everything at less a letter to be published at the top of the Journal of Indigènes "Quâât bien son nouveau caractère.

100 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

A month later, Mr. de Belleval paraded with the gang baker on the stage in the Elliot room and declared that Antisemitism... civilization... progress (see (Above, Déroulède's speech, 2nd manner). That What do you think of the gentleman from Belleval?

Two weeks before the start of the electoral period- I was meeting Mr. Delagneau on Saint-Dominique Street, at the corner of Maler Street, opposite the post office. he told me: "I am quite determined to present myself as Antisemitic, and I fully expect the League to help me. of its subsidies.

I could not provide this enthusiastic anti-Semite with the ar-the man he desired.

"No race war!" he exclaimed, fifteen days later.
Then, in the meetings! Common sense prevailed.
the consequences of these attacks against the Jews, which nothing justifies tifies.

This whole world is for sale; the misfortune of our because, at least from the point of view of apparent success, was not having enough to buy it.

It is true that with some figures from the party
As a baker, you were never sure of anything. We would have bought that they would have resold to others the next day-hand and that we would not have been able to take delivery of the merchandise. I'm talking about certain bosses, of course.
because the obscure servants of the Boulangist cause were always with a rare selflessness.

I'm going to tell you a story about that.

Laur, who was my neighbor and whom I love very much, me spoke one day of the editor of a major Boulan newspapergiste, and said to me: "My dear, X is in your thoughts, He is running for the City Council; he is appointing me to to tell you that if you guaranteed him a thousand francs for his election expenses, he would present himself as a candidate anti-Semite.

"My dear friend," I replied, "we are not rolling." on the money of the Duchess of Uzès. Morès imposed himself sacrifices beyond his strength; I make, from my

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 101

As for what I can do, but you know as well as I do this What does a book bring in? You still have to sell a certain amount.
number of volumes to reach a thousand francs. You You remind me of the lovely tale: The Golden Brain, the certhe poet's veal, of which a small slice is cut every the times we needed funds; she finished it herself by exhausting themselves....

Laur came back for more.

"What is this gentleman," I asked him.
that I've never seen?

"X", my dear, is the most delicate of men.

He will present himself as an anti-Semitic candidate; he will put on his poster: anti-Semitic candidate?

– I give my word of honor on his behalf;
Besides, with him you can rest easy, it's
The most delicate man I know.

– Here, take a note for Hollebecque.

Armed with this note that guaranteed his electricity costs
tion up to a maximum of one thousand francs, the editor
The Boulangist newspaper went to see Hollebecque. Seuthis delicate man, who, moreover, had two thousand and a few hundred votes, not only did not show up not as an anti-Semitic candidate, but he didn't even address
This question was not addressed in his statement of faith. 11 did not...
He never wrote a single line of thanks to me.
He never even sent his card.

The only card I received was the payment card, which I was introduced to Hollebecque. Disgusted himself, Holle-Becque did try to formally demand payment.
the one who, in reality, was his true debtor; the other refused obstinately and, as in delinquency, Holle-Becque had my word, I paid him the fifty louis.

No doubt, in the world of Déroulède and La-war, we will find this story very funny, but finally There are some backward people in Paris who will judge that This trick looks very much like a scam, and the most
The most wicked of scams, the scam perpetrated against a con-brother, using an idea as a pretext.

6,

102 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The most extraordinary thing in this order is undeniably-Laguerre tablement. As a money runner, he is Incredible; he found a way to get fifty thousand francs.
de Rothschild at the very moment when the banker of the rue Saint-Florentin bridged onto Constans.

Laguerre once said to one of his friends: "My dear,

I absolutely need money for the press. I have Tried Donon and Soubeyran, nothing doing... You Are you familiar with Rothschild?

– I had personal relations with the Rothschild, but I see them very rarely; I don't want to get involved in that.

– I absolutely must get out of this business.

– Listen, I'm going to introduce you to X. He will be able to Maybe try.

X, whom all of Paris knows, is the gentle Semite, the Semite whose venomous fangs are gone, that's the Philinte of Jerusalem, and it's hardly even if something Memories of Jerusalem still appear in him.
Look! With talent and intellectual value in Less is Saint-Amand. He has, like our friend, this happy disposition of a nature to find all good, to to rave about a completely disastrous dinner, to congratulate of her fresh beauty, a woman of ninety years.

The son of a Rothschild cashier, X entered the
He lived with two million, and he used it to throw a party.
not that he was a reveler by temperament, but because that he had his own idea and that a life of pleasure offered him an opportunity to oblige friends. At the end of the Empire, he he ventured to timidly express his idea, and he presented at the Jockey Club, but the moment was not came...

During the siege, X remained with us; his calling was to enlighten; he joined the Scouts of the Seine, did his duty there and did not cease to open to friends, a purse that was beginning to empty.
elections were held at the Jockey Club at that time;

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 103

was admitted and he was overjoyed. Some protests-isolated settlements did indeed rise at the end of the war against these elections held somewhat irregularly to say the sharp ones, but they changed nothing in the re-result.

Like the ancient runner, X collapsed exhausted in touching the goal; his fortune was devoured, but he had realized the dominant idea of his life: he had dreamed of being a member of the Jockey Club, as others dream of being members of the Academy. He was. What did it matter to him? The rest? He still had 80,000 francs, the Roths-Child took them in trust and gave him 12,000 francs. of annuity.

Out of pure kindness, X, who had never seen Laguerre took it upon himself to plead his case before Al-Rothschild phone.

He began with vague aphorisms and sayings borrowed from the wisdom of all nations.

– It is good to have friends in all parties; one doesn't know what might happen.

Jews don't much care for preliminaries; in business As in love, the formula is the same: "To what extent: What time and how much?

"Who is it?" asked Alphonse de Rothschild.

– Laguerre... |

– Ah! Good. He's talented... How much does he charge?

– One hundred thousand.

Then the baron took the object back in his hand and criticized it by 'connoisseur. "Certainly the piece is good, but It has been trimmed... The dish has a lovely design, but The enamel has cracked in places... The painting is authentic- tic, corn there have been retouchings, malicious retouchings counterfeits; it will require a repair, a repair Very expensive. Fifty thousand it is, of course. as a pure and simple donation, without taking shares, without Nothing binding.

Laguerre accepted the fifty thousand francs with transportation. If Boulangism had triumphed, it would have

104 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

He was certainly the ideal Minister of Justice. You see, with that ball and chain, he could have applied to challenge the law against the Rothschilds in a case like this of the Discount Bank or in any other matter where The Jews were allegedly involved. He was said to have been the prisoner. de Rothschild, just as Thévenet was de Jacques Meyer.

The politicians on that "ship" are obviously of a different race than us. The contempt they feel for humanity and for themselves gives them a aplomb of which we would be incapable.

Who hasn't read Laguerre's declarations to his constituents?
Regarding the inner workings of Boulangism:

"I cannot deny them," exclaimed the deputy of the 15th arrondissement. roundabout, September 3, 1890, before the committee of the quarter-Third Saint-Lambert, since they revealed to me some facts whose accuracy I have since verified. What I must affirm- sea, that's something your MP only knew long after his election the relations that existed between General Boulanger, Prince Napoleon, and the Count of Paris. It was in London even that one of the witnesses revealed to me the interview of Prangins. At this point, I only know them through the newspapers the reports that existed between the general and the count from Paris.

"It's the fault of Boulangism," he was still saying to the Salle Entrepreneurs, on October 31st, is to have had a compartmentalized policy. We were in a common department unaware of what was happening in the other. That's Thus, it was only after the elections that I learned all negotiations with the royalists and the pro-"coming from the money."

However, the good apostle was hardly ignorant of the negotiations between the royalist party and Boulangism, which he had been He was one of the most active agents in these negotiations. managed to extract directly from the Count of Paris 135,000 francs in exchange for shares in La Presse. These actions, numbering 900, were supplemented by 450 others came from a front man of Laguerre, who had kept them for a long time in a safe at the Cré- said Lyonnais; they are in the hands of an administrator- the head of the school on Rue des Postes, which Mr. Bocher has asked to look into this matter. I suppose Mr. La-War is too clever to refute my assertion.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 105

which is formal.

It's still an operetta. On July 12, 1888, our man votes urgently on René's proposal Laffon calling for the abolition of all congresses grievances "in the name of public morality" and, it is a administrator of the famous Jesuit school who serves as an intermediary in the negotiations of the director of The Press with Bocher and the Count of Paris!

Laguerre now spends his life in salons
Conservatives and formerly, in the company of Constans, he used poor children in a Masonic comedy-
No way. The poor little ones had their faces covered.
of a white muslin veil bearing in letters yellow with different inscriptions. One read:
Fanaticism; on the other: Ignorance; on a third:
Misery. After speeches against the Church, the origin of All evils were solemnly removed, along with the veils.

All this strangely spicy cuisine delights the young conservative party. This epigone of Balzac, this Rastignac, a young lawyer whose education was incomplete by Thiers and completed by Clemenceau, seems to be a beautiful-suddenly the personification of the truly modern, the bold pirate spurred on by appetites who, free of all prejudice, free from all scruples, rushes to the conquest for Power, Fame and Money.

No doubt, at first glance, one is tempted to have fun-to be of the beautiful impudence with which these people
They flout their voters, betray their oaths,
They lie about their promises, exploit and deceive
Each party took turns trying to acquire a little more of pleasure and luxury. Deep down, nausea sets in very quickly.
We feel just as much contempt for those who sell themselves as well as for those who buy them; one gets the feeling of a masked ball whose windows would overlook a cesspool. When we've looked for a while at everything this colorful crowd was writhing feverishly, we had Enough is enough, and we look for a place to vomit.

106 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The only interesting ones in there are the ingenues.

the naive ones who believed the word of others with the can-
A denier of sincere beings. Do you know anything more
Is this vulgar news item really so touching?

A wine shop on Rue de Frémicourt was, on Friday That evening, the scene of a strange drama unfolded. The owner of the establishment-ment, a Mr. L"*, aged thirty-one, on his return, around eleven o'clock, from the Laguerre meeting, at the theater of Grenelle had invited some regulars for a drink.
Suddenly he stood up and said to them:

"I have a serious message to share with you. I beg you to listen to him in silence; these are my last wishes. I I was once a fervent Boulangist, because I believed in the general, in His selflessness, his courage, I also believed in La-War. Today all the revelations have disillusioned me.

"But I don't have the courage to survive the ruin of my illusions and my hopes. I no longer want anyone to be able to reproach me for having been a baker, and apply this to me "An infuriating epithet. I've had enough." Pulling a... from his pocket He plunged a long knife into his stomach. Death was instantaneous (1).

This common man who kills himself like a Japanese man because he despairs of the Republic like Cato, believed in what the English philosopher calls "the great
The seriousness of life. This electoral farce that makes so much Laughing at professional politicians was for him a
It was a serious work, and he clearly brought an upright soul to it.
and loyal. He died of disillusionment, died from having seen life as it was, at the time when, in a living room, the So-called honest people were celebrating the venal rhetorician.
to the prostitute who, reveling in his own infamy, he applauded himself for having once again put inside this "old beast of Populo...

HAS

(4) National Party, November 3, 1890.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 107

I

IMPOSSIBILITY FOR THE FRENCH TO KNOW THE TRUTH

The Jewish lie. – The final straw for the tyrants of Padua. – Appearance of things and caricatures of men. – M. de Gavardie. – Laur, or the Companion of the Tour de France. – A Nohant. – The takeover of the sardine canneries. – The ruin of a French industry. – English in our country. – Alone of all the Members of the Left, Mr. de Mahy, are somewhat modest. – The question of oil. – The Famine Pact. – What is happening would have at the time of the war. – The Hachette monopoly. – An honest writer. – The Clergy under the Third Republic. – What Hachette prefers. – Specimens of literature erasure adopted by a respectable bourgeois house of the Nineteenth century. – The Venus of Mr. Catulle Mendès. – Some Zolatiria. – Maurice Barrès's speech. – The right wing voted for Guyot, former editor of La Lanterne, and acclaim Sir Luc. – The millionaire Mr. de Lanjuinais and His friends abandoned the poor Catholic writer. – The Small provincial bookstores sacrificed. – The triumph of the rut. – Rothschild, absolute master of France. – The draining of Vor. – A statement by Chirac. – In other countries the Jews exploit, in France they betray. – Rothschild and Italy. – Fantastic loans.

"Learn to read newspapers, escape through effort" from free thought to manipulation, to twisting
"May the Jew work on your brains!"

This is the advice we will never cease to give.
to address to the French.

This is not merely philosophical advice,
This is yet another practical tip.

Those who will listen to us, those who will have enough energy to react against the stupid things that are being said against us, those who will put anti-Semitic books

108 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITOR

in the place where they should be in every French home çaise, that is to say, in the place of honor, not only will be rewarded morally, but still subdued– Specifically: they will avoid the traps into which they– will be their neighbors.

The effort we are asking for is more difficult than we doesn't believe it.

We cannot resist the constantly repeated word by the newspaper.

It is still shown in Padua, in a cheerful villa Surrounded by greenery, the torture chamber. Italy of the sixteenth century had exhausted all the refinements there of his cruel genius. There were boots and sophisticated easels, a marvelous mannequin-
The man who opened his arms to kiss you was executed.
and who, suddenly, pressed you between a triple row of iron spikes. Of all these tortures, however, the Even more horrible was the drop of water. A single drop of water which, minute by minute, day and night, fell inexorable, in the same place, on the patient's skull chained; she pierced his skull, pierced it more surely-more than a crankshaft.

This is the image of the Jewish press and of this perpetual A lie that falls drop by drop, always, on the same brain locations.

I remember one day the astonishment of two young people
American women, two ravishing Japhetic women with eyes clear and looking straight ahead; they had read my books, they had wanted to see me and we had arranged a dinner.

By talking with my neighbors, I understood perfectly that they had an ulterior motive.

"Well, miss, what's the matter?" I asked.
to my neighbor on the right.

- Do you want me to speak frankly with you?
she replied with a clear laugh.

- Certainly.

- Well, there you have it... I'm quite surprised as I talk.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 109

It's so wonderful to find you so sensible and so gentle... We had told me that you were a lunatic and...

– You were expecting access, weren't you? What do you want– You? I love God, France, the poor... and beauty when it is radiant and pure like the yours; but those who write history today, those Those who own the newspapers are Jews from Hamburg or Vilnius: it is not surprising that they they represent, my friends and I, under the guise of lies– manage colors.

That's how it is with everything. You only see appearances. Relationships of things and caricatures of men. You You suffer without understanding.

What is the Conservatives' own idea of Mr. de Gavardie? He was a good man, but a grotesque; he had fits every day around four hours. By repeating this joke so much, the Jews eventually imposed it. It's laughter through imitation. mechanical, simian laughter; that's a bit what we He calls it "laughter for the teacher." A teacher opens up to a prank that is not funny at all and all the students laugh with an idiotic laugh.

I was very surprised myself when I saw at Me, Monsieur de Gavardie. He's a handsome old man. Pyrenean, still slim and slender with blue eyes Charming, witty, and as kind as could be. Although Without fortune, he maintained himself for a long time in his ar– roundabout where he had to fight against a candidate– formidable official ture; he was always in the first rank to fight and he prevented many initiatives left... At the time of the first entry to the mini– In Constans, he wanted to propose to the Senate an en– inquiry into the morality of the new minister and clarification the Puig y Puig case; he had even obtained for his draft request for investigation, signed by Mr. Jules Simon; he was shamefully abandoned by the Right. who refused to follow him.

7

110 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

– Ah! yes... the Conservatives will reply.
Mr. de Gavardie... At four o'clock. It seems that this

He took it... – And they will laugh, looking dazed.

You also have the "Hanneton kaur", "l'interpella-"continuous jet er," as the Lantern calls it, which doesn't like it when people disturb the dirty combinations of Youtres....

Student at the School of Mines, then engineer in Algeria
And in Russia, Laur constantly lived among the workers. and no one is more qualified than him to talk about the work-related questions.

He is the child of Nohant; his parents lived in People of Nivernais; they were very poor; they were happy when it was proposed to send their youngest son as secretary to Mr. Robin Duvernet, a close friend of George Sand, who had become blind. The child lived in close proximity to George Sand, copying her manuscripts or classifying his butterflies, and often I have amused to question Laur about her memories of Nohant and Sand.

It was indeed the ruminant for whom the work in-intellectual, so difficult for others, was without fatigue and who, after finishing a novel at midnight quarter, immediately starting another one for not to waste the rest of the evening. It was Io, she-even the beautiful heifer from Berry; when she was alone
With the small secretary, she immersed herself in her reverie.
Inwardly, she moved her jaws, she ruminated.
like the animals; she squeaked if you prefer.

"That's not pretty, madam," the child told her.

– You think so, my little one?

She would pause and then resume her ranting.
a few minutes later.

When the child had grown up, George Sand wanted him was a scholar and she brought from Hachette a enormous box of science books that were thrown haphazardly into his hand mixed up in his hands; he was then sent to the School of Mines.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 111

In many ways, Laur remained a character

by George Sand, an engineer in whom there is some François le Champi, from the Tour de France companion or the miller of Angibault. He is a 48-year-old idealist who missed the train and arrived a little late among the young struggle for life of the Palais-Bourbon.

It is truly touching to see this man of appearance a feeble presence to approach with serene intrepidity questions that should raise a whole host of issues against him in an auction room.

The man is very frail. I once felt his biceps, it's made of cotton; it still goes; it arrives at the podium with his small square of paper on which it has a few notes and denounces the thefts and the affronts.

Alongside this, you see members of parliament from the Right, great horsemen and great hunters, used to all the body exercises and tailored to stand up to the opportunistic and radical packs that are now paired up, and who scream together as soon as one touches their bones; it is impossible to obtain anything from them more honest: "Certainly... Certainly it is "It's an abuse, but there's nothing we can do about it."

It is so true that true courage, the kind that comes from the nobility of the soul is very different from physical strength.

Chirac, one of those who most energetically fought the all-powerful Jewry, is all pale and seems to have nothing but breath.

In short, Laur's interventions are very funny. the republican newspapers. Personally, I find that he There's nothing to laugh about. Judge for yourself by the questioning of... sardines.

There is a population of 25,000 on our coasts sailors living almost exclusively, they and their families, sardine fishing. It's a valiant breed her most fervent of all, and in whom hatred of the English is hereditary. It's about reducing these good people to the state of serfs working for the English whom they hate and to organize a new takeover.

112 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The number of factories supplied by the Sardinian industry nière is, according to the prospectus of the financial company which Laur dealt with, of 109; on this number the figure—The number of factories acquired by the company is already 105. These factories are located on the Vendée coast and of Brittany; they thus constitute in the hands the English as many strategic points of a consi—unmanageable importance.

"Here, gentlemen," said Laur, "I have a map in front of me." representing the 405 factories that extend from Brest to—than on the Île de Ré. It's like an uninterrupted series of advanced maritime posts. These factories are established at Sables-d'Olonne, to the island of Yeu, to the island of Noirmoutier, to Belle-Isle, on the Quiberon peninsula, to the island of Groix, and up—than at Camaret, at the entrance to Brest; all the important points The coastal areas are occupied by sardine factories. That's like a network of observation posts, which is ideal.

I then turned to my colleagues and said: Who Will this prevent the staff of these factories from being English?

You're telling me that the ship's staff can't the being; but they will always try to circumvent French law: It's so easy! And then factories on land, boats offshore they will be and could one day be enemy territory.

Mr. Hurard and several of his colleagues exclaimed: "What does that matter to us?" There is indeed a certain number of MPs, not counting a former minister, the black man Heredia, who were not ashamed to enter the board of directors of an English company cons—titled, like the company of the Grands Magasins boulevards, in violation of French law.

This, in fact, is the new Jewish system, the last scream, an invention of Sir Henry Isaacs.

You now see the importance of this question—tion. You think of all these families honest and devout people who have lived off the sea for centuries centuries and whose living conditions will be disrupted to further enrich a few English Jews and to enable them to afford pe- little seven-year-old girls on the human flesh market which is being held in London.

Again, to fully understand the question, I would need to be able to give you the full text The session as it appears in the Official Journal. This It would be a bit long, but you might be interested. Apart from Laur's speech, you would read the speech ...of a Republican less corrupt than his comrades, Mr. de Mahy.

This speech was given after the discussion had concluded. Sion, and you see why. The Left, naturally. had been paid to interrupt the speaker and make him Ridiculous. Mr. de Mahy, out of discipline, did not dare to interfere. to the debate, then he was ashamed of himself, he saw the crime of treason that was being committed and, under pre- In his attempt to explain his vote, he got into the heart of the matter.

I believe it is useful for public opinion in France to be addressing these issues of foreign interference in our affairs. (Very good! Very good!)

Each of us can remember that before 1870 we did not ad- He didn't think that interference from across the Rhine could, one day or the other, be of a nature to constitute a national danger. What became of it, you all know, gentlemen; your Our hearts bleed, France has been dismembered, we have lost Alsace and Lorraine (Very good! very good!), and our front- The tière was rejected from the Rhine to the suburbs of Nancy.

This is what happened.

Today we are told that English companies are colos- . Companies have the right to be established in France with immunities. that the French themselves do not possess. If they have this right (1), public opinion must be concerned about it and that it obliges the Government to change the legislation on this (Very good! Very good!), for it is not good that the foreigner—to have such a foothold in France under some pretext whatsoever.

(1) Mr. de Mahy is mistaken. These companies do not have this right of everything. Only the founders pay a bribe to the mini- to be in charge of the Justice system at the time of its creation and we do not does not continue any more than we have the administrators of Panama.

Gentlemen, it is necessary for France to concern itself with These things. You know it very well, our markets are being closed off. From all sides; we no longer know where to place our young people. Here, it's an English company that doesn't monopolize, but which buys one hundred, one hundred and fifty sardine factories in the departments Western companies. In Paris, it's an English company who is going to set up a very large store.

As for the Catholic deputies, natural protectors of these families of sailors who have preserved the faith of ancestors, who make the sign of the cross before going risking their lives on a fragile boat to ensure the bread for the mother and children, they did not blow word; they find that these English and French Jews, because Eugène Pereire was involved in the affair, they are worthy of All our sympathies.

The questioning about oil is more instructive. again; but I know so much about brain debility French readers, their inability to follow long—Time is a serious question, which I will not insist upon.

Once again, the production brought to light... tion of authentic documents, provided by one of the the most devoted members of the Anti-Semitic League, the existence of a union fictitiously organizing the rise and fall, consequently falling below the blow of article 419.

Thanks to this union, the oil, which is sold in Brussels 15 centimes per liter, sells for 65 and 70 centimes in Paris.

Since 1871, when large-scale exploitation began Jewish, this union pocketed a profit of 600 million.

"This union," Laur exclaimed, "has won against the State since 4871." due to the difference in customs duties, a sum that I estimate at 200 million, because from 1873 to 1881, there was a right stronger than the one that exists today.

He won over the consumer, due to a lack of quality, a sum of approximately 200 million.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 115

D also won through fraud. But I'm indicating this winnings because .memory.

He finally won, thanks to the considerable profit he made. in trade, approximately 200 million.

Therefore, this union, by virtue of the law itself, 4873 and that of 1881, levied on French consumption a sum of 500 to 600 million, more than half a billion, or 50 to 60 million per year.

Transport these figures from the arid terrain of the economy-political or parliamentary debate in the real life, and see what they represent in existence. tence of the poor. For working-class households, the oil is an essential item like the bread; it's the oil lamp that lights up the evenings winter which, sometimes, around New Year's Day, they continue until morning. When, in the middle of the week, we estimate what remains to reach the Pay, we count this much for bread and this much for oil; because oil, that is to say, the possibility of finishing the task Once started, it's bread for the following week.

It is on these humble budgets that the hoarders Jews levied a tribute of 600 million, in maintenance-raising the price of oil to 65 or 70 cents, which could sell for 15 cents in Paris as well as in Brussels. And this through a formal coalition, and whose Laur provided written evidence, treaties of acquisition photographed facings that I saw with my own eyes. This exorbitant tax levied on workers, the self-proclaimed Christians on the Right deemed it legitimate and honest.

I leave you to imagine, indeed, if the deputies... are given free rein to interrupt this discussion- 10. Kergariou himself got involved... You know Well, Kergariou exclaimed, at the moment when Laur denounced- had the Copper Workers' Union and announced a year to the advance of the Discount Bank disaster: "We

We are not here to discuss the price of metals.

Whichever way you turn, you will find—

116 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

create a syndicate of hoarders who, in order to carry out Higher earnings, do not hesitate to put themselves at risk the very existence of the Fatherland.

In a substantial article published by the Revue socio-list (1), the Famine Pact, Mr. Gustave Rouanet demonstrated, using irrefutable figures and tables, tables, which Paris had in stock at the end of July 1890 enough food for six days!

As of July 31, said Mr. Gustave Rouanet, the three million men from the entrenched camp of Paris had, in the inter-8,000 quintals of trade supplies the capital of wheat and 74,000 quintals of flour. As of August 31st, zero quintals of wheat and three hundredweight of flour! And Paris alone was not in this Supply situation. The urban population of nearly twenty departments were at the mercy of the most insignificant An accident occurred during deliveries. For both regions of North, where the total production deficit is 9,500,000 quintals rate, there were in total, in the warehouses that supply the consumption of this population, 157,000 quintals of wheat in stores.

Railways, in wartime, being taken for forty days through mobilization, you Imagine what the situation would have been if, following a unforeseen incident such as the Schnæbelé affair, the army German had suddenly crossed the 15-kilometer mark which separate it from Nancy. You can imagine how it would be It's easy to bring wheat from America, when the seas would be monitored by the fleets of the Triple Alliance, which would probably be joined by the English fleet.

This is the wonderful result that these associations lead to. actions of speculators and hoarders, which the government-nement surrounds with all his care. Everything that touches on vital interests, on the very existence of the country depends almost exclusively on foreigners. Importa-wheat production in France is in the hands of eleven individuals vidus, of which six are notoriously foreign.

(1) Socialist Review (November and December 1890).

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 117

Here is what Mr. Rouanet wrote on this subject:

It is generally agreed that France's food supply is between singular hands, when we know the nationality of these importers.

Here are their names and nationalities: Ephrussi (Russian); Thalmann brothers and Co. (Prussians); Dreyfus brothers and Company (??) Louis Dreyfus and Co. (French?); Negropontes (Vallacquer); Ledru and Co. (French); Waller brothers (Prussian); Bemberg and Co. (German); Collet (French); Herkelbont (Belgian); Grands Moulins de Corbeil (??).

We have classified under the heading of two points of ignorant people, the nationality of the Corbeil Mills, because Mr. Erlanger used to be in charge of these mills. He is no longer there today. But has all influence been lost? This is what we do not know and about which we strongly doubt, to tell the truth.

No doubt, if Laur wanted to raise a question of this kind of thing on the podium, right-handed and left-handed would be Okay, let's make a racket and stop him from speaking. But in France, I am convinced, there are men. that the point I just raised is of interest, some unintelligent writers who are frightened to see the destinies of,

'France absolutely depends on an operation at the rise or fall traded by eleven speculators who agree not to let the wheat arrive in Paris (1).

(1) That is precisely what happened last summer.

- "Speculation," said Mr. Rouanet, "calculated," supposed that the recolt, which looked promising, would be magnificent. The abundance of Grain would lead to a price drop. It was therefore advisable not to She revealed too much about herself. Seduced by her own calculations (at least that's the only plausible explanation we could find for his behavior), She traded on the downside. As a result, she restricted her purchases. and prudently sold off his reserves. Meanwhile, storms burst, much of the grain rotted in the field, and the calculations of importers were slightly disturbed by these circumstances climacteric symptoms, which they had not thought to bring into line with counts in "their combinations." But these gentlemen are the market leaders. With eleven importers, they can, by using rant, "prevent panics and maintain prices; that's what they 7.

118 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This alliance of the Right with the Left, all the
When it comes to protecting monopolies, it's really
The shame of the Conservative Party.

Perhaps this complicity was never fully established.
with more cynicism than in the questioning of Mr. Maurice Barrès, on the monopoly of the Ha- house chette.

We already know this question, and I won't go back to it.
Not for long. I'll even leave aside everything that... personally concerns me, to take care of another man of letters.

Mr. Francis Bournand is a young, worthy writer of all esteem. In the midst of cruel difficulties, he honestly raises a small family, which increases faster than household resources grow.
He didn't come from a Jesuit college, he has nothing never received from the clerical party, but he has a deep af-affection for his mother; his mother is a good Christian, Bournand wants his children to be Christians, and Every Sunday he drives his little girl and son to Mass.

Fortune, so far, has not smiled upon the efforts of this Courageous, he wrote entire volumes about the Salon, for the meager price of 250 francs; he vi-generously collaborated on the Dictionary of dictionaries naïres of M^r Guérin, who was for a long time for the poor Catholic writers what the Dictionary was-To be born Larousse for Vallès and his friends. The men unlucky letters readily take shelter in the have done so by continuing to methodically space out their orders, even after reducing their stocks to the limits of the day-to-day consumption.

If war had broken out suddenly, Paris would have been forced to capitulate after eight days, but the declining union did not. It wouldn't have been a bad move. Ask most of the Right-wing MPs will tell you that this is what they want. I tend by this word "social conservation" and that those who Those who think differently are the worst enemies of society.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 119

dictionaries under construction, like the poor wretches. in houses being demolished.

Last year, Bournand published a volume in a very remarkable light, and of which several bishops thought. They legitimized the clergy under the Third Republic. I hoped, which was perfectly within his rights, that the sale in The train stations would help with the book's distribution, and the publisher submitted the volume to Hachette, who, as is known, reinstated, by their own private authority, the abolished censorship by the Chamber.

The censor was probably a Jew, a Mayer anyone whose nose, already long, grew even longer as soon as he saw that it was a question of cassocks; he refused net authorization.

We saw what honest people refused. who run the Hachette publishing house; we'll see what that they authorize.

I've already told you about the First Mistress, and I don't need to dwell on the obscenity of such a work—Catulle Mendès. The author won't mind, from remains, from this testimony rendered to the truth, for it does not re-Keep as criminal only what is poorly written. The Vé- The nudes he celebrates are the perverted Venus, the Venus of paroxysms, neuroses and hysterias, Venus with dark circles under their eyes, pale lips, and bare hands cées, which only leaves the arms of the Marquis de Sade for to throw himself upon Sappho's breast.

The Exhausted One, which the Echo of Paris was forced to interrupt—breaking the publication seems to me to be returning to roughly Along the same lines. I had the pleasure of having lunch—I will meet with the author this summer at our publisher Currel's; he He seemed very kind to me, and he made an effort in the forest.

from Sénart, walking along the fences of Cahen from Antwerp, to demonstrate to me that his work was, at Fundamentally, it's absolutely moral, but I asked him... permission to keep my first impression.

As bourgeois Vitellians, who think that the ergent has no smell, Hachette, moreover, puts in all

120 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the train stations, at the disposal of young people and young people girls, who often take on a random volume, on the title, of books, if not more immoral than those of Mendes – I think it's difficult to go any further in this direction – at least coarser and more orduriers in the expression.

Here is what one can read in the books to which the Sale in train stations has been granted.

"Your theatre..." he began in a flute-like voice.

Bordenave interrupted him calmly, with a word blunt, like a man who likes frank situations.

– Tell me my mess (1).

"Hey! There's Satin," murmured Fauchery, as he-perceiving.

La Faloise questioned him. Oh! A roller from the Boulevard, nothing at all. But she was such a rogue, that we might have some fun making her talk. And the journalist, raising his voice:

– What are you doing here, Satin?

"I'm bored," Satin replied calmly. without AA (2 4

A murmur grew, like a sigh that... gonflail. A few hands beat, all the ju-
They were fixated on Venus. Little by little, Nana had taken possession of the public, and now chathat man endured her. The rut that rose from her, as if from a mad beast, had always spread out more, filling the room (3).

oo ee + + + + + « . Satin has become Nana's vice.

Here we find ourselves in front of a scene of tribal-

(1) Nana, a work authorized in train stations, by the virtuous maihis Hachette, page 4.

(2; 1bid., page 30.

(3) {bid , page 33.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 121

dism, and inevitably, we must eliminate some descriptions too risqué.

So, continually, the same routine recom-threatened. Twenty times, tragic in his fury As a betrayed woman, Nana ran in pursuit of this hussy, who flew off on a whim, bored with the hotel well-being. She was talking about slapping my-Lady Robert; one day, she even dreamed of a duel; tl
There was one too many. Now, when she dines At Laure's, she would put her diamonds, taking sometimes Louise Violaine, Maria Blond, Tatan Néné, all resplendent; and, in the dregs of the three rooms, under the yellowing gaslight, these ladies were slumming itmilked their luxury, happy to impress the little girls from the neighborhood, which they would raise as they left the table.
That day, Laure, strapped in and glistening, was kissing her whole... world of a broader maternal air. Satin for-so much, in the midst of these stories, kept his pure viwise virgin; bitten, beaten, torn between the two women, she was simply saying that it was Funny, they would have been much better off... tender. It was pointless to try to fix her; she could:
would split in two, despite his good intentions to be kind to everyone. In the end, it was Nana won, she so delighted Satin with tenderness and gifts; and, to get revenge, my-Lady Robert wrote to her rival's lovers abominable anonymous letters (1).

- Did you hear last night, the other one who twisted-
Was he suffering from a stomach ache? Was it annoying!
I'm so glad she's leaving. I wanted him shout: "Just push and make it over with!"

"The fact is that Mr. Hippolyte is right," he continued.
Lisa. Nothing gets on your nerves, like a

(1) Nana, ae 357.

122 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

A woman who always has colic... Thank God! I
I don't know what it is, but everything seems to me that I I'll try to swallow that, to let people sleep-mir.

Then, Victoire, wanting to laugh, fell back on Adèle.

- Hey, you puffed-
The opening of your first child, is it from the front or the back?
behind you that you did it? (1).

"Yes, yes," the maid continued furiously, "you don't..."
Don't throw me out, when I hid your shirts, Behind your cuckold's back!... And the night your lover had to put his socks back on in the middle of my cases-Serolles, while I was preventing your cuckold from entering,
To give you time to cool down! Bitch, val (?)

. .

However, the preparatory work was progressing, the gravity descended into her buttocks and into her thighs. Even when her stomach let her down a little
She was suffering there, constantly, from a sof-France is stubborn and determined. And, to relieve herself, she had She grabbed her buttocks with both hands, she smothered them held on, while she continued walking swaying, her legs bare, covered up to her knees nou dc ses gros bas.

So it wasn't enough to never eat at his hunger, to be the dirty, clumsy scullery maid, on which The whole house was banging: the masters had to
They had a child with her! Ah! The bastards! She wouldn't have I could only tell if it was young or old.

because the old man had knocked her unconscious again after Tuesday fat. Neither of them, moreover, cared.
Inal, now that they had had the pleasure and that she

(1) Pot-Bouille, a work authorized by the respectable Hachette, page 343.

(2) {bid., page 463.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION 123

She was in pain! She should go give birth on their doormat, to see their faces. But her terror he continued: we would throw her in prison, it was better Swallow it all. Her voice choked, she repeated, between two crises:

– Bastards!... If I may, I'll give you a
. affair!.. My God! I'm going to die! 74

– On her, oh no! That would take courage! It's He takes it from Catherine.

– Ah! Listen, didn't she have the
She had the nerve to tell me earlier that she would strangle Catherine, if she were to go there! As if the great Chaval, a long time ago, hadn't put her in that position.
on the carin! (?)

As if, suddenly, this threat had become a reality.
Catherine, it turns out, received it in the rear, at full speed.
dée, a kick whose violence stunned him Surprise and pain. It was Chaval, who had entered from a leap through the open door, which lengthened a A vicious beast's kick. For a minute, he's been... guettait du dehors.

"Ah! You bitch!" he yelled. "I followed her, I knew."
even though you came back here to fuck him until...
Nose! And you're the one paying for it, right? You're dousing it with Coffee with my own money! (3)

And, as she took refuge in a corner, he re-fell on the mother.

– A lovely job, keeping house, during that your fucking daughter is up there, legs in the air!

(1) Pot-Bouille, page 473.

(2) Germinal, save authorized by the prudish Hachette, p. 119.

(3) Ibid., page 259.

124 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Finally, he held Catherine's wrist, the se-
He was squeaking, dragging her outside. At the door, he turned around back towards Maheude, nailed to her chair.
She had forgotten to tuck in her breast. Estelle had fallen asleep, her nose tucked forward in her woolen skirt; and the enormous breast hung, free and naked, like the udder of a powerful cow.

– When the daughter isn't there, it's the mother who "He's stamped!" Chaval shouted. "Go on, show him your..."
Meat! He's not disgusted, your bastard of a lo-ger! (4).

Dazed, Pierron didn't understand when the Pierronne, seized with fear upon hearing the commotion voices, lost his head to the point of half-burning
We saw her at the door to get a better look. She was seen all the way there.
red, bodice open, skirt still hiked up, attached to the belt; while, in the background,
Dansaert was frantically pulling up his trousers. The master-
Porion fled, disappeared, trembling at such a thing
The story didn't reach the director's ears. So,
It was a terrible scandal, laughter, shouts,
boos, insults @:

| In the front row, the runny girl was choking with fury, thinking that soldiers wanted to pierce skin to women. She had spat on them all Her swear words, she couldn't find an insult strong enough low, when, suddenly, having nothing left but this.

a deadly offense to bomb right under the troops' noses.

She showed her ass. With both hands, she lifted her skirts, strained her back, widened her curves huge.

– Here, this is for you! And it's still too Clean, you bunch of bastards!

Q) Germinal, page 260. |
(2) Ibid., page 437.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 1295

She dove, tumbled, turned so that each one had their share, trying again at every push—the message she sent.

– Here's the officer! Here's the sergeant! Here! for the military! (1).

Once again, the directors of the Ha— house chette, those who choose these books since they display their right to choose by rejecting works irreproachable from a moral standpoint, but who have the fault of not pleasing the masters of the day; — those who, already rich enough to be millions, receive an ignominious royalty niste on each of these pieces of garbage, are perfect hon— These are good people. Sons of notaries, lawyers, or students of the Normal School, members of the Commercial Court, presidents of the Booksellers' Circle, they have all the bourgeois St. John's herbs.

They obviously corrupt many young people. intelligences because, as Frédéric Soulié wrote in The Devil's Memoirs, "we don't tell everyone "We were in a bad book, but we're going anyway." They nonetheless regard themselves as being of an honorable nature absolute, and, in fact, from the point of view of common morality— They are right. Very influential in the United States. University and academic, Messrs. L. Hachette, Templar, Fouret, even represent a higher degree of culture— higher than the ordinary average of the Bourgeoisie. Mr. Breton, who died a few years ago, had published A book about Pindar!

What more do you want me to say? I would have the power to lift, like the lame Devil, the roof of all the houses and to let you in in all the interiors of Paris that I don't know about I would not learn any more about the moral state of the Bourgeoisie; I'll show it to you in action, according to the functions of bourgeoisism.

(1) Germinal, page 483.

126 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It was under these conditions that, during the session of
On October 23rd, Mr. Maurice Barrès addressed the nation by...
The Minister of Public Works finally commented on this matter.
no tax haven on which the Hachettes had grafted a an absolutely abusive right, the right of censorship on the literary works.

Mr. Maurice Barrès would, I believe, be wounded as of a lack of taste, like a dissonance, of any excessive praise on my part. Which lent itself, in Indeed, a particular physiognomy at this beginning to the the speaker-writer's platform was characterized by moderation and tact.
Exquisite. We are witnessing something very simple and very astonishing.
However, in these times, a gallant man who had a duty to fulfill and fulfilled it.
The only praise that could have been given to Barrès would not have been
It was only given to him by Carlyle, who spoke so often, in such admirable terms, of character and of the di-the writer's dignity; had he attended this session, Carlyle would certainly have said of Barrès: "Here is a ve-
A truly distinguished man of letters.

My ideas are what they are, but all in all,
My books have had millions of readers in all parts of the world and, when an attack is made to my right, my name can be pronounced in a French Chamber.

Among the Catholics with whom I have been friends, none has dared to do that in the House. I saw some who pressed me-hands know, which, at the end of meals, are a little red and congested, they told me, using expressions assumptions that neither Barrès nor I would use: "Con-Keep going! Keep going! Beat those Jewish pigs!
When I spoke to them about defending my rights, these Those people had sudden colic and, very probably in good faith, they were convinced that if reference was being made to Jewish France, to the Palais-Bour-Well, the annuity would immediately fall to 40 francs. Barrès did not merely allude to the Jewish France, he spoke of it in overly benevolent terms-undoubtedly slow, but for which I thank him; he said on-all that needed to be said was: "Why the Hachette publishing house Does she allow herself to ban Mr. Drumont's books? When she authorizes Mr. Zola's books?

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 127

The annuity did not waver because of this, and even if it had She was unsteady, and Rouvier was there to support her.

One might have assumed that the Right would protest at less so by his vote against maintaining this regime which permits all Priapus and which proscribes Catholic books.

It was the Right which, on this question of strict mo- In reality, the majority assured the minister by abstaining or by voting for the agenda in its pure and simple form which was passed by 231 votes to 204, that is to say, by 27 majority votes only.

Here are the names of the Right-wing members who voted for the agenda item, that is to say for the maintaining the monopoly at Hachette, of which it makes such edifying use:

Abrial, Bezançon, de Boisboisel, Cazenove de Pradines, Fould, Fourtou, Baron Gérard, Gref-fuihe, Count of Lanjuinais, Count of Lévis-Mire-poixæ, Loreau, Lorois, baron de Mackau, de Mont-Saulnin, Marquis de Moustier, Muller, Baron Reille, Faudière.

Here are the names of the Right-wing MPs. who abstained:

Count of the Eagle, of Aillières, Prince of Aremborg, Bigot, Marquis de Breteuil, Cibiel, Daynaud, Delahaye, Dron, du Bodan, Marquis d'Estourmel, Faure, General de Frescheville, Granier de Cassagnac (Paul), de Guil-loutet, count of Juigné, of Kergariou, Labat, baron de Ladoucette, Marquis de La Ferronnays, de La Mar-

nière, de Lamarzelle, de Lareinty, de Largentaye, La Rochefoucauld, Duke of Doudeauville, Marquis of La Rochejacquelin, Le Cerf, Arthur Legrand, prince of Léon, Le Roux, Marshal, Count of Mun, of Mon-

128 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

téty, Neyrand, Cuneo d'Ornano, Peyrusse, Piou, Louis Passy, Prenat, Roques, Schneider, Marquis de Solages.

Among the journalist-MPs, the whole opposing group The tunicist naturally voted for the monopoly: Arena, Francis Charmes, Deloncle, Antonin Dubost, Granet, Georges Graux, Gustave Izambert, Henri Lavertujon, Mézières, Noël Parfait, Dionys Ordinaire, Joseph Reinach.

Henri Fouquier, whom no one would have ever thought capable of this vile act, also voted against the rights of his colleagues.

The same was true of Count Douville-Mailfire, to whom I would have attributed more elevated feelings less tenderness and less affection for monopolies. It seems that he thinks like Hachette and that he finds that he is It's more moral to show butts than ideas.

Writers, journalists or editors of the day-citizens who honored themselves by their vote for liberty and who spoke out against the agenda, pure and simple were: MM. Maurice Barrès, Castelin, Ciémenceau, Jules Delafosse, Déroulède, Ernest Desgardens, Camille Dreyfus, Hovelacque, Henri de Lacretelle, Laguerre, Laïisant, Lalou, Laur, Lockroy, Maujan, Millerand, Alfred Naquet, Camille Pelletan, Pontois, Tony Révillon, Robert Mitchell Viscount of Villebois-Mareuil.

Among those who abstained were: Mr. Delahaye, Henry Maret, Cuneo d'Ornano, Sourigues.

With the candor of the simple-minded, Bournand, very admittedly-noting the role played by Mr. de Cassagnac in the past, had used as an epigraph to his book a phrase from the Director of the Authority. Mr. de Cassagnac should have, he I feel touched by this tribute which was paid to him. rendered by a convinced naiveté; he could have given to less the support of his vote to protest against the ostra-cism, which this book, written in defense of the clergy, had was struck while they were being welcomed in the stations Mendes' erotic works and the pornographies of

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 129

Zola; he abstained, although he attended the session.

Here, there is no ambiguity. The minister for whom
The good Catholics on the Right voted, Mr. Yves Guyot, who was the old, little employee of this lantern who poured on the cassocked, the Vobiscum and the Sisters of Charity with full baskets of filth.

No doubt, with his usual cynicism, Diogenes of Lanterne, the former defender of the little guys, the founder-the head of the League Against Abuse, had spoken out favoring the rich against the poor; he had decidedclarified that in his eyes the railway companies were right to deal with a large company like Hachette, rather than with poor devils provincial booksellers, but, faced with the evidence, he had to declare that the State was free to oppose this monopoly.

The Chamber's right was therefore absolute. By suppressing-
By maintaining this monopoly, the Right was not at risk either to deprive the State of resources necessary for balance of its budget. Indeed, from an article in the notebook of charges that Laur placed before the deputies, he
The result was that the exclusive monopoly on the roads of State iron was granted to the Hachette company for the a paltry sum of 2,370 francs |

It is under these conditions that the members of the
The right wing, whose names I gave you, have pro-strongly condemned the bookstore which banned books like The Clergy under the Third Republic- . republic to grant its favors to the literature of lust

'and ass.

These words may seem harsh to the people of Lévis-Mirepeas, to the people of Moustiers, to the people of Montsaunin and to the Reille, who are probably very distinguished people in their remarks, but it is good that we know the literature-
The scratch they protect. The Mouquette shows her arse.
Nana's lovers indulge in rutting and the person-

Pot-Bouille swimmers take their pants off in front of the public.

I hope my readers will not forget this; they will remember this brave Bournand who refused to imitate Zola and to dishonor his talent with pornographic tasks—graphics, but quite legitimately relying on the The proceeds from his book were used to feed his family. "That's it." "The loyal man," they will say to themselves. They will also remember Mr. de Lanjuinais, one of the major landowners of France, supposedly ten million rich, displaying religious sentiments to be named and refusing to help with his vote the Christian writer whose book was chased from the stations. "That one," they'll say, "is the hypo—" "Write, he who puts on a disgraceful act."

130 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The modest provincial booksellers whose support is not always to be disregarded in times of crisis they may we can also draw more than one useful lesson from this story They will not lose sight of the fact that Maurice Barrès and Laur presented a very fair request on their behalf; they demanded that the right to sell at the station be put auctioned in each city. A bookseller having even a small customer base could thus have expanded a its trade, slightly increase its profits files.

It was the members of the Right who united. to the most despicable opportunists to prevent this reform, which was not excessive at all.

To make the table complete, we would need to list them. all those jokers: mothers, wives, daughters, sisters, aunts, or nieces have spoken about the need to de—defending social principles: "Where are we going? the cor—Moral decline... The bad books that are circulating everywhere... Ah! my beautiful one, it's the new generation—that frightens me... If you only knew what we put into... held in the hands of youth. Scenes of Debauchery, my dear lady, enough to make one shudder... Father X' I was told about it the other day... The dear man was very moved...

— that there are men who do not They don't get hurt. Your husband is one of them.

– Ah! yes, the valiant one!

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION. 431

– Still on the front line?

– Always! Night and day.

Total: when it comes to defending our rights in Parliament
The right-wing MPs, meanwhile, are showing themselves off laughing.
the juicy passages from Mendès' books and Zola and, after voting for Guyot, they go to the refreshments while humming.

The rut! The rut! The rut!
The rut! That's all there is.

Above all these petty speculators, of all these second-order monopolists, hovering in a Glory to the god Rothschild.

It is increasingly asserting itself with a more pronounced relief.
this exorbitant power operating under conditions absolutely extraordinary and which have not had any predecessors in the past.

This man is neither Emperor, nor Czar, nor King, nor Sultan, nor President of the Republic; he is not a Auffete as in Carthage, a Lucumon as in the Etruscans, a Vergobret like among the Gauls;
He has none of the responsibilities of authority, and he has all the advantages; he has all the government resources, from all of France's resources for his private affairs.

The general union bothers the Master; he has it broken by a minister like Léon Say, as he himself declared to be merely his employee; the Discount Bank casts a shadow, he destroys it and, when the countryside that he has led to what seems likely to place a certain burden on him Rouvier absolves him of responsibility by forcing the Bank from France to an advance of one hundred and forty million. He can risk the boldest blows since, when By chance he went too far; he has the treasure of France at his disposal and that, at his signal, the Bank France sends seventy-five million in gold to the Bank of England, which would never have given us back such a service.

132. THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

No one protests, and when Laur, tireless in his zeal for the public good, tries to condemn from the podium those who drain our gold for the benefit of foreign countries, Floquet prevents him from speaking and Laur is reduced to publisher, in his journal, the War on Abuses (1), the speech that he was unable to deliver in the House.

It was only two months later, when the operation... It has borne all its fruit, that Laur can reach the tribune and, once again, he said some excellent things, he lavishes upon his country the most salutary warnings; he shows us Rothschild using the Bank of France for its treasury combinations.

Within the Bank's board, which is responsible for regulation the operations of this national establishment, there are individuals with a vested interest in international operations whose secret mission appears to be to weaken France economically economic by facilitating the export of our gold abroad. I don't speak lightly.

Mr. de Rothschild, regent of the Bank of France, is a one of the most zealous exporters of French gold. He made some shipments, which I know of, of 15, 18 and up to 24 million gold; He has, along with his signature and that of two or three other people, swimming as solvent as he is, with a simple stroke of the pen, millions of dollars in gold from the Bank of France. He proved it during of the 75 million loan to the Bank of England: the following day In the course of this operation, he himself was keen to assert himself in sending 24 million worth of precious metal to England.

These millions were taken from his current account.

I say that, under these conditions, the function of regent Mr. de Rothschild's position is incompatible with the title of Head of International Banks. (Interruptions.)

Yes, I readily admit that, as regents of the Bank From France, we have figures like Léon Say, like Mr. de Soubeyran, or others who are French bankers. But you should have Semites for this function who are cosmopolitan interests, in Germany, in England, which They have, so to speak, no homeland, I consider, I repeat,

(4) The War on Abuses, November 20, 1840

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 133

– and the public is with me, – that this is impossible longer. (Further interruptions on various benches (1).)

Will it still be claimed that these are the imaginations that haunt the brain of the courageous interpella-teur? But this role played by the Rothschilds, this power-the power of the Frankfurt bankers to dispose of as they pleased resources from our large national institution
These are facts that the English themselves acknowledge.
It is not France they are thanking for the competition which was given to them, but the Rothschilds.

I can provide, Laur adds, in support of this assertion a decisive argument. Do you know, gentlemen, how the Governor of the Bank of England himself, Williams Lidderdale appreciated the 75 million loan you have Made at this credit institution? It's a masterpiece. of ingratitude. He said, in his own words, in a speech in reply to that of Mr. Rhotheby-Price, chairman of the stock-London exchange:

"Gentlemen, at the moment when you thank the Bank

From England, it is essential to recall the spon- assistance
The kind and cordial reception she received from various people...
First and foremost, we will mention Lord Rothschild, whose influence the Bank of France obtained from this establishment resources without which we could not have provided to provide, as we have done, a contribution that is useful to the country.

Therefore, gentlemen, the Governor of the Bank of England
He himself states that it is thanks to his influence over the Bank from France, from Mr. Rothschild, from whom we were able to obtain the famous loan of 75 million in gold.

"MR. THE MINISTER OF FINANCE. – It's not the same

Mr. Francis Laur. – This is even more serious than Lord

Rothschild, an Englishman, had over his cousin, the French regent of the Bank of our country, such influence that one can to say, in a speech, that, thanks to a foreign Rothschild, The Bank of France was able to disburse 73 million in gold.

I say that this fact alone proves two things: the ingratitude of the Bank of England for the 75 million loan that you

(1) Official Journal of 18 January 1890.

134 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

you did it to him and, at the same time, the predominant influence the Rothschilds, partners, allied, in international finance national; this acknowledged influence, we must not tire of it repeating it imposes on Mr. de Rothschild the obligation to give his resignation of the regent of the Bank of France.

Yes, gentlemen, I ask it with the utmost vigor, because I am convinced that there is a public danger here.

A few voices. – Very good! Very good!

Mr. Francis LauR. – I am convinced that the operation of the The draining of gold into France is led, along with Mr. Bleischræder, by this organization and the leading German bankers, all the Rothschilds from Germany, England and France who are at the head of this company.

Anti-Semitism, it must be admitted, presented itself this time with his true character on the field economic and social. If the Right had had the feeling– As a national figure, she only had to approve Laur.

You don't know the Conservatives. In the middle poorly suppressed snickers from the Left, a man rises to defend the operation carried out by the Rothschilds! He congratulates the Bank for having obeyed; he insists, in his own words, on addressing "his Compliments" to Rouvier. A little more, he suggests... would put on his parliamentary badges and go do a walk with him in the courtyard of the Fountains.

This man is our Lanjuinais from earlier. the one who voted in favor of the Hachette monopoly, out of admiration for Pot-Bouille and Nana.

We must always see the contrast between these things, even to find one of the small churches of this Morbihan that Lan-Juneais represents. The little church is quite bare. very inviting to contemplation as well; the vaults are attached tiny boats that the sailors had hung as votive offerings. In the morning or at dusk The rector comes to pray there for his Catholic community during the day. deputies, and these Catholic deputies go up to the tribune to defend Rouvier and Rothschild, the spe-Jewish farmers and bankers!

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 135

To what extent did the Jews, absolute masters of The Bank of France, do they use our large established-National unity to support their manipulations? doesn't know. Advances at the Discount Bank and The demonstrations are taking place at the Bank of England. admitted to a state of affairs that everyone suspects-conne, but the Jews acting with the complicity of government, it is impossible to observe the smaller transfers of funds, easy to conceal through simple writing exercises.

In his latest volume: 0% is money? Chirac declares "that the Bank of France, in asserting that it has two and a half billion in cash on hand, deceives the public, that it conceals a deficit of more than one billion and that its financial statements are false.

I do not take responsibility for these figures. because the author has more expertise than I do in the financial questions. What is certain is what gou-the government should have put the socialist writer in de-dies to prove what he claims in such a way energetic way. The deputies could not ignore the publication of this volume, since Chirac took care to send a copy himself to the President of the Room. (1)

(1) Here is the courageous letter and Lie that accompanied the shipment da volume:

"Mr. President,

"Despite the deplorable indifference with which they have been welcomed the warnings contained in my letter of 18 November 1885, addressed to you, a letter which was accompanied by... the sending of my book entitled The Kings of the Republic, and of which The predictions have been sadly punished by events, I believe. I would fail in my civic duty if, this time again and for to enlighten the Chamber of Deputies, I was not sending you my New book titled: Where is the money?

"In this book, in fact, I demonstrate that the Bank of France conceals a metal deficit exceeding one billion.

"I hope you will be willing to publicize this new development."

136 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Abroad, everyone is aware of this situation. At the anti-Semitic meeting in Vienna this month of last December, Mr. Lueger, the valiant deputy Catholic who fights with such fearlessness against the Jews, whose attitude contrasts with that of Lanjuinais and his sad friends on the Right, expressed the es- hope to see France represented at the next con- sandstone.

He said it was possible that at our next meeting, we We also saw some French people; we will greet them with all our... heart, because France too is suffering, and she is suffering even more than us, because in name it is governed by servants of Jews, and indeed by the Jewish Rothschild. Even the English, those spec- cultures par excellence, the most trafficked people among the The Aryan peoples had to learn the hard way what it was. than to find themselves under the yoke of the Rothschilds.

Mr. Lueger is correct in stating that the France is suffering even more than Austria. In Germany Magne and Austria, the governments are without doubt at the mercy of the Jews, but they still have enough force to prevent them from conspiring openly against the countries of which they are nominally citizens and to ruin their nation of origin for the benefit of the nations enemies. Mr. Gustave Rouanet, who nevertheless defends himself- dant de être antisémite, has indeed highlighted this point.

No doubt, he writes, the French organization does not differ substantially similar to that of neighboring countries that share our borders, by the tentacles of the same capitalist octopus that engreenhouses on all sides. But no country has seen development sending to the Chamber of Deputies which, at present and more than never, must feel the need to inquire and educate oneself, if She does not want to push the country further into the horrors of famine,

"I am, Mr. President, your humble and devoted citizen.

Signed: Auguste Cnirac.

Paris, December 5, 1890.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 137

to the same degree economic anarchy as the practices of liberalism has introduced into ours. No government- He has not abdicated, like that of the French Republic, the powers of authority and the duties of "social welfare" whose absence leaves us at the mercy of a handful of parasites and hoarders, who have become the arbiters of our existence national security itself!

England, Germany, Austria, and Italy have their own capitalist class whose rapacity is in no way inferior to its greed of ours: none of these nations, however, has consented, like us, by systematically turning a blind eye to the maneuvers of international capitalism. On the contrary, by- ' all governments, concerned about the vital interests of their their respective peoples, have striven to make the capital serve lism in the defense of their national interests, and, if the pro- The clergy formulate ardent political and social demands. civils against their governments, at least they wouldn't know how. accuse of handing the country over to the enemy. Let us study the actions of the... English, German, or Austro-Hungarian finance, we will not see it not, like French finance, working to ruin the in- influence of the country from which it drains savings and squanders the riches (1).

Nothing could be more accurate. In Germany and Austria-Hungary, the Jews of the High Bank operate on the in- 'Digenean; in France they operate against him in favor of the enemy; elsewhere they are content to speculate and ex-

To exploit, in France they betray...

It is only in France that Jews dare to negotiate cases like this sale of Suez shares handled in Rothschild's office and which delivered forever to England this Egypt which owed its rebirth to 'our capital and where France's influence was just-than then dominant.

Only in our country can one find a goua rather corrupt government and rather vile members of parliament to allow Rothschild to support, in hatred of France, with French capital, this insolent

(1) Socialist Review, November 1880.

138 THE WILL OF AN ANTISENITE

Italy, which would be bankrupt immediately if the the Triple Alliance banker did not maintain artificial-skywardly the rate of the Italian annuity. The army of-destined to invade us, the fleets that are to bombard our ports, the necessary strategic railways to transport the soldiers who will kill our people, everything is paid with French money! Do you know in History provides one example, a single one, of such madness.
of a similar intellectual decline in a people?

At the end, as at the beginning of this Ei, we will find as a characteristic symptom, mental deficiency, brain atrophy. Among the French today-Today, many, alas! correspond to what is called In medicine, the Degenerates; they are incapable of the effort required to focus one's attention on a at this point, unable to compare two ideas, to follow a They reason, to form a personal opinion.
are trained for work, as are some animals which we manage to get to do surprising exercises nants, but they don't have a notion of the value of money-people who earn from this work; they are like the children who were given a louis as a gift and who are delighted to exchange it for a picture.

Of the thousands of French people who exchanged Louis against images bearing these words: "Borrowing from the Argentine Republic, loans from Guatemala, from Uruguay, Costa Rica or Honduras", there are none Not ten who would have been able to tell you where they are exactly located these bizarre countries in which erupts an insurrection every two weeks.

– Are you familiar with the province of Corrientes?

– No.

– And the province of Mendoza?

– No more than that.

–And the province of Catamarca?

– No more...

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 139

– And on the appeal of a leaflet you lend to inhabitants of these provinces a money that you refuse– You're definitely laughing at your best friend?

– Perfectly.

All these loans were indeed taken out. The Jews gave some funds to these singular Republics They kept the rest for themselves and bought the... magnificent hotels where you see them enthroned today. We will always repeat it; since they they had nothing when they came to our house, he They had to get the money from somewhere. have (1)...

(1) Of the 37 billion that France owes, Mr. Camille Pelletan claims that only 8 million were taken as brokerage fees by the cosmopolitan High Bank. This figure is much lower than the reality.

Every day the Jews pull off huge stunts like this. Ephrussi, with the complicity of the Orléans family who put They are ruining all the influence they have there at their disposal. Portugal.

The French who were naive enough to take the last Portuguese loan subscribers were paid out at 67 francs.

The Portuguese received 42 francs.

Therefore, there is a 24-point difference between the amount received and the amount paid, 33 percent, one third usury for the commission.

Note that Portugal is absolutely unable to do faced with these loans. The income which is not susceptible to any The increase is barely 220 million and every year there a deficit of 50 million; this country has no choice but to follow the example of Turkey and to go bankrupt.

140 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

IV

THE JEWISH QUESTION ABROAD

The French are ignorant of everything that is happening abroad.
– Wilhelm II. – The beginnings of a reign. – Israel resumes possession of the Emperor. – A statement from the Archives Israelites. – Ahasuerus–William and Mordecai–Singer. – The Badhan. – Triumph of Miquel. – A German Rouvier. – Stæcker's disgrace. – A good deal and a bad one Action. – The Tsar's greatness of soul. – The Jews in Russia. – Industrial syphilis. – An article from Word. – Dangers that threaten the Tsar. – The Jew Adler. – An insulter of the France decorated by the French government. – Disdainful Mr. de Koûtzebue's reply. – The death of Alexander II. –: The Nihilists betray their race. – The assassination of Bralystok. – Sir Henry Isaacs's meeting of indignation. – A people of cannibals. – England and Ireland. – Philanthropy by Jameson. – Anglican bishops. – The exploits of Sir Henry Isaacs in Paris. – The store on the Grands Boulevards.

While it is so difficult for the French to know this what's happening at their place, we'll explain what events From the outside, they receive only distorted, denatured things. transvestites...

In reality, the French are born knowing what's going on abroad than what they are willing to teach them Jew Rosenthal, the Jacques Sincère of Le Figaro who had to formerly leaving Germany somewhat hastily and without to leave behind regrets.

You can guess what happens under the pen of this reptile everything related to the Jewish question in Germany Magne and Russia.

Nothing, however, is more interesting to study, because it is one of the striking manifestations of the rivalry which exists between Wilhelm II, the German Emperor and Alexander III, the Tsar of all the Russias.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 141

Since our France, saddled with the yellow rag, has, we hope, temporarily renounced filling His mission, there are two powers present. Two sovereigns appear in the front row on the stage of the world to vie for moral supremacy more important even more than material hegemony, the direction of this Europe so deeply troubled by the Jewish practices and ideas.

Who will be the great Emperor? people are wondering. When the ephemeral sovereign that the people of Berlin had nicknamed Cahen I' had finished returning all his mucus and that William IT had taken possession of this throne that he had so ardently coveted, one could believe a for a moment that he would be the great man, the being of election that Destiny calls by its name for some extraordinary role.

Young Caesar suddenly appeared before everyone with a sort of grandeur made of memories of the past and aspirations towards the future. Words attributed to him were quoted which seemed to portray him as a knight of old, determined to to put force at the service of justice, ready to cover with his sword the disinherited of this world, those who tra- those who are worthwhile and who suffer, those who produce and those who Parasites exploit without mercy. He had around him men whose friendship honored him, Waldersée, Stoecker – a soldier, a priest agreed to condemn the special- culations of Israel and to curse this fatal art of enriching oneself by creating poverty, which is characteristic of Jewish.

For a moment, the Jews looked at each other in terror. They said to themselves, "After all these operetta kings of which we

We've made our toys, so what will we find opposite us?
from us the Prince who understands his mission, the Prince who knows that God put the crown on his head for
"To defend the people of whom he is the leader?"

It was the young people who spoke like that. The white Jewschis in all forms of corruption and who have expé-These old matrons do not believe in Virtue and

142 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They said to each other, "We'll have to see!" They saw and they sat down they soon realized that this man, whose appearance was youthful had frightened them, was only a reflection of individuality; they were able to convince themselves that the noble words which had struck Europe, had been dictated to him by the illustrious friends who surrounded him. He was a canary who re-he was breaking a lesson he had learned; to teach him another
The lesson was simple: all you had to do was throw him some millet.
of the banal advertisement that had already been used to blackmail Jewish airs on poor Archduke Rudolph.

It's the eternal story: when a being of some apparent value is revealed, the Jew prowls around him, a little trembling at first; then he approaches, makes smiles: as soon as he is convinced that the character has nothing terrible, he becomes emboldened by dishonorable familiarities Rantes, he pats her on the stomach, calls to her: "My little old woman," and finally said to her, "Give me your hand, that I defecate in it.

The Semites are at this point with William and public-
They start comparing it to this Schanababan of Assyria, who is called Ahasuerus.

It was Mr. Singer who came up with this great idea in the Jewish archives. This Mr. Singer is one of those Jews exasperated people who sometimes put in the Archives a a harsh note, which is unusual for this excellent Isidore Cahen, that our friend Jean Drault persists, I do not I know why, to call Cacahen. He begins by dedeclare that he will blow the brains out of the Anti-Semites of Vienna, which he calls Rosche; it is true that he writes that of Paris and that, if he were in the Prater, in front of these intrepid men named Schneider, Ver-Gani, Pattai, Luëger, Cornelius Vetter, he is content-probably wanted to burn their bridges and dis-Get well soon.

In any case, this Singer directly challenges us.
Mr. Bismarck and he said to him without further preamble:

I urge you to reread Esther's magnificent book where you
You will find the typical story of Haman and Mordecai. Ha-

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 143

man, the all-powerful minister is you, my lord; Ahasuerus is William and Mordecai is socialism German, inaugurated by the Jews Lassalle and Marx, and continued by my namesake and fellow believer Singer.

You wanted to humiliate and annihilate Mordecai, and that is you the great chancellor who became his victim (4).

It is impossible to make Guillaume feel better
What a vile bunch he's allied himself with! The Singer of Berlin, the one to whom the Singer of Paris invites Guillaume to to be taken for a ride through the city on a white horse:
personifies, in its most despicable aspect, the Exploitative and deceitful socialism, Jewish socialism if different from true Socialism. This so-called friend of the people runs one of the most important factories in Berlin and it is famous for its ruthless harshness with which he treats his female workers. He was the one who answered to someone, who was pointing out the contrast to him
His words and actions, this appalling statement:
"It is true that I pay my workers very poorly, but They are free at eight o'clock and, at that hour, there are
"There are still men in the streets."

It's clear that this German Singer has everything it needs.
to play the role of Mordecai and that, if William has
If she needs an Esther, he'll take care of providing her.
at affordable prices...

Ahasuerus, moreover, is the name that is pronounced publically. Among themselves, in private, the German Jewsmands, from the top banker to the last Itzig from Berlin, simply designate William under 'the name of Badhan.

The Badhan is a type in Jewish life (2). He does part of the orchestra of musicians that the Kahal inter-covers its own expenses and provides for weddings. That is, at at once, a factotum, a jester, an improviser of in-

(4) Israeli Archives, October 16, 1890.

(2) See Jewish Russia, by Kalixt de Wolski.

144 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

endless speeches. He cannot remain in place, like The German Emperor, he meddles in everything, he intervenes in every way, just like Guillaume; he amuses society by the exaggerated importance he gives himself; he will seek
He himself arranges the cars for the wedding, assigning each one a seat.
From his place, he oversees the preparations for the golden soup.
that the newlyweds should eat after the ceremony mony named Kadouchine, the presentation of the ring or of the silver coin.

With their parody instincts, their terrible gift for to grasp the grotesque and ugly side of a human physiognomy Maine, the Jews were struck down at Guillaume's house.
The need to always be in the spotlight, the absence absolute mastery of this self-mastery that the Tsar possesses sedation to such a high degree, and they took their revenge with this nickname of the sovereign whom they had once feared ment.

In this path, we don't stop, and Guillaume... managed to appoint Miquel as finance minister.
This Miquel was always considered to be Jewish, but, from When this question is addressed in a newspaper, one receives a letter from Ms. Mina Miquel, cousin of the Miquel in question, who tells you at length about the perekinships of this family. Which, for a Christian family-yours, seems to us to have traveled as much as the Jew-Errant: A Miquel was said to have been a companion of Henry IV;
He would then have gone to the Netherlands where he would having become a fencing master in the company of guards-of the body of the Prince-Bishop of Munster. One of his descendants would have practiced medicine in the county
- from Bentheim and, in order to marry a Lutheran woman, he would have embraced Protestantism.

In any case, if this Miquel is not Jewish, he is worthy of being so. He is one of the most dreadful pirates of the German finance, one of Erlanger's operating in his country. Having become a member of the Prussian Landtag, he was a agents of the pact concluded before the Franco-Prussian War of 1870

.

,

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 145

between Germany and European Jewry for this the French campaign which was above all an operation financial. In exchange for the Jews' cooperation, he-mandated the vote on this law of June 27, 1870, which liberated shunned joint-stock companies from all control and all state surveillance and which allowed the raids financial matters that followed the war.

Once peace was signed, he threw himself headlong into ambiguous operations. The Universe, one of the rare Parisian newspapers that sometimes tell the truth about men and things from abroad, the curriculum vitae of this high-flying buccaneer.

After the war, Mr. Miquel's first business was the Union of Dortmund, a kind of union founded with the Han Jews Semann of Berlin, Abraham Oppenheim of Cologne, and the Rothschild of Frankfurt. This affair was for the market
- German what the Copper Affair was for the French marketçais.

Mr. Miquel launched his shares with a premium of 40 percent.
and pushed them from 110 to 228; when the German dupes had in their portfolio, they went down to 12, that is to say still above their actual value.

But appetite came with eating. Dortmunder Union was nothing compared to the Discount Store (Disconto Gesellschaft). This "creation" was also mounted by Mr. Miquel and the Jew Hansemann. After having scoured this
- business, they founded the Discount Sub-Company (Provinzial Disconto Gesellschaft) with capital of 10 million ECU.

40 percent had to be paid per nominal figure of actions, and from their appearance the unreleased shares were sold and pushed to 150; they then fell to 70.

We will only mention the Chemin affair in passing. of the Berlin metropolitan railway, where, thanks to Mr. Miquel, the State

The Prussian squandered 7 million écus in a lost cause; the affair the abolition of the pawnshop, which opened the doors to
- shady lenders and those involved in shady repurchase agreements, etc. (1).

After the crash of 1873, in which Miquel had

(1) Universe, March 20, 1889.

146 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the main role, old William had ordered legal action against the unscrupulous financier and his accomplices, and he was going to be taken to the prison of Moabit, when the Rothschilds' intervention saved him.

A few days later, he was recognized by his victims.
in Unter den Linden, half-stunned by blows from umbrella and plunged into the mud.

This was the man that Wilhelm II dreamed of making a Grand Chancellor and whom he made a Minister of Finance, replacing Mr. Scholz, at one point where all popular desires are unleashed, where honest people would be needed to inspire Those who are below, respect those who are above.
high.

You see what one should think of this sovereign whom one portrayed as having a kind of mystical faith in his mission, as personifying a general ideal-hollow and high.

He is indeed the Englishwoman's son, the Protestant Tartuffe.
a crowned General Booth, making evangelical sermons gelics to all branches of the state, to officers, to pro-teachers, recommending morality and virtue to them and appointing swindlers as ministers.

Who doesn't remember the extravagant speech he delivered?
by the Emperor at the conference of the masters of teaching upper gear:

I would have been very satisfied, said William, if we hadn't not named these examinations, these negotiations, from the word fran-Sçais Schulenquête, but from the German name Schulfrage. Frage (question) is the old German word that designates the search-ches. Let us therefore use ADI from the word Schulfrage (school question).

This petty way of reducing everything to questions
Doesn't the sheer number of words give you an idea of narrowness?
From this brain? This sovereign, flanked by his former tutor Hinzpeter, who became an aulic councillor, who comes to discuss 'solemnly' such nonsense,

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 147

Doesn't he remind you of Chilperic wanting everything price to add two more letters to the alphabet and condamning to be skinned alive a schoolmaster who had protested against this innovation?

Poor Pet-de-Loup, who stops at these quibbles. of grammarians, don't you see that the teaching-the need, above all, for our unbalanced generations brées, that's moral teaching, that's the example of the Virtue honored, Probity rewarded, that is the affirmation-
Is a moral principle being applied in governments?
What use will it be to young people, to guide them in life, knowing how to do, as you say, a good composition on Minna from Barnhelm of the Jew Lessing, if, by raising their eyes towards the throne, they percethey are using a crooked financier chosen by you as their middleman Minister, invested with your trust, decorated by you with The Red Eagle?

It must be added that the young Emperor is only half responsible. It is rare for the disabled to have full-study of their faculties and Dumas made this point well light with Gambetta, this Cyclops who only glimpsed that half of creation, which, clairvoyant for all that which pertained to material things, was blind for everything that was honor, justice, honesty.

With his morbid vanity, his crippled arm, his ears still blocked by pus and the inevitable the cancer that he feels growing inside him, poor Badhan was destined to become what it is, an amusement for the Jews who, by means of a few articles in these newspapers, which he pretends to despise but which he reads They eagerly lead him by the nose... He's a unfortunate, moreover; he always falls off his horse;

In his audience with the Pope, he lets his helmet on the ground; at the major maneuvers in Russia, He is caught in a ridiculous situation and the Tsar is forced to tell him, paternally and with a hint of disdain noticed by everyone: "Sit next to me; he won't Nothing will happen to you...

148 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

One can imagine the despair of the socialist group. Christians who surrounded Stæcker upon seeing the German Magne delivered to the Miquels; they had dreamed of reform-my fruitful ones being fulfilled from above, from a return to the ideas of morality and justice that make up nations great and happy peoples; and he was the sovereign he himself who delivered his country to all the plunderers from Israel...

A new disappointment was in store for these men. from the heart.

William followed the usual path of princes in-Jews, he imitated the example of the Prince of Wales who maintained by Hirsch and Archduke Rudolph who owed it to all the bankers of Vienna. It happened to put his friends up for auction, to make a bargain of the Siæcker's disgrace! Bleischræder deposited the money on The table was set and the pact concluded.

The Emperor, it is true, was for a moment furious against Bleischræder, who had told this story, which well-The news spread quickly throughout Germany. The newspapers, the AZ!g-Meine Zeitung of Munich, in particular, endeavored to deny this account, but their explanations are embarrassing-The contradictory and misleading arguments failed to convince anyone.

Nero, no doubt, had also dismissed Burrhus. But at least he hadn't been paid for it. by the Publicans. William II, in brutally chasing away-those who had been the advisors and guides Despite his honest youth, he acted like a complete prince. modern: he found a way to make a good deal with a bad deed.

While Guillaume turns to Don Pedro, the bur-that emperor who tore his trousers to run faster to visit the synagogues and who now does readings in the academies, the Tsar of all the Russia appears majestic in its calm and in its majesty; he has the grandeur of a man who is in contemplation and who remains silent.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 149

It seems that it is definitely him whom the Providence was chosen to be the representative of civilization-Western tradition.

The Jewish question naturally arises before him.

To William IT, the Jews said: "You know, if you want to have what is called in terms of ball-vard "good press", if you want to hear all the reptiles of Europe whistle tunes in your honor negro, deliver your people to the exploitation of the friends of Miquel.

And Guillaume replied: "I agree!"

To the Tsar, who is not a puffed-up young man out of foolish vanity like William, another was held language. He was told:

"If you do not betray the sacred interests that God has placed you in his hands; the Jews will kill you. German Jews, the Lavrenius, the Reinstein, the Mendelsohn, the Brombergs, the Gunzburgs, sure of the complicity of Germany and England, tries- They'll kill you. Those people are too cowardly. to arm themselves with the dagger of Aristogiton, of Brutus, d'Arena or de Milano, from Alibaud's own pistol or of Pianori, but in the universities of which you their You opened access too generously, they learned the terrible secrets of chemistry and they will use them against you.

With the quiet resolve that characterizes him, the magnificent contempt he feels for the German agents To those who conspired against him, the Tsar replied:

"I am not afraid. My duty is to prevent a Yuddis' gang is putting millions of men to work. for his own benefit, he put pressure on the workers to extract gold. fields and cities and plunders through usury those who managed to save a few kopecks... »

It was at this point that the measures were decided.
against which the newspapers affiliated with the Jewish community have conducted such a noisy campaign throughout Europe.

Nothing can give an idea of what Jews are like

150 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

of Poland and Russia. They annihilated the populations—entire villages were poisoned with brandy.
born. I owe my heritage to a great Polish lord.
directly this subject, which is the counterpart of the word épou—
The Singer building in Berlin is a good example.

An eight-year-old child walks along the road. The cabaret—
A Jewish man calls out to him from the threshold of his cabaret.

— Hey! little one! Stop for a moment, I'm going to offer you a glass of brandy.

And he pours the kid a huge swig of brandy.
adulterated...

The lord approaches the innkeeper:

Why corrupt this child? You have no right to do so.
interest since he doesn't pay you.

"No doubt," the other replied with a sinister smile.
People of his own race, he doesn't pay me... but, you see—
You have to get them used to it from a very young age.

The Jews succeeded in infecting part of Rus—sie. The proof of this, we find it, not in brochures or books written with the aim of fighting Jewish influence, but in one of these works all special cases, which should preferably be consulted if one wants to know the exact state of a country.

Syphilis, writes an eminent scholar, Mr. Podolinsky (1),

(1) Podolinsky's work was published in the accounts Proceedings of the Congress of the French Association for the Advancement of the sciences. (Congress of Montpellier, 1879, p. 863, under the title (Next: Health status of the population in the Kislo government.)

Mr. Louis Jullien quoted this passage in the Practical Treatise on Venereal diseases. (Paris, 1886.)

Mr. Jullien adds:

"Doubts having been raised about the accuracy of this account, I have gathered information at the very heart of the country which have only confirmed it. At most, one can assume that Podolinsky somewhat romanticized the facts, which were, incidentally, accurate. My obliging correspondent informs me that the lower class designates He still refers to syphilis under the name of the French disease: he insists particularly on the fact that the perpetrators of these shameful The people hired are Jews, who will stop at nothing.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 151

is the main scourge of rural populations; in some In villages, at least a third of the inhabitants are infected. 'Kiew's government is more affected than any other, in rail- the sound of the numerous refineries and beet plantations raves, where work is organized in a vicious and dangerous way- gerant for public health. The contractors of tra- valleys, mostly Jewish, not easily finding the large quantity of workers needed for the cultivation of the beet- teraves, imagined attracting the younger generation of the vi- by combining orgy with work, by offering water-of- life and by playing music several times a day, by having young men and women sleep together, in a word by offering every opportunity for debauchery. These Hundreds of young people from the villages are leaving their homes their parents, go to spend two or three months at the plan- beetroot cultivation, in an impure and unhealthy environment, where They spend their entire salary and contract syphilis. young girls who spent a season in the beet fields are very difficult to retain at home; in the spring, from that they see the musicians arriving, seated on floats- Koreans, they let themselves be abducted, only to return to... at the end of the season, tired, depraved, sick.

As for wear and tear, it exceeds anything one could imagine. Giner. The story of this unfortunate man has been cited twenty times. Russian peasant who, in exchange for a five-ruble note, In the end, he received nothing at all.

Our valiant colleague, the man from Lille, who by the pen and the pencil made the Jews who were in the process of ra-

Vager Lille, a war that earned him everyone's respect good people, he wittily recounted this anecdote-famous dowry in Russia: *

A Russian peasant goes to a Jewish moneylender and begs him-request to borrow five rubles (20 francs) for one month.

"I'm willing to lend you five rubles," said the Israelite, "but on the condition that you return eight of them to me in a month.

to plunder the peasants and enrich themselves with their spoils, His conclusion, for which I in no way accept responsibility, is worth noting reproduced as a document: "The real scourge is the Jew."

152 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The peasant hesitated a little, then, pressed by need, he accepted.

"But," the other replied, "I'm used to taking the interest in advance; therefore I will give you three rubles, and You'll owe me five more.

The poor peasant is not happy; this does not suit him account; losing, rather than having nothing, he agrees With the new combination, he signs a note to the Jew and receives three rubles. Just as he was about to go through the door, the moneylender He reminds us:

– Listen, I know it will be very difficult for you to give me back five rubles at the end of the month; give me two now and You will give me three of them by the due date.

"That's true," said the peasant. And he gave him two rubles.

"Well," the Jew continued, "on reflection, it..."
It seems you don't need much of the ruble you have left.
Remels-le-moi, you'll only owe me two more!

The peasant, bewildered by all these accounts, understands nothing. gives his last ruble and leaves. Naturally, the month Once that has happened, he must pay the five rubles, the amount of the ticket. wrote to the praetor.

Those who would accuse me of exaggeration will do well to read an article published in the North at the time when England displayed the insolent pretension of to meddle in Russian affairs, and who, writing in the good French of the seventeenth century, is a masterpiece of persiflage in its deliberate moderation silence.

The Jewish Press, true to its established tactics against us, they always talk about religious persecution. _whereas it is only an economic question and social.

There is no religious persecution in Russia, the responder North, here's what you find: in Russia, as everywhere else, there is... Elsewhere, the invasion of the native Aryan by the Semite, which has befallen the country in its migrations and its pere-grinations.

The Semite in the crowd, very intelligent, very cunning, few scrupulous, greedy, and shameless with the Russian people, which he exploits with all the ingenuity of his race. Fleeing the agricultural work, highly skilled in shady dealings, ca-Barefoot barter and small-time loan shark in the villages money changer, toilet- merchant, usurer, patron of the mai-sons Tellier, dispatcher of personnel for the harems and the Eastern brothels in the cities, broker under all the forms, without entrails everywhere, that is the commonality of its vocations.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 153

When he rises through the liberal professions, he does not rise not always morally. Moreover, he shirks his duty. military using such methods and in such proportions such that the law is obliged to combat this pre- desertion ventive by special measures; finally, it provides to the nihilism, which goes against all beliefs and all the traditions of the Russian people, a contingent that the press estimates at 80 percent. On this familiar background are embroidered... incidents such as the monstrous exploitation of the army and of the Russian people during the 1877-78 campaign, exploited-Incredible, epic moment!

The North finds it perfectly natural that the Jews should demand against these "public safety" measures which put out within their reach the people they believe to be their prey legitimate, but he shrugs at the thought that a no government has ever considered for a minute, as Jewish newspapers shamelessly asserted this, intervening to diplomatically side with these filthy ex-exploiters. Moreover, he charitably warns the Philo-Semites from London and other places, that this inter- This convention would only have one result for the Jews of Russia, that of having them slaughtered by the peasants they had des-bequests.

We can see how urgent the decisions made are. by the Tsar to protect the workers from his em-worse. Will he succeed in this daunting task in front of Which one did Wilhelm II pitifully back down from? He is dealing with to a formidable opponent who will employ all the weapons.

The Pall Mall Gazette reported on the conditions under which Gunzburg had tried to bribe the minister 9.

154 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

from the Interior Ministry, Mr. Dournowo, with a check for one million rubles endorsed by the Mendelsohnn house from Berlin.

Mr. Dournowo refused, but the Jews have intelligence agencies among the men over whom the Tsar would have the no longer the right to count, and in all the capitals they are working to prevent the conclusion of the alliance Franco-Russian.

Mr. de Kotzebue, advisor to the Russian embassy In Paris, he is an upright man; he hates Jews and he loves her prince. As for the Baron of Mohrenheim, he is more doubtful; it was thanks to his intervention, we do not He hasn't forgotten that the French government refused to recognize the public utility of the Society Friends of Russia. It is inexplicable, in any case, that he had left the Jew Adler, a simple employee at the con-Sultan of Russia, intervene in the lifting of the seals placed on General Seliverstov's papers, while the Jew Mendelshonn was implicated in the affair. This explains the bizarre turn this has taken Padlewski affair, in which the Russian government was deceived by both the embassy and the governor-French nement that made the real Padlewski slip away to appease the Jewish protectors of Mendel-sonn.

This Adler, in fact, plays a perfectly well-known role of all. Polish Jew, as we learned from the cor-Russian respondent of the Zantern, he is responsible for to gather and place all his coreligionists, the pro-directors of Mr. de Rothschild and Hirsch expelled from Russia as a public health measure.

This Adler never misses an opportunity to insult the France in the crudest way.

In July 1889, one of our colleagues, whose His word is above suspicion, he was in a visit to Adler, whose neighbor by chance he had become campaign. The conversation having turned to the poli-Adler spoke on behalf of the Republic and of his government in such inappropriate terms that our friend stood up and said to him:

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 155

– Sir, you forget that I am in your home and that I cannot answer you in the same tone, but You will have my answer tomorrow.

With that, our friend left, accompanied by his brother. An hour later, the entire Adler family brought... apologies, but our colleague having expressed the intention-to push things to the limit, the next day Mr. Adler took the step that had been demanded.

These linguistic lapses were, moreover, so familiar to the employee of the Russian Consulate that another time, in At a dinner, he drew a bloody response from Jacques de Biez. He was dragging France along as usual in the mud, he was talking about the general disorganization, the the disgust we inspired in Europe... Jacques de Biez is like me, he finds that our misfortunes are family misfortunes and he does not admit that the Jews come to preach about a moral crisis, which is due to the corrupting influence of Jewry, and which would cease immediately if the French were to regain control at their home. He told the insulter:

– Sir, the real scourge of France is the foreigners who invade it, who abuse its hospitality, which they share among themselves like a conquered province, But the day is near when we will prove to them that France is not Poland.

These perpetual insults against France should naturally attract to this Adler the sympathies of a government where Jews are all-powerful, since It is a Jewish woman who now heads the ministry of Foreign Affairs.

On January 1st, Adler was decorated, and we... remembers the indignation that it aroused in the body diplomatically, this decoration was given to an employee of consulate, while Mr. de Kotzebue, who is in charge embassy affairs in the absence of Mr. de Mohrenheim, who represents the Tsar's government near the French Republic when the ambassador He wasn't there, he wasn't even a knight of the Legion. of honor. Ribot could not have stated anything more cynically– the claim that France was in the hands of the Jews.

156 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

La Patrie reported how Mr. de Kotzebue Adler was received when he presented himself at the embassy.

The day before yesterday, Mr. Adler went to Mr. de Kotzebue's house to see him. ask if the Russian government would oppose this strange action. The Russian chargé d'affaires had replied that the French government is free to decorate people for the merits that only he can discover in them (1).

Adler was so certain that he could not be refused this distinction, which he had announced in advance, and that at In the 1890 phone book, he had added "in front of his name" a particle, from Adler, to try to disguise his The Jewish community is starting to bother him.

I don't know if Alexander II will ever read this book. Too much

Often, alas! guards are mounted around the memories rains to prevent the truth from reaching them.
Sometimes also a humble servant, a valet who has affection for his master, takes it upon himself to... to warn him, to inform him, to have him read what might enlighten him to interest.

Alexandre IT had been warned from all sides that a An assassination attempt was being planned against him; he relied on his ministers and, on March 13, 1881, he fell off his legs shattered by bombs, their heads bloodied, and he he murmured, leaning against the canal railing Catherine: Oubili menia! "It's done by me!" The
The police hadn't even taken the precaution of placing a line of city sergeants in the place where he was supposed to Pass! If he employs Jewish agents, Alexander III
It will end like this. (2)

(1) Fatherland, December 26, 1890.

(2) See in the Correspondant (December 10 and 25, 1800), a a very remarkable study by Mr. Norbert Lallié: The Struggle of the Tzarism and Nihilism.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 157

The advice I am giving to the Emperor is quite disinterested; I desire absolutely nothing from him and one will admit that it is more glorious for a man to be the author of Jewish France than to have the grand cor-Gift of Saint Andrew.

I am not even an enemy of the Nihilists. I admire their cold fearlessness, their selflessness, the heroic patience with which many endure horrible deprivations. I had the opportunity to speak with a few: one of them and I said to them, "How is it that you who represent the Aryan soul in what it has most Admirable: the spirit of sacrifice, can you serve the because of a sordid and greedy race which, in order to amass millions will exploit the people to the point of bloodshed, including "You call yourself a friend!"

They understand me well, but they are not free;
Like the French revolutionaries, they obey leaders who are not worth it, and these leaders are all at the balance of the major Jewish bankers of Russia, England-land or Germany.

If the Tsar wants to understand the forces at his disposal the Jewish quarter still poses a problem, and also the land it has If he's lost, he just needs to have the means explained to him. to whom the protest movement was prepared or- organized everywhere against the liberating ukases. In cons- feeling the little echo that this movement has found in In Europe, he will see the work that has been accomplished in the minds since the anti-Semitic campaign began started seriously. In the past, everyone would have taken gone in favor of these so-called oppressed who are in reality such cruel oppressors; everyone today knows what to expect, and in all countries, England Except for one, they shouted: "Bravo! The Tsar did well to negotiate Those people deserve it.

As soon as the measures announced by the Tsar was going to take action in favor of his people, the entire press The Jewish woman played her usual music. She began badly, moreover, and she felt sorry for a child-

158 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Jewish fan who was allegedly subjected to treatment odious, it unfortunately turned out that, this time Again, it was the Jews who, in Bradleystock, had committed a monstrous murder and stoned the daughter of a doctor, probably in memory of the former sup- accomplices of Judea.

What was beautiful about it was the protest of England, in the name of humanity.

From the point of view of the superlative gaiety that springs from Certain contrasts, I don't know of anything that gave me that feeling. a more intense satisfaction.

It's so beautiful that the images and ideas... senses pell-mell and that thought remains something unformulated and confusing time.

So, you need to know that this predatory people, that Nature made cannibals and that Protestantism made him a hypocrite, was full of compassion for the Jews of Russia and whom he had resolved to give to their favor a performance of a play that would have been called The Sentimental Shark or The Philanthropic Caiman thrope.

Sir Henry Aaron Isaacs was asked to organize a meeting of indignation attended by all the notables of England would take part.

At this simple announcement, it seems that we see appa- suddenly reappear the specters of thousands and thousands of victims of English cruelty. Here, it is the evil- happy Hindus to whom the Englishman forcibly sold the blankets of soldiers who died of cholera; there, these are The Burmese people, who were shot in defiance of the rights of Ja war, while wretches wearing uniforms English officers amused themselves by photographing those that they were assassinating, lying in wait, with their finger on the trigger of the instantaneous, the slightest movements and the last- last convulsions of the dying.

Stop to contemplate the horror in the hor- A man bought, for six handkerchiefs, a ten-year-old child, a creature of God, and this

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 159

The man actually gave it as a gift to some black people so that they would make him... feels like witnessing a scene of cannibalism: the child is being bled and we eat it... |

Meanwhile this man, or at least this being a human face settles comfortably and, the pencil to With his hand, he makes sketches of the scene, then he makes a A little watercolor, water-based paint, water colours. From time to time he joyfully exclaims: "Wery bea- "He's happy!" He wanted to see, he saw, he's pleased...

– What is the monster? Where does it come from?

– Who else would it be, if not an Englishman?

You have, moreover, read the complete account of the in- terprète, Assed-Ferrhan, on the facts alleged by Stanley to his lieutenant Jameson and who had for Yambuvya camp theatre.

What is this compared to what happened, to what It still happens in this martyred Ireland, on which

The English have been relentless for centuries!
From 1845 to 1849, they caused three million people to die there.
of hungry men, and they were the ones who told the story.

The Irish, Lord Derby told Parliament, were re-forced to eat rotten potatoes that poisoned them
They rang, and they died like flies. Those who They didn't even have potatoes anymore, they were eating... land to try to appease their hunger; they even returned to cannibalism and they ate human flesh. The deses-
The situation was such that they no longer even buried the dead; dead and the living languished together in narrow huts.

The land lords took advantage of the situation to to operate on their vast sweeping estates, clearances; they expelled their tenants and the je-were on the main road.

In an article in the New York Herald, O'Brien con-stated that, since 1845, there had been three million evictions of farmers.

These evictions, of course, are still continuing.

Sometimes, among these people who are chased out of their homes, there are

160 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They, paralyzed old men who had worked sixty years on this corner of the earth; they refuse to leave; they clinging to the walls of their wretched home first. So, as in Carlow County, the poli-Cement removes the roof. Rain comes in, snow falls on the cot and the old people die...

In County Kerry, to force these peasants to flee so stubbornly attached to their humble dwellings, one They smoked them out like foxes. They plastered the walls oil, they would set it on fire and wait for the distraught tenants were forced to flee into the the moor!

At the very moment when the English newspapers were announcing the humanitarian meeting in support of Russian Jews, we could have seen about a hundred armed people and policemen are making their way towards Falcarragh, in the county

Donnegal, a mountainous district which is perhaps the most saddest and most desolate in Ireland (1).

It was a new expedition organized to expel—to be still unfortunate farmers who had been forgotten. On the road stood Dr. O'Donnel, Bishop of Raphoe, who gave his blessing to the victims and who He urged them to be patient. Sometimes he tried to intervene and obtain a settlement, but the pro-English landlords or their representatives rejected him They were harsh and shouting, "No mercy!"

Thus, 500 were expelled, then a dreadful temp—
A sudden blast occurred; blinded by gusts of snow and wound, the policemen refused to march and one granted a one-day reprieve.

This is the policy of the Jewish newspaper in London: The Banner of Israel, Goschen's newspaper, from which I quoted An excerpt from Last Battle. "The Irish did not are only good for killing, and that's a culpable weakness in the Jews for not having exterminated them all. (2) »

—_—

(1) Courier from Brussels, November 21, 1890.

(2) Banner of Israel, July 17, 1889.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 161

It is in front of such paintings, I repeat, that one feels well the impotence of writing and the heaviness of the A pen to translate everything one feels, and that's how it is. that we explain that men of very high va—to whom thoughts and images came in a flood. They were too hasty, talked a lot and wrote nothing.

To express what one feels, one would need to be able to: to produce a change in full view, like in the theatre.

Here, a landscape of Ireland shrouded in fog glacial, unfortunate people sitting by the roadside, in the mud, a few steps from the cottage where they were born, the woman trying to keep warm in her torn skirt
A child who is hungry and crying.

The land-lord, the one favored by the fate to which God had entrusted with the care of these poor wretches who are his brothers, has millions of pounds sterling; he owns castles everywhere, hunting parties, galleries full of works of art, he could not in eight days spent touring his estate. And this funny, this Damn it, that infamous man, coldly gave the order to throw These desperate people were forced out of their homes.

– Where is he, this Cain?

– Where is he? Look... over there... in Guidhall. Under the By the light of the chandeliers, there is an assembly of philanthropists; These sensitive souls protest, in the name of humanity. because the Tsar wants to prevent the Jews from being poisoned– to steal from and plunder the Russian peasants. Look among all the Graces, Honors and Reverences which are there, and you will find your ruthless land-lord there. He is a worthy son of disloyal England, he is evil– I'm going, but he's a liar, he's cruel, but he's hypo– written, and by that hand which, with a stroke of the pen, has vowed Upon the death of his unfortunate tenants in Ireland, he signed the request to Sir Isaacs....

The undersigned are of the opinion that it is appropriate to express publicly how to express an opinion about the renewed persecutions to which millions of Israelites are subjected in the

Russia, under the threat of exceptional edicts and measures...

+

162 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They are therefore asking VS to want to properly convene a meeting at Guidhall and to accept the pre-residence.

I studied this list with an old Irish priest, who gave me details about the eighty-three signatories. We would be writing the history of social crime and the trials of the upper classes in the nineteenth century nothing than with the lives of those people.

The Duke of Argyll, who comes first, is the father of the Marquis of Lorne, who married one of the daughters of the Queen. Father and son are alike. Both are vile. and without entrails. The crafters of Scotland or Argyll on his lands they kill the deer and fallow deer of their seigneur to get revenge for everything he makes them endure.

Aberconn is one of the fiercest land-lords of Irmoor. "Aberconn the implacable", they say there.

The tenants of the Tr. Hon. Earl of Meath, another Irish lords, died of misery by the hundreds at-around his estate at Bray (1). Milord is atrocious, Milady is worse. Milady, moreover, signed the petition. at the same time as her husband, and shed an alcoholic tear [This appears to be a fragment of a larger text, possibly a fragment from a larger text

The Duke of Westminster is also cut from the same cloth. We're playing the damned. He's the richest landowner...

(4) It was this disreputable character who was supposed to go to convey to the Tsar the wishes adopted at the Guidhall meeting, in company with Mr. Joseph Pease's company.

The Earl of Meath renounced his trip, because the ambassador The English ambassador in Russia warned him that the first question that the Tsar would deign to address to him would be this: "Sir the Philanthropist, how many of your tenants have you caused to die? "Hungry?"

This is reminiscent of Frédéric Lemaitre's response to Queen Victoria. Frederick had been performing in London in The Ragpicker of Paris; The queen had summoned him to her box, and the old ogress to yellow teeth had feigned tenderness.

– What, you have such miseries in Paris?

– Madam, replied Frederick in his booming voice and his A grand gesture, those are our Irish.

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 163

nothing from the United Kingdom (1). He has twenty million in income; He owns an entire district of London; upon expiration From his long-term leases, he will see his income double. and he boasts of never having given a Schelling to no one. He will arrive before God without having a good deed to tell him about.

Out of avarice, His Grace travels in second class;
One day, someone played a joke on him by letting him into his compartment a troop of little chimney sweeps; he paid the extra charge to have the chimney sweeps come up in first and stayed in second. That's the only trait of generosity that we know of him.

He was for a long time the sycophant and flatterer of Gladstone, who had been his patron in public life.
When Gladstone had sided with the oppressed Irish—
My friend, the Duke of Westminster, the friend of persecuted Jews, had the old man's portrait removed from his living room of state and declared that he no longer knew his former friend.

Besides that, it would be necessary to go inside bishops who appear on this list.

The girls are doing watercolor painting, water colours, tou-days. They are copying a drawing by Jameson whatever they offered to their father.

— That's very kind of you, Father; it's a scene of Cannibalism, isn't it?

— Yes, my dear little one, from nature.

Meanwhile, the father, with his own hands, makes himself... copales, enormous buttered ones which he sprinkles with a gene-Reux Scherry; he is thinking about the speech he will give at the meeting; he reread the article from the Banner of Israel, in which states that the Irish are made to be exterminated; he thinks this is very good because the Irish—

(1) The Duke of Westminster comes sixth on the list of richest people in the world, published by Mr. de Varigny in his volume: Great Fortunes in the United States and England—

THERE

164 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Dais are Christians, but he is full of pity for the Jews who run brothels in Rus-sie (1); in the end, he drank so much scherry that he She began to cry over her buttered bread, thinking of Sir Isaacs.

and to civilization.

What is wonderful is the imperturbable speed with which the English carry out these acts. They are supremely hypocritical. In all things they are like that. These Tartuffes, of such impassive villainy, li- they are subject to the monstrous debaucheries described by the Pall Mall Gazette without wasting a minute their mask of puritanism; they read their Bible beforehand, afterwards, and probably during.

For these beings, whom the Prince de Ligne called "Jacques Roasbeef unamusable", debauchery itself- even is less a training of the senses than a need to do harm, one aspect of European cannibalism European. They disembowel little girls aged eight to ten. They break these barely formed tissues, less for cheap- dear to those who find in these exercises a vile pleasure that for to experience the joy of causing suffering.

The unfortunate telegraph operators of Cleveland Square perforated by members of the great Circles of London, which entered their bodies, pushed, it is said- There were screams of pain. And that was precisely the cries of these boys, who were mutilated for a few pence, who delighted the great lords and allies of the royal family, mixed up in these nameless scenes on which the Prince of Wales prevented from being done light; they were tasting there the sensation that Jameson was going to seek in Africa, the violent and harsh sensation that The most elegant ladies ask for the intoxication of whisky.

This does not prevent them, as you have seen, from being

(4) It is known that in England certain functions such as those of Lord Chancellor and Viceroy of Ireland, are forbidden to Catholics- licals and accessible to Jews, that is what the English meant- tooth by equality and tolerance in religious matters!

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC SPIRIT 165

perfect philanthropists... when it comes to the Jews of Russia...: English hypocrisy!

The most interesting thing about all this is still Sir Henry Isaacs. This practical lord mayor took advantage of all these events-comments to come and make a gigantic pouf in Paris.

One fine day, we learned, through magnificent posters, that the small shopkeepers of Paris were not in-core sufficiently ruined by competition from the big stores and that a new bazaar was going to open for to finish reducing them to misery. This time we had to selling both food and fabrics, from margarine and silks.

The chairman of the board, they said advertisements, was none other than Sir Isaacs, the Lord Mayor from London himself.

The great appeal of the new society lay in this, that it was organized in violation of French law çaises |

Here you find the shamelessness of the grafted Englishman ...on the impudence of the Jew...: "Legality, respect for English for legality, the constable's baton, em-problem of the law. In short, the first concern of this lord-mayor, who held one of the highest offices from England, from that scrupulous Jew who refused to cross the City by car on the day of his entry into Mansion-House, because that day was a Sabbath, was to thumb his nose at French laws.

Naturally, the Jewish newspapers, with their patriotism which distinguishes them, they rolled at the knees of this mon-unpretentious gentleman. Arthur Meyer, the King's friend, and Eugène Meyer, the friend of the People, acclaimed, in pompous articles, the foreign Youtre who came to do. competition against small Parisian merchants.

The shops on the Grands Boulevards, wrote La Lanterne on the second page (4), enjoy, moreover, an ex-

(4) Lantern, July 7, 1890,

166 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Exceptional. Facing Boulevard Poissonnière, they they also overlook rue du Sentier and rue Poissonnière. They are therefore located in the center of one of the most populous areas of Paris, near major thoroughfares health at all major train stations.

The creation of this house will undoubtedly be a new a source of complaint for small businesses and more
They will never ask that we crush their power with taxes.
Competing health professionals. What do these complaints matter?

Three months later, a gathering could be seen huge street in Provence and you could hear people coming out of it.
groups of furious exclamations... They were the shareholders of Sir Isaacs, the defender of the Jews of Russia, who were exhaling their pain.

To avoid being labeled a pamphleteer again, I prefers to let the Petit Journal (1) tell you about this A deplorable hoax.

Yesterday, at two o'clock, a considerable crowd thronged to in front of the door of number 51 on Rue de Provence. Bright protests...
Testimonies and vigorous demands were coming out of all the mouths:

"We've been robbed!" one of them exclaimed.

"Oh, you miserable wretches!" said the others.

This is the reason for this gathering which moved during for a large part of the day the residents of this neighborhood:

Three months ago, a public subscription was opened for the creation of an English house: "At the Grands Boulevards.

This business was sponsored, according to the prospectus, by High-ranking figures from London and Paris. These were to create a large establishment that would sell, at the same time nothing but new products, food products.

The subscribers were very numerous and, in a few within days, the total amount paid exceeded 600,000 francs.

Mr. Henry Petit, promoter of the dissolved English company, then sent out new circulars announcing that the

(1) Petit Journal, October 2, 1890.

The withdrawal of funds was reportedly carried out yesterday at his office, 5, rue de Provence.

Those concerned presented themselves, but in vain. Mr. Petit
He told them that the funds weren't there and that he didn't... would receive it in about ten days.

Many complainants went to see the commissioner of the police of the rue de Provence, who summoned Mr. Petit and He subjected him to an interrogation, following which he maintained under arrest

I have read the Archives israélites since the
From the first line to the last, I never
No information was found on this story.

On the other hand, I had the satisfaction of reading in the English newspapers, a few lines that pleased me:

The Lord Mayor of London has just received from the Foreign Office the following communication signed by the secretary Lord Salisbury's private individual:

"The Russian ambassador asked the Marquess of Salisbury to have the letter you sent returned to you His Majesty the Emperor of Russia, dated January 24, as well as the memorandum attached to this letter, concerning the situation Jews in Russia.

"I am instructed by Lord Salisbury to convey to you these papers.

In a time of Don Pedro, of William, of prince of Wales and Archduke Rudolph, we like to meet Finally, a sovereign who knows how to retain some dignity vis-
"piers", even with tweezers.

Upon receiving these "papers" they had been forced to to send by mail and that no one in Russia hasdeigned to watch, Westminster, Argyll, Aberconn
And the others must have made quite a face...

BOOK THREE

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA

“Dixit Dominus.. Ecce ego ponam Jerusalem super liminar crapulæ omnibus populis in circuitu. »

And erit, in die illa, ponam Jerusalem lapidem oneris cunctis populis.

(ZacmaRiE, ch. 11, v. 2 and 3.)

L

It is impossible to rouse the current French people from their apathy.

– Public meetings. – The City Council and the sub-irreducible descriptions. – The French are not pessimistic.
– Their conception of life. – Com- Degeneration complete moral sense. – New ideas on theft and – Prostitution. – Osiris Iffla, or the Benefactor of Humanity. –

The cult of great men. – Mr. Adam's enthusiasm.
– What the Bordeaux Court of Appeal thought of this Egyptian God-Here. – Twenty years ago. – President Toutée and the Ball of Cows. – A corner of the provinces. – Maës and his friend Le Senne.
– The decline in births. – Death to children. –
The two pilgrimages. – Indifference to catastrophes financial. – Panama's shareholders. – Silence newspapers. – Henri Rochefort. – The Patriarch of the Swindler-query. – Mr. Monchicourt's report. – Fantastic figures-Ticks. – The gullible always trust. – The bank Macé-Bernard and the Clergy. – The Placers of Upper Ilia.
– The Gaulois advertisement. – Death in sin. – The
The Judiciary. – The Metals Case. – Attorney General Sarrut and President Calary. – Laveissière and Comet. – A dinner of Magistrates. – Implacability towards the humble. – A man Killed for a flower. – A party in Boulogne. – A special code for the Jews. – Mary Raynaud and Rodrigues. – The Marquis de Salaberry and Naquet. – "That's all right!" – The The servility of the Academies. – The election of Bischoffsheim. – A Mandarin of Letters – Lavissee and the Good Lord. – The Scholar and The Shepherdess. – A visit to the Empress of Germany. – The Hugo–Daudit marriage.

It would be inaccurate to attribute it solely to the lack the slowness with which the Anti–Semitism. No doubt the lack of money deprived us the support of the Press, which is necessary at the moment current efforts to stir public opinion. But Boulangism has He had the money, therefore he had the press. In reality how many men could he have assembled at one at a given moment?

To truly understand the state of mind, he You must have attended baker's meetings, have I heard from speakers like Laguerre, Déroulède, Millevoye, having seen them every evening stirring their listeners as if with a red-hot iron spike, denouncing infamies that were all too real, denouncing, with ardent eloquence, the manipulations and scandals that were easy to prove. Every evening they reminded the people that his will had been brutally ignored, that the united suffrage–Versel had been outraged in the election of Joffrin; they invited the attendees to come and protest in the square Concorde, and all those who were there cried out: "Yes, yes, we'll all go!"

Huge things were supposed to happen in that square of the Concorde. And yet, on the day of the validation I hardly saw Joffrin pass by, around the old obediente–Ramses' palace, only omnibuses, carriages of all sorts and harmless pedestrians.

In this country, once so sensitive to everything that It touches on money laundering; the opposition never had a platform comparable to this subscription model irreconcilables, accomplished on the very eve of the elections municipal elections. There was not the slightest hesitation on this subject. tation: the people's representatives, so severe on the corruption of the Empire, had shamefully abused their mandate and had reached an agreement with bankers to steal from the public.

This has been recounted in every possible way; it has been spread to A profusion of a very well-made brochure: The Scandals and the machinations at City Hall. – Paris to speculators. For its part, the Anti-Semitic League, which is Far from being rich, he took and distributed quite a few copies. to please.

Parisians re-elected most of the municipal councilors officials convicted of involvement in these malpractices They were loaned out. They re-elected them very freely, using ballot boxes. closely monitored by representatives of all parties, by people from expert committees in all sorts of trickery electoral and that we don't easily put in.

Everything is shattered by absolute indifference. against a kind of ataraxia, of general impassivity, which is not the stoic ataraxia that Proudhon speaks of, but rather a morbid inertia, a prostration on in which nothing happens.

Physiologists are very familiar with these transitional phases organs where the heart is inexcitable. The organ where the human- nity draws its flame from sudden moments of rest, of stupor, of torpor after which he resumes his function- operation.

Unfortunately, at present, this is no longer the case. In fits and starts, it's always because the heart no longer responds. to stimulants. And like that drone, which sets the rhythm of our arteries, our expansions and our violence, depends on him- even of the brain, it is always the brain that needs to investigate the cause of the failures and sleeplessness.

There has been too much effort in the last century, too much haste hectic, too much fragmented knowledge, dis- Perseus, illusory. It seems that we have lived in a kaleidoscope. Forced to apply herself to both the theo-

social issues, scientific discoveries, and developments
For scholars, vision is blurry and tired. It would be necessary to...
The multifaceted gaze of insects, this mosaic eye due to perhaps to infinite fragmentations of things, for understanding so many jerky movements, so many necks—their shrill ones.

How can we be surprised, then, that weariness takes hold?
these shaken minds, no longer the healthy weariness work, where new strength is drawn, but the Atonic depression where one has the illusion of vigor?

Death gains ground in the world through insensitivity, through anesthetic social anesthesia. This social anesthesia, which we call ataraxia, invades the masses, just as its sister invades the beings. It begins here, there, in patches that join together—
They spread and soon cover the entire body. Some intermediate regions enjoy a false excitement that we find before all disasters. That What does congestion expect? Build blessed projects.
We, on the edge of the abyss, affirm the Indefinite progress, a joyful and free era. Ultimately,
We don't even believe in tomorrow, and we don't believe in it.
We occupy very little space.

Many names have been given to this particular state, that Everyone can see it. Weiss spoke of a disease of marrow, from a weakening of the vis vivendi; other of volitional insensitivity, abulia, impotence of will.

No one, in any case, disputes the degeneration of this race which once had such overflowing vitality.

It must be added, however, that this intellectual depression lectuelle, which the French themselves admit, does not translated by Pessimism in their culture.

Pessimism is peculiar to superior natures.
laughter. As soon as we touch the depths of being, that we may ponder the enigma of the world, that we may unite in heart to the suffering of those around us, he is It's impossible not to feel a sense of anxiety.

ANEMIR — ANESTHESIA — ATARAXIA 173

and bitterness at the impenetrability of this impasse

impossible universe, which stubbornly refuses to answer our in-questions, refusing to reveal any of its secrets to us. The frivolous laugh until they die; the witty less so lighthearted, those who reflect on the spectacles that the life unfolds before them, and they are irritated by what it their hiding place, cannot defend themselves against the sadness that get rid of everything... Cor sapientium ubi tristitia...

Modern French people have none of that. disturbing theories of Schopenhauer (1) such as Tolstoy's beautiful despairs, vast and desolate like steppes, they leave one completely indifferent-rents. Intellectually, it's too much for them, too expansive horizon, too intense in thought; this... would require too much meditation.

The conception that contemporary French people have of Life has no parallel in any time; it is everything. quite unique to our time. Let us note first of all that if modern life has become more complicated from the point of view false needs and refinements of well-being, she has become remarkably simpler from a moral point of view: Like a kind of shrinking skin, it is shrinking. every day in this respect.

If she always had the sky as her ultimate goal and as But life in the past was, even from an earthly point of view, something important and serious; it was connected by strong roots in the traditions of families living in- Then, for centuries on the same patch of land, it pro-skirted beyond the tomb by the desire that the poorer people to leave a good memory of themselves, to bequeath to their children fine examples to follow, a heir-a badge of honor to be kept in their turn.

(1) See on Schopenhauer and Pessimism a very remarkable article by Mr. Ferdinand Brunetière in the Revue des Deux Worlds of November 14th, 1890.

Also worth reading, from another perspective, is a curious study of Dr. Delon: Pessimism and Socialism. (Socialist Review, no. (February and December 1890.)

10.

All of this was gradually pruned away, and what was put in place was... remained a life annuity. For the privileged, for the sons of the wealthy-Richis, life is an opportunity to celebrate; for the For the dispossessed of fate, for the convicts of labor, it is a painful and monotonous grind, in order to arrive at to eat fairly regularly and to die in the hospital tal. For representatives of the middle classes, for those who give the most accurate idea of the country, for the well-endowed, healthy, well-armed, it's a a fight we somehow got into, and in the midst of which one must try to find a way to cope and to force their way forward with their fists.

There are obviously some broken keys on the keyboard. human, notes that no longer work. We also ignore-the frank gaiety of the ancestors and the tender, the Poetic melancholy. We no longer know what it is. Happiness, this gift from the Gods to a privileged few, this happiness which had an almost sacred character and which Bonald said: "I salute Happiness because it is rare. » One could even say that, apart perhaps from some-We don't know about the mothers who have lost their children. no longer the Pain, I mean the religious and grave Pain of yesteryear. It's over, and the ardent enthusiasms and Doubt speaks of the generous anxieties of a torn heart.

There are only satisfactions and annoyances. ments, chances and misfortunes that depend almost all of them are due to material circumstances. All of this It falls more into the category of accidents and miscellaneous events. catastrophes, that in the order of feelings, and the soul is affected only very indirectly by the disturbances and disorders that the physical being in experiences in the habits and ordinary routine of his life.

The man of the past, in short, had noble motives to live; modern man only has what-plausible excuses for not killing oneself and accom-to complete his chore to the very end.

Contemporary French people endure this chore with a certain enthusiasm, which is a gift that remains from his race; he tries to earn as much as possible to get married disadvantage, to obtain more material pleasures-rielles, to do justice to his business.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 175

The modern regime has created, one might say, a type to be special that one might be tempted to call the contributor; for, in reality, if one asked many Why are men of this time on earth? they would be quite embarrassed to answer and would end up by telling you:

– Well, to do our military service, to settle our contributions and to pay our term.

The policeman, the tax collector, the landowner are, for the most part, the visible form of Duty and, as soon as one We are in good standing with them, so we have peace of mind.

Also, note that these contributions are from French he pays them with a certain joy: he doesn't use them at all of his rights as a citizen in order to obtain a reduction of taxes. The same applies to the owner: the Frenchman is happy when he has fulfilled his duties towards him. Among this people, who are said to be subject to all the theosubversive acts, there is no example of assassination of a landowner. The insurgents of the Commune, masters The absolute rulers of Paris killed venerable clergymen. who had done them no harm; they killed neither a ruthless landlords who had increased without Have mercy on the rent of poor households, nor on one of the bailiffs. who had seized even the ashes of the hearths.

The French are admirably trained for everything This tax organization; they are like the meharis who kneel so that they can be loaded more easily, or like omni-reinforcement horses buses which, having done their work, will go on their own to join their place at the bottom of the hill and wait there for us to... splint again.

These men, so docile in rendering unto Caesar what is due to Caesar, they regard themselves, on the other hand, as absolute-freed from all obligation towards God.

176 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

What will later strike the observer, when he studies will shape the present generations, it is the ease with thethat a people can do without any religion. In

In the departments surrounding Paris, there are villages where men never set foot in the church.

I am not talking here about men who express opinions anticlerical. In many places the period of anti-Militant clericalism is over. The peasants and the ou-
The village priests greet the priest because he is a prominent figure. but they don't feel for a second the need to to think of God, to lift their hearts to the Creator, to to unite with the Divine through prayer. Apart from the di-sleeves, they have no notion of Church holidays and events they commemorate. That's a whole other story.
order of concerns radically abolished in them and,
From their point of view, they live very well this way.

When, by chance, they enter the church for a ma-
Whether it's marriage or any other service, they find it boring to swallow.
their language. The Sacrifice of the Body and Blood of Our-Lord Jesus Christ, under the appearances of bread and of wine, this magnificently moving drama of the Mass, where every word, every gesture of the priest has a meaning-such a profound cation leaves them completely indifferent; they they understand it no more than they would understand a ceremony in a pagoda. They have completely returned in the wild, far below, from the point of view of religious sentiment, of what our fathers were like in the past:
where Christianity penetrated Gaul; for to bring them back, they would need to be evangelized again, he
We would need apostles like Saint Denis or Saint Eleuthere, who go and preach on construction sites or in the fields.

This will be, I repeat, a source of astonishment for those who will definitively write the history of this time, to see with what speed this people, who were so A believer, who remained an idealist for so long, has arrived at to be a stranger to all anxiety about the soul, about the mystery of destiny, on the Divine in a word, to be lived

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 177

of the life of mere instincts, in a materialism quiet which, for many, once again, no longer has nothing aggressive towards ministers of religion.

The same is true, moreover, for everything that relates to to the moral realm. I do not intend to declaim against the corruption of morals, which would be perfectpointless; I simply want to note to what degree

On this point too, opinions have changed. a few years. Those who belong to my generation will undoubtedly be struck by the accuracy from this observation.

Twenty years ago, the words: a bankrupt, a thief, a convicted of fraud, were words-spoken; a conviction for theft was death. fatal for a man. Today, these terms no longer have more than of very secondary importance.

Undoubtedly, this deviates further from the classic thief, covered in rags, armed with a large stick, but it's not. Not because he is a thief, it's because he is badly dressed. Thieves dressed like everyone else are the 'welcome everywhere.'

Crouzet and Jacques Meyer are traveling on the boulevard. and all their classmates shake their hands.

Mary Raynaud was appointed by a large majority by the rustic populations of Cantal, to which His background was not hidden; he dealt with an emunicipal loan with the mayor of Mâcon; his name appears in ballots in the Official Journal and at 'would probably have been validated if he could have lasted longer for a long time. He was in charge of the financial side of things. the quintessential monarchist newspaper, in the organ authorized by this claimant who claims, at the very least, to be an honest man and, with the experience that cannot were going to give him his three-year prison sentence, he was committed the duchesses and marchionesses to be placed in the Bank state funds that would not have been devoured by the Boulangism. s

No one found this surprising, and people would have

178 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

On the contrary, I was surprised that a gentleman like Mary Raynaud who, if he were not absolutely honest, was very civil in his manners. A gentleman who, in Paris, in a public place, refuses would be unbearable to sit next to a man withered by tribulations naux, would be considered an eccentric, a show-off to impress.

Everything is peculiar, in fact, in those times. Long ago, those who had had more or less difficult relationships They, along with the Justice system, sought to make themselves forgotten; at- Today, on the contrary, it is these people who are running after all the opportunities to promote themselves, at who will use any excuse to draw attention to themselves.

Who hasn't heard, lately, of the Jewish Osiris Iffla?

Osiris has a cult of great men; he begins by offering a statue of Joan of Arc to the city of Nancy who asked for nothing; he continues by offering a statue from William Tell to the city of Lausanne.

You can imagine the uproar caused by the Jewish press. surrounding these acts of munificence!

Therefore, it is not wrong to show the public the opinion formed by the French judiciary of means by which this generous mortal had come to to get rich. Here's how, five years ago, the advisors the Bordeaux Court of Appeal judged the manner to act on behalf of this Egyptian god. It was a substitution- a claim fraudulently made by Osiris against his brother-in-law Moyse. to

Whereas if one seeks to penetrate the sense and the motive of This ambiguous substitution reveals a com- a cleverly orchestrated artificial combination designed to deceiving the public about the truth of the news situation company; that visibly, by carrying on its head Brother-in-law Moyse, the irrecoverable debt of 330,036 francs with particularly favorable refund conditions gourous and by having him operate in the new society

ANEMIR – ANESTHESIZE – ATARAXIA 179

Upon payment of such a sum, Osiris pursued a double goal: to attract public money into the new bank and to... to secure, through his brother-in-law, facilities for repayment at the expense of other creditors;

That this fraudulent intention is first revealed in the preparation of the acts of February 13-14, 1880, to which Osiris took a direct and leading part, as well as in te- Moigne lacorrespondence submitted to the proceedings, even in particular the letters from Foucaud and Astruc, from late November, 3 and December 17th, finally the letter from Osiris dated December 15th, 1879;

That fraud appears even more evident in the simulation-tion which taints the conventions of February 13-14, 1880, where the Osiris's self-serving calculations disguise themselves under the mask of false assignment, fictitious loan and imaginary payments;

Let it finally burst forth in broad daylight, in the circular which announces the formation of the new company and where, with the help of certain writing techniques that highlighted the name Osiris's statue is placed next to that of Astruc, his brother-in-law, suggesting... public that Osiris continues his support for the new society (1).

If our leaders weren't the wretches they are They would have forbidden this man from degrading Joan.
d'Arec; they would have told him: "Hands off! There are some figures who belong to the Fatherland, and it is not per-set to a dubious financier to dishonor in death the humble shepherdess who lived in poverty and whose parents
"They hadn't stolen anything from anyone."

I would add that Mr. Ruffie, the State Councillor in charge of Public Instruction and Fine Arts to the council of Lausanne, too, could profit from what I'm talking about the complete lack of moral sense among our mini-very French.

I knew a few Swiss people: they were all very honest people, a little stiff in manner, a little formal-lists, perhaps a little sensitive in character, but upright and steadfast in their honor. I imagine they think, like me, that Switzerland is not yet there

(1) Extract from a judgment delivered by the First Chamber of the Court
Bordeaux Court of Appeal, April 14, 1886

180 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

reduced, in order to glorify its great men, to accepting alms from a suspected Jew.

The Lausanne State Council apparently has no these scruples and I think he will have them engraved on the pedestal-the statue of the liberator of Helvetia, the considerations consequences of the judgment rendered in the Osiris case by the Court

Bordeaux appeals court.

Nothing can convey the tone of the letters addressed to letters to this Osiris concerning this statue that, like a good Semite obsessed with publicity, he has published in front page in Le Figaro.

Mr: Adam was, it seems, the Isis that this Osiris consulta first of all. "Mr. Osiris," said Le Figaro, "confided he shared his project with one of his doctors, Dr. Second, and asked this eminent professor to speak to Mr. Adam about it of whom he is the son-in-law.

"Mr. Adam was enthusiastic about this idea and desired--" gna itself the city of Lausanne, as being the more worthy of receiving this princely gift."

M"" Adam wrote a letter to Osiris about this, which failed full of epithets and florid:

Dear sir and friend,

Thank you for your beautiful letter, so patriotic, so noble, so lofty Such simple feelings and generosity! I take the liberty to send it to my friends in Lausanne, but asking them-- asking to send it back to me, because it's a monument of patriotism. ism that I want to keep. All my gratitude as Fran-- Peace and all my devotion to your noble works.

'Juliette .Anaw.

If Mr. Adam collects documents relating to Osiris and "his great works," she will allow me, I hope to offer him the judgment rendered by the Court Bordeaux appeal; it will be able to present it under a showcase and show his guests a man who makes gifts with the proceeds of his raids and who would have perhaps more rights than Atchinoff to call himself "the "Cossack of the gift."

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 181

As for Ruffie, he too is overflowing with energy.

Having given to France, your homeland to which we

They bind together so many ties of friendship and affection, the testimony radiant with your generosity and patriotism, you would you please think today about Switzerland, its Republic sister, and in particular to our canton of Vaud, this land French-speaking Switzerland, so close to France due to its geographical location phique and by his intellectual life.

By wholeheartedly accepting the tribute you deign to pay to do for our country, we can assure you that the statue of the liberator William Tell will be placed in a A setting worthy of her on the shores of this lake you love. reminding us of the origins of our homeland in the form of the man in whom the conquest of freedom is embodied, she... will also say that devotion, patriotism, generosity Roguery are the distinctive traits of the French genius and, in this In a country where masterpieces are rare, it will be a monument imperishable, elevated to the superiority of France in worship Beautiful.

Frankly, faced with such farces, de- Before such indecent displays, isn't it... It is unfortunate that, from time to time, the voice of an anti-Semite is heard. rises up to shout: To hell with the dog!

This radical change in the way we think certain acts are the consequence of the triumphant entry the Jewish community in Parisian society and it is to the representatives of the upper classes, only, that re- The responsibility for this corruption lies with the con-French science.

It is clear that, as soon as the most illustrious families opened their arms to financiers enriched by the ruin of the naive and the gullible, France had to change his former concepts of Good and Evil and the adaptations to the ideas of the Semites for whom Money is everything, in whose eyes probity and honor are nothing but empty expressions. When the Duke of La Rochefoucauld-Doudeauville receives the Roth- at his home schild and the Ephrussi; when the Duchess of Uzès, the first duchess of France, leads the email of Mr. Hirsch and stays at his place when she goes to London. when the Duke of Chartres serves as godfather to the financier Bavarians who were the launchers of the Turkish lots, they declare implicitly that certain ideas about honesty are Completely outdated.

HIM

A certain interval was introduced during the descent. began by saying, "No doubt, this baron has makes hangable bears in Vienna, this other one has the spec-business practices of shady companies and stock market scams: Stock Exchange Shameless, this third one is a notorious crook, but anyway he "The material fact of the conviction is not there." When We saw the new judiciary in action, we realized- She quickly realized that those she condemned from afar in Join were generally less guilty than those that she acquitted, and so it came to a point where the matter was swept under the rug. everything, to admit that theft was an industry like another one...

Relaxation is universal, and it can be said that... Paris, what was once understood by public morality The republic has completely ceased to exist.

In the past, prostitution was viewed as a shame and the act of giving one's body to men for a sum of money removed all consideration ration to a woman. Today, this appreciation seems utterly backward. As soon as she belongs, even in a subordinate way, in the world of the arts, a Women are received on an equal footing in the houses the most aristocratic. Fathers and husbands find It's perfectly natural to see them next to their daughters or their women, creatures they know for pros- Awarded the Palmes. Among the privileged few honored with the Palmes. academics, there are some who, as all of Paris knows, figure- would, a few years ago, on the repertoire that the matrons make available to foreigners including the photograph and the price.

A courtesan kept by two or three lovers, and who doesn't cause a scene in his house, is well regarded by everyone; she frequents spa towns the same hotels, the same guesthouses as the the most honest women, she haunts the same almost-and nobody insults him.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 183

11 Just twenty years ago, it would have been a scandal
The story of a magistrate who became the son-in-law is enormous.
of the owner of the Bal des Vaches, accepting a for-money amassed penny by penny through the exploitation of the most sordid prostitution. The magistrate, convinced of a Such ignominy would not have dared return to the Palace the following day.

The revelations about Toutée have done little more than to entertain Paris; people laughed at this judge, the owner of May-sounds where one could, for two francs, pass at night with the mud collected at the dance; we laughed at these small "private offices" at fifty cents where the customers, both male and female, when they were in too much of a hurry, were going to operate under the watchful eye of Madame Emile, the mother-in-law of the president of the ninth chamber.

Ultimately, Toutée emerged from this experience having grown considerably.
in the esteem of his colleagues; it was said: "He is eighteen
"One hundred thousand francs!" He represents Property.

For me, this story evokes all sorts of figures and beings. I knew that dreadful dive that one it was called the Cow Ball.

It was already accepted among young literary figures that To conduct a proper study of manners, one must go into places where there aren't any. So we were what-some who were fascinated by observing the shallows of the capital, and, quite often, during our tours to through the strangest receptacles of prostitution and drunkenness, the Old Oak, the Budweiser, the Feet Hurnides, we passed back through the rue Contrescarpe and we were going to say hello to Mother Emile who was not a wicked woman who liked distinguished people fords...

There I found a childhood friend, a Hercules of

184 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

fair, which was doing laps on the embankment in front the Austerlitz bridge. On my way back from the Charles-Magne, I always took the longest route and stopped in front of this mountebank. Sometimes, Albert Duruy, who was of extraordinary strength and that all the exer-physical challenges attracted him; he enjoyed lifting weight; little by little, people talked, they bonded.

At the other end of my memory, I see again the the Toutée family, who enjoyed the esteem of everyone in Saint-Fargeau. Little Mother Toutée, very intelligent, very friendly, was a friend of my aunt Josephine and It was a name that often came up in his memories. provincial.

When I passed my baccalaureate, I was invited to Burgundy to show myself to the family and I live the Toutée, the Lacours and Father Dethou who was already very old at that time. My uncle Saint-Aubin was one of the leaders of the Republican party in the Yonne, and, at On December 2nd, he had been forced to hide in the wood. Mr. Lacour, the wealthy landowner of Saint-Fargeau, had also been outlawed, and Mr. Lacour was showing with pride, the pen that had been used to write the Punishments and that Victor Hugo had given her. It was one of my youthful admirations that M^{re} Lacour; it was a beautiful a woman of a certain age, with superb arms; she was verses and I imagined that Madame de Staël must be Like this.

All these honest and ardently republican people... he never stopped talking about the corruptions of the Empire and, at each At a bend in the road, D' Dethou stopped his cart. country doctor to rail against morals imperial. What cries they would all have uttered if one would have announced it to them, in one of those small, ornate drawing rooms of worn and faded yellow velvet armchairs that I see Furthermore, that under the Republic the magistrates would go To take a wife at the Cow Ball! Who would have thought that this mother Emile, at whose house I did not boast to go for a walk, would one day enter this family so provincial, so prudish, and who put on airs of effa- They were ruffled when we talked about the balls at the Tuileries!

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 185

I would like to go back there, to meet the father Dethou, who must have bought a new car, since that he is a member of parliament, and to say to him: "Well! virtuous re- Publican, what do you think of all this? (1)

This moral decadence of the Bourgeoisie, which wallowing now in all the shame, does not appear although when one has once seen some small corner of province, like this corner of Burgundy that I... pencil.

At the bottom of the ladder, the leniency is the same. public woman, whose exceptional existence was once as if shrouded in mystery, now lives as

(i) You should always look on the bright side of things. The Magistrature, as everyone knows, had shown a wealth of indulgence towards the accused Boulangists, as long as Boulanger had a chance of succeeding. Sir, was ruthless after the defeat towards those who touched directly or indirectly connected to Boulangism. Toutée, in particular, signaled by truly ferocious stops, and it was through him that Maës was sentenced to six months in prison under absolutely no conditions. odious.

When Mr. Engerand expressed his intention to send a Question to the Minister of Justice regarding the attitude of certain magistrates, he saw one of his colleagues coming towards him, pleading and worried at the same time.

"My dear colleague," he said to him, "I beg you, do not attack—" Don't you think, Toutée... If you only knew how much pain these attacks cause her. They're talking!

This man was Le Senne, the Boulangist deputy and the former Maës' lawyer!

Meanwhile, Maës was serving his six-month prison sentence in Sainte-Pelagia. Engerand came to see her there at his request, and Maës told him in the Leaving: "Give my compliments to my friend Le Senuel."

It's somewhat the counterpart to the story of Bournand defending the Church in his book: The Clergy under the Third Republic. When it comes to defending the book against the proscription of the Hachette publishing house, right-wing MPs vote against the writer Catholic in favor of the bookstore which has dedicated itself to the propagation of the works of Zola and Catulle Mendès.

186 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

everyone; she's friends with her suppliers who They exploit it as long as they can; she often eats at the same table as the wine merchant and his family;

She caresses the children of the workers who are in the house; she buys them candy; the worker tells her Hello, when she "beats her shift," when she works, according to the commonly used expression.

It's a general state of mind. The French soul has been . absolutely transformed, turned upside down over the last twenty years.
A century ago, a craftsman from our old guilds-tions, a farm boy or girl from Vendée had with regard to honor, probity, modesty, and delicacy, impressionability that the most people in the world today.

Deep down, at many moments, this life, so low and limited to such vulgar realities seems to many an adventurous female dog; they are there, they stay there, and they struggle there with a certain valor, a certain French good humor, but they don't care about to give others the gift of an existence in which he
It takes so much effort.

The idea of family no longer has, as we have said, the character-the same dignity it once had. Modern French do not feel the same feelings for their parents innate respect among previous generations, but Finally, they are not yet murdering them for the manger when they are old; they still bury them convenably; they buy a crown to put on on the coffin. They are no more pleased by They don't care about surviving in their children.
not at all from the higher point of view of what will be
These children are in life, but when one of them falls, They feed him, they raise him as best they can, according their rank.

It is R, however, a new chore for which They feel only moderate enthusiasm.

If you wish, I can provide you with the five hundred twentieth dissertation on depopulation: "the Napoleonic Code-

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA. – ATARAXIA 147

Leon, the inheritance law, compulsory military service
"Toire. As a remedy: a tax on single people."
Much ink has been spilled on this subject. Unfortunate-
In short, it's not with an emission of ink that one produced children; if this system of procreation were sustained—susceptible to a practical result, the children who would be born might be black, but at least there would be some many in France.

The only one who said anything sensible about it
“It was Mr. Courcelle-Seneuil who spoke thus at the Academy—Department of Moral and Political Sciences:

The moral debility is complete. It is therefore a moral evil.
—from which we suffer and for which the remedy cannot be found in quantity in customs, not in laws. If our customs do not improve—
They did not learn, we are designed to diminish ourselves through progress.
sively as a nation, as a consequence and from the diminutive of the quantity of men and inferiority of their quality, because the Depopulation goes hand in hand with the depression of the character—tères.

As for economists, they give you figures; *
— That's their condition.

Dr. Lagneau, Dr. Bertillon, Mr. Leroy-Beaulieu,
Mr. Levasseur will present you with statistics so much that people will want it.

The number of births in France for a po—
A population of 10,000 souls, for a century, is provided by Mr. Bertillon.

From 1770 to 1780, 380 children were born.

1801 to 1810 — 325 —
'A8i1 to 1820 — 316 —
1821 to 1830 — 309.
4831 to 1840 — 289 —. ,
1841 to 1850 — 274 —
1851 to 1860 — 267 —

1869 to 1880 — 245 —

The annual increase of DOBUIRIDRS according to Mr. Leroy-Beaulieu, therefore, is from:

14 per 1,000 in Germany.

12 – England.

8 – Austria.

7 – Italy.

5 – Hungary.

5 – Sweden.

3 – France.

In 1700, according to Mr. Levasseur, our country had for 38 percent in the population of large powers sectors of Europe. By 1780, it only numbered for 27 percent, and in recent years, the The figure is reduced to 13 percent.

Finally, according to the Bern statistics, if the proportions Current practices continue; here, in the next century, what will the population of France be compared to that from Germany.

France, 64 million inhabitants.

Germany, 165 million.

Mr. Leroy-Beaulieu even takes sincerity to the extreme of to recognize that these are the original departments, that is to say, those in which some debris remains beliefs of yesteryear, a few vestiges of life Moral: Morbihan, Lozère, Finistère, Côtes-North, Corsica, Aveyron, Vendée, Landes which still support our birth rate.

It would seem, under these conditions, that we should at less leave these departments alone, and the gar-der as breeders; the government is taking care, On the contrary, to secularize it strongly, that is to say, to to bring about the bad morals that cause depopulation lation of the rest of France. We must admit that it is good singular to seek ways to combat a scourge while efforts are being made to introduce it into countries where it does not yet exist.

From time to time, through the lies and the In the current pronouncements, a glimmer of sincerity appears.

The idea that the era has of this great problem of life
The truth came to light at the moment when the Death to the Children operation was stopped by the abortionist of Batignolles, with one hundred and forty women who had used her services to become to abort.

Some journalists, breaking with Pharisaism
In general, they had the courage to say what the populace thinks.
the development of large cities, to assert that abortion
It seemed perfectly natural to them.

And why not? In the past, giving birth meant putting into the world a small being created in the image of God, destined to worship God, to serve Him, promised, after a short stepwise on earth, to a blissful eternity.

Childbirth was, for the humblest, the su-coming from the manger in Bethlehem, baptism with its joyful sound of bells, the procession of parents and friends laughing at the newborn and cheerfully walking towards the old church where we got married.

Today it is childbirth that Zola described with such astonishing vigor of realism: a woman "who believes that his front and back will burst and the child rolling on the bed between the thighs in the middle from a pool of excrement and bloody mucus-slow.

For women of the people, giving birth is, according to the Theories of the day: to throw an unfortunate man onto the pavement who, after having suffered from cold and hunger, after having been a client of Assommoir and sometimes a resident of Mai-its central unit will go to join in oblivion the dog that we drop-off at the corner of the terminal. Why, under these conditions-tions, to inflict on the unfortunate creature who has forgotten herself in the arms of a man the sufferings and the miseries maternity benefits?

Wasn't Death to Children, in its own way, a Benefactress of humanity? She wasn't very exi-giant: for five francs she would make it go through.
When we didn't have money, we gave a liter of cognac or a pound of coffee... She operated in the ar-at

L

190 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

back room of a wine merchant and his recruiter was a bread carrier. '4

If I had been a painter, I would have made a painting with:
This scene: the baker's maid preaching abortion-lying with a loaf of bread under his arm and a basket of Breads beside her... The loaf and the basket speak for she: they describe the effort one has to put into a
They do everything just to feed the children; they say:
"Enough hungry mouths already! Let this an ill-advised fetus that chose a womb as its home of poverty returning to non-being by way of "Latrines!"

This could be called: The Two Pilgrimages.

On one side we would see the peasant women of old France whose marriage heaven has not yet blessed, making. of long journeys along difficult roads to get there go to the revered shrines drink the wine of saint Wolf or touch the reliquary of Saint Germain, so that The Lord answers their prayers. On the way they...
They stop in front of the statuette of Mary, which is located at at each crossroads in the woods, in front of the image of the Virgin-mother to whom the Gauls, in their premonitions altars to the God to come had already been erected: Virgin parituræ..... And these simple hearts pour themselves out in familiar prayers. "O sweet Mother, who have been blessed among all the women who have had the joy of cradling a baby who was a God, make it so among the
The women of the village no longer laugh at my infertility.
grant that I may, like them, half-open my heart wise, with the pride of happy motherhood, for breastfeeding a child I would love as you Love the baby Jesus!

On the other side, you can see the clients of Death to the kids waiting their turn, taking a scrum on the wine merchant's counter and asking that one rids them of the puppet that a traveler without precaution placed in their drawer.

Basically, just any old Republican minister, the

: ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 191

Rouvier of the Auxiliary Company of the Railways iron," for example, glorifying modern France. "The France, gentlemen, she has never been greater, she has just loaned 75 million to the Bank of Angle-land to clear Mr. de Rothschild who had gotten a little Advance on Argentine stocks. Heine of Frankfurt and Cahen d'Anvers have just left to represent France is on the Argentine commission. There are pots-Wine for everyone, but, if you please, to avoid overcrowding at bank counters Jewish senators Fe HE at ten o'clock and the 'only eleven members of parliament...'

+

Not very keen on starting a family in the traditional sense. What did this word mean in the past to the French of today? they also lack the notion of heritage which, born from work, taking on the sacred character of the heritage which: permian, which increases by honest means and that one bequeaths to one's family. They display an undeniable activity to obtain money, but they let themselves- they are taking it in stride with surprising resignation; they are equally servile in allowing themselves to be fleeced as taxpayers that: easy to be robbed as shareholders.

'There is still a whole particular side to pre- life there-sente; industries such as those of liquid-judicial daters and bankruptcy trustees, who have not never existed in the past, and which have since taken some-What a time for incredible development. Install a In any ruin, a trustee will find a A gold mine for him...

How does he do it? He starts by obtaining a still-warm corpse and, often, to obtain it, it is forced to pay very substantial discounts to magistrates who issue it to him; once he has it, he He distills and sometimes extracts colossal sums from it. Some: court-appointed liquidators are five or more wealthy six million; they have castles, they marry off their daughters to ruined gentlemen. All of this is drawn from things dead.

The process is very simple. In a financial society—The company is in liquidation. There are those who stole and those who were robbed; those who stole have and those who were stolen goods are no more; the court-appointed liquidator is taking action. on the side of those who have against those who no longer have.

The service that the court-appointed liquidator provides to founders of bankrupt companies is of a completely different order psychological. The liquidator acts as a buffer between them and the victims; he lulls the victims to sleep, he leaves them to time to heal the wound and he refers to the absence of any energy in modern men to do the rest.

The task is, moreover, easy; the shareholder says Never anything. Apart from Colonel Noirtin, never a father of family, even seeing his own reduced to mendicité did not directly target one of the major thieves of our time.

The only fact I know of in this genre is passed right on my line, at the Gare de Lyon, and the scene took place between women. The line of the great ban-league, like all the lines in the vicinity of Paris, is frequented by a whole world of the wealthy, of money-makers, entrepreneurs who have earned fortunes in Panama or other suspicious businesses. Everyone knows each other and congratulates each other when a The plan was a success. The wife of a financier... recommended was there in the middle of a group, strong elegant, surrounded by many, when a lady more than just a A fully dressed woman approaches her.

— You have a very pretty dress there, madam...

— You think so?

— Well! This dress cost me sixty thousand francs, everything my husband and I had saved during thirty years and your husband took them from us.

You can imagine the commotion in this whole little world of satisfied and well-fed, who exclaimed: "If those whom one

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 193

"The bodies dare to shout, 'Where are we going?'"

The financier's wife, unlike most of Among her peers, she was a good woman; she did well without ostentation, without seeking to be in the newspapers; amidst ill-gotten luxury she regretted Sometimes the simplicity of beginnings... When facing of her, in the flesh, a victim of speculation From her husband, she had for the first time the intuition of what had happened; she understood that the splendor which the surroundings were made up of the ruins of thousands of poor devils: she suddenly glimpsed reality What a dreadful thing that vague word, "Business," concealed. She fell ill upon arriving at his castle, dragged what-a few months later, she died, very sincerely missed in the village she lived in.

While taking a morning walk, I met the Sisters who were crying as they returned from the service celebrated for her, and I said an Our Father and a Hail Mary for rest of this soul, while hoping that one will be hanged
the husband's day.

In terms of passivity, the shareholders of Panama is absolutely extraordinary. Those people They truly have the brains of slaves; they are doomed by destination to pay tribute and ransoms to the Bar-bars.

What do you want? French, as I told you, doesn't can think for itself, the newspaper needs to think and speaks for him; as soon as his newspaper falls silent, he remains mute.

Regarding the silence of the newspapers on this issue,
He is purely and simply admirable. You Did you hear about the slightest incident? "We conducted a Actress at the station! What an outrage! What an indi-Guité! We made it difficult to admit as A reserve officer and an actor at the Odéon! That can't be true.
It can't happen like this! We need explanations! What about...
"What does the minister think?"

194. THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Regarding this immense scam, which is a a real catastrophe for thousands of poor people
Not a line, not a word...

Mr. Rétault, a man of initiative and heart, appointed chairman of the shareholders' committee of the department the leader of the Indre region, tried to organize the fight; he addressed a protest against Mr. Monchicourt's report to Time, to the Sun, to Peace, to Figaro, to the Daynai of Debates, to Authority, to the Intransigent, to the

- Lantern.

Here is this Sole tion which had nothing but good moderate, since it only asked for the aetionnaires the right to verify the employment that had been made of their money.

Mr. Director,

On behalf of all bondholders: of Panama from the department of Indre, of which I am the legal representative, thus as can be seen from the minutes, a copy of which is attached;

Of all the Panama committees and holders of signed titles.
silences of the petition, the terms of which were voted on in Congress Panamanian from Barbezieux (Charente), November 17, 1889 petition submitted to the House for discussion on June 21 last ;

Of all the committees and title holders who sent me their support for the protest of September 13th near the Civil Court of the Seine, against the statements and results-states of the report by Mr. Achille Monchicourt, request addressed with registered letter, dated September 17, to the Civil Court of the Seine.

I have the honor of sending you the content of the said protest-tation, please take some. cannaïs-session.

In making this communication to you, Mr. Director-
The author, my clients, and I are driven by the thought that you will surely echo our legitimate demands cations, namely: that the holders of Panamanian securities be admitted to designate from among themselves persons who would have for mission to cross-check the statements and results of the report MA Monchicourt,.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 195

We have been spoken to so many times, and will we be spoken to again?
The great principles of '89? We believe that this is not 'There, a meaningless word, when it is a question of the greatest swindlepublic treasury of all times, among all peoples, swindlequerie accompanied by circumstances more odious than history has ever recorded.

Please accept, Mr. Director, with all our best wishes,
With thanks, and the assurance of our highest consideration.

The Chairman of the Shareholders and Bondholders Committee of the Panama of Châteauroux and the department of Indre,

RETAULT,

Retired military sub-intendant, officer of the Legion of Honour neur, Honorary Resident of the Independent Committees meeting in Congress in Charente, November 17, 1889.

It goes without saying that Mr. Rétault's appeal had no effect.
Not a single response.

On behalf of the group he represents, Mr. Rétault had Please send me a thank you address.
for having taken up the cause of the unfortunate under-
Mr. de Lesseps's cryptographers. I, for my part, put to his disposition, my old experience in journalism.

"Ask Mr. Monchicourt," I told him, "to me allow for notification of the sums paid for competition and advertising costs; if he is an honorary member of the publicity tea a fine man, as Fallières proclaimed from the tribune,
He cannot refuse you that, because everything concerning the Advertising must be public, and shareholders have a right to it.
the right to know how their funds were used.

Mr. Monchicourt was careful not to welcome this demand which was, admittedly, perfectly legitimate.

What's funny about that, when you know the beneath the Parisian press lies the attitude of certain... certain journalists. Who hasn't read the indignant articles consecrated by Mr. Henri Rochefort to Mary Raynaud? In outside, long columns into the interior of the day-Nat, there are five or six of these chronicles in picrate, in which the tireless and ever-young pamphleteer-

196 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Taire is having a field day. I assure you that the "Vidange candidate" is arranged by the beautiful way. - :

What did Mary Raynaud steal, though? Four or five Poor millions. Who did he steal them from? From people who knew, without a doubt, that something was at risk when you want to receive 30 percent of your money per year.

How is it that the writer, so harsh on the ban-Quier Auvergnat, remains speechless before such piracy which involves nearly fourteen hundred million? Com-Why is it that he is not demanding legal action against the administrators who played, with such a monstrous Shameless deceivers, exploiting the public's naivety? Mr. Rochefort, who is in London, could all the more easily-How can I find out the name of the administrator who placed it? English funds sixty million stolen by him in the Panama, that the name of this administrator is known to everyone, even in Paris. How is it that this vigilante If so severe, don't ask why there was no instruction. It was never started?

I do not claim to provide topics for one of our veteran journalists, but finally it seems to me that there would be, for Mr. Henri Rochefort, the theme of an article full of verve and ironic indignation in the spectacle of this unpunished wrongdoer, who walks around in all public ceremonies his grand cordon of the Legion of Honour, even though, not counting suicides, So many victims are reduced to dying of starvation.

Mr. Henri Rochefort was beside himself when Mr. Floquet refused to release a dispatch addressed to government by Mr. Richaud; this anger reveals evident-Definitely a man who loves the light. Why not does he not join me in asking Mr. Monchicourt to publish the list of journalists who have been affected Panama? Here, it's not the case, as in the case of Richaud's case, a matter of state, but a matter of on which everything should be able to be said without inconvenience-nients.

ANEMIA == ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 197

"If the 'Belted One', instead of being the good girl that deep down, he was in a resentful mood , he wouldn't have than to force Mr. Monchicourt to make this publication-tion. I believe Mr. Rochefort would feel some grief. The public might realize that the most "Belted" is not yet who you think...

If we are to believe what is being said, the in-left-wing compromisers and right-wing intransigence were the ones who drew the most from Panama.

This explains why the press did not demand it.
only once should justice intervene in this darkness-breuse affaire.

As for the administrators, they seem full of serenity. To firmly imprint the com-God's commandment that forbids taking what is good Next, it is the Nunciature itself that takes charge to celebrate the marriage of Mr. de Lesseps with Mr. de Gontaut-Biron, who, Etincelle tells us, "is a handsome, young, rich lord, with a brave heart of a gentleman.

In winter, M. de Lesseps hosts musical evenings. very popular. In the summer, the whole family travels to the campaign, where the Patriarch of Swindling leads a existence which is not without its charms, according to the Gaul's assertion (1).

Mr. Ferdinand de Lesseps spends part of the summer at the cha-historical site of La Chesnaie, in the Indre department, with its name beautiful family.

La Chesnaie belonged to Agnès Sorel, Lady of Issoudun, who was, as we know, the favorite of Charles VII. The former monument-

The historic building has been transformed into a pleasure house. shaded by ancient fir trees and flanked by a mo- tower Last. From the terrace of this tower, there is a splendid view. on the wooded and rugged meadows that unfold at a loss of sight.

Mr. Erdinand de Lesseps continues the traditions at Ja Chesnaie

(4) Gaulois, August 18, 1890.

198 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

hospital services of the lady of Issoudun; the inhabitants of Countries love him very much, especially since he is their oldest citizen and that his move to La Chesnaie dates back almost half a year century.

Hunting is Mr. de Lesseps's favorite passion; therefore, is he constantly on horseback, followed, as one might expect, by all her noisy and charming offspring.

On hunting days, it's a real whirlwind, through the country, of ponies and horses of all breeds and all 'size. The young Amazons, especially, are fearless that nothing can stop, neither obstacles nor fatigue.

When the weather does not permit physical exercise, Mr. de Lesseps settled into his... at seven o'clock in the morning. study; he is wearing, as in Paris, a skullcap dressed in velvet and wearing a full, floral dressing gown shimmering.

The cheerful note is provided this time by Delpit. Our colleague, as we know, apart from his authorial exercises dramatic, possesses in the vicinity of the Mor- quay land a deposit of bear cobblestones. When, in the pile, he 'finds a paving stone of exceptional weight,' he brings it to Magnard, who enshrines this specimen in Le Figaro bear literature as an example of the degree where can reach contemporary Boeotianism.

This is how we were able to read in Le Figaro: article in which there was talk of "the upright Fallières".

If this Fallières had not been "upright", which is a somewhat heroic word in these times, but simply "honest," he would have understood that the justice must be equal for all, and he would have charged a The investigating judge is struggling to clarify everything completely. This mysterious story of Panama.

All the embezzlement, all the misappropriation, all the false statements, all the diss- manipulations in accounting, all the maneuvers- Fraudulent goods are, in fact, accumulated there.

No one is unaware of the efforts made to achieve peacefully to the prescription; everyone is aware shameful negotiations following which Fal- The prosecution has been halted.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 199

Mr. Delahaye, with a courage that does him credit, but without daring, however, to tell the whole truth, had brought the question to the podium regarding the petition subscribers were stripped of their assets, and Mr. Fallières was asked what he intended to do. He was only able to get one answer confused and vague, in which Mr. Fallières promised that a report citing the facts would be published by Mr. Monchicourt.

However, Mr. Monchicourt's report is absolutely a joke; he strings together aggregate figures, but he produces no evidence to support these figures; he doesn't go into any detail; he doesn't produce a play accounting; he doesn't answer any of the questions which were based on the actual price at which they would have been paid for the shares of Panama Rail-Road.

There is nothing in this document, however well printed, Moreover, on nice paper, a figure that is not odious- increased sement, increased at least fivefold, for conceal the money that was embezzled by the administrators traders. Let's take one of these numbers at random. You Read in Mr. Monchicourt's report:

General meeting fees, advertising inserts and advertisements, 852,661 fr. 99. .

Here is what he wrote on this subject to Mr. Monchicourt

Mr. Gabriel Odelin, the brother of the city councillor of Saint-Germain-l'Auxerrois.

The Panama Company operated from 1881 to 1889, that makes nine general assemblies. *
Therefore, each general meeting would have cost:

88,888 FRANCS.

Now, sir, I belong to a society which, every years, gives its general assembly alternately to Winter Circus and Summer Circus.

4

4

200 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

To ensure all seats are filled, we are sending 23,000 summons letters in stamped envelopes 5 cents.

Do you know how much each assembly costs us? including all costs, that is to say:

Circus Venue,

Platform,

Security service,

25,000 summons letters (printing and distribution), etc. ?

Total cost: 7,500 francs.

That is, for nine years, 67,500 francs.

I am willing to distribute it further among the administrators of Panama 10,000 francs in attendance fees per person assembly, which would amount to 90,000 francs for the nine years; I I'm not stingy; well, the total would still only reach 457,500 francs.

Therefore, there is a long way from that figure to the 800,000 francs recorded on the expense table.

Where did the difference go?

The Company's system is very simple, it quintuple the actual amount of expenses incurred.

This small specimen will give the public a sense of the scale in which other expenses may be increased.

And Mr. Eiffel was paid 18 million in advance...

Fixed-price contracts! From the memory of architects and engineers, Of all entrepreneurs, has there ever been one who has actually received the money? work before it has been carried out, or at least who received such enormous advance payments!

As Mr. Gabriel Odelin points out, if a If that "little Frenchman" had done that, he would be prosecuted. long known as a fraudulent bankrupt, but a man who would only have to open his hand to dishonoring half of Parliament is, it seems, to- above the law. That's no reason, in any case, so that Delpit could describe Fallières as an "in- minister" "Scum." Fallières himself must have had a good laugh with his chief of staff, Mr. Lionel Laroze, and say to himself: "For- What the hell, does this gentleman call me "upright"?"

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 201

No lesson has any effect on these action-oriented brains. naires. When the gullible people see that there's a descent police at Place de la Bourse, at Mary-Raynaud's, they They take to their heels, they run down the street of Provence, at the Macé-Berneau Bank, and they arrived wind just in time to deposit their funds before the departure. That one, really, worked well: twenty-seven millions were donated; cardinals, archbishops questions, six thousand priests are in there... The Pope has en- sent his portrait to adorn the offices and his benediction- tion for the company.

– That's very strange!

– No, again, it's perfectly logical. It's the consequence of the abandonment by the new Church of all the doctrines of the Church Fathers on the loan interest, the work of money, that is to say, profit without work; this is the consequence of joining The Church to the Jewish system. From the day the Church... rehabilitated the wear and tear that she had fought against during For fifteen centuries, the social reign of Christianity has been finished and the reign of Judaism began. Proudhon, with his formidable power as a logician, has very well discerned that the crux of the matter lay there.

No matter how many times Leo XIII puts it back on the chan- In his famous encyclical on the social question, he did not He cannot escape this dilemma, and he will be forced to do so. to cling to more or less idle declamations, to banalities, more or less prudish, about the necessity of behaving well. It is with him as with the leaders of the Catholic party: as soon as he doesn't want to be with us against Rothschild, he is forced to be with Macé-Berneau. After all, this man paid so much that he was able to. What is criminal in him, in the eyes of the truth- The Christian moralist table is not about not having continued to give 130 percent a year to those who were handing over funds, it was daring to claim that he could legitimately give them. What is the High Bank? It's Macé-Berneau with more kidneys solid. At the moment of the final collapse, you will not You won't find it in the checkout of some large stores. bank sounds, what was found in the safe de Macé-Berneau.

202 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This company is, in reality, built on fraud. query. The more vulgar, simple, and devoid of the operation The more serious she appears, the more successful she becomes. During For a month, Parisians fought over the shares of Placers of Upper Italy.

– What are these Placers of the High Italy?

– It's nothing. We don't even know what it is. Among the bankers in Milan. There's nothing. Not a thing. operating. No industrial facility. The The investment funds are in France, since that's where they are drawn from.

gold and that the shares are invested. In Italy, there is Ticino, That's all.

– But really.

– I repeat, there's nothing there. It's a company Switzerland, which has as its sole contribution fishing rights for Gold and fish in Ticino. These rights, it seems, they date back to a charter of Frederick Barbarossa.

These contributions amount to fifty thousand shares which, at the price the shares were at in the month of.
February, would represent {rent and two million. You
You will admit that, even granting that the fish
If they were made of gold, they would have to be a nice size.
worth thirty-two million! It's true that one of the
The organizers of this fishery are accomplished fishermen. and even a repeat offender: he has already been convicted in the case of
to do Swiss land; another developer was .execut at the Stock Exchange, in Italy.

– It's absolutely fabulous!

– Oh! It's much funnier than you think.
But, you know, we hesitate... In wars In Vendée, the leaders sometimes could not distribute that six cartridges were given to their best soldiers: it was necessary

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 203

Think carefully before you shoot. Magistrates worthy of This name should publicly congratulate the writers courageous people who, without personal interest, strive to a-to protect the victims, to shield them from their own de-They are sympathetic to the financiers...I hear again the president, when I wanted to explain the piston, telling me in his wooden voice: "I don't Don't speak, you.

– These Placers of Upper Italy have already distributed A dividend?

– Absolutely... There is a company, the Blésoise, which was formed in Blois, to pay a sub- tax rental to the company. Right of subletting for a Something that doesn't exist constitutes a benefit, and that's on this profit that the general assembly voted on, to Lugano, an interim dividend of 16 francs. One another company, Angoumotise, was to be founded in Angousame.

– What started this?

– 'It's Mr. Circaud, the one who took the Gaul's Mary-Raynaud's estate. You only have to read the Gauls:

Placer shares are increasingly sought after chedes.

The shares of the Upper Italian Placers continued-wind their upward movement.

Placer bets respond to their detractors by increasingly higher prices.

– So what?

– So this Circaud founded a French Society Indo-Chinese colonial power with a capital of ten million; it promised mountains of gold to its shareholders and claimed that he had the patronage of the government.

The administrative, the prospectus said, reserves, IT REQUIRES US Assurance has already been given of its full support to our ATTEMPT and will promote it by all means at its disposal the efforts and progress towards success of our society.

204 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It is under these conditions that we appeal from the outset first hour to a work that is surely lucrative and eminently national.

The newspapers that hadn't been watered shouted, and Étienne, the Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, protested that Circaud's assertion was a pure lie-dream and that the government was completely foreign to the new company.

– So what? |

Then Circaud declared that in response to the slanderthose who dared to claim that he was in bad shape business deals and prove that his bank was very flourishing, he was going to liquidate it. The Pla-cers of Upper Italy, which had reached a moment 640 francs fell within forty-eight hours at 150 francs, and perhaps they will be at fifty centimes.

when this volume is published.

Here again, captured in the moment, is the morality of journalism.
Judeo-Catholic-monarchical lism. That's the business that is done in the King's newspapers; one engages there in poor fools selling their best values for to take shares in a business that one knows to be a Piracy... And all those Right-wingers who walk so little those on the right dare to claim that the royalists represent the
The party of honesty! Seeing their party fall to this level, I imagine that some old monarchists must sometimes finding that they have lived too long...

The non-functioning of the justice system in the face of pareils acts is one of the most curious phenomena of this time, when we examine it without vain anger and at a a somewhat exclusively scientific point of view fique. If some notes are broken in the keyboard individual among our contemporaries, there is also in the governmental mechanics of broken springs; it There are, if you prefer, dead organs in the body social.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 205

An almost namesake of mine, an Englishman, Henry Drummond – all these Drumonts really have the taste advanced studies – touched on these issues in a volume which had a huge impact in An-England: The Laws of Nature in the Spiritual World tuel. He applied it to the search for the laws that govern-senses the world of the mind, the method used to study the chemical and physical phenomena of the world inorganic. He thought that most of the laws of spiritual world, considered until now as belonging to a completely separate domain, are simply the laws of the natural world.

This is what an English poet, Aurora Leigh, had already tried to express.

And indeed, many thinkers of our time,
And even many Christian doctors who are halfway to heaven
Those who understood were quite wrong, in my opinion
Our natural world in a way that is too insular;
As if he were not attached to any spiritual continent Fulfilling his purpose, uniting everything to Justice, to the perfection line after line Form after form, nothing remaining isolated or separate.
The great All below held firmly by the great All From above.

Henry Drummond devoted some noble pages to demonstrate that the words of Saint Paul: "the wages of "Sin is death" was not a mere metaphor.
but an observation that is in some ways biological.
"The laws of the living God," he said, "are the very laws."
of Nature.

What is life? It is being in correspondence dance with many things, with what the An-
The English call it "the environment."

The mineral lives, but with a very rudimentary life.
Silent and inert. The tree already corresponds with the earth by its roots; its leaves are impressed by the sun and the air. The bird lives a more developed life

42

206 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Loppée again; he can move, he hears the song of his companions, and corresponds to a greater extensive "environment". Man is the most living beings of all creatures: he is in direct contact with the earth, with the air, with the heat of the sun, with the music of the birds, with all that has form, relief or color in the visible world. As he grows-said, he broadened the circle of his relationships; he touched the front-he enters the third part of the supernatural world, he lives there by the impression he gets from it, through the desire to go even further far away; he knows God and he belongs to the animals that do not know-God is not born like the tree is to the mineral which does not

I don't know the light.

As soon as man no longer knows God, he corresponds to a lesser "environment"; it regresses, it moves into a smaller circle, he descends the ladders lengths of life; he dies partially like the blind man or the deaf person who is put out of contact with a part of the outside world, in which life is evident-dementia less complete than in those who see and who hear; the meaning of the Divine escapes him at first, the He, in turn, lacks a moral sense, and his domain, of increasingly narrow, soon restricts itself to what is purely animal.

This is true of communities of men, of societies as individuals and, as soon as they are prey to Sin, paralysis gradually overwhelms them and the Death gradually takes hold of their vital organs.

Long after the function has ceased, the organ
It still exists, but it is an abortive, atrophied organ. For Those who watch from afar, Emperor William has it looks as if it has a left arm; only this arm is Dead, it's a piece of wood.

From a sociological point of view, nothing could be truer than what Henry Drummond says about this.

This is not the least tragic aspect of ertte.deca-the fact that its effects can even be hidden from others.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 207

The soul that undergoes degeneration, surely as a result of some diabolical plan forged in the depths of Hell, possesses the
The power of absolute secrecy. When everything within engenders the corruption and decay, a Judas, without anomaly, can kissing his master. This invisible consumption, like his a fierce analogue in the natural world, can even preserve his victim with her beauty while he kills her.

When we examine the small crustaceans that have lived since

For centuries, the Kentucky mammoth's cellar, we are first.
I was surprised to find that these animals appear to be gifted.
of perfect eyes. The pallor of the head is broken by two truly remarkable black dots such as the only colored spots on the entire bleached body; and for
To the superficial observer, these points represent certain-ment of well-defined visual organs. But what would '
Their eyes in these Stygian waters? An eternal, gloomy night
There. Is the law at fault this time? A quick incision with the scalpel, a glance with a lens—and their secret is betrayed. Those eyes are a decoy. Outwardly they are organs of vision; the front of the eye is perfect; the back-Behind it there is nothing but a mass of ruins. The optical fiber is a shrunken, atrophied, and sensationless thread

These animals have organs of vision, and yet they
They have no vision. They have eyes, but they cannot see.
That is exactly what Christ said about men: They They had eyes, but no vision. And the reason is the same. It's the simplest problem in the history of nature.
real. The crustaceans in the mammoth's cave have chosen their They lived in darkness. That's why they adapted to it.
By refusing to see, they have relinquished their right to see. And the Nature granted their wishes in a terrifying way. Nature
It was supposed to do so by its very constitution. That's its defense. against the dissipation that the withering of the faculty immediately follow the termination of the function. "That He who has ears to hear..." He whose
"My ears haven't degenerated, Entendel."

Those tasked with judging are themselves ha-inhabitants of the Stygian waters. Enter this tribunal, You will indeed believe it when you contemplate this display.
staged, listening to these formulas, being in front of mygistrats actually fulfilling a function of justice

208 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

tice, the highest social function after that of the priest. This is nothing but a pretense and an appearance.
These men being in the grip of sin and lust, to the love of riches, to corruption in all its forms forms, are whitewashed Sepulchers, as the said
Our Lord Jesus Christ: there is a dead man in them.

As the English philosopher writes, these people have They have eyes, but they have no vision. Their eyes are similar to those windows painted as decoration on some walls to conceal their nudity; they do not open No, these windows, to let in the sun, the real benevolent and divine light.

It would, moreover, be an inappropriate expression to describe as scandalous the recent judgments which have acquitted notorious thieves solely because they were rich. These judgments did not cause a scandal, at to speak literally, because of the moral state of the judges is appropriate to the moral state of the country.

These judges are not, as has happened in other time, exceptionally unique individuals perverted. They're not even bohemians of the Republic; those people tend to gravitate towards other car- They are upper-class bourgeois; They have, alongside the financiers' castles, houses comfortable country houses that they inherited from their families. Some go to Mass, and their wives go too. almost all of them. They are the ones who often excite the husbands to get along with millionaire thieves in insisting, when their spouses hesitate, on the necessity-city to arrange suitable marriages for girls.

These considerations essentially restore the Bourgeoisie indulgent. You will notice that most days- Conservative politicians had not a word of blame for the judgments rendered in the Metals case.

You would randomly pick 100 people from the street-middle-class sons, you would charge them with replace the current judges and you would offer them two or three hundred thousand francs to pay a financier who would have had misfortunes, which 70 out of 100 accept-would.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 209

Once again, we comment on these judgments without anger and, most of the time, they are announced as advance.

One of the administrators of the Discount Bank he said while having lunch with one of our colleagues: "The Presse is really not expensive; for 200,000 francs,

I managed to get her to stop talking about me and the Magistra-
"It won't cost me any more." On the line of Corbeil, on the Saturday night train, we were telling each other the remarks of one of the most compromised speculators in The adventure: "It will cost me dearly, but I'm sure to be acquitted.

It is only among the people that you will find still a certain sense of abstract Justice, a a certain power of indignation which is quite extinct among representatives of the upper classes.

I still remember, on a sunny morning, having listened for some time on the road to the workers who were chatting. It was at the height of the E- pavilion tiales, at a corner of the path from which there is a ravishing view-health on the Seine. Bob was very hot and, while Admiring the landscape, I let myself, like Hippolytus, float-to take the reins on my steed.

These workers had teamed up in pairs to buy the They read the Petit Journal together. The ruin of Comptoir d'Escompte had certainly not caused them no direct damage, and yet this cynic acquired-Their behavior made them furious. I understood from their lashing wager what it sows of hatred in the souls of the people this shamelessness of the ruling classes to defy, to the extreme-to bruise those instincts of righteousness which were so long dominant in our country.

No doubt, there are still some magistrates left.
who have retained the notion of social duty.

12.

210 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

We remember the noble attitude of the Attorney General Sarrut in the Metals trial, and that's a joy for the social historian, who is obliged to trace so many Shameful, to be able to quote words like these-
This is what somewhat elevates France's standing in the eyes of foreign countries:

I ask the Court to consider the reasons that dictate my consent.
duite: in our time, in a country of freedom like the ours, where everything is open to unlimited discussion, the only The obstacle is respect for the law, and this respect is measured by that which relates to the character of the magistrate.

However, the observer would not understand that three months, six months in prison, that is to say the minimum of the penalties that the law enacted and with which you strike the unfortunate who, for the
For the first time, appearing in court, they may have seemed sufficient to punish men who, with no other aim than to To satisfy their love of profit, they ruined two companies and caused countless misfortunes.

Watching such a spectacle, one might wonder why –
What does Justice, which weighs so heavily on the humble, have to do with 'such indulgences for the strong, and one would doubt whether it is fair to reserve for the little ones, for those who do not pro-do not make mistakes they commit, a severity to the-.
that would allow the culprits in high finance to escape, for in which the violation of laws has been a source of enrichment ment.

While Mr. Sarrut was speaking, nothing was unusual. to look at like President Calary, a little man bald, with a dark face, a sly look that one now calls at the Palais Calary-Laveissière and which I only mention, moreover, in connection with its functions-tions. He chuckled with his neighbors and seemed to be murmuring-rer: "Is it possible to waste one's time saying things Such nonsense?

If you want to know what French justice is,
Read this slowly and meditate on it:

This Laveissière, sentenced to only three thousand francs fine, for having ruined the second establishment-

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA. 211

financial stabilization of France by fraudulent manœuvres, had a servant, a man named Comet, who
He stole wine from him and resold it to a grocer in Draveil.
Laveissière naturally pursued this great culprit.
with the tenacity befitting a man of a A clear conscience, and after having done five or six months of pre-trial detention, the unfortunate Comet was tried in Versailles during the session of March or April 1890.

Do you know what sentence he received?
– Four years in prison!

You can almost hear 'ka conversation in a dinner party' from here of magistrates and the remarks that intersect between guests warmed by the fine food in the heady atmosphere at the end of a big meal? | |

The Financier. – Yes, gentlemen, the abuse of confiancée... I entrusted her with the keys to my cellar... It's a
A mission of trust, isn't it? The shareholders They trust me, they rely on the statutes, they know that our operations must be limited to discounting to trade effects.

FIRST COUNCILLOR. – What does he have to tell us?
Tell his story? Does he remember it?

SECOND ADVISER. – My dear colleague, do not inter-Don't break up with Amphitryon, who is an officer of the Legion.
of honor.

THE FINANGIER. – I entrusted five thousand bottles of wine for this man. I must find five thousand. One
A little bit of this Château-Yquem, gentlemen?

Third Councillor. – It is exquisite... It is The one that this scoundrel was stealing?

The Financrér. – This one is even better... I have I've been up my cellar since... You're following my rai-Sounds good, doesn't it?

Fourth Councillor. – Perfectly!... So, those who had deposited their savings in your
They found nothing more in the cellars?

212 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The FINANCIER. – Precisely... The wretch had
* took the wine.

THE PRESIDENT. – Yes, you had used the funds which were entrusted to you for a specific use at These are completely anti-statutory gambling operations... It's That's why we gave...

The FinANctER. – Four years in prison.

FIRST COUNCILLOR, to his neighbor. – What!
We gave him four years in prison?

SECOND COUNCILLOR. – You have taken too much Château-Yquem... It's a story he'll tell you– a tale... a story that happened to him. He had a a man in his employ who abused his trust.

THIRD COUNCILLOR. – Abuse of blank signature. The
The code is explicit...

FOURTH ADVISER, with tenderness.
As for breasts, if you saw Amelia's... In These are as white as snow... Blank checks, White breasts. (J7 laughs loudly.)

FIRST COUNCILLOR. – Be careful, there is a abbe.
Second Conseizzer. – Our colleague is not:

Seriously. He won't make it to the Court of Cassation.

THIRD COUNCILLOR. – He will get there, but only a little.
broken.

THE PRESIDENT. – Finally, how did all this come about?
finished ?

The Financier. – When we realized this disappearance.

THIRD COUNCILLOR. – The Bank of France,

our large national institution, gave 140 million lions to replace what administrators had removed...

To finance him. – And so, as I had the honor To tell you the truth, he was sentenced to four years of prison.

FIFTH COUNCILLOR. – Who then?

Second Councillor. – A man who had stolen wine...

FIFTH COUNCILLOR. – A bribe... It's

The Wilson case. We acquitted him too.

Ah! Well! What do they all have to tell us?

our judgments. That's already not very flattering for We.

FIRST COUNCILLOR. – He wasn't decorated, this man ?

THIRD COUNCILLOR. – No, it was a poor devil.

FOURTH COUNCILLOR. – Ah yes! A trifle that

Worth it... We have one like that to judge tomorrow.

He got three months for stealing a pumpkin. He is not

Not happy... What does he want? The maximum? He the aura... Me, when I feel the need to eat Pumpkin, I'll send someone to buy some from the greengrocer. I don't have yet my modest salary as a con-seiller...

FIFTH COUNCILLOR. – And then the trials of financiers who bring in a small amount.

THE PRESIDENT, with great dignity. – Oh!

Gentlemen, let's not raise these questions here; it's for the Council Chamber.

FIRST COUNCILLOR. – Another glass of this Chää-

Château-Yquem... It's really very good. Let's not forget

Not just on Rue Chabannais, we do the flea market with eleven people.

hours... When you arrive too late, you're in a bad spot

And we can't see anything.

THIRD COUNCILLOR, taking his coat in the antechamber. – It's all the same, gentlemen, it's rough-

It's very beautiful here. We could well have asked for a a little more.

What we must never tire of repeating is the ef-
The appalling harshness of these men who do not open their heart to pity only when it comes to millionaires; it is the monstrous, execrable and impious iniquity of these judgments.

214 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This, I said in The End of a World and in Der-
New Battle, and I repeat it again this time, because the
The newspaper passes and the book remains, when the volume is good worn out, very tired, untied from constant circulation, we un-I think fifteen cents will be enough to pay for the binding and the employee.
the traveling salesman, the worker, the people of law-those who write to me are searching, when they have a half-
They were given the page they had already read that made them think, which moved them, because it was truthful and sin-dear.

Let's look at it then, the gloomy procession that materializes in a way, right before everyone's eyes, the infamy of the Current judiciary, lenient towards the rich, implacable to the underprivileged. First, let's consider little Jahn who was sketched by Séverine one day when she was in a good disposition and that she did not have the golden ray Rothschilds in the eye to impair his vision.

Little Jahn is a young telegraph operator dismissed from because of his infirmities and also a little because of his involvement of politics; he is reduced to earning his living as he can.

Here he is, sleeping somewhere, eating somewhere, I don't know where.
What, still proud – you can believe me – not tending never lending a hand, rather accepting any task from chance that allowed him to swallow a mouthful of bread and to sleep under a roof.

One day-ah! listen to this, it's one of the most
"The most appalling and odious things I know!" – he was told that he will find work eight leagues from Paris. Eight leagues, for his crippled legs, which the polis has not healed,
on the contrary |

But, as I said, he's not 'a lazybones'. He puts himself into it.
road, drags itself along, arrives – there's no more work for him,
The team is complete! Half-dead from fatigue and hunger,
He lies down in a ditch.

How to get to Paris? How to get back? His feet
They no longer support him, bleeding profusely in their bandages.
of rags, and the inhospitable countryside is bad for whom He seems suspicious.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 215

Not a penny to eat, not a penny to travel – he
I was counting on my next day's paycheck! What to do?

He makes it to the station, waits for a train, and slips through without to be seen in a cattle van, and lies broken on the manure, which makes a warm and soft bed for him, while that the kind, compassionate animals spread their hooves so as not to hurt this little one, who seems so weary and so unhappy.

Upon arrival, we discover him, we arrest him, we hand him over to the police, and do you know what the punishment is for this crime of Fatigue and misery?... A fine of one hundred francs and three months of prison, FOR FRAUD.

In the eyes of the law, little Jahn was dishonored, because the
A criminal record records the sentence without specifying the cause.
But before eternal Justice?

Three months in prison for an unfortunate child cripple who travels by train without paying Place, three thousand francs fine for a large financier, in the prime of his intelligence and age, who abuses the mandate entrusted to him to deceive those who believed in him by presenting them with a false
So, is it pretty enough?

Please note that the judges of the Court of Appeal do not
They do not dispute the criminal nature of the alleged acts.
In Laveissière; listen to them instead:

Given that it follows from all the foregoing that the assessment was not based on the actual state of the So-'s affairs company; that it highlighted a non-existent benefit, and that It was intentionally that the true situation was not revealed.

exposed;

The thought of not providing accurate information and in particular to conceal the Comptoir's commitments
The situation regarding the Metals Company was so tense that we had care in the "Ongoing Risks" section, following the In short, not even mentioning the endorsements given to the contracts executed by Secrétan on behalf of the Société des Métanx with the mines, downstream which, moreover, are contrary to the prescriptions-the statutes, potentially binding the Comptoir for several hundred million;

216 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Considering that if, in the board of directors of the Counter, some members may have been unaware of the true
The situation of the metals and the artificial nature of the prices of copper, and admit the accuracy of the proposed balance sheets, this no error could have been committed by Laveissière who, in his capacity of chairman of the board and member of the board of directors
The Metals Company was necessarily aware the circumstances mentioned above, the inextricable difficulties cables in which the company was struggling and consequently the dangers that the Discount Bank faced;

Moreover, as early as June, the resignation of one of the administrators, given on account of commitments, to its overly significant meanings, taken by the Trading Post and concealed to the board by the director – resignation of which Laveissière has.
known the causes – should have determined it at that time to oppose the continuation of the state of affairs;

The Court only says that if Jahn, the little cripple, deserves no leniency, Laveissière deserves it a lot.

There is reason not only to reject the appeal from the public prosecutor against him, but also from him to apply the sentence under certain conditions more lenient tions than the first ones did judges.

We will now move on to some clearing.
audience:

Yesterday, before the 11th correctional chamber of Paris, which had dealt with millionaire financiers the day before, compa- They were, one after another, poor devils without hearth or home (1).

Among them came a 19-year-old boy, an old woman 55, a man in his forties.

The boy had stolen a one-franc pastry from the stall of a... grocer. Li had been without bread for three times twenty-four hours. He was sentenced to 15 days in prison.

The old woman had been found one night sleeping on a- platform, and had exclaimed, in response to the officers who had re-

(1) l'clair, May 31, 1890.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 217

vigil: "Leave me alone, take care of the thieves,"
I am an honest woman, only I don't know where Bedtime. – 8 days.

The man went to the station, saying: Take me to the depot,
I haven't eaten since yesterday, I'm homeless, he doesn't...
"There's not a penny left." He had already been convicted once before for va-gabondage. He is sentenced to 15 days. Then, irritated, he cries out:
"Pigs!" and 2 years for contempt of court are in addition to the 45 days.

Let's not forget the two brothers, Henri and Joseph Vandeputte, Parisian workers. In the month of Last May they were following a path in Bourg-la-Reine; they they catch sight of a few lilac branches passing by They pick them over the wall of a property to to make a bouquet and bring it back to their attic. a little of the fragrant greenery of the fields. The eldest,
Henri, 27, is sentenced to six days in prison;
Cadet, 17 years old, three days old!

To each his due: Rothschild, as A feudal lord of olden times had the right of high justice. When
If you touch his flowers, he condemns people to death, and he
They have them killed.

Who among you has not read, with a pang of sadness, the history-story of this unfortunate man on whom, on March 27th, They shot mercilessly because he had infiltrated in Mr. de Rothschild's property in Boulogne?

The man was unemployed, his family was hungry, and At night, he slipped into the manor's park to pick... read magnolia leaves which sell for a few under the market halls.

You can see the contrast from here. These are foreigners. who, having come from a Judengasse in Frankfurt, managed to. They took three billion from the French. They picked up on our soil a sheaf of golden ears of corn so heavy that their Their arms cannot embrace her. They have everything, they can sa-to indulge their most extravagant fantasies, they can buy whatever they want, the masterpieces of: art, the wonders of the past, the youngest girls and the oldest ministers.

43

218 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Frankly, when you have all that, don't you should not be pitiable for the poor wretch, for the wretch who dares to steal a few Flowers grown under the French sun?

No. The order is clear; the guard was certain of to please Rothschild and to receive a good reward thinking about killing "a French dog." He fired and the A Frenchman named Laval, a married worker, managed to He took a few more steps, then he fell and never slept again.

He was found dead the next day on the edge. of the Seine, opposite Mr. de Rothschild's property in Boulogne.

A year ago, a market gardener from Argenteuil killed a prowler who was taking away his asparagus; he was put in prison and appeared in the Assize Court. While remaining very bla-Mable, the act of this exasperated rural man was nevertheless more more excusable than the other. This peasant had sown the seeds himself. his asparagus; he had had difficulty growing them,

And he lived off it. I ask you, what harm can it cause?
to billionaires the theft of a few branches of magnolia? |

Séguy, the guard of Baron de Rothschild, did not an hour of prevention, he was never tried and, when He came to testify as a witness; he did not have to undergo any procedure.
the slightest reprimand from the president. The fact, however,
It resembled a straightforward assassination. There is no-has been demonstrated, in fact, that, in a property where the
There are many servants, this guard was in danger then-that none of the prowlers were armed, and that he fired accuratelysement on the one who fled and "who, consequently, nee
It was not a threat.

Not a single one of these Republican deputies who every day against the crimes of feudalism has not breathed Regarding this incident in the House, it is understood, moreover... theirs, that it was not Rue who, after having received

ANEMIR – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 219

A substantial subsidy from the Rothschilds could have raised this hare-
...there. As for the Catholics in the Chamber, it seems to them It's perfectly natural that a human being would be killed for a flower, when that flower belongs to the Baron of Rothschild. |

These people were told that antiquity had contempt for human life and that Christ was des-brought down to earth and had suffered an ignominious torture.
nieux, all designed to soften hearts and make them less tough men, but they didn't understand very well-taken.

Although both acts are equally abominable,
I confess that I still prefer Pollion making them throw at moray eels, a slave who broke a precious vase Rothschild had a French citizen killed for what purpose? tree leaves. The vase broken by the slave was perhaps a myrrhine cup of incomparable beauty or some masterpiece by Lysippus, by Scopas or of Praxiteles and the anger of the art lover may,

. not excuse me, but to make this mons- understood.
True cruelty. What excuse do you find for murder?
of that unfortunate Laval?

A month later, a few steps from where the man had come to an end, another Rothschild was giving a

A garden party, a Louis XV celebration on a farm Norman.

"A farm, do you hear me?" cried 1 Gaul,
A farm with a calf, a cow, and a brood of chicks. Yes, indeed, a farm.
'but I added: eighteenth century and one cannot it is not reasonable to assume that on an eighteen- farm twentieth century there was something other than Watteau and the, Lancet.

Then comes the obligatory description of the knick-knacks and the guest list.

Note: Baroness of Mohrenheim, Countess Ho-Yos, Baroness of Beyens, Countess and Marchioness of La Feronnays, Duchess of Luynes, Duchess of Uzès, of- .
Duchess of Doudeauville, Duchess of Maillé, Princess

220 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

de Ligne, Princess Radzivill, Countess Greffülhe, Countess of Riancey, Countess of Kersaint, Marchioness of Hervey, Countess of Monteynard, Viscountess of Trédern, Marquise de Mortemart, Countess de Caraman.

You can imagine the icy enthusiasm of this fake ker-mass where people who hate the Rothschilds more than we ourselves hate them,
But for infinitely less noble causes. You see also the grotesque side of this Watteau party at Boulogne, in the land of washerwomen.

Luckily, there was rifle shooting there.
and with a pistol. "The women," Meyer tells us, "weren't there." not the least skillful. » The Rothschilds were able to to show how a Christian was killed when he became aware knows how to steal a few blades of grass.

Let us imitate Carlyle. "Let us pause in silence and in pain over the darkness that is in the heart of man." All these people, in fact, are destined to to end badly; some are too villainous and others are Really too stupid.

Those who study our books later will find a document that no era has bequeathed to us in similar conditions: the final phase of a so— a company seized in the midst of its dissolution process, a world in somehow photographed in the spasms of his agony. They will be struck by the fact that this work of disintegration of all the elements that constitute a Nation is operating without anyone paying attention. Anarchy has taken hold in this country like the night settles on Earth, without us even noticing at the moment where it ceased to be day.

Apart from declamatory phrases, there is nothing that resembles a society in the sense that we used to give to that word used to be. An Eastern pasha would not have it. the right of life and death with the unpretentious that shows the President of the Republic in France.

ANEMIA — ANESTHESIA — ATARAXIA 221

A man named Bousquet, a bailiff, that is to say a A man of a certain education which makes him doubly responsible, rapes his sister-in-law and abandons his wife to live with this sister-in-law. Tired of this existence— Shameful, the unfortunate woman fled, found a A servant's place; Bousquet discovers her; she refuses to return with him, he murders him; he then murders a lawyer, a family man, Mr. Pagny, who was absolutely— a stranger to the case and who had only had the misfortune of taking Bousquet's wife into his service vice...

The Marseille deputies who had apparently done dirty dealings with this Bousquet, intervene and they demand mercy for this wretch.

A few years ago, a bad subject, named Jeton gets drunk with another individual; they fight. after drinking, without anyone knowing exactly who had com— began. Finally, the individual is killed, Jeton is con— damned to death and executed; do you know why? — To teach him, they say at the Ministry of Justice, to be defended by a conservative lawyer.

Frankly, under these conditions, wouldn't it be worth it? better to play the head of a condemned man in five seconds

the discarded one? (1)

(4) We have not forgotten the circumstance to which Mr. Carnot owed his elevation to the presidency of the Republic. The Journal of the Fonctionnaires took it upon themselves to demonstrate to us that the new President had hastened to forget, in power, the fine sentiments of as a member of parliament; he allows the religious congregations to be prosecuted with devoted to charitable works, he gives fifty to a Jew times a millionaire in the sums he owes the State.

"We remember," writes our colleague, "the impact that Three years ago, there were the Wilson affairs and how one of the serious accusations against the former undersecretary of state were of having abused his position to evade registration rights registering certain pleasant personalities. Among them, Messrs. Dreyfus brothers, former clients of Mr. Grévy, lawyer. We remember also the emotion produced by all these revelations in the country and to the Chamber of Deputies.

222 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

As for the Jew, he found a way to get himself a code for himself alone. Mary Raynaud speculates and loses his clients' money; he is sentenced to three years of prison. Léon Rodrigues engages in exactly the same activities. operations, he founded a General Bank of Premiums; He attracts gullible people with a newspaper costing one franc a year, the Scholarships for all, and the Jew, defended by his coreligionnaire Seligman gets away with three thousand francs. fine.

The court takes cynicism to the extreme by acknowledging that there was indeed fraud, but he adds that a Jew is above the law.

Regarding the offenses of breach of trust and the scams related to joint ventures on the French annuity 30/0 and the so-called secret operation:

"A parliamentary inquiry was held. Mr. Philipon, a member of parliament, was in charge of the report on the Dreyfus affair. As of the date of On December 15, 1887, he established that the registration had with reason received a sum of 75,000 francs on the company's deed in participation formed between Messrs. Dreyfus and Société Générale for the exploitation of Peruvian guano; that the minister had, at wrong, at the urging of Mr. Wilson, ordered on his own authority the restitution of the 75,000 francs and that he should have let justice take its course to decide. On the rapporteur's proposal, the Chamber of The deputies unanimously ordered that the matter be resumed and that a A judicial decision was provoked.

"For the past three years, what has the recording done to comply with the wishes of..." Members of the Chamber? What did Ms. Tiphaigne order? And What exactly did the management's registration department do? From Paris? Nothing, nothing, nothing. The Dreyfus brothers did not pay back the 75,000 francs and refuse to pay, having nothing to fear; No memorandum has been served on them, and the matter is not yet registered, after three years, on the roll of the civil court chamber of the Seine. And yet, it is not the uncertainty of the decision future that can stop; for a long time now the Court of Cassation ruled in favor of the registration administration. lying in similar cases.

"In 1887, Mr. Tiphaigne was the general manager when the The Chamber ordered the prosecution; and it was he who received the orders to continue.

"He is still a director today, and, for the past three years, he has not..." "Nothing done."

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 223

Given that prevention is not sufficiently established blie, dismisses Rodrigues from the proceedings:

But given that, by being handed over for alleged upward stock market transactions, spot and forward on the Panama, funds, securities, bonds, notes or promises made by various people, Rodrigues committed the crime of fraud. query;

Given the mitigating circumstances resulting from this that Rodrigues' clients were all speculators..."

For these reasons, the court sentences Léon Rodrigues to a fine of three thousand francs.

Never before, just ten years ago, had a French court would not have dared to render such an absurd judgment-brante fantasy. Never would anyone have thought of insulting the victims to avoid punishing the guilty party. The court finds that there has been a violation of a moral law that social laws are responsible for enforcing.

This violation must be punished for its own sake and without that it is necessary to take care of those at the expense of the—under what conditions this criminal act was committed. In these conditions one could perfectly acquit the Pranzini and the Prados, noting that those they had Those murdered had made the mistake of engaging in prostitution.
tuition.

This existence of a different justice system for Jews and for Christians, this is moreover affirmed at every instance—so much.

All the newspapers mentioned the conviction of Marquis de Salaberry, a landowner from Loir-et-Cher.
He had taken the liberty of writing to the public prosecutor.
de Blois: "Now justice is relative." He was sentenced for this act to two months in prison which, on his opposition, were reduced to twenty days.

In the trial of the League of Patriots, Naquet said to his co-defendants; turning to the deputy prosecutor Lom-Bard: "Let this gentleman drool!"

Naquet was never prosecuted.

In his indictment, Mr. Gonthier, the prosecutor of the

224 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Republic in Blois, which I only deal with to the extent of
In view of his position, he had the audacity to exclaim:

— Know, Monsieur de Salaberry, that justice is equal for everyone, and if you are not used to this equality, you will serve as an example and you will not be surprised that the
The law affects you... Let me therefore express my regret that a man in your situation is not setting an example Respect due to justice. You are far more guilty.
You are an intelligent and educated man, unlike vagrants.
bonds which insult the judiciary (1).

In court, a judge can do anything. to put, but if I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Gon-Thier in a living room, I don't think he would dare me to seriously argue that "justice is equal for all of them." There is obviously no proportion between the

The act of saying that "justice is relative" and the insult gross misconduct, which consists of stating, in open court, that a magistrate is "drooling".

Mr. Gonthier, who is perhaps a witty man, would simply tell me what they told me in my head many magistrates head: "When a Jew is in Because of this, the Synagogue intervened immediately and we we receive direct orders; we could not pass not to ruin our careers. (2) » |

The only right word that has been said in a long time
"Regarding this situation" is the word that keeps coming up in
Mr. Francis's articles, full of gentle philosophy

(1) Lantern, October 15, 1890.

(2) In current courts, everything absolutely depends on the person in question, their relationships, their protections, and the Magistrates are the first to laugh at the extravagance of their judges.
ments. Is it necessary to recall the incredible ruling of the Court of Appeal?
pel acquitting Mr. de Labruyère and condemning Mrs. Duc-Quercy and Mr. Grégoire absolutely for the same act, in the same affair ?

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 225

Magnard, that word which delights so many people because it re-pondered the vague perplexities of their intelligence, to timid protests of their conscience:

"That's alright, all the same!"

If many gears are broken, if the device makes a clanging of metal, the Ferris wheel keeps turning.
This constitution of the year VIII, which Taine shows us to its initial operation in its most recent version lume, was installed by a hand so powerful that it It's still going on.

The current organization, moreover, has this strength to that it cannot be restored or improved, he
We must either throw it down or take shelter in it as best we can.

Where do you expect a lofty idea to take root?

Support in such a rotten society? Try to to hammer a nail into a cracked and rotten hovel
You won't succeed because of the humidity and saltpeter;
By driving the nail in, you will bring down heaps of Plaster and your nail will never hold.

You saw it in the press, you see it through the
The judiciary: everything that is intellectual authority and social is powerless, corrupt, unable to render no service to the community. The domination of Money is absolute.

The members of the French Academy elected Mr. de Lesseps in exchange for a distribution of shares of Panama, which, I hope for their sake, they will have had the Good idea to sell before the debacle. The Academy of Beaux-Arts took over from Rothschild. Last June
The Academy of Sciences named Bischoffsheim in-Richi, via Honduras, and a German newspaper... given the price of the election. It's cheaper than a acquittal.

Here again, there is no doubt whatsoever. Bischoffsheim, who possessed no scientific qualifications whatsoever, had eminent men as competitors: the Colonel Laussedat, director of the Conservatory of Arts and trades, Mr. Lauth, former director of the factory

43.

226 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

of Sèvres; Doctor Rochard, member of the Academy of medicine; Mr. Rouché, surveyor.

There were 68 voters; in the first round of voting,
Mr. Bischoffsheim was elected by 37 votes against 14 to Doctor Rochard, 13 to Colonel Laussedat, 2 to Mr. Rouché and 2 blank ballots.

"I am a golden column," Bis- likes to repeat.
"Choffsheim, I let myself be scratched."

The academics scraped the column and, to the scholar officer, they preferred the man who to the esteemed doctor paid well.

To a first-rate critic like Brunetière, to Mr. Thureau-Dangin, the author of a somewhat poti-Ironie, but interesting: The History of the Monar-July shit, the French Academy prefers a man like Freycinet who expelled the religious figures from their cells holy men of this order of Saint Benedict who saved the Letters from the Middle Ages. He had been the guest of these brave men.
people at the time when he sought the protection of a gift Guéranger rewarded them by sending them himselfeven the police during the second eviction when he was President of the Council; even today
The Fathers of Solesmes are forced to live dis-drilled into the village houses without having the right to live in the house that belongs to them.

These are the noble examples that the Academy proposes to Our admiration!

Moreover, we only have to follow our paths in life.
comrades who arrived to know exactly the pride in-the intellectual dignity of character of men who will serve as guides for the next generation.

There's Lavis on the threshold of the Academy. This time, Like a good courtier, he deferred to Freycinet, but he will come in next time. I'm delighted; it's one of my fellow students, he was at Charlemagne with me under Boissier; he has a well-organized clique in the press,
It's a favorite among young people and, according to a certain
In this inner circle, he works hard for the recovery of the Fatherland.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 227

Before even considering rebuilding the nation, Lavis would have He'd better not let himself down. His books, in fact, do not give the idea of a man who He is highly respected. He is a disciple of the Jew Giedroye. who reworked La Fontaine's fables for the use of secular schools and which, to these overly clerical verses:

Little fish will grow big God willing, substituted these:

Little fish will grow big
As long as he is allowed to live.

In the first editions of his History of France, Lavissee had written about Napoleon: "Pride ultimately destroyed him; he was the architect of his own downfall." their own ruin, and, after so many victories and conquests, He left France smaller than he found it. thus showing that a nation is committing an irreparable act her fault when she gives herself to a man, even though: that this man received the gift of genius from God (A).

From the twenty-fourth edition onwards, Lavissee has indeed He kept the phrase, but he crossed out God; he put simply: when a man has received the gift of genius (2).

You have to live in our time to see such astonishing things...

Numerous examples of intellectual depravity. No doubt, We have the right to be atheists, to explain by chance the origin of the world, to remain indifferent to this supernatural-rel that surrounds us on all sides, but what to think of a writer who crosses out God from his sentence in order to please to a Minister of Public Instruction?

(1) The First Year of French History with Stories, by Ernest Lavissee (Armand Colin classic bookstore, page 310).

(2) Second year (formerly first year) of History of France, page 316.

228 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

With Bardoux, who is a conciliatory and gentle man,
There was still a God. With Lockroy, there is no more.
God of all things.

Note that the one who testifies in this way to the masters of the day a servility that smacks a bit of flat-footedness, isn't it not some poor, filthy devil, he's a university mandarin-sitaire; he holds a teaching qualification in history and a doctorate in letters, lecturer at the École Normale Supérieure, professor at the Faculty of Letters in Paris; he has all the Tchnin buttons, the jade button and the button of lapis lazuli; it is, like Gréard, palmate with violet, de-

He is dressed in red, he will soon be dressed in green; he travels abroad to represent youth and he has given as a specialty of working, as Mr. de said Vogué, "to rebuild a collective soul for France".

You see this large literary character, walking away ask the Ministry of Public Instruction to see Bobèche, who replaces Salvandy, Guizot and Cousin... Bobèche isn't there: he's negotiating a business with his friend Mayer, from La Lanterne. It's at the bailiff from the firm that Lavissee is addressing:

– Do you think I have the right to pronounce the In God's name?

– Beware! God! We don't want any more from here.

By leafing through Lavissee's books, one would find even more proof of this masculine virtue which comes to the educators responsible for teaching our children to be men...

What could be more poetic, even from a human perspective? that this figure of Saint Genevieve who appears at the origin of our story, as if in a light of dawn—Rore? What could be more likely to strike young imaginations? nations and to uplift the souls that the vision of this ber-managing, with his faith in the future, this little Lutetia Who will be Greater Paris? What more touching statue to Have the children greet each other as they are about to enter in this history of France where Woman, let her pray like Geneviève, or that she fights like Joan d'Arc, has he always played such a beautiful role?

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 229

Lavissee had understood this, and, in the first editions, he had devoted a few lines to Saint Genevieve; but if Bobèche does not love God, Goblet does not love not the humble daughters of the people who say their prayers in working. If Saint Genevieve had lived in her time, He would have had her killed, just like Henriette Bonnevie, the sweet one. Praying woman of Châteauevillain... Lavissee therefore removed saint Geneviève took it out of her book and replaced it with something else.

What a tantalizing chapter to write under this title: The Ber-manages and the Scholar!

The Shepherdess didn't open many volumes, she reading only from the great book of Nature, she learns to know God by meditating alone, in the midst of fields, on the splendors of Creation and the magnificacy of the heavens. When danger is there, when one—the tremendous noise of the hordes stretches into the distance of Attila, or the victory cries of the English bands, She obeyed the promptings of her kind, innocent little heart. and valiant, and she saves the Fatherland.

The scholar has a library in his brain; he has read everything that rhetoricians of all kinds have written about heroism the times in Rome and Byzantium, — and in Rome as in Byzantium, he's still the same, cowardly and trembling. before tyrants, however vile those tyrants may be.

This will not prevent the newspapers from stamping their feet to-enthusiasm on the day of Lavissee's reception.

You can almost hear an academician, who will perhaps be... To be Mr. de Broglie or Mr. de Vogué, tell the recipient-daïre: "Sir, what the Academy honors in you Today, it's not talent, however much you may have it. a great deal; it is not eloquence, and yet we know—"And what is yours?"

Here, a man who knows how to speak usually takes a Time... The listeners, who were holding their breath to avoid missing anything the speaker said, in profit to sigh either from above or from below. After two seconds we finish by saying: "It's character."

230 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The newspapers noted the following day that the assistance engaged in frenzied transport.

All this pompous, declamatory nonsense rests, in Indeed, these glories fostered leagues of mutual admiration. Artificial entities are like the corporate name of trade unions. where everyone helps each other out. It's not even It's not permissible to joke about these groups, where young people people, already well-versed in the diplomacy of life, prepare their own successes by working at that of the leaders. Barrès, in a humorous article, having allowed himself to smile at the Student Association and, I believe, to take a bit of a dig at Lavissee, received a very green letter from a Mr. Gustave Laurent, who does not allow anyone to touch the idol...

This platitude of a writer occupying a position high enough to have some self-respect and removing the name of God from one of his books, unique to flatter the nasty habits of our governments Nantes, does not shock the students who belong to the new generations. For these struggle for lifers of The future is simply a matter of skill. Time has gone from being in Compiègne to being sufficient to incite against professors like Nisard demonstrations of a resentful youth on all this which touched on intellectual independence.

Today teachers can go and do ' bowing before the Empress of Germany without Our decadent youth are thinking of protesting.

I encourage you to read about this in the Essays on . Imperial Germany, by Lavissee: The Invasion in the department of Aisne. This monograph, very firmly and very soberly written, it is an excellent chapter of this definitive History of the War of 1870-71 which still remains to be done.

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 231

The author recounts the nameless treatments that the The Prussians subjected the innocent populations to the torture of the unfortunate hostages taken in each location They were confined and imprisoned in the citadel of Amiens. The recruits those arriving from Germany were sorry not to to have shot a Frenchman; to console them, They were given unfortunate guilty people to shoot – they were sorry for trying to protect their property, and we for to allow the hostages to witness the execution.

An old, retired Prussian commander, "who had "returned to service as a jailer," commanded the citadelle. Zt alla, Lavissee tells us, until she imagined to give the hostages the spectacle of an execution military, to make prison more odious for them.

A highly respected merchant in Amiens, who was wise to defend his store against a troop of Germans who had begun to loot it piecemeal out of pleasure, he had wounded a soldier in the hand; it was shot, under the hostages' windows, by young soldiers who were arriving from Germany and who were firing
That was their first shot.

We certainly don't have to talk about Revenge on every subject and, for my part, I have never given That rating. But frankly, when you're our age, that we are in our forties or sixs, when we have seen the
To be Prussians in our country, one must have a truly abject soul.
to go and prostrate yourself, even though nothing compels you to do so.
in front of the Empress of Germany. It is also necessary that a
The professor clearly despises today's youth, the youth bourgeois, let it be clear that all virile energy died within her for daring to return to her flesh.
after such a procedure.

Rest assured, despite everything, that Lavissee will be acclaimed. by all our young "fin de siècle" generation. Poor Niçois! He He died too soon; he would have been well avenged by seeing at work the opportunistic generation that it is just not to be confused with honest workers from the Latin Quarter, who are all anti-Semitic, and who

232 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They show us their support on every occasion.

The scandal of Daudet's son's civil marriage is, moreover, an excellent opportunity to see things clearly in the soul of a great scholar of the late nineteenth century, to know exactly the idea that a writer illustrious is made of these religious questions which, through Throughout the ages, they have interested and fascinated the noblest.
minds of humanity.

11. Just read Last Battle to know the feelings I had for Daudet. I was for He, as with all those I have loved, was a faithful friend and devoted, and I have often been ridiculed for my ardor the somewhat naive way in which I defended him on every occasion—
Sion: he betrayed me a little recently, and I Don't hold it against him, since it allows me to speak of him freely. There are three people in Paris, in fact, who would laugh heartily if Daudet were to claim that

It was I who was the disloyal and treacherous friend. As for the
The Republican press is ready to support this thesis:
_she is a prostitute sold in advance to who pays.

The first point to consider is that these people who displaying contempt for the Church in front of all of Paris are not at all anti-Christian; in that case, they would be absolutely within their rights to express their opinion.

Daudet's father was a staunch royalist; her mother, a brave and worthy woman if ever there was one, was a Catholic-fervent lique, like so many in the South; she died with her rosary in her hand; Daudet's sister is,
She too, a practicing Catholic. The youngest the writer's son, this sweet little Lucien, who looks so distinguished and so gentle, is raised in an establishment religious, at the Bossuet school; he attends retreats Saint-Sulpice; his mother accompanies him and, to help him, takes notes on the sermon with this quiet and smiling, good grace that she puts into everything. I have con-
I myself took Lucien to Mass and I was edified by its good condition.

I knew Léon Daudet when he was barely a teenager, I told him

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA 233

I had him repeat his exams for volunteering in the woods; I watched that intelligence grow. I told him often asked for information about the vocabulary medical information, and I was amazed by the precocious lucidity of the spirit of this young man who, if he had wanted to work-Vailler would have had the philosophical intuitions of his father with the advantages of a more rigorous education-scientific knowledge; but, on the other hand, I have not discovered within him lies the shadow of a hostility towards Religion.

The moving aspect, precisely, is what gives the impression of The general weakness is to see these people denying the God of their fathers publicly, cynically in front of everyone, solely because there is a A huge dowry: three million! This thought changes everything the designs. The curly-haired teenager of The past is revealed in the guise of Paul Astier, and the
The family throws everything overboard: traditions, beliefs, memories.

Simon, known as Lockroy, enters the scene. In this May-his, where so many men of diverse merits have passed, I have

I heard Daudet talk about Red Tail and about twenty times
That clown, that peddler who sold politics like...
His peers were selling ties under the doors coachwomen. I've heard the story told twenty times... this cab with its blinds drawn, which the officers stopped all of a sudden, and which, about fifteen years ago,
It made headlines in Paris for eight days.

It's in front of this thug, in front of this son of a bitch that a writer like Alphonse Daudet would capitulate! The au-
The Nabob's father mercilessly mocked this statesman of tall, handsome man who was called the Duke of Morny and who had
He was the protector of his youth, he wallows in this Turlupin, whose pale face bears the mark of so many bellows.

In all the stories relating to this marriage, you don't see the great novelist appear even once whose work, after all, is beautiful and glorious. It is Bobèche, who is always in the spotlight; he's the one who writes

234 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

to the newspapers; he is the one who takes it upon himself to inter-to come the name of M[°] Carnot that the simplest Modesty should have prevented him from speaking; it was he who organizes this ridiculous fuss at the town hall, this parade theatrical and melodic, which would have excited all the Daudet's ironies, if it had been someone else.

If it had been someone else, I can picture us with Daudet.
in Champrosay or in my garden in Soisy doing a good laugh, as we did sometimes, and making fun of this Jeanfesse, possessed by a
A kind of hysterical advertising frenzy that desperately wants 'to force a baptized person like M^{*} Carnot to attend a secular comedy, even though it has no connection with Neither family.

Note that this Simon has no authority to speak. He He's not anyone's father in all this, thankfully.
for the new couple. He introduced himself unexpectedly.
in Victor Hugo's family, much to the despair of old poet who felt a repulsion for this rascal almost physical. Victor Hugo's will attests the persistence of this aversion, which was known to all. Victor Hugo took precautions to prevent-

Dear Lockroy, for sticking your nose into the publication of his manuscripts; he left to Mn° Lockroy only this that he couldn't take away from her: a pension of six one thousand francs out of an inheritance of nearly seven million! At this wedding, he was the first guest, that's all.

Once again, Daudet's flattening in front
Such a fool shows you the state of a scholar's soul.
of this century.

In the soul of this writer who held a prominent place astounding in French literature, you will not find none of these generous sentiments which are honor men. He has no gratitude towards God who showered him with blessings, who gave him happiness domestic, talent, success, fortune; he does not
He does not believe he owes any duty to him. He does not consider,

ANEMIA +- ANESTHESIA - ATARAXIA 235

Nor, to defend against a Lockroy the traditions of his race; he does not have the pious attachment to the rites which accompanied their loved ones in life and in death;
the strict adherence to decency even to this Religion who believed her mother was now lying in the falls. He is not told any more than the rank he 'occupying the world of Thought has conferred upon him a a kind of social function, which his example will have the influence on other beings, whom he will offend believers, take away even more of their religious faith to the disinherited who are happy to attach themselves to some ideal to avoid despairing in the midst of life's trials. No, he is hypnotized by beauty.
wedding, this three million wedding and, a little bit at Reluctantly, he goes wherever we want.

Everyone who plays a role in this episode "well Parisian," to use the established term, are worth the barely able to be looked at.

Do you know of a more unpleasant creature than this a young bride who begins her life with a demonstrationscandalous? She is twenty-three years old, the age when one believes in God as in Love, in Poetry, in the Spirit France.... She, too, doesn't tell herself that there is poverty.
real girls who don't have three million, who are placed between prostitution and hunger, and who need us lets them believe in something to resist the tentations of Misery.

Brought by curiosity, they are there, perhaps, the poor girls of the people I think of, lost in the crowd that the peacekeepers are brutalizing to allow distinguished guests to enter alone This town hall is everyone's home. By the way, the millionaire throws a word at his miserable sisters and This statement is a protest of contempt for the the religion of Christ, for the religion of Saint Genevieve and of Joan of Arc.

The unfortunate child may not be as

236 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Guilty as she seemed. She was truly graceful.
when, saying hello to everyone, she walked around From the table to Victor Hugo's dinners... It's Lockroy who corrupted this innocent soul, who did this young, modern, tough, sneering at misery and suffering, foreign to all works of charity.
Do you know what this household was like, as it entered the world?
with three million, gave to the poor of this city of Paris, which honored Victor Hugo with such magnificent Tuners? A thousand francs! Honestly, this gift
It was not ruinous at all.

The witnesses are good too. Dr. Potain affects very Catholic sentiments; his sister is very pious and does much good; and here is a man who, in the hope of some commander's tie, comes to renounce one's faith and parade in a secular ceremony!

Goncourt is the old gentleman; he never runs out of ideas.
on the cowardice of the men of the present; he boasts of his proud independence from the puppets who govern us nent, and here he is too, coming to get his hair dirty.
whites in a masquerade with a grand orchestra that rap-shovel the Sans-culottides...

It cannot be repeated enough: when Leading figures, authorities, and superiors demonstrate this how to let go of one's conscience
Do you want the masses to be something other than what they are?
skeptical, detached from everything, indifferent to everything, cha-

it's just a matter of not having the necessary when a few privileged people are gorged, and saying that she will soon have her turn?

BOOK FOUR

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY

Homo homini lupus, Mulier mulieri lupior,
Sacerdos sacerdoti lupissimus.
UX COUNTRY PRIEST.

Give space to everyone's actions.
The layperson does not need to wait for the priest, nor the priest to wait for the bishop, nor did the bishop have to wait for the Pope to follow their own path. The shy ones move by herds and brave men march in simple lines. When combined efforts are required, let us always be ready and in Always ready to obey orders given; but in these provisions there will be yet another vast field for individual action visual and a great good can be accomplished by her.

(Bishop Irwland of Saint Paul)

of Minnesota.

THE BISHOPS

What people say and what they think. – The German Cultural Camp
The French Kulturcampf. – Wise words of Cardinal Czaki.
– Catholics dancing. – The law on religious orders.

– At the Opéra-Comique. – Bizet's statue. – The husband of the Widow. – Persecuted in Byzantium and persecuted in Paris. – The current episcopate. – The opinion of a director of religious affairs. – Honesty of morals. – The exceptions. – The death of a Bishop. – At the Opera. – A sacred official. – Situation painful and precarious for the lower clergy. – The interdict. – All resistance to power is broken.– For what reasons? forbidden certain priests. – The Bishop of Séez and the parish priest of La Chapelle-Moche. – Yet another negotiation by Mr. de Mackau. – The financial administration of the bishops. – The old regime was founded, the current liquid regime. – Ecclesiastical property. – Resources available to the bishop. – Waste and disorder. – 800,000 francs in debt. – An ingenious vicar general. – Bishops who change garrisons. – A legacy of 4,500,000 francs. – The pension fund. – An archbishop end of the century. – Cardinal Place. – A consul general pre-varicator. – The Institute of the Little Sisters of the Poor. – The .

The disappearance of Father Lepailleur. – The end of a saint. – Around from a safe, – A diocese in revolution.

It is only last, almost at the very end, that I address this chapter.

As a historian of contemporary life, I cannot, however I will refrain from addressing this issue.

Before future generations, the People and the Aristocracy, the political world and the financial world will appear in my books as they were at the end of the tenth century. ninth century. The clergy would leave a void there. It is in by remaining silent on this point, I will allow my adversthose who declare that I am a pamphleteer and not a social historian, whom I trace with a violent brush the vices of my enemies, and that I leave in the shadows the ugly sides of my friends.

It is not that I intend to reveal in these '* pages of truly extraordinary things. I will bore myself On this point, as on many others, to repeat what Everyone knows what is in common conversation. what every priest tells you when he's a little confused engaged to you.

For having done my work correctly and simply
As a painter, I will nonetheless be accused of doing nothing respect. This applies to everything concerning religious matters.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 239

It is indeed in the realm of the grievous that imposture is most evident.
In general, the bias of always remaining within a certain circle
This is a universally accepted convention. There is a universally accepted rule here.
accepted to lie constantly.

The French prelates are all saints, intrepid men confessors of the Faith who brave the persecutions of Diocletian, and who, without divine intervention, was born to-would not be able to withstand all the suffering that the seeing them endure it.

This is the theme that has been adopted. The religious newspapers deal with the discretion of well-informed people speaking to readers who know what to expect. The newspapers boulevard newspapers, gossip columns, and gossip columns they don't make such a fuss and throw themselves into the dithyramb with a zeal that has no equal.

However, for any sincere Catholic, contemporary prelates
The porains bear no resemblance whatsoever to this portrait. Except With a few rare exceptions, the bishop is a brave man man, a worthy priest, absolutely servile towards authority, and who has never had a minute in his life the intention to brave persecution and oppose the attacks committed against the Church, something other than a A purely platonic protest. There is an excellent-
The slow reason is that the Government is gathering information carefully before appointing a bishop, and that he would not appoint a bishop capable of hindering him.

To judge the conduct of our Episcopate in the French cultural camp, one must carefully examine the Kul-
Prussian Turcampf. !, a |

On parle peu maintenant de 'ce Kulturcampf dans les "religious newspapers; it was shown to the French as
. On shows them everything: they saw the beginning-
They have seen the end of it; they barely suspect that between
The beginning and the end, there was a middle, and that

The middle ground would be precisely the most interesting to know.

From time to time, you read sentences from this

240 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

genre: "Protestant Germany sets an example" which should make the government of a Catholic countries like France: seminarians are exempt from military service; religious orders have taken possession of the houses that had been given to them risen. Bismarck did not hesitate to admit that he had been deceived. He had said, "I will not go to Canossa," he is now going to Canossa. What a great man Bismarck was! compared to our petty French politicians!

Cornely, in particular, likes to touch this rope there, and the Catholics repeat: "See Bismarck, he went to Canossa!"

What we forget to mention, once again, is why—What made the Iron Chancellor decide on this journey? It must have cost him something, even though he wasn't in the core the whiny Jeremiah of recent times and that he enjoyed cynically displaying his strength.

If Prince Bismarck went to Canossa, that's all simply because the bishops, the priests and the German Catholics began by going to prison.

Archbishop Ledochowski of Posen began the August 20, 1873, by a fine of 500 francs; on December 19th By December of the same year, it had reached 113,000 francs. a fine. During those few months, he had, in addition to his convictions, he received his supplementary treatment. Awarded and his furniture seized. Initially sentenced to two years in prison, he is dismissed from his position and sentenced again to three years in prison on April 25 1874. William granted him a one-year pardon, but already old and very ill, he was nonetheless confined to the Ostrowo citadel, and he remained a prisoner in it for two years. the harshest conditions.

Before being arrested, Bishop Ledochowski had decided—appointed a delegate who, despite the government, administered the diocese in the name of the captive archbishop. It was done everything to discover this delegate; countless priests

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 241

members of the diocese were imprisoned without revealing their name. Two auxiliary bishops were condemned, one One was sentenced to eighteen months, the other to nine months in prison.

The very day he had finished his sentence and was Once released, Bishop Ledochowski wrote to his diocese—healthy, a letter in which he declared that all this what the government had done was illegal and infamous, and that he was still the head of the diocese, the only one to whom one had to obey. 11 was again sentenced to two years and half a prison sentence and, despite his resistance, his diocesan followers forced him to take refuge in Rome.

With men of this caliber, a disciplined party like the Centre Party, a speaker like Wind-Thorst, a government, however tyrannical it may be, It always gives in in the end.

Here, the law we have is once again confirmed. already highlighted at the beginning of this volume, the law that any man who wants to take care of studies social media must be constantly in view. We don't have never brought rights to people on a silver platter—gent; we only have rights that we conquer through sacrifices. After a more or less long period, we rem—stock exchange always in rights to a party what men Those from this party have advanced in suffering and deprivation, in generous efforts, in months in prison.

While religious newspapers tend to neglect history somewhat... The thing about Kulturkampf is that they have tact, feeling understanding of the situation, as they say. A bishop who quietly enjoys his morning chocolate in a palace well heated in winter, cooled in summer by the neighbors—swimming in a beautiful garden and writing pieces there of sacred eloquence against impiety, does not like to be... constantly reminds us of the painful story stay of Bishop Ledochowski or Bishop Melchers in icy prisons; he couldn't blame the newspaper to tell this story, but he would pick it up again about something else.

It is clear, in fact, that if our prelates had shown the energy and fighting spirit of the German episcopate, if they had given to our clergy who only asked to marching the signal of resistance, the situation would be quite different. It's always very annoying to have five, bishops and three hundred priests in prison, and if Grévy If Carnot hadn't gone to Canossa with Wilson, he would have been there. went with Brugère.

242 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Note that I'm not even going so far as to— rather than blame the French Episcopate for the attitude it has taken. I am simply observing this attitude; I am observing that the bishops rejected the fight.

Perhaps these bishops were right to act in this way; To be completely fair, it must be added, in fact, that, when you talk to them openly, they will tell you provide very good reasons for excessive submission sive, which they are the first to acknowledge. especially when talking about their neighbor.

While some Catholics complain about not being led into battle by their bishops, the bishops, some of which are 'very fine and even very "fine of century", are not embarrassed to answer that their loyal followers would abandon them at the first engagement movement. The herd regrets not being on the RER. Pastor fears he will not be followed.

I remember a lovely conversation about this from Nonce Czaki with Ignotus who, when he had taken the contact with an interlocutor, clearly reflected what had seen and heard:

"The Catholics of the aristocracy," said Czaki, "me bitterly reproach them for not breaking the windows, for not to threaten the government with a break with Rome; they all arrive at my house full of indignation, and in the evening, I see these desolate Christians parading in Jewish salons, acting, or taking part in Ridiculous parties. What do you want to do with these people? there?(1)»

(4) Saint-Genest also wrote on this question some pages full of integrity and common sense; he highlighted the tar-

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY. 243

The truth is that the Church, by losing the People, has lost its treasure trove of ever-available devotions; She increasingly associated with the rich: she still finds when it comes to giving a little ar-kind, but she cannot rely on enslaved beings of their interests and their pleasures, thinking above all something to their convenience, to their personal liking Sonnelles, concerned only with not disturbing anything in their lives.

To be convinced that Cardinal Czaki was speaking As a wise man, you only have to find out where Parisian high society was in the month of last December, the day after the vote A chamber that left the congregations with only the choice between ruin or exile.

The most prominent Catholics were at the representation tion organised to erect a statue to Bizet!

This story of the Bizet statue is, moreover, a the most cheerful episodes of our time. Only, To show you how cheerful it is, it would be necessary- it's important to note all the little bursts of laughter that, at this The subject comes to you for different reasons. And then, I repeat, it's always a matter age: you have to have seen the beginning of all this.

I saw the beginning of Bizet, the apotheosis of au- today in the form of the Pearl Fishers. It was one of those sinister ovens that inspire terror. In Back then I had theater tickets full of... pockets and I often came home at unreasonable hours. I loved- Douai, my concierge with the tickets. I can still hear it. his harsh response when I offered him a front-row seat To the Sinners: "Oh! no, sir, not that "That room... I'd rather pay than go there."

the tuferry of these Conservatives who get indignant as soon as someone mentions a concession and who want to pretend to fight while continuing nuant to have fun.

244 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Carmen enjoyed roughly the same success and had to disappear—to be removed from the poster after a few performances.

As for the music of L'Arlésienne, it is of Daudet, or rather, from Provence. It was Daudet who... I played these old Provençal tunes for the author, so... original color, and I don't think the poor thing Bizet was forced to make a great effort to orchestrate this March of Turenne, which is a warlike air of the seventeenth century.

After Carmen, Bizet chose to die; that is, Besides, it was the best thing he could do.

Here a new character enters the scene: M. Bizet was Halévy's daughter, and, after the death of her first husband, She married a Jew, Emile Strauss.

This Jew, through his cunning and intrigue, is by-came to infiltrate a certain world. Goncourt has met at Princess Mathilde's, and he is not in-core recovered from his astonishment at seeing him there. 11 we in sometimes speaks in private, and I hope that in this Journal, which already contains such finely detailed portraits moved, we will find a sketch of this Jew from living room.

How it germinated in this child's brain. from Israel the idea of glorifying, of making a great man The unfortunate failure he succeeded? I don't know. What is certain is that, suddenly, Meyer exclaimed, In Le Gaulois: "France is ungrateful for its most Illustrious children! Paris needs a statue! It must be "Let Bizet have a monument!"

What's even more unbelievable is that all Qualified people rushed to this subscription list as if to fire and rushed to put their name there; they subscribed with enthusiasm, with rapture, with transport.

You can feel the madness of this world. This country, which is on the eve of a terrible war, which hears rumbling around him the threats of a social revolution and who thinks only of bestowing the honors of bronze or of

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 245

marble to a musical star who, once again, did not absolutely nothing more than a passable comic opera!

This extraordinary performance, where they paid the tickets at a crazy price, that's putting it mildly, was quite a poem. The Furniture Repository had sent the tapestries Gobelins; the municipal guard band was The Synagogue had been summoned. Everything had been set in motion. and Meyer achieved an impresario's triumph.

It had been eight days since Mary-Raynaud had left. Imagine what a pitiful attitude we would have had, you or me, if, in a newspaper belonging to us, the man The person we had put in charge of the financial side had left for taking other people's money. It would seem to us that Each person will point at us and say: "Know— Are you that newspaper editor who dares to speak out in his A page of Republican scandals? He was an associate of a "A thief already sentenced to three years in prison."

The Jew does not experience for a minute these timidities of a another age and he is right, because the indifference he shows to The concept of these minor incidents corresponds to the conception— tion that the most seemingly uptight, the The people of Uzès and Luynes, pride themselves on their honor and... Integrity. It is we who are out of line, who are no longer in unison with the state of mind of French high society.

Indeed, all the aristocracy present in Paris is there. Let's follow Frimousse's advice, in Le Gaulois: "We have a good five minutes to ourselves before sunrise." from the curtain; let's take advantage of this to rob a good lor— gnette on the hall of the Opéra-Comique (1). »

A "snozzcumber" is not what should be missing from Meyer's diary.

We find here a truly prodigious quantity— a flock of Jews and Jewish women; one has never encountered any all in the same place: the Rothschilds, the Cahens, the Lipmann, the Morpurgos, the Oppenheims, the Bernheims,

(1) Gaulois, December 12, 1890.
d 14.

246 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the Helbroners, the Kahns, the Dreyfuses, the Goldschmists the Konings, the Blums, the Wormsers, the Ulmanns, the Wolff, the Porges, the Sterns, the Bischoffsheims... There are like that for columns. Zadoc Kahn himself—
Even, which we rarely see, is part of the celebration.

Mr. Emile Strauss resumed mourning for the circum-Stance: "She is all in black velvet and lace" with Baroness Salomon de Rothschild, in clothes blacks.

As for Strauss, he is also all in black, but he is content. He acknowledges when we applaud and he seems to be saying to All: "You know, I'm the one who succeeds." He remains Boulevard Haussmann and he obtained from the committee that the Parc Monceaux was chosen to receive the statue of This great man, whom we call Bizet. He will spend every day in front of the monument with his wife, he will do there long stops, and he hopes that passers-by will say:
"You can clearly see this bald gentleman who, however,
It's still a little frizzy, he's not the one who made Carmen.
But he married the widow of the man who made Carmen.

The groaning victims of religious persecution
They too are present at this festival, in considerable numbers.
rable. If the Count of Lanjuinais finds Zadoc Kahn Insensitive to his Catholic grief, he can go weeping in the bosom of Count de Maillé over the fate Sisters of Charity. The deputy for Maine-et-Loire is in a box costing twenty-five louis, "with his daughter, the Countess of Grammont, and her daughter-in-law, the Countess de Maillé, née de Fezensac, both in dresses white, adorned with a profusion of diamonds.

The Dowager Duchess of Luvynes is in a balcony scene with Mademoiselle de Luynes and Mademoiselle de Banuelos; the Duchess of Luynes in black velvet and white lace dress; mademoiselle—Cream satin Luynes saddle, with cream bow in her hair, and Mademoiselle de Banuelos in blue clear.

In a balcony box, here is "Madame" the Duchess d'Uzès, in a mauve dress, and her magnificent emeralds. With her were Count and Countess Arthur de Mortemart, in a rose-tea dress and diamonds. The men who Accompanying them were the Duke of Uzès, the Count Arthur de Mortemart and Count A. de Mun.

It must be admitted that all these happy people are putting up with the misfortunes others with a kind philosophy.

There must have been performances of this kind in Byzantium at the time of the persecutions of Leo the Isaurian and iconoclastic Emperors. You see the The circus as presented to us by Mr. Jean Lombard, with Unfortunately, the words are a bit too technical. The stands and the curved boxes were packed The whole of Byzantium: the patrician women, in dazzling gowns blue, purple or yellow, and precious tin jewels tüinnabulant on their chests; further on, the Inclytes, the Most Illustrious, the Cubiculars, the Candidates, the Dignitaries, "the Grand Domestic, who had a headdress—a golden fur and a golden staff; the Great Logothete and the Large, fat, juicy, and with white eyes; the Protostator, sly one; the Protovestiary, who had a dog-faced; the Grand Stratopedarque, whose gaze severe fled the curses of the Byzantines who, probably—He harassed him; the Primicier des Chambres, aloof—sant an ostrich neck between the Grand Chartulaire and the Protocynègè, who were twisting their camel's head.

While the silver organs placed underneath play the cathisma, near the large water basin, the beautiful people groaned at the relentless war waged against the Eikones: "Our holy images... our venerated, proscribed images" And broken everywhere. And so the race began... This It's the Greens who win... Solibas are in the lead... The The blue-scarfed heniocus come only after. Images of saints, the Image of the Most Holy Virgin profaded... He passed the first marker and the obelisk of Theodosius... There he is, the statue of Apollo del-Phique... Bravo, Pepe

Ten centuries apart, one might have heard of Similar remarks were made at the Opéra-Comique, among Catholics. of high lineage...: "It's infamous... absolutely tiny. These holy Daughters of Charity... That's the Ballet. In hatred of Christ... What lovely legs.
This Mauri is possessed by the devil... Bravo, Mauri!... »

All forms of decadence are alike; all are
They can be summed up in two words: Histrionics, – Hypocrisy.

Who could seriously criticize the events?
than not having fully engaged in the fight with Catholics of this caliber?

As it stands, the fact remains. The French bishop is a a man of accommodation, of concession, – the con-
In short, to milk a man of struggle.

Why is the bishop like that? First, I repeats, because it is chosen that way, and because it does not He wouldn't be a bishop if he weren't like that. This
The explanation may not seem to be entirely sufficient. health; it is therefore appropriate to undertake a more thorough study
In-depth, to do a kind of psychology of a bishop's soul and then to study in what conditions this bishop is placed under the regime of the Concordat.

This is more useful than stopping at noisy de-Demonstrations by Cardinal Lavigerie. The demonstrations articles of this kind can inspire many articles on newspapers, they are of very little importance For the social historian, it is a matter of searching for the intrinsic value of men and the importance of their function, then the situation they find themselves in the social organism, that is to say the way in which it is it is possible for them to perform the function they are required to fulfill.

If we took it seriously, the cardio-National Lavigerie could only give a very false the idea of the religious question. By proclaiming the ne-the need for the high clergy to make peace with the government government, it would tend to make people believe that this high

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 219

the clergy was in a state of war – which is evident-Inaccurate.

– Honestly, what do you think of our top "clergy?" Bishop Besson once asked one of the directors of the Religious Affairs department who preceded Mr. Flourens.

The director showed him a note he had written about a file: "A clergy that has morals, whatever one in it, for the most part, some science, a lot of the-naked – dishonest.

"What do you mean by the word 'dishonest'?"
Bishop Besson was somewhat surprised.

– I understand that it's an absolutely spineless clergy and without character.

In many respects, this sketch is accurate.

The morals of our high clergy are pure and the deviations in this respect are so rare that they are notorious.
public order.

Everyone knows of the death of a prelate dear to the Republic-Cains. He and his mistress made a terrible couple.
She had been the superior of a convent, the convent of.
Saint Theodosia, she called herself the Mother... Saint-Agathe. One fine day, she had forged some relationships... times with an Academy inspector; she had declared that the house of which it was simply superior was her personal property, she had sold it and she had thrown onto the pavement the sheep she was grazing: the These unfortunate women would have died of starvation if the State had not... had taken out a small pension.

Stranded in Paris, Mother Saint-Agathe had become matchmaker and had settled in the Mon- district ceau, that's where the bishop used to come to meet her every once he could escape to Paris, and that's where he died.

He was returning from Rome where he had been very poorly received by the Pope who had ordered him to break off completely with this woman. Sick with grief, he had stopped he spent a few days in Milan, then he continued on his way.

250 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC.

The vicar general who accompanied him had gone wisely have a good night in the quiet hotel of the Bon Lafontaine, where dreams must always be green killers... The bishop could not resist; the lust overcame him, he ran to the old witch who had bewitched him, to the one he called Héloïse and who called him Abailard; but he had overestimated his strength and, during the night, He died at the matron's house.

Someone who saw the corpse retained a memory The spectacle was terrifying. Everyone had fled. fearing a scandal; the old man was there, half sitting in the only bed in the house, eyes open and as if magnified by terror, a scapular and some medals on a hairy chest... It was gloomy, that The end of a bishop.

We could perhaps cite, among the scandalous ones, a bishop appointed some time ago. He was leading as a priest, his conduct was more than suspicious, and I have... core present in memory is an absolutely certain fact which proves that this practice was known in Rome.

A Catholic man met the future bishop at the Opera House in the company of a courtesan who, it seems, She was quite pretty, by the way. There wasn't the slightest Possible doubt. Both men lived in the same area. they were from the same city and knew each other perfectly. The expectant bishop lets go of his companion and goes straight to the one who recognized him and said to him:

– I beg you! Don't tell about our meeting– against.

"I'm not promising you anything," said the other.

The next day, the Catholic, truly indignant, went find the superior of Saint-Sulpice and tell him this that he saw.

"You don't surprise me," the superior replied. of Saint-Sulpice; we know many others about Father X. We tried everything to prevent a Such a man does not dishonor the French Episcopate, everything has been

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 251

It's useless. I'll try one more approach, I'll pass it on.

what you told me to Bishop X, Bishop of Z'*, not far from Paris and which has good relations in Rome.

The bishop came, he was informed of the situation, and he replied:
"There's nothing to be done! Rome is determined."

The appointment of the prelate, which at first had caused [something] to be thrown loud cries in Rome, had been the subject of long marches changes in which a a very loud, very scheming, very celebrated cardinal Press, which he pays, moreover, like a simple Lesseps and who had exerted all his influence on the Pope to force him, despite his resistance, to ratify the choosing a bishop whom he knew to be unworthy.

Another clergyman, formerly strongly supported by the Republican Freemasons, who naturally all they could do to debase the Church, had no
This chance, and he was momentarily sidelined. That one he had seduced the wife of a carpenter in Paris, he had sent the husband abroad and he lived almost publicly with this woman with whom he had two children.

This is the exception, the very rare exception.

The word "dishonest," in the director's mind
The cults I'm talking about, was the counterpart to the word "honest man" taken in the sense of the seventeenth thirtieth century.

An "honest man," for the seventeenth century, was a man who had a high degree of respect for his own dignity, holding head a little high, incapable to commit a despicable act or to tell a lie, to abandon the defense of a just cause in order to please to the powerful

Most of our bishops are honest people in the somewhat diminished and down-to-earth meaning that the word has Taken today. Many are even more than that.
They are zealous in the sacred ministry, eager to do the good, quick to alleviate suffering, very eager to

252 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

revenge for remaining calm, frightened by all idea of conflict; son of artisans or the lower middle class, They have neither the rough energy of the people, nor the dignity proud as the aristocracy once was, they lack the soul large, in a word, and, to put it simply, they are of a Incredible obsequiousness towards power.

This in itself is not surprising for those who They face reality. Humanly speaking, a bishop doesn't have to blame the Government. In this household in the troubled relationship between Church and State, the bishop is "the "The happiest of the three."

The situation of the bishops has never been comparable to the one they have today. Bureaucratism seems crowned and beatified in their person, it is the Sacred bureaucracy. This prefect in a purple robe has none of the civil prefect's concerns, he is inamo- visible, he enjoys universal respect, he is regarded as A martyr in the eyes of the devout old women, he has so much money that he wants it and, on the condition that he is docile, that he re- among its priests any inclination towards independence, the The government lets him do absolutely anything.

The clearest result of the Revolution was to to make the situation of the little ones harder and to strengthen them On the contrary, the situation of the wealthy and the powerful in the absolving him of all moral responsibility. According to this the principle "we only rely on what resists"; the an- the old regime put everyone in a position to resist the in- justice, guaranteed everyone rights that allowed them to defend itself against arbitrary power. The modern regime, who expects to find only slave souls everywhere, strives by all means to put the humble unable to stand up to the big guys.

It took fifty years of struggle for the workers to break the chains so admirably forged that the The triumphant bourgeoisie of 1789 had attached them to the feet and hands to carry out the exploitation in- industrial at ease; it is hardly the case today that they find, from the point of view of the right of association, a few almost at the same point as on the eve of the Revolution. Ja- but property, as we have seen on many occasions- taken, did not have rights similar to those she exercises today with such jealous ferocity... Never

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 253

The bishops have never possessed a more despotic authority.
on the lower clergy.

The members of the lower clergy were far from being... poor under the old regime; they were often reduced to the "bare portion" while the high dignitaries of the Church had princely revenues; basically,
They were wholeheartedly with the nascent Revolution; one hundred Years later they find themselves in such a position precarious, because they have to bear the entire weight of the persecutions tions and vexations that do not affect the bishops.

In true Christian law, in canon law, Ecclesiastical titles are real titles that one does not can only be obtained after a competitive exam and one practices in by virtue of a right; this is the doctrine of the Council of Trent.
That's roughly what you hear in the army by the property of the rank. In the current system of the Church In France, under the so-called concordat system, all securities are personnel, distributed according to the bishop's whim, without
No control, no recourse.

The parish priest alone is irremovable; he is appointed on the proposal of the bishop by a decree of the President

– tooth of the Republic on the report of the Minister of Religious services. Parish priests and titular canons
They therefore have both ecclesiastical and civil titles.

As for the ministers, they are removable at will.
tum; a whim of the bishop can tear them away from their + parish, send them to the other end of the department– to deprive them of any kind of function, without no one can interfere in these decisions: they do not are not even protected like state employees
'by an administrative regulation.'

We never imagined. Exorbitant power.

With a sign the bishop can, not only deprive a * unhappy priest of his bread, but to strike him in his honor with suspense or, as they say more commonly, the forbidden.

+ 45

There are two types of prohibition: prohibition in the ordinary forms, the prohibition without formalities, ex informata conscientia.

The prohibition in its ordinary form offers the accused the means of defense; he is surrounded by all the guarantees required by canon law; it is preceded of a monitory, of a statement, of a quotation, of a comment publication in person or by a prosecutor; if the convicted person appeal to the Sovereign Pontiff regarding the sentence rendered against him, his appeal is suspensive.

The prohibition ex informata conscientia, on the contrary, has the character of a firman. The bishop purely forbids and simply the priest for reasons known to him alone and without further ado. The effects of this These measures are all the more formidable because the appeal that can be done to the Sovereign Pontiff is devolutive and non-suspensive.

The bishops, moreover, do not want canonique. The officiality, that is to say the ecclesiastical court—The tick does exist in the Ordo, but it doesn't work almost never. Also, it's forbidden almost everywhere in usage today is the prohibition ex informata conscientia.

Note in passing that it is by a sort of usurpation, or at least of moral illegality, that the Bishops employ this method of interdict. Canon law nique says, in effect, that the bishop cannot prohibit under this form that when he is two days away from march from his episcopal seat. At the time when the communications were difficult; it might be necessary to intervene quickly when a scandal occurs knows, and this way of acting could be explained. Autoday a bishop, even though he is at the extremes mites of his diocese, can return in four or five hours at his episcopal palace and proceed according to the rules of justice.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 255

It should be added that the appeal to the Court of Rome is illuminating in: most circumstances. The inferior clergy—

Laugher pushed with all his might for the proclamation of dogma of Infallibility. Gurés and vicars sent addresses to the Pope over the heads of their bishops; They hoped, by further elevating the Pope, to have in He had recourse against episcopal tyranny, and a such a thought was undoubtedly in the generous soul of Pius IX... The current Pope needs money; he does not no case of the French bishops, but he finds in them admirable collectors of Peter's Pence, he did not doesn't want to interfere in their affairs. When the call The priest's words are justified ten times over; the response is the word lectum, which means that everyone is right.

You can guess, under these conditions, what the social security is... The country priest's reputation. Suspended by his bishop, forbidden according to the established expression, which is not all That's quite right, he's not just the man who lost his place – which is still frowned upon in France – he is the reprobate, the cursed one; indeed, he always seems to have been punished for a morals offense.

Despite current skepticism, an indefinable the impression that makes everyone move away from the priest that The Church has rejected him from its bosom. This outcast cannot even conceive. to hide its origin, it bears the indelible mark that the The priesthood imprints on its ministers, that certain something which makes a priest recognizable everywhere, even under secular clothing. Many come to get lost in this a vast desert of men from Paris, and they become coachmen of horse-drawn carriage...

When he glimpses the horrible life that awaits him he, the little vicar who showed some inclination to in-addiction felt his hair stand on end: he think of the despair of the old mother, the good pay-Sanne, who made so much effort to "push him to the priesthood", As they say, and who will believe his son dishonored? He throws himself back as if he glimpses a gaping abyss In front of him, he humbly kisses his bishop's ring.

256 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

And trembling all over, he huddled close to His Lordship, who holds his destiny in his hands.

How do you intend to undertake anything on this terrain?
a serious religious resistance?

Those who try to defend the rights of the Church are unleashed and delivered by their own leaders.

We have seen priests from the diocese of Bayonne abducted in their parishioners by Bishop Jauffret. These clergymen had only done their strict duty as priests, by inviting both the faithful and those who elect candidates favorable to the Church rather than atheist or free-thinking candidates masons; they were nonetheless sacrificed. Thévenet began by stealing their treatment, and their The bishop continued by taking away their parish.

Is it therefore that Bishop Jauffret is more servile than the Others? He is just as much so, that's all. The humiliation of these true servants of Christ was the condition placed on the elevation of the candidate to the mitre. Bishop Jauffret would have re-rocketed that the minister would only have had to extend his hand and to take the file of one of the two hundred applicants all more or less recommendable and especially more or less recommended by Venerable Masters of Lodges or freethinking members of parliament.

In the district of La Réolle, an energetic priest—that and of irreproachable conduct had courageous—stood up to some of the country's bigwigs who were indulging in debauchery and concubinage. At the instigation of one of these scoundrels, the sacristan seized, a di-evening sleeve, priestly ornaments, he adorned himself with them And, dressed like that, went to drink at the tavern. Natural—The priest then threw the sacristan out.

The city council, after having tried in vain to im—to ask the priest about the reinstatement of this bad fellow, voted 200 francs to this man just for ringing the bells on July 14th. The prefect found that this was a The day was a bit expensive and reduced the allowance to 100 francs.

To get revenge, the local Freemasons accused*

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 257

The priest was criticized for having spoken about politics from the pulpit; he continued, but five hundred people testified, by their signature, that the priest had not said a word to this subject and a dismissal order had to be issued who proclaimed his innocence. The minister could not stand it. no less important was the treatment of the clergyman; the

The priest replied that he would remain at his post, without treatment. They then turned to the capitular vicars of Bordeaux, which governed the diocese after the death of Bishop Guilbert; they were threatened, they were demanded of them. The priest's departure, and these men had the sad courage to abandon the valiant priest who had given such a fine example of firmness. The priest protested, he de-ordered a new inquiry; the reply was: "If you If you haven't left by next Sunday, your powers will... will be removed."

Bishop Bellot des Minières, so harsh on others and so not very strict with himself, he needs, one day, a vicar's position for a favorite; he moves the vicar titulaire and sends it to the other end of the department. The unfortunate man complains, explaining that he has works in his parish, where he is loved by everyone. Nothing helps. He is ordered to report to his new post. within twenty-four hours; he obeys but lingers a day to go and kiss his mother; upon arriving in the parish assigned to him, he finds an in-prohibited. by telegraphic dispatch.

At the moment when the capitular vicars must... we were talking about earlier governed the diocese of Bordeaux, a series of portraits appeared on them, of the Sil-owls who ridiculed them, but without anything to allege that someone was offending their morals. They were accused. The offense was committed by a vicar who was considered independent. He denied it. energetically, no evidence could be provided against him; it is still forbidden as a precaution, ad cautelam.

A former public prosecutor who had he resigned at the time of the decrees, which I

258 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

I believe he is sorry today, asked to present the defense of the poor priest before the vicars capitulaires; he pleaded admirably for two hours. When he When he had finished, one of the vicars said to him: "Our decision was: Irrevocable, nothing could change it."

– Then why did you let me get tired?
For two hours?

– To give you the pleasure of speaking.

When Mgr Lecot took possession of his seat, we tried to soften him up; he was asked to report his arrival through an act of clemency; this political prelate who, it is said that the Archbishopric of Paris dreamed of it, but refused harshly. The priest remained on the pavement; with his meager wages, he provided a pension for his old parents (the mother is seventy-nine years old); he is literally dying of hunger. Everyone is moving away. of this plague victim; his colleagues no longer greet him in the street and, in the words of one of his friends, he is by earth "like a wet sponge".

What do you want? Cowardice is one form of... struggle for life and here, without any exaggeration, it is his life itself, which one breaks by resisting. The prelates who are soft wax when it comes to defending rights the Church against the Government find themselves iron when it comes to the weak; they give free rein to this need for domination and authority that still exists among churchmen; they are merciless.

For some bishops, in short, the priest is not than a cassock whose nails are changed according to the circumstances, or even a human currency that serves to transactions with the Government. The heads of Conservative party, much more influential than one might think those in administration, have exactly the same way of seeing things. I'll give you an example in this order, and I quote it with regret, because the bishop who is playing a role there regrettable role has shown in addition to an opportunity to independence and courage.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 259

A clergyman of very high intelligence and of rare firmness of character, Father Maunoury, parish priest from La Chapelle-Moche, in the Orne, had done what the Most priests don't dare to do it: instead of lamenting, He had stirred, he had resolutely undertaken the fight and quickly gathered around him ardent sympathizers thies.

La Chapelle-Moche is located in the canton of Ferté-Macé, in the center of the electoral district of Mr. Christophe. Father Maunoury took the direction from a newspaper: L'Echo de la Ferté-Macé, he led a brilliant campaign against Christophe and, in the elections From 1885, the director of Crédit Foncier, one of the men the most powerful in France, remained pitifully on the tile, and was replaced by Mr. Roulleaux-Dugage.

Bishop Trégaro of Séez had warmly-applauded at the initiative of Abbot Maunoury and him had written a letter of approval which was published in l'Echode la Ferté-Macé.

It was then that Mr. de Mackau appeared, and it was natural-really to harm people who were going straight their path, highlighting its intriguing and messy personality.

Mr. de Mackau regrets that the priests are no longer as in the past with the appointment of lords; he held absolutely must have in Vimoutiers, where his catteau, a priest who was entirely under his control, a priest who belonged to him. He didn't even have the excuse of a electoral interest, since it is unassailable in its constituency conscription; he had that idea-that's all. He didn't care.
opened to Bishop Trégaro and the bishop began his de-* marches near the Government to get the priest appointed by Mr. de Mackau. The Government re-He replied: "Perfect! We grant you the priest." from Vimoutiers, but we must sacrifice the priest of the Chapelle-Moche and move it immediately.

"Negotiations!" cried Mr. de Mackau. "That's my..."
Deal! For twenty years I've done nothing but negotiate, and you

260 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

You can see the state in which I left the belongings of Catholic party.

You see the "middleman", the Norman horse dealer, the man of flea markets and bartering firms handle these negotiations. "Give me your cow and I will give you three little ones in exchange pigs; look how pink and plump they are-Let's!

Finally, to please Mr. de Mackau,
However, he does not hold Bishop Trégaro in high regard.
agreed to move Abbot Maunoury and, by a mou-
In a gesture of fairness that honors him, he offered him the cure beautifully.

Laigle's biggest blow.

The priest of La Chapelle-Moche, as I said, was of a strong character; he had a feeling of his dignity; he replied: "I am not an object exchange for Mr. de Mackau's combinations, I am a priest of Jesus Christ; I have done good in this In this corner of the earth, I am loved; I have won souls there. to one; I do not want an advancement that would be a disavowal.

Bishop Trégaro made the mistake of not understanding the nobility of this response; he took the priest's parish away. Maunoury. The priest bids farewell in tears to his parishioners. his own; he first took refuge with a wealthy Catholic of country, Mr. Goupil, who offered him a tutorship; he left then the diocese, and he is now attached to Tours, I believe, at a printing shop.

This arbitrary act caused considerable harm to Bishop Trégaro, who, by his valiant attitude, had...

He earned everyone's esteem. When he went to the Chapelle-Moche, on his confirmation tour, he was very poorly received by the inhabitants who adored Abbot Maunoury and, when he He tried to open his bedroom door, but found it guarded. by slightly odorous essential oils...

Mr. Roulleaux-Dugage, who owed his election to the abbot Maunoury, at a banquet, was not afraid to re-approaching Bishop Trégaro in the way he had abandoned the priest whom he had been the first to put ahead.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 261

As for the real culprit, who is in all this, Mr. de Mackau has no idea what he's done. He doesn't I don't suspect the moral grandeur of this Camargue priest. Pagne, who takes her mission seriously, who conquers through his virtue, his activity, his devotion the small country where God has placed it, which makes itself loved by its walls-. his own because he loves them... All of this is completely beyond his control. lument. Like all the monstrous egoists of the Right-wing, he only knows his own convenience; he is preoccupied only with his own personal convenience. The new priest of Vimoutiers may be making a fourth at whist. That's enough for Mackau to cause a stir. the existence of an irreproachable priest and that he is forced to leave the diocese.

We shouldn't exaggerate and must recognize that in many These general provisions are tempered in dioceses. by what is still profoundly good in the soul French; but it should be noted that this is sur-everything for the minor breaches of privacy that This leniency is exercised. As soon as there is a conflict in: From this perspective, the old man appears in the bishop with this inexorable personalism, this implacable aridity, this sort of fierceness in defending one's rest which characterizes- They laugh at the elderly.

Thanks to this admirable instrument of servitude and of oppression which is called the French administration, the The government keeps all these bishops on a leash; it has No need for the wrath of the Council of State, he only has to threatening the prelates with scrutinizing their accounts to make them as gentle as sheep.

"Here, we touch on another interesting point for social history. The old regime created, improved- he would, he would establish, he would lay "foundations" in the sense true of the word. Those who direct politics and obey themselves, under the orders of cosmopolitan Jewry, have not.

15.

262 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They have only one idea: to liquidate France; they are cosmopolitans, that is to say, enemies of the Fatherland, enemies also of the Heritage, that is to say of all property legitimate and lasting. The old regime liked to see the Church erected large, solid buildings that stood on the ground, which sheltered the world; when the merchants When people today see a house like that, they They say: "That would make nice paper, we need to change that." in paper form, buying annuities with them will allow our friends the backroom workers to give a few blows pencil and will help Rouvier with his tinkering at the Sotck exchange. "

This is how things happen for everything that appears
It is tied to the Elat. It is the story of Lockroy with the diaministers of the Crown. A minister of the Past notices-
He had a beautiful diamond, and he thought to himself: "Nothing is too much
This is beautiful for the Crown of France, you must buy it.
diamond and putting it in our jewelry will increase the National treasure; in a moment of desperate crisis
That would be a resource.

Lockroy, on the contrary, sees the diamonds... served for centuries; his bargain-hunter's eye lights up;
He exclaimed: "How is it that we haven't yet..." thought of selling that off?" and he sells it all to baronesses or Jewish courtesans through the intermediary of The Jews Vanderheim and Bloche, who naturally make him the substantial discount.

It's stronger than them; they enter into something in the house, they glimpse a pious memento, a cross of Saint-Louis in brilliants, preserved from generation to generation.
ration; they ask, "Is this for sale?"

Ecclesiastical property is, understandably, more threatened more than all the others. When a bishop dies, the administrator of the episcopal estate for the State, who is sometimes a sectarian and hateful Protestant, takes advantage often an opportunity to sell the buildings who belong to this household. In Tours they went further far away; a few years ago, the houses were sold.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 263

purchased with their own money by the members of the Work of Saint-Martin.

We're not robbing Catholics, mind you.
They are given paper, always paper. Paper is guaranteed by the State, which still only owes 37 million Hards; when he owes forty or fifty billion,
It will go bankrupt – that's all.

Given this state of affairs, it is very explicable that the bishop is striving to give to the funds which he has the handling in the least conspicuous way possible and that he keeps some of the diocesan funds in his pocket where she is, certainly, even safer than in the pockets of those who exploit us.

The resources available to the bishops are often quite considerable. There are exemptions. direct 4th and 3rd degree consanguinity, the permits-ordinances of baptism which cost 5 francs, dispensations to publish two banns that cost 6 francs, the quests, the chairs. In the diocese of Bordeaux, the Quasimodo's Sunday quest brings back forty to fifty thousand francs.

The bishop is personally entitled to a quarter of the re-coming from the diocese, another quarter is given to him for his specific works and the rest is applied to the works of the diocese.

The sale of the catechism is, moreover, the property of the bishop, and, in some dioceses, this sale produces up to 30,000 francs.

In reality, the bishop has absolutely everything at his disposal without the slightest control. The vicars general are the liege men, creatures of my lord; they do not They do what he desires. The servitude is complete. at all levels. The government wants bishops . The bishop wants vicars to be his servants. generals who are his slaves and the vicars general- The raux want priests who kneel before them.

Some bishops – but this is still the very rare exception – they use this money to enrich or to extricate their family from difficulty. The brother of a bishop The well-known had been sentenced to make restitution 32,000 francs to the State; the deadline granted for compliance The cutter was expiring... The bishop, on tour in his diocese, telegraph to the treasurer of the episcopal estate of take this sum from the till and pay it to the State. The treasurer hesitates; he goes to find a prelate who enjoyed great esteem in the city, and, Finally, a request for new instructions in order to to cover his own back. "Consider this te- "A letter like a receipt," the bishop telegraphed.

264 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

All that remained was to obey; the treasurer took the de-fishing and put it in the safe instead of the 32,000 francs which he paid.

Other bishops, in greater numbers, are managing poorly. the funds at their disposal; they arrive from them, For lack of order, they were burdened with debt. A bishop of Midi owed up to 800,000 francs."

One day, this bishop was talking about his sorrows. with his vicar general, and conversed melancholically with him of that money woe from which Panurge suffered so much.

"I see only one solution," the man suddenly exclaimed. vicar general, that is, that Your Grace go to the en- M"" Fallières' land has precisely, just come from die.

– Do you think so? It's true that I used to be We got along very well with Fallières, but today we are We're estranged and he hasn't even sent me a letter. announcement.

– Precisely, Your Grace, Fallières. will be deeply- They were touched to see you surrender your property. at his mother's funeral.

– And then what?... Do you think that at the end of the ceremony- Monie, he will give me 800,000 francs to pay my debts?

– Certainly not, but he will name you: ark- bishop. .

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 265

– You fool! Can't you see that it's at this at this point, the crisis will take on an acute character and that Everything will be revealed. What sensible man would agree- He was drawn to be appointed bishop in my place, to accept the responsibility for such a complicated situation that I don't recognize myself in it?

– Ah! My lord, you are ungrateful! You fail to recognize- Friendship is born. I know a man who, through devotion- would accept your inheritance.

– Who then?

– Me, my lord...

The prelate and the vicar general took the train. Fal-

Lières was affected; the bishop became archbishop and, gns'en leaving a seat he didn't regret, he carried even an antique piece of furniture, a piece of marquetry furniture of great beauty, which he replaced with a piece of furniture modern.–The prefect, unfortunately, noticed the thing and had the missing piece of furniture reinstated.

The vicar general, the bishop, began by to make his solemn entry into his episcopal city and immediately afterwards he set about making his exit. He went to Rome, was received by the Pope, and informed him of his desire to change dioceses. The Pope, quite astonished to see a man of mediocrity in every respect appointed bishop, at-which one would have hesitated in the past to entrust to an important parish

His aunt told him, "You're here, stay here!"

Our man did not consider himself defeated; he imagined a new combination, consisting of naming coadjutor, a bishop who wanted to be an archbishop and to take the seat of the said bishop, leaving the fa- A better package of 800,000 francs for a candidate in a hurry, who accepted everything blindly, even if it meant getting rid of himself- to in turn reassure the heavy liabilities by a 'means or by Another one. It is very likely that he will succeed.

These perpetual seat swaps are, moreover- Theirs, entirely new within the Episcopate. The bishops of former times were married, wxorati, with their diocese; they established lasting works there, they trained generations of priests, each reflecting their own spirit. All eela has changed at the moment. Now that we have recognized the disadvantages of overly frequent travel

.

266 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The ones who remain for the army are the officers.
long years in their diocese and the bishops who
They change garrisons every moment.

Alongside pastors who waste resources, we have the pastors who hoard money. An archbishop, son of simple peasants, who had, it is true, occupied his seat for many years, left fifteen hundred thousand francs of fortune.

That one had a monomania for money; he had done to practice hiding in the secret place of his pa-and he deposited banknotes there; one would find Banknotes were everywhere in his apartments:
He had some in his sheets, under his pillow.

Never, except for the construction of a church, of which I will speak later, the archbishop did not give a penny. One One day, the bursar of the minor seminary disappeared; he had lost all the funds entrusted to him, 350,000 francs in-Viron. It was the ruin of the minor seminary... The Catholics-
The religious communities understood this and imposed consensual sacrifices on themselves enormous sums needed to fill the deficit. One of the leaders of The royalist party lent 50,000 francs to a 5th party. A vicar
The general, who was very wealthy, also advanced 50,000 francs.
but without interest. The archbishop, in turn, wanted to do something and generously offered three debts that had been expired for thirty years!

As for the figure of 1,500,000 francs, it was proclaimed by the ecclesiastics designated as long-term legatees time before the archbishop's death and who were leaving repeating everywhere: "Alas! We fear that His Eminence does not leave us with the heavy burden of 1,500,000 francs from his estate! »

We were therefore quite surprised when, once put in position-

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 267

During the succession proceedings, the legatees declared that the archbishop had left absolutely nothing but debts.

Contrary to his usual practice, the archbishop had interested in the construction of a Sacred Heart church

* in his archiepiscopal city, and he had pledged to contribute to expenses in the amount of 200,000 francs.

After the prelate's death, the entrepreneur came to recall this promise to the legatees; they replied once Moreover, the archbishop had died insolvent. The inter-
The tenant made his decision immediately: he dismissed his workers. and closed his shipyards.

Some time later, a restless, eager priest to put himself forward, and moreover, a cousin of a middle-
The aister was appointed vicar general; he sought in the the archbishop's papers; there he discovered proof that a
A commitment had indeed been made, and he told the heirs-third party: "If you don't return the 200,000 francs, I Make some noise.

Two days later, the heirs, who claimed
Having inherited only debts, they returned the 200,000 francs or rather 212,000 francs, with interest.

A poor country priest was less fortunate.
one of his parishioners had given him 50,000 francs for the construction of a school... In accordance with the discipline Pliny the ecclesiastical priest announced this news to the archbishop the bishop, smelling the money, jumped on it and said to the priest:
"Give me back those 50,000 francs, I will provide for each year dedicated to school maintenance.

After the archbishop's death, the priest naturally came how to inquire about what had become of his 50,000 francs; it was declared that no trace of them could be found. One of the legtaires, however, decided to have his secretary signto keep a promise to support the school – which, we Admitting it, is a rather slim guarantee.

It was in this diocese that the pension fund was found completely empty. This cash register is managed by taking a 7 percent levy on the chairs, and

268 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The priests contribute sums ranging from 20 francs” at 60 francs per year.

'The former vicar general was hastily brought back who was in charge of it, and who was on the verge of being sa-

He was appointed bishop. He was asked for explanations; he acknowledged well, having received the money that was mentioned, moreover—their, in a report that is published every year, but he stated that he did not know what that money was. had become. Was it the vicar general who had taken him? Was it the archbishop?

To put an end to it, we wiped the slate clean and filled in the blanks with zeros. to the asset.

In many dioceses, pension funds have not 'than a nominal existence; but, as we have As explained, the cure here might be worse than the disease. The current situation is like a game of Pigeon Fly; it pension funds are like <deposits at notaries.

Modern notaries had adopted the practice of: to run away with the money that was given to them; they were forced those who remained to no longer keep deposits and to de—deposit the funds with the Caisse des Dépôts et Consignations which were entrusted to them. These funds are now being used to speculate and to fuel what Laur calls "the may—'Governmental game plan'. At the time of a war, the government would also be embarrassed by 'to make these funds like those of the Savings Banks. Beau—Many people will then miss the days of the deposits. at the notary's office and will say to themselves: "My notary is a monk would have been little... The not gone...:

After having gathered various traits before you scattered which allow you to realize the causes that determine the conduct of our prelates, I am now going to paint a full-length portrait of an archbishop for you. and a "fin de siècle" cardinal.

Follow the curriculum vitae of Archbishop Place: from Rennes; watch him at work and you will understand.

) THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 269

Querez how faith is weakening in countries of yesteryear very Catholic, in souls upon which the Franc—Jewish Freemasonry would have had no influence if the Church leaders had lived up to their mis—Zion.

Bishop Place had no ecclesiastical vocation;

Until the age of 40 he was a history teacher in a small school in Paris called the Poiloux Institution. the recommendation of his brother, Victor Place, who was consul general, which will be discussed shortly, Mr. de Corcelles, Ambassador to the Holy See, He took him on as his personal secretary.

In Rome, Bishop Place made some ecclesiastical studies. very superficial ticks, he was ordained a priest and, after having been for some time vicar general to Bishop Dupanwolf, with whom he could not come to an understanding, he was named auditor of the Rota and finally bishop of Marseille where, from Upon his arrival, he became hated by his clergy. "Bishop Place "who is out of place," said Pius IX, who did not hate Not these puns.

We know the role played during the war by the brother of Bishop Place, who was then Consul General in New York. When France was invaded, bled dry, was ready to expire, when Europe itself, which had hated us so much, was filled with pity for this ca- In a tragic turn of events, a man was found, a civil servant. French to steal from his mother who was grumbling under the heel of the Prussian. In this unprecedented disaster, he did not live that it was an opportunity to get rich, and when he was asked weapons for the ultimate battles, he bought in vile price and made people pay dearly for rifles that could not not leaving.

We remember how the last battle was per- due to the rout of the Breton mobile units in Le Mans the Tuileries. When questioned, they pointed to the rusty ones with which they had been equipped to withstand formidable enemies; they were tested on January 20th at the Rennes polygon; they yielded 65 percent of misfires. They were Conlie's rifles, Conlie's rifles Victor Place, the corrupt consul.

270 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

When he wasn't operating himself, Victor Place operated on would be under the name of Chauviteau; when he did not send not dogless guns, he sent cans of food ava- Ridiculous and fit only to be thrown to the dogs.

Mr. Léon Riant, who is not suspected of being an enemy of the clergy, noted all these facts in his report.

In summary, Mr. Place carried out the actions without instructions and without orders, the purchase (1): |

4° Of 6,000 Lydnert rifles, which cost 584,000 francs, that could not be used, that never will be used, and that are worthless;

'20 of 5,790 Flobert rifles, accompanied only by 22 cartridges per rifle, which cost 592,000 francs; weapons which could not be used, which never will be, but which are not without value.

Mr. Place carried out, by not complying with the instructions—the funds he had received, the purchase of 19 Gatling machine guns that he paid 30 or 35 percent above their value normal.

He illegally awarded himself a commission of 2 percent. the amount of which exceeds 600,000 francs.

He indirectly collected, under the name Chauviteau, some commissions ranging from 1 percent to 5 percent, totaling at 360,000 francs.

He increased, or caused to increase, through the intermediary of Chauviteau, the Remington house bills of 25 cents—times per weapon and per thousand cartridges, and paid these falsified documents, imposing a loss of 360,000 francs on the State.

Such a wretch should have been shot in the back and, at the time of the massacres of the Commune, they killed many poor wretches who deserved it ten thousand times over less death than a man whose crime was without excuse, because his salary alone as consul general was of 60,000 francs.

{4) Report read to the National Assembly on June 27, 1871 by Mr. Léon Riant.

THE CLERGY AT THE END OF THE CENTURY 271

By a judgment dated January 25, 1872, Victor Place was only sentenced to two years in prison and a fine of 2,000 francs, and, at the request of his brother

Bishop Thiers pardoned him a few months later!

No doubt the faults are personal, but when We are bishops and one of your own has committed such a crime against the Fatherland, it seems that all we have left to do is search-dear to the shadow and the silence, to reread in some a cloister to weep and pray for the guilty party.

Bishop Place did not share this modesty; he wished, at
On the contrary, to stand out, to be an archbishop, to have the purple. He pushed unconsciousness to the point of...
The dormouse is the primate of this Brittany whose children, thanks to his brother's wickedness, had perished by thousands without being able to even defend their lives.

You can imagine the effect this had on the population and on this Breton clergy who gave such fine examples of patriotism during the war, while the rec-brothers, who had become chaplains, marched into the fire with their parishes. You see the theme offered to the enemies of Religion. "Look," they said, "look into the sanctuary this man proudly wearing the mitre and the golden crosier, this man whose pontifical ornaments they shimmer in the candlelight, through the vapors incense, this man who speaks to others of Duty
And Virtue is the brother of a thief, the brother of Victor
A place that stripped France of its agonizing possessions, » |

Those who govern the Church really need have lost all moral sense to consent to such nominations, to scandalize the soul in a biased manner the simple and the weak.

It is understandable if such beings are slaves do-ciles for the Martin-Feuillée and Thévenet families. After a dinner with Bishop Place, Martin-Feuillée himself he declared, disgusted. "I've seen a lot of platitudes in the magistracy, he said the next day in the salons of

262 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the Prefecture, but I never encountered anything from comparable to the baseness of this prelate.

The lives of Breton priests became a living hell with such an archbishop. They hoped for a moment to find a defender in a prelate of rare merit, Bishop Gonindard, coadjutor to Bishop Place.

Upon his arrival in Rennes, Bishop Gonindard had won universal sympathies among the clergy by the charm of his manners, the distinction of his mind, the goodness of a truly evangelical heart. Bishop Place, outraged, heaped insults upon Bishop Gonindard. procedures and Rome eventually begged the coadjutor not to no longer appear in the diocese he was supposed to govern a day. |:

The cruelty shown by Bishop Place in the case of Father Lepailleur finished turning the whole community against him Brittany.

That's a truly heartbreaking story; we're talking about it. would make a deeply moving book. Father Lepail- their, as we know, is the founder of this order of Little Sisters of the Poor, which has taken over in a few years- born of such prodigious development. When it began, In 1840 (1), the young priest had no support other than the assistance from a maid, Jeanne Jugan, and a cou- killer, Marie Jamet; he was so poor that he had to sell he used his watch to buy bread for the first elderly people collected by him.

Today, the Institute of the Little Sisters of Pau- Vres has 264 houses worldwide!

Doesn't it sound like you're hearing a beautiful legend of the Lives of the Saints, a page from the life of Saint Francis of the Assizes?

Can you imagine the veneration that inspired in Little Sisters, the one they called: "their good

(1) It was on October 45, 1840, that the two good creatures, that the Father Lepailleur had associated with his work, had transported an old blind woman in Jeanne Jugan's attic.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 273

"Father." For them, this founder of a wonderful order, he who created such a work by power alone of his faith, through the radiance of the hearth that was within him is truly a Saint, and he cannot fail to be canonized, as were most of the founders orders.

So they had the joy of seeing a Saint, no more only through the stories in devotional books, but a living saint, a saint who had already performed a miracle and who would make others after his death. You think—The poor girls doted on him and adored him, their Saint.

There was, no doubt, some exaggeration in these expressions of veneration and tenderness. As soon as they they caught sight of their "good Father", the Little Sisters they rushed around him, prostrated themselves and, it is said, They wanted to kiss his feet. One day, while he was chatting with 'a priest, a group of nuns would have rushed towards him; to keep away the most bothersome ones, Father Lepail—he would have laughed and thrown his slipper at them; the Little—The sisters reportedly rushed over and kissed the pan—tuft before bringing it back...

Many saints and the Curé of Ars himself in this centuries have been the object of similar marks of respect, —and Cardinal Place could have recommended to Father Lepailleur declined to participate in these demonstrations.

— but that was not what the cardinal was thinking; he did not—had only one desire: to be able to dispose of the money of Little Sisters.

The mother house of the Saint-Joseph Tower, located: at 'Saint-Pern, near Bacherel (Ille-et-Vilaine), was celebrating;

we were preparing to joyfully celebrate the fiftieth—pair of the foundation of the order. Suddenly, a new—new spread throughout Brittany with the rapid—Lightning strike... Father Lepailleur had disappeared!

He was put in a wagon under the direction of a man.

"Sure, and we had shipped it to Italy!"
It appears to be an arrest by letter of arrest.

274 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

chet, to the transport of a state prisoner to Pignerol
'under the guard of d'Artagnan, who was tasked with preventing the

A prisoner unable to communicate with any living soul. That is Exactly the same thing. A defense had been made at Father Lepailleur to stop at no house of His order; he was to travel without stopping.

Can you imagine the shock produced by such a thing?
A coup d'état against a 79-year-old man? The unfortunate man
He vomited all the way along the way and we thought he wouldn't-would never reach its destination.

D'Artagnan, in this instance, was a lawyer who plays a major role in the religious world in Rennes.
He's the aficionado, the businessman of the archbishopric, the head of the messengers of a new Holy Office, the soul damned by the cardinal who had him appointed commander of Saint Gregory. The priests are afraid of it as one was afraid in Venice of an affiliate of the Council of Ten; they know that nothing escapes his investigations and that the
The slightest hint of independence would be immediately reprimanded.
A lone priest dared to write a sonnet about him.
that he sent me:

The Lord's advocate and his businessman,

Orange complexion, feline muzzle, old-fashioned speaking,

He blesses, he insults and slanders a little;

For the good of the Church, he is ready to do anything.

When it comes to drafting, he swims in the blue;

If he ever meets you, be sure to remain silent:
Because for a single word that his malice alters,

Those who decorated it would throw you into the fire.

There he is, a commander in the holy militia:
The prelates need a good police force
To govern in the bad times in which we live.

These good lay Fathers are watching over us from the shadows.
And the poor priests, every time they wake up,
They tremble at the thought of receiving some new soap.

I don't need to tell you what an emotion this an event that no newspaper has mentioned, except for the

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 275

Petit Journal, excited throughout Brittany. The Pe-
The little sisters, naturally, were crying, as they say, everything they knew. They had finally learned that the "good Father" was interned with nuns from another Order in Frascati and they called themselves Anxious: "Are they taking good care of him?" It is likely that they are taking very poor care of him, because the old man, it seems, moans all day long. Those around her, in fact,
They don't know he's a saint; they're unaware.
of what this poor man, now bent over, once was under the weight of years and perhaps him FÉPEUFRERE they were not clean enough about him.

We told each other every little detail about the department and the words spoken by the old man to Doctor Martin:
"I am more to be pitied than Job; he had been left to
"Except for his manure, they took everything away from me."

For me, I confess to finding this profoundly disturbing-singing, and I'm sure many will agree with me.
even among the skeptics without hatred whose smile sometimes sheds a tear when they contemplate the miseries and wickedness of our feeble- human nity. ,

Think about it and you will think that the proscription the passing of this good old man is as moving as the departure of Napoleon for Saint Helena. He did not have two killed millions of men, but he too did something something very large in its kind; it was clearly called by God to accomplish an extraordinary work.
His task completed, he thought he would fall asleep in the peace of the Lord. And there he is all of a sudden, the poor man old, on the road to Italy; he doesn't even have the permission to shelter his head for a night in one of the One hundred thousand houses that sprang up thanks to him.
Old people died in beds that this apostle of the Charity had found for them and for him, the founder of this admirable Institute, it will not have the right to die in one of those beds; he will have nothing around him, for himself bring the last herbal tea, just one of these three thousand little Sisters whom he gave as comforters and for Friends to all the vanquished of life. Tantum est in rebus inane...

Before loading the wagon, Father had to sign. Lepailleur a letter in which he declared that he was was going voluntarily and that he was going to Italy to preparing for death...

You see the plausibility of this fable: this old man a priest from Saint-Malo who never left Brittany, who lives surrounded by affection in the mother house of his Order, and who feels the need to withdraw to Italy, like Mr. de Niewerkerke probably, to enjoy it masterpieces of art.

This was the cardinal's first version. At the first On July 7, 1890, during his ecclesiastical retirement, he announced that It was Father Lepailleur who, because of his age, had wanted to withdraw, as evidenced by a letter which... would have made it public.

This statement, as you can well imagine, came at the mid-a place of silence like that which reigns when the colonel is at work. to form the circle, but to the ironic looks that he launched his priests, who so cordially detest him, Bishop Place understood that history was not taking place... At the his second retreat, at the end of July, he declared to the priests deans that he had been forced to intervene because of the numerous abuses that had crept into the congress the congregation of the Little Sisters of the Poor and that he had to He had no intention of leaving Father Lepailleur.

truth, the first time:

The day after his departure, the cardinal had made it a priority to... to raise the portrait of the Father from the parlor of the mother house and he had tasked one of his vicars general, the canon Delafosse, who had once tried to found a briqueterie, to take control of the administration. From that he was the master of the mother house he could act on all the other houses...

Cardinal Place Sootte's exploits through his que-
L

real with clergymen to whom he claimed to wrest a small inheritance that a friend had left them.

It is necessary, in order to fully understand this question, to go into some explanations.

A priest of great learning and high virtue, the abbot Guïtton, for a long time vicar general of the predecessor of Cardinal Place, the Cardinal of Saint-Marc, had been struck difficulties experienced by young priests in inter-to undertake theological and literary works, and he had thought of bringing them together in a study house which It was called the Oratory of Saint Philip Neri. A mo-Abbot Guitton even considered transforming this a meeting of a completely friendly nature in a sort of conauthorized gregation, but, faced with the difficulties it entails-
On the contrary, he completely abandoned this project, and himself said friends gathered around him: "We don'twe only have one wish, that of not making any. » We con-attempted to settle all the seminar regulations.

Upon his death, Abbot Guitton divided his modest fortune between the two friends who were dearest to him heart: Abbé Plaine and Abbé Motaïs.

The heirs of Abbot Guitton attacked the test-tament under the pretext that he was hiding a bequest to the Oratory;
They won in the first instance, but the Court of Ap-
The Rennes court definitively dismissed their case by a ruling of March 22, 1887.

What decided the court was the cardinal's statement.
A place which, in a letter written to Mr. Grivart, former mid-minister and advocate for the ecclesiastic heirs, affirmed the most formal way that the Oratory did not constitute not a congregation.

You asked me, His Eminence said, in your
What is the quality of the lawyer for the priests known as the Oratory, in
From an ecclesiastical point of view, their situation.

My answer is quite simple: this situation is exactly that of all the priests in my diocese.
Father Guitton, as he told me upon my arrival in Rennes, never intended to found a congress

278 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

gation. A priest of great talent and knowledge, having deeply committed to promoting the study of sacred sciences, to which he had devoted his life, struck moreover by the extreme difficulty for those who might have the inclination and the will to to engage in it consistently and successfully under ordinary conditions, He wanted to make it easy, either for secular priests, even to laypeople and, for this purpose, he opened a maison where they could, even temporarily, indulge in the study, each according to their abilities and preferences, in a moment of reflection and with a freedom as necessary as difficult to achieve in parish ministry, for the pre-very, than in the world, for secular people.

The house has continued and currently exists in these conditions, which have never changed.

The priests who live there have no religious ties to each other. They were not religious in any way. They never had, sought, or even considered to have any constitution approved either by the Pope, or by the Bishop.

They only have the very basic regulations that apply. for the sake of good order, as soon as several people live in common in the same house.

Abbot Motaïs died some time later and he he bequeathed to his mother the small fortune he had inherited, This demonstrates that he fully believed he had the right. to dispose of it with a clear conscience. He bequeathed, In addition, various sums to his friends at the Oratory: Abbot Houct, Abbot Robert, Abbot Louvet with the- which he had worked on and which he entrusted with the revision sion and the publication of his manuscripts.

These clergymen, completely unfamiliar with the affairs of the money-makers had the idea of putting their funds into deposit in the hands of Abbot Hamard, priest of The Oratory. Abbot Plaine, the co-heir with Abbot Motaïs, the abbot of Guitton, did the same. They bought at their joint expense a beautiful safe and they entrusted the key to Abbot Hamard, on his behalf to return it to them take into account the situation each year and not to give in to no financial transaction. It was understood that:

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 279

that they reserved the right to remove from the safe the sums they might need.

Things continued like this for a few years. when suddenly, at the moment of the surrender of During the year-end accounting, some irregularities were noticed. regularities and a deficit of more than 4,000 francs.

Abbot Plaine then hastened to withdraw from the administration the verbal mandate he had previously entrusted to him dementia, and he consequently asked him for the key to the safe and management accounts. Mr. Hamard he seemed embarrassed at first, then he withdrew He was acting under orders from above and refused to return it. The key is to be accountable for one's management. The evening of the On the same day, he admitted to having made commitments to the archbishop's visit three months earlier and having changed the secret of the safe. He promised, moreover, to do everything possible to break free from these commitments. The owners felt their surprise redouble and their fears and, unable to explain the enigma, they Their primary concern was to protect their property, and had security locks fitted to the door leading access to the checkout.

Fatal precaution! It was this that marked the beginning of incredible persecution and will unleash the wrath of the episcopals on the poor priests of the Oratory.

The most eminent archbishop entered, in fact, into a Terrible anger. On January 4th, he sent a letter (which he says takes the place of the precept and the three admonitions) canonical) by which he suspended two priests of the Oratory and ordered to be released immediately access to the checkout. He then moved from his per-rings at the house, and, meeting a priest of four-twenty-three years old, he began by calling him a "miserable-able" and suspended him for fifteen days from the celebratory preparation of the Mass. Then, he would bring in the principal owner, who kept the keys to the door by the- which we arrived at the checkout, and declared it suspended and forbidden until he had handed over those keys.

You understand the situation of these priests who have been attacked. in their ecclesiastical functions and wronged in their men's interests; they were not only suspended a divinis, they were forbidden ab kumanis; they suffered both spiritually and temporally since they were reduced to starving to death in front of their safe.

They decided to appeal to Rome, but this The appeal only further exasperated Bishop Place, and this This time, it was Abbot Plaine who was affected. He was deprived of power to confess, celebrate, and exercise any ministry in religious communities entrusted to his leadership for over twenty years.

Necessity knows no law. From a temporal point of view, the Abbé Plaine's situation was not bad; he had the keys to the room where the safe was located and consequently the safe, but the cardinal, representing sent by Father Hamard, had the key to the safe himself. Abbot Plaine issued a final summons to Abbot Hamard was asked to return the key, and upon his refusal, He decided to sacrifice the piece of furniture. On March 27, 1890 he hired a lawyer friend, Mr. Lemenant des Chesnays, to preside before witnesses over the breaking of the The safe was opened and the valuables and securities were removed.

This measure signaled the start of a new execution. and four priests of the Oratory: Abbot Louvet, Abbot Robert, Abbot Guilleux and Abbot Pivert who had as— Those involved in the operation were sentenced to the penalty of suspense was at stake until the values had were put back into the safe.

There was a long period of hesitation before attacking Canon Titulaire Labbé, who had been for many years the superior of the General Seminary of Rennes and who had trained for the priestly life, many young priests of the diocese.

Bishop Place, however, decided to do it. They sent to the chanoine Labbé, a vicar general, and another ecclesiastick who had been his students at the Seminary. These, a little ashamed, they didn't know how to engage in the...

"Here. My children, do your duty," said the old man. priest.

The envoys from the archbishopric asked the canon to disavow a letter that one of our excellent brothers, Mr. Paul Beesau, had written to Bishop Place for to claim one's share of responsibility in these events comments. The canon replied that he was not qualified to disavow another's letter, and he added that in witnessing the safe-cracking, he was aware for having acted like an honest man and that he was quite ready to start again.

Thereupon, the former superior of the Seminary was in-Banned for fifteen days!

"The poor fellow!" said one of his colleagues. Bishop Place in the episcopate, "by thus striking against He takes away all the justice of the priests esteemed by all. the only weapon we have against in- priests "Dignified!"

In Rome, there was a great deal of confusion. The archbishop of Rennes is one of those that sends the most money for Peter's Pence – which is easy for him with the means he uses to obtain it. From a On the other hand, it was obvious that the priests we wanted They were absolutely right to dispossess. The congregation charged with deciding on this bizarre case extricated himself from a- to do so by declaring that she did not have the right to interfere to come into a question that had already been decided by the courts, but that she encouraged the priests to submit.

The conflict has reached this point, and all of Brittany, deeply affected... Deeply troubled by all these quarrels, she is praying. so that the cardinal would decide to retire to Rome and to leaving a diocese he found peaceful and happy and in which he sowed hatred, discord and anarchy Shit.

As for us, what seemed interesting to indicate- that for the study of contemporary life, it is the fact of this prelate employing spiritual weapons in a

A conflict of an exclusively material nature, striking, without pity, the ban on priests whose only fault is that of wanting to keep what belongs to them.

He

THE BISHOPS AND THE CATHOLIC WRITERS

The bishops' hatred for Catholic writers. – Some de-Embarrassing defenders. – Bishop Guilbert and the Catholic Press.
 – Why are the bishops angry with us? – The memory of Saint Athanasius. – Bishop Richard and the Universe. – Literature of a bishop's nephew. – The Joyeuses in kepis. – Without che-Set! – An archbishop's note. – Ecclesiastical ferocity. –
 The torture of the trough in Persia. – No answer possible. –
 The good little comrades. – Mr. Paul de Cassagnac has his turn.
 – A scene from a novel by Ferdinand Fabre. – What has suffered-Henri Lasserre. – The creation of a city. – The Jews mar-
 Candles of holy objects. – Blasphemy in the neighborhood Saint-Sulpice. – The Fathers of Lourdes. – The translation of Gospels and the Congregation of the Index. – Incredible inertia From Bishop Richard. – How one treats an archbishop of Paris in Rome. – Bishop Gibbous and the Knights of Labor. – One

Conversation with the Archbishop of Paris – An article by M. Cornély. – Bishop Darboy's slap in the face. – A trip to Rome. – On the stairs. – A papal audience. – The Rome Journal.

You can see the situation clearly, can't you? With the
 The priest's particular diplomatic genius, the high clergy made his little secret deal with the Government; all two, quibbling, arguing, bargaining, end up get along quite well; they leave aside the questions principles to accommodate on issues of personal interest where it is always possible to find a trading ground.

Transactions are all the easier because the

the current persecution has a particular character, it is intermittent; it stops when the Jewish quarter, a modestly subdued by courageous writers, does not sound the hunt against the priests.

Opportunists and radicals, in fact, do not even the excuse of a sincere hatred against the Church; the blas- For them, the phenomenon is nothing more than electioneering. attacks against the Church such as the declamations against For these vile beings, abuse is merely a form of self-promotion. street performers; they are the first to identify abuses and they ask for nothing more than to obtain from the clergy all that it can provide in terms of valuable neutrality for certain elections, of secret competitions, of words of secret order; in the provinces, they are bound by a thousand ties still to this Church as a constituted power; This is an opportunity for them to get a relative to sign up. Furthermore, regarding the budget, to demand a good position for a second cousin.

All of this is handled by the women; all of them happy. to see their husband become a senator or deputy in pro- by putting "to crush the infamous," they are eager also to see their children raised as Christians because this education is better for the long term, to remain in good relations with the Church like the ladies of the aristocracy. There is no contradiction there, strictly speaking. To speak. That is the bourgeois soul, incapable of all loyalty and of all nobility; she maintains in the midst of palinodes and hypocrisies form a kind of unity; it is driven by the fixed idea of drawing from the present state of affairs all the positive feedback one can read about it.

As for the high clergy, they have, in relation to themselves excellent reasons to indulge in all these rides: No doubt, he works for his own well-being, but he He also works for the good of Religion; he likes to persuade that if we resisted we would close down the churches, and that he, through his servility, stops the floods of blood ready to sink.

While the prelates are busy dealing with all these small negotiations in hushed tones, behind closed doors

284 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Even when closed, you can sometimes hear noise.

– What is this?

– We are the Catholic journalists... We has just committed yet another attack against rights Christians. We will not let these infamies remain unpunished. punished; we will attack the minister, the prefect, the Members of Parliament for your department; we know some fine things on their account.

"That's all I needed!" thought the bishop. and it is with a good heart that he sends these to all the devils unfortunate defenders who come to disturb his combinations and disturb his precious rest.

The Catholic writer and bishop would still be a amusing scenes from the great contemporary comedy raine that I've always dreamed of writing, but which would be too powerfully true to have a chance of being played, even at the Théâtre-Libre.

There is an enormous intensity of comedy in the spec- tackle by these enthusiastic and convinced people tion who persist in defending this Episcopate which does not doesn't want to be defended and hates it a thousand times more Its defenders are more than its most implacable enemies.

Cardinal Antonelli's words have often been quoted:
'I would like all Catholic journalists to be–

"They were employed to drain the Pontine Marshes."

This statement only very weakly expresses the feelings comments that some French bishops feel about Christian publicists.

...No doubt not all prelates have the frankness to Bishop Guilbert, for his part, did not hide his opinion.

– What! You read that wretched newspaper?
he said to one of his priests that he found it related to the hand the Universe.

As for him, he only received two political newspapers. questions: Peace and the Gironde, one of the pro- newspapers Vince, the most hostile to the Church.

When the Nouvelliste de Bordeaux appeared, founded by the most prominent Catholics of the Bordeaux region, one sent a number to the archbishop; he sent it back to putting himself on the tape: refused.

Bishop Guilbert's affection for the Gironde was so keen that he charged the printing press of this newspaper for all the publications of the archdiocese. There existed indeed a Catholic printing press in Bordeaux, but, of-
Faced with the ill will of the head of the diocese, she had to to give up the fight and close its doors.

While they may be less sharp in their appearance, many members of the episcopate are in ana-experts in all matters relating to Catholic journalism lique.

Religious leaders are so kind and conciliatory to the point of extreme indulgence for those who attack and blaspheme, however harsh, hau-tains, without indulgence or pity for those who com-fight for Christ. Sometimes, in relation to them, they are truly atrocious, and it's a Catholic-lique who said this word which was wrongly attributed to Maurice Jolly, one of Grévy's victims: "They did all this to me."
that one can do to a man without killing him.

It is still a matter of psychological study of these souls.
bishops who must be asked for an explanation of what may seem surprising and abnormal in these ways to act.

These archbishops and bishops are neither boule-
Neither skeptical nor indifferent, they have at deep down, they have a scrupulous soul; they have been nurtured since the seminar on the recounting of all acts of heroism accomplished folded by the great shepherds of peoples of yesteryear; facing persecution, exile, death rather than to abandon the Truth. Here, it is Athanasius defying Julian the Apostate; there is Saint Ambrose, standing on the threshold of Milan Cathedral, and refusing entry to a shrine to Emperor Theodosius accompanied by a army; elsewhere, it is Chrysostom pointing,

From the pulpit of Hagia Sophia, Empress Eudoxie who violated the laws of the Church.

When they bowed down before our sad government; when they reprimanded, under the pretext one of their priests was guilty of excessive zeal. these bishops, in having fulfilled their duty, Despite being good people, they are taking their examination of conscience, and they are not very satisfied with themselves... So, through a contradiction that seems illogical, but which is quite easily explained when you know the human nature, they resent the writer for speaking. When they remain silent, they resent us for doing this. that they should do it themselves.

It is clear that Bishop Larue, the Bishop of Langres, does not he must not have been pleased with himself when he saw himself next to Carnot, in the presidential carriage. Appointed thanks to the efforts of Cambon, who carried out the de- In the North, the conciliatory Larue had wanted to curry favor with the Republic. The Republicans, who they might have respected him, if he had kept his distance their kindness, they showed him no gratitude for this humiliating their approach and they called him "the man dressed as a woman." Without treating each other so irreverently, Bishop Larue It was probably thought that after the expulsions, the laws schoolchildren, the assassination of Chateaufort, on the eve of Vicq's power grab, which the Freemasons announced- Even then, the place of a bishop was not where he was. and that Saint Athanasius would not have ascended the carriage...

We will never know, I repeat, to what degree of exasperation the memory of Saint Athanasius, which constitutes at He alone, a silent reproach, can bring about a bishop who doesn't have a heroic soul, which is simply a good ecclesiastical prefect, a virtuous archimandrite and who, moreover, has all sorts of nephews and of cousins to be placed in the Post Office, in the Registerment, in the Bridges and Roads department and other administrative bodies transactions dependent on the State.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 287

Add to that the need for domination that I've already mentioned, and which exists in every priest's soul. The bishops no longer have the opportunity to exercise this authority over the The impious and the lukewarm, who are increasingly distancing themselves and

They escape their actions. They take their revenge on us.
others whom they know to be obedient and willing to accept everything, out of a spirit of discipline.

This is the case in some colleges; when all the
The paying students have left; he remains during the holidays.
a few unfortunate scholarship recipients on whom one experiment-It lies in all known systems of punishment. For the leaders of the Church, the Catholic writers, who do not are not mere pedants, they are whipping boys their, ladybugs, sorrowful creatures, like say the children. They enjoy tormenting them, they break their legs or stick needles in them in the back, and when the unfortunate ones decide to proto test them, they tell them sternly: "Don't forget,
"Isn't that right, that I am a bishop?"

We would write a chapter of poignant drama on the secret pains of all beings who are they went to the church, their hearts ablaze with love for Jesus Christ, his soul consumed by the desire to devote himself, and who received as their only reward for their efforts a few blows from the bishop's crosier, a few of these blows with the butt of the rifle, firmly delivered at the moment when it is the least expected thing and must be accepted without shout.

What a tragedy of conscience in this quarrel of The universe and Lieutenant Paimblant! I haven't said a word.
just a few words in Last Battle, but I have I've often thought about it since then and I've blamed myself for the pusil-
The intellectual animosity that had prevented me, for the
For the first time in my life, I wrote down what I thought.
because he was an archbishop.

You know this case. A semi-cleric guided by science and virtue, Canon

288 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Maynard had published an article in L'Univers about a Book by Bishop Bougaud: Saint Vincent de Paul.
This article made it abundantly clear that Bishop Bou-Gaud could have been an excellent bishop, but he had only knowledge of the seventeenth century completely superficial. He was a confusionist.
truly extraordinary proportions. He confused the League and the Fronde; he called the Grande Mademoiselle a "League member," and he claimed she was the sister of Louis XIII.

What do these miseries matter if life is pure? There are many people who know even less than Bishop Bougaud and who will still enter Paradise.

At this point, an officer, Mr. Paimblant, intervened, who sign of the pseudonym Max from the pornographic books—photos that would have made the donkey drivers of the street blush Cairo.

This Paimblant, of course, is not a bishop, but only nephew of a bishop, nephew by marriage of Bishop Bougaud.

Decorated by Leo XIII with the Cross of Saint Gregory, Paimblant, on the day of his visit to the Universe, had, we According to newspapers favorable to him, "believed having to ostentatiously place one's decoration on one's poitrine.

It is regrettable that he does not deem it appropriate to put this cross when he composes; it would inspire him, without No doubt, less lewd thoughts.

It is indeed difficult to find anything to build upon in the volume entitled: Joyeuses en Répi(1), and which consists of erotic adventures like A Pa—Screw the convent, In pursuit of a pretty girl, Sticky loyalty.

To present this work to the public, Paimblant

QG) A volume, published by Dentu, with illustrations by Pille, Larche, Paillet, Pargan.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 289

at least had the good sense not to ask for pre—facing his uncle; he confided in a specialist, Mr. Dubut of La Forêt, whose Gaga caused quite a stir at court of the assizes.

Let us hasten to say that Dubut himself had some hesitations and that, in his preface, he gently resumed his disciple for not having even allowed one of his heroines in the most basic of clothes.

There is, sir, he wrote in your modern work, a theory that I want to fight, the idea of sen- exile sue: reaching its climax in the presence of an academy of a woman. I know very well (1) that Marie de Lorraine appeared thus, superb in its shamelessness, to Jacques Clément and that she transformed the prisoner's cell into a temple of love, visionary whom she showered with her pleasures in order to exhort him to crime; I see, moreover, that your hero (malencon- (rarely awakened by the bugle sounding the dianc) is himself- even carried away by the breath of furious desires - but that does not This does not prove you right against general physiology.

If you wish, we will shorten the patterns a bit. that the author of Gaga gives.

It is certain, moreover, that Dubut is fundamentally right. and that, if only out of consideration for his uncle, a bishop's nephew could at least have left his head focused on its heroine...

Paimblant did not make this concession; he went all the way to end.

After pausing for a moment at the red tips of her breasts, the shirt continued to slowly slide down along of a marble torso; she gave a last kiss to her her knees white and polished, then she comes to prostrate herself at his feet, like a Muslim in worship (2).

(1) Note that Dubut knows absolutely nothing about this. What he That said, it's to have the opportunity to write a vulgarity.

(2) 11 It is unnecessary, I think, to add that the Joyeuses in kepis were authorized in train stations by the virtuous Hachette publishing house, who defended the sale of the clergy under the Third Republic.

She was naked!

My temples were throbbing, the blood was flowing rapidly and burning in my veins.

Her slender figure stood out sharply against the background the purple of the tapestries that reflected warm, muted tones on the marvelous modeling of this body worthy of the brush Apelles.

Let's cut this short a bit more and not dwell on this table. We refer those who like this to the vo-Light. There is an engraving.

The reveille is heard, and the author tells us his story. sadness upon hearing that early morning call.

The bugle sounds reveille beneath my window.

"You're being very lazy this morning," my coma- said to me. The snorer is out of the way. I don't answer him because I would tell him what- How unpleasant, given how awful my mood is. After getting dressed while grumbling, with a melancholy step, I will unenthusiastically absorb the hunched posture of boredom. two deadly hours of a conference on ballistics.

And you think there's nothing to drive you crazy about? Pear? I wrap myself in my enforced chastity with as much pleasure that a convict derives from dragging the ball and chain on his foot.

It is true that there is an immediate appeal to God after. Perhaps it was the Knight of Saint Gregory who finds himself and exclaims:

What have I done, my God, to deserve all this? :-

When you write books of this kind and you want preventing a canon from discussing in the Universe the life of a saint written by a bishop, one cannot escape to the ridiculous, to fall into... the phurl and... in the odious.

Paimblant did not fail to do so...

Inspired by this critique of the Life of Saint Vincent . de Paul, the author of a Sticky Fidelity, introduced himself to the Universe, escorted by one of his friends, Mr. de Colomb, who, out of respect for the memory of his father, who was with

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 291

General de Sonis, the true model of the Christian soldier would have been better off not getting involved in this adventure ture (1).

Although Mr. Paimblant's kinship was distant, he
It is certain that if he had presented his request politely, Mr. Eugène Veuillot would not have refused to publish a apologetic letter in which the nephew would have explained that his uncle knew the seventeenth century as well as Cousin himself. Everything can be argued.
and the readers would have judged.

What is Paimblant doing? He is hitting the old writer in the face.
in vain, without Mr. de Colomb appearing to have done anything to prevent it.

Abbot Lagrange, who was due, a few days later Later, he was recommended as Bishop of Chartres and he nurtured against the Veuillots a hatred of forty years, had not deemed appropriate to appear on the battlefield, but it seems clear that he had encouraged the champions and had excited them to attack the Universe.

+... + + +: .« « « During the thrusts
I was daydreaming while writing verses under the arcades.

I want to remain within the bounds of appreciation.
moderate, but it is certain that this is not how A French officer was supposed to act. I doubt that the 131st of line inscribes this campaign against an old man, to on the side of the campaigns of Austerlitz, Crimea or from Italy.

(4) {1 it is appropriate to point out that Mr. de Colomb should have,
Before accompanying Paimblant, remember that the Universe had always spoken of General Columbus—in the most eloquent terms
The most righteous and the most just. I remember reading a very moving scene in which the general was shown handing over himself to his son the cross that the latter had won in Tonkin. In these under these conditions, a man of good counsel would have said to his friend: "My <her, when you write Priapus-like things like you do, you don't intervene in a theological discussion. Remain calm.

292 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This, moreover, is only incidental from the point of view from this study; what's interesting about it is the intervention of the archbishop.

Both roles are clearly defined.

Here, on the one hand, is a newspaper editor who publishes a perhaps harsh assessment, but in any case exclusively literary, about a book that its author has presumably sent to the printer with the intention to have the judgment of the Critics upon him.

Here, on the other hand, is a man in the prime of life, who comes, accompanied by a friend, to attack in his a seventy-two-year-old writer's study.

There is no similarity between these two facts.

What is the Archbishop of Paris doing, having been ordered to... pronounce?

In a note, which is a masterpiece of skill, Moreover, he absolutely identifies these two facts of the order Completely different.

The article inserted in the Universe had not maintained towards the memoir of a bishop: the rules of moderation and rest- Respect. His Eminence blamed him and should have blamed him. She has similarly condemned the methods that had been used towards the editor-in-chief of the Universe.

It is deeply regrettable that the advice of Son Emi- nence have not been followed. She can only condemn any what, in this passionate controversy, deviated from a on both sides of the rules of moderation and charity and demand that an end be put to the dis- percussion.

This note is wonderful, once again.
where everything is weighed by Hatred, expertly measured by the Malice and cunning. Everything is calculated to belittle.
the man of letters, burdened with years at the level of the young butor who struck him, to show him that the work of which the writer boasts does not exist in the eyes of the epis-Copat. It's the inexorable in the unctuous. There is only archbishops and bishops who know how to write Notes like that.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 293

Read it again carefully to admire it as it deserves.

Paimblant's act, in which he strikes a man at the head
I want whites, and the act of a newspaper editor who inserts a canon's critical article on the book of a clergyman, are placed exactly on the same plan. These are processes, two similar processes.
and that we also blame; these are two arguments of controversy.

The man whom his archbishop thus abandons is the brother of the greatest Catholic writer of the time;
He himself has defended the Church since he reached manhood.
amidst the obstacles, the difficulties, the insults of every day; he dedicated his son to a cause where one does not He receives neither decorations, nor lucrative positions, nor palms.
academics. That's his reward.

The cardinal didn't have a single kind word, not one
A cordial word for this veteran of religious struggles outrageously outraged. This old man has no pity for an old man like him. "When God made entrails of man, said Bossuet, he first put there the "Goodness." The cardinal must have arrived when the distribution was finished.

What you also need to pay close attention to is the refinement.
of torture inflicted on the old Catholic writer, the great
A polemicist with an itch to write. He tries his best.
to explain his case to the Pope, but the Pope sends him
One more blow with the butt of the rifle and he'll have no choice but to shut up.

So the little friends have a great time.
Magnard, who believes neither in God nor the devil, and who harbors a slightly younger hatred for the Universe than that of Bishop Lagrange, but which is doing well.

"She too is taking advantage of the opportunity, and Le Figaro is sending her message to Eugène Veuillot offered some wise advice: "Let's see, You are wrong not to respect the bishops. You You're in a bad position. That's unfortunate, absolutely. How unfortunate! What will we respect if we don't respect... Not Our Lordships the Bishops?"

Mr. Paul de Cassagnac, who has always been, as we know,

294 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

with rare restraint in his remarks, he nods and he exclaimed: "This is deplorable! Why not take model on a moderate man like myself (1)? »

It's not just journalists we meet more often at the Folies-Bergère or the Moulin Rouge than at Mass, which do not take on airs of circumstance and do not complain about the incident.

The dramatic nature of the situation, what makes this episode a chapter worthy of appearing in an ecclesiastical novel Ferdinand Fabre's siastic, is that once again The patient must not answer. We are waiting for him here. If he

(G) When I read Mr. Paul de Cassaguac's article, pushing the loud cries of outrage arose because the lucubration was not considered admirable. Based on the history of a bishop, I said to myself, "Go for it, my good man, you'll get turn! With your independent temperament, you won't be able to get-sin by speaking out when indignation chokes you, and you will be "Bitten." It didn't take long. At the time of the president's trip Carnot in La Rochelle, the bishop, Mgr Ardin, who, through exaggeration His servility revolts even the least belligerent prelates. was seized with enthusiasm for the President, who, just then, to refuse him permission to bless the new port of La Palisse, And he exclaimed, in a fit of lyricism: "The hearts of all "My priests beat their bells like mine, in unison with yours."

Mr. Paul de Cassagnac could not bear it and remarked, with his usual verve, what was so inappropriate and inappropriate about such language vile towards the head of a government who has a female worker killed because she goes to mass and takes away the bread of those who fre- They are visiting the church.

At that point, Father Fabien, vicar general of the Bishop of La Rochelle wrote a scathing letter to the Director of the Authority in which he treated like dirt.

That's how it is. The bishops don't want to admit the most slight criticisms, even when it comes to acts that are not acts of sacred ministry

M. de Cassagnac was forced to accept the price list: if he had they said what everyone thinks, they would have banned the sale of the Au-authority in the dioceses, and the clergy should have obeyed.
I could mention the name of a priest from the diocese of La Rochelle who
Mr. de Cassagnac's article had literally generated enthusiasm;
After the publication of Abbot Fabien's letter, he rushed to the vicar general to congratulate him. He did well: these bishops-Prefects do not have a father's hand for their spiritual children, and They don't usually hit the wrong spot.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 295

branch, all those bishops so flat and so trembling with-before the Freemasons of the Government, he takes revenge-will expose their cowardice by being implacable towards the writer In vain. By responding, Eugène Vuilliot would ruin the work. to which his illustrious brother attached his name, to which He himself dedicated his life; he would enter a path unknown in which he would find only bitterness Times and sorrows.

'It is the Persian torture, the torture of the trough that Herodotus described it to us, and it was invented by the Magi. who were the bishops of that time. We began by surrounding the victim's body with honey, and they attacked him-then it was placed in a large trough which was exposed in full sunlight. All the flies flocked to it. a defenseless patient, and it seems that this martyrdom, if he was horrible for the tortured man, was very amusing to to contemplate for the spectators.

The one who was made to pay the highest price for success that he had obtained by fighting for Christ is perhaps my friend Henri Lasserre, the author of this Our Lady of Lourdes, whom I've already told you about and which has shaken the whole world.

I can still picture myself picking up Lasserre at the train station from Orléans in 1868, the day he left to collect across France the documents for his book.
It was August 15th, and at that time, the Emperor's feast day...

The festivities somewhat overshadowed the celebration of the Virgin Mary.

I left Lasserre by train, I returned by the boulevards through the flamboyant Paris that filled the hubbub and rumors of the crowd that were... I was drawn to the illuminations. I stopped for a few minutes. at the Café des Variétés chatting with some friends, bou-incorrigible porters whom nothing bothers, 'not even the Neither mourning nor public celebrations. I was a stranger to that This era was open to all religious sentiment, but of course, I wouldn't have thought of it like Léo Taxil, Ro-'s friend telli and the Archbishop of Paris, to dishonor me in writing that the Brothers of the Christian Schools were sodomites and the Sisters of Charity, when they were drunk, were having children with cheapskates en goguelte.

296 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

I was reasoning simply, like a philosopher, and in This Paris of the imperial festival, I was thinking to myself: "What A chimera haunts the brain of poor Lasserre! has more wit than About and, if he wanted to, he would be tomorrow the king of the Chronicle; he has the connections higher and he would only have to wish for a position im-carrying it to obtain it, and he goes off to write the life of a shepherdess from the Pyrenees to whom the Virgin is appa-Street! "

Everyone knows the extraordinary success of this vo-light, its influence on souls and how centuries-tens of thousands of human beings came towards this the small town of Lourdes which suddenly transformed and had the movement of a capital city.

Henri Lasserre was naturally delighted with the slowdown-the content of his book; he had been a socialist and even a He was not very phalansterian in his youth; he saw the Church employing people in social works, in companies directed-guided by the spirit of justice, the gold that the miracle brought in this corner of the Pyrenees; he considered some work executed by workers organized into an association, at the reorganization in this country, which seemed visibly predestined, from the Christian organization of old.

The poor dreamer was way off the mark. The descent-Jews, the merchants whom Jesus had driven out of the temples were established in the city of the Virgin. We saw again there are these merchants of Jewish holy objects who swarm-slow in the Saint-Sulpice district.

In these tribes, work is shared within the family.
Some publish these obscene works in installments.
which are sent all over France with leaflets Filthy. (Expose this engraving to the light and you (You'll see.) You know what I mean; the sorting-
The Orléans cantonal council has ruled in this case.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 297

and, since the publisher was Jewish, he stated that It was good.

The others sell blessed rosaries, medals and scapulars. This is to enrich these people-that's where the Church of the Sacred Heart was built, around the-where one can encounter all varieties of Jews known.

On Saturdays we gather around the family table where the
The mother acts like the mother of one of our colleagues who said to his sons, who were devoted to various occupations:
"What made the most money this week?"

- It's me, Mom.

- Well then, my son, stand on my right.

Employees who lived there gave me Incredible details about these Jewish shops. All the All day long, all you hear are overly sweet words.
voices as caressing as prayers, which whisper-tent: "Father, nothing is too good for the Good God, that's what he was telling me again the other day Reverend Father X. Ah! What a holy man the Rev-"Veter Father X." (Here one bows, joining slightly-(ment the hands.)

In the evening, when the shutters are closed, Jewish hatred against Christ, he deflates at his leisure, and the mouth
A long-closed sewer spews forth its stream of garbage.
When the sale didn't go well, we shook our fists.
to the poor colored saints of the store who can't-wind but; they scold the Virgin Mary: "What Are you good? You didn't just make us sell.

"Not a penny today!"

This isn't even formatted for printing, it's transcribed from the conversation of good people, of Christian men and women workers who worked in these houses.

It should be added that several councils, the council of Toledo, in particular, has formally banned the purchase of an object of any kind of holiness to a merchant of Jewish origin. It would only be up to our bishops to remind 17.

298 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

this decision of the councils, in their Weeks religious, and to prevent the Saint-Sulpice district and the area around the Sacred Heart should not be every day the terrible sacrilege and blasphemy than here. It is committed throughout Paris; but the bishops, when it comes to the Jews, they hardly concern themselves with the decisions of the councils; they sat on it.

But let's get back to Lourdes. As soon as we saw the crowd rush there, a congregation was founded expressly for them. They exploited the miracle to the fullest. They sold everything, they sold down to the pure water that the Virgin Mary had caused to spring forth from a rock.

The holy priest Peyramale, the true country priest who had supported Bernadette through her trials and Lasserre was greeted upon his arrival and tried to protest against the acts of all these simoniacs; he was appointed monsignor to silence him and he ended up dying of pain.

As for Lasserre, he was, understandably, swiftly rejected and treated like an outcast. If it had been possible, he was allegedly forbidden from entering the city, and he was the only one not allowed to come and pray in this basilica that his book had so much helped to bring out of earth.

Miraculously cured by the Virgin of Lourdes,

- Lasserre had promised himself to be the historian of all your supernatural events that would happen at the cave.

Place yourself in the position of free thought,
Call it madness, a chimera, say that it is there an idea from a mystagogue, in reality you will agree that it would harm no one. The Fathers were more:
crueler than atheists would have been; they refused any communication of the minutes to the historian of Our Lady of Lourdes; they tried to put it unable to continue his work. You see the poor writer who has become an outcast in this city towards which he had led the multitudes, prowling around the pool, going from right to left asking for information, reduced to doing the job to report when some miracle occurs.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 299

This is the series of intellectual tortures I'm going to tell you about.
The speaker who continued. The leaders of the Catholic party are wonderful torturers in that order. For me, They outdid themselves and, to punish me for having defended the Church, when everyone was against it, they have invented, with the approval of the high clergy and the map of the visit of the Pope's Nuncio, to be attacked by a Jew's paymaster who has fallen so low that one cannot post-to argue with him, by a disgraced man of letters that a

An honest man cannot touch with the tip of a pen and that he is sure never to meet at the end of a
"épég. ee '

'Henri Lasserre, born, did not give up on serving' the Church. After having taught the whole world, in one a book translated into thirty-eight languages, the miracles accomplished

"While in Lourdes, he was pleading with the Blessed Virgin Mary, he thought he was..."

still useful to his brothers 'by publishing' a translation news from the Gospels scrupulously accurate as to the text, but whose style was of our time and could thus touching the souls of previous generations more deeply paths.

Let him explain his method to us himself.

work.

"We believe," he said, "that we can bear witness to this." than through the study of authorized commentators and philosophers logues, through careful examination of the variants, through our own Through reflection, we have spared no effort to grasp the meaning exact and the scope of each sentence, each expression, of every word in Greek and Latin, of every phrase Hebrew.

On the other hand, this meaning, once clearly defined in our in spirit, we applied ourselves, not to making a a slavish imitation of the dead language in the living language but to be highlighted, in the best French form that it was possible for us to write, the nuance of the original. Just as much as we need to understand the Evangelists are constantly and solely inspired by the genius of the the language they spoke, as much as we could translate them, we are constantly and solely inspired by the genius of the language we had to speak. Religious to the point of scrupule vis-à-vis everything that constitutes the idea itself, of everything that constitutes the inviolable essence of the sacred text, we have taken on the task of presenting truthfully to our readers the thought and feeling, without adding anything, without subtracting anything-dear, without disturbing anything and without losing anything, just as One pours with the utmost care from one vessel into another, some precious liquor, also fearing to leave some to fall a single drop and to mix in it something foreign.

309 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Lasserre worked on this book for fifteen years; from In the third year he had him compose and paid the rent for composing at Lahure for twelve years to be able to rework and revise the proofs, in order to to be more confident in one's corrections.

Having done this, the writer addressed the Archbishop of Paris. and asked him to have his work examined. Bishop Guibert entrusted this task to the Congregation of priests of Saint-Sulpice, custodian in France of the pure Catholic doctrine. The Sulpicians indicated a few minor errors which Lasserre corrected and the ar-The Bishop of Paris then gave his imprimatur (1).

The entire Catholic press hailed the appearance of the volume. Cardinal Jacobini, Secretary of State of the Holy-Siege," he wrote to the author in these terms.

The Holy Father regularly received the French translation of the Holy Gospels which you have undertaken and completed, to applause and with the approval of the authorities

(1) In reality, the translation of the Gospels had a double imprimatur. After the first imprimatur, Layserre did it himself some revisions, and, Bishop Guibert having died during these interludes done, he submitted his book to Bishop Richard, who gave him new... calf the imprimatur.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 301

Archbishop. His Holiness gives me the mission to address praise for the design that inspired you in the execution-tion and in the publication of this interesting work, and She has asked me to inform you of her wishes. so that the goal you are pursuing, and that you indicate in the preface of your book, may it be fully achieved.

In a letter that closely followed this one, Bishop Parocchi, cardinal-vicar of Leo XIII, appropriating the The judgment of the Voce delle Verita told him that his The translation was a stroke of genius.

Twenty-two French bishops sent letters to the author, to congratulate him.

Suddenly, following the denunciation of a priest... damned first for indecent assault, then for wearing illegal ecclesiastical dress and of which Bishop Richard a the file, the translation of the Gospels was put to the index.

The Archbishop of Paris, warned of what was being prepared... rait, and which was directly involved, since it was He who had given the imprimatur did not warn Las-greenhouse; he did not take any steps in his favor in Rome; He did not ask for anyone to hear his explanations. the author, who was ordered to correct what seemed reprehensible.

This is one of the most curious facts in religious history. contemporary French woman and which corresponds to the shamelessness with which European diplomacy arranges his petty affairs without deigning to consult France, even when it has, as in Zanzibar, rights over the territories at our disposal. We've lost count. even in the religious sphere; we are not good only for giving money to people who have it need.

Never before, in fact, had an archbishop been treated as Paris with such nonchalance. Never before had anyone said to twenty-two French bishops: "You have praised this book, You found it irreproachable, you don't hear anything about it Nothing. Take off your mitre for a moment, I'm going to put you the dunce cap. Never has a Roman Congregation declared, with similar shamelessness, to men, like those who make up the Congregation of Saint-Sulpice, that they were utter ignoramuses.

802 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

From a certain point of view, this show has a certain The moral of the story is that he shows us Rome acting absolutely towards the bishops as the bishops act towards Catholic writers. The bishops make us feel ruthlessly their despotism, because they They know they are obedient; Rome treats the bishops with contempt.

the leg, because she knows them to be weak and without character.

With their usual bad faith, my enemies ef- will force me to distort my words and claim that I demand that the Archbishop of Paris protest against this. the Pope's authority. I never said anything so stupid.

I am simply stating a fact that everyone knows, by recalling

"with what traditional prudence, what majestic

"

All matters are handled slowly in Rome. There are in This slowness, a very commendable concern to... tourer of all guarantees and to give oneself the leisure of reflection. The Church, which has the words of Eternal Life-

nelle, en prises herself with Time

If the translation of the Gospels had been approved by a German archbishop, it would have started with inform him of the objections that one felt should be raised to read about this book. The archbishop is said to have transmitted the book to the interested Prussian Catholic, and he... would be explained. The right to defend oneself is pee recognized since Benedict XIV.

In its Souticita bubble, printed at the top of the catalog-
In the index entry, Benedict XIV prescribed certain considerations by particular for Catholics whose books are defective killers. He wants the consultants to add, as much as possible, the clause donec corrigatur. He orders to suspend the decree, and only publish it on the rethe author's refusal to submit. He insists that the writer should never be condemned without having been in-personally, if he wishes, or by delegation.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 303

fl recommends at least designating a member of the Index that would be its advocate and defender.

By recalling this bull of Benedict XIV, the bishops
The Germans would have done their duty, because when it comes to
For a Catholic, it is the strict duty of a pastor to plead for him, or at least intervene so that we allows him to defend himself.

Moreover, we saw, on occasion, the Knights of the Travail, how the bishops, who deserve that name, com-they take on their mission.

The excommunication was to be pronounced

Knights of Labor. Bishop Gibbons, Archbishop of Baltimore made the journey to Rome. Representative of these Catholics of free America, so different from our French Catholics, marching with their heads held high in the aware of their rights, dignified and serious like a bishop of the early centuries, he dismissed all these monsignori, all those budding Rotellis who shuttle between the Quirinal and the Vatican, constantly scheming, col- carrying news and deceiving both sides; he he said to them, "Go away, you little rascals, leave me alone!" "To pass," and he went to see the Pope... The Pope, for a moment deceived, he understood how great and fruitful the work was. true what the Knights of Labor were proposing, and he refrained from excommunicating them.

Bishop Richard bears no resemblance to Bishop Gib- good, and he refused all support to the author of Notre-Dame of Lourdes. The interview between the prelate and the writer was epic, and it's impossible not to burst out laughing when Lasserre tells it to you and you mime it times.

Bishop Richard welcomed Henri Lasserre with this smile which is peculiar to him, that zigzagging and fake smile that Everyone knows. Lasserre reminded him of the long 'years he had devoted to his work and prudence with whom he had sought advice before anything publish.

– That's not it. You don't understand. You

304 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

You had too many articles. There was, in particular, one article from Mr. Cornély...

– Your Eminence, I cannot prevent people from talking of my books, and even that people speak well of them.

– I know... I know very well how it's done. The authors themselves write the articles on Their books. Mr. Cornély's article.

– Your Eminence, Mr. Cornély has been in the press since for many years; he doesn't need me to do his items.

– I know... I know.

– In any case, it's not because Mr. Cornély au- would have deemed it appropriate to publish a favorable article on the Gospels that I think deserve to be banned. The opinion Priests of Saint-Sulpice who decided Your Eminence to grant me the imprimatur...

— I know, I know. It's the authors who do it—even their articles about their books... It was in the Morning, Mr. Cornély's article...

:_ Never Lasserre, who is, along with Daudet, the most mer-an old talker I know who would give ideas to stones, could not draw anything else from this bi-A strange interlocutor. When he became too insistent,
The other one took to rages like a bishop against the weak, of these old woman's rages rising up against a orphan girl who serves as his servant and who is at his complete discretion.

It was in one of these fits of anger that Bishop Darboy opened up blia even went so far as to blow out a blind old man, a real Saint, Bishop de Ségur.

The archbishopric tried to deny this fact, but the Sister of Bishop de Ségur, the Viscountess de Pitray, While gasping a little, it did not weaken, like so many Many men would have done it in her place; she had enough of it.
a sense of honor not to retract what his
Her brother had told her what she knew to be the truth.

This scene, which is perhaps one of the most moving—the vanities of that time, has nothing, moreover, but very human—

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 305

hand, very much in line with the psychological state I have as mentioned above. Bishop Darboy was the Grand Almoner, senator, favorite of the Court; he was probably coming out this that day at the Tuileries where he had just committed a new such baseness; he was furious with himself and, tou-days continued by the memory of Saint Athanasius, he took his revenge on the poor blind man.

Go visit a brave bishop who has just done his duty, to protest against an infamy of the government—In fact, you are sure to be given a wonderful welcome by a man whose conscience is satisfied, by a a man indulgent towards others, because he has been vera for himself... Enter a prelate's house at the moment where he has just written a dishonorable letter to a Théve-Whatever the net, you'll see how you're received.

I pity the poor country priest who will have to... sent to Bishop Larue's, at the moment he was coming down from the presidential pram; it will have been "inaugurated", as they say.

There are three men whom I greatly admire, and who with completely different natures, they resemble each other Surprisingly, in the sense that nothing affects them, that they continue to achieve what they believe is right with the obstinacy of gentle stubborn people, that the obstacles
They do not give up. These men are Henri Lasserre, Francis Laur and I.

Lasserre left his small estate in Périgord with his wife and daughter and headed for Rome.

There, for three months, he experienced all the sickening Tired of running around without results, utter humiliation constantly renewed approaches. He served as a toy to all those monsignors who so cordially hate this France, the France they live off, this France that sends thousands lions at Peter's Pence, while the dioceses Italians send ridiculous sums of money.

To speak to a prelate, the great French writer sometimes waited three hours, not even in a antechamber, but on a staircase. The prelate was there;

306 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Lasserre could hear him, through the door, saying to his domestique: "Say that I am not there and that you submits his thesis.

"I will wait for my lordship's return," he replied.
Lasserre, and he sat down on a step.

All these trials were for the Christian writer
These are all opportunities to sanctify oneself by accepting them without anger; he blessed them and offered them to God. "Rejoice-
"Let's go, my wife," he said to his courageous companion.
loincloth, when he returned to the Hôtel de la Minerve; at-
"Today, I waited three hours on a staircase!"

Lesserre had initially found a determined opponent mined in the secretary of the Congregation of India, but this rigid character, a Dominican named Sacchari disappeared just as he was about to be arrested at the series of countless scams committed, not to the detriment of Prince Orsini. Before his disappearance, he found a way to steal a pair of horses from a horse dealer; he chose two superb horses in declaring that he could only pay them by bank transfers monthly payments. The horse dealer agreed, delivered the horses and was in rapture for a few days. ;

He went everywhere, repeating: "I know something that even the best-informed in Rome are still unaware of. Father Sacchari is appointed cardinal, he has just come from—"To summon his crew."

The poor horse trader was left with nothing but his prognostics and he never saw his animals again.

The rapporteur of the Congregation was not absolutely... hostile to Lasserre, but it was difficult to get hold of it; to rest from the theoretical work—Logically, he would occasionally spend some time there time in the countryside with a pretty mistress, whom he passed herself off as her sister.

As for the president, Cardinal Schiaffino, he was entirely devoted to other matters and, tasked with organizing the exhibition—During the Vatican's Jubilee celebrations, he received discounts by the merchants who wanted to see their gifts well placed.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 307

In this land of goodwill, Lasserre could have He bought exactly what he wanted. That's the advice. that I had given him; but he refused, resigned to all the chores, finding it shameful to give argument for similar negotiations.

To encourage him to open his wallet, I told him I had recalled the anecdote that had been told to me by Count Riant, the learned member of the Institute who died there. two years old.

Count Riant was, as we know, involved in research on the Crusades, which was not meant to be offensive.

for the Papacy, since it was the Papacy that preached them. He needed a document that was located in the Archives. of the Vatican. These Archives, as we know, were opened at all, thanks to the very liberal initiative of Leo XIII; this was one of the first measures of his pontificate.

Count Riant therefore wrote to the archivist to have a copy of the document he needed.

The response was: "This is very serious! This cannot be..." This is a correspondence transaction; you must come to Rome.

Count Riant lived almost all year round in the can- your Ticino; he came to Rome, intending to spend a A day or two... Count Riant, a member of the Institute, the Riant family, the quintessential Catholic family involved in all the religious works of Paris. It seemed that all he had to do was show up.

As he was already a customer of the establishment and he had previously purchased a count's title, one does not He wasn't put on the stairs like Lasserre; he was allowed to enter the antechambers and he was left there station- to for a month.

After a month, Count Riant, discouraged and already Very ill, he said to himself: "I'm definitely not going to achieve anything. Let's go!

Once home, an idea came to him: he knew-

308 THE WILL OF AN ANTISENITOR

he knew in Rome a sordid little Jew who had sold him After reading a few books, he wrote to her: "See if he doesn't... Would it be possible to at least give me some information? about this play that I've never been able to see. I'll tell you again- I will compensate you for your trouble.

Three days later, Count Riant received the document Copied!

He asked the Jew what he owed him:

- Oh! Your Excellency, three louis will be well paid. I didn't have to do a thing... In Va- Tican, I'm at home. Ask me anything.

even more difficult.

Henri Lasserre finally had a joy. He was informed that he was going to be received in audience by the Pope! The len-tomorrow he was brought an invitation to attend with his family at the Holy Father's Mass, and this invitation to him caused a satisfaction that one can understand.

After Mass, the Holy Father remained for a few moments. in a room adjoining the sacristy. Those who have Those attending the Holy Sacrifice come to kneel before He and the Pope addressed a few words to them. Each proceeds to his place, and the one whose turn it is has sat down. at the end, waiting for the moment to kneel in turn.

After mass, Lasserre was informed and told:
"This is where you're going to find your audience."

You can imagine the despair of poor Lasserre. was there, for months, waiting for this hearing, sou-pirant after the opportunity to explain himself, having gathered in his head all the arguments intended to defend his work. Everything would come down to this furtive interview, to this exchange of banal words between two doors, of- An Englishman, who was standing and already waiting his turn.

Lasserre would have been lost if he hadn't been from the South, he he glanced anxiously at his wife and daughter kneeling beside him and, summoning his courage in two He stopped the Pope just as he was about to give him his hands. his blessing to dismiss him, and he began the story about his case; he explained that he had published a book which It had cost him fifteen years of work, he explained why He had come to Rome and the injustices he had suffered victim.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 309

The Englishman was still waiting his turn.

I have shown you the ugly side of these things; you must to see also the comforting side, the patch of blue sky that appears, lumen in cælo. Our ministers, who have not to focusing on just one department, they can't find a a minute of attention to give to those who come to them to talk about the most important matters; never Théve-

net did not deign to read the file of the unfortunate Borrás, that Marcou had handed it to him. For sure, that old fellow, in charge of the spiritual government of the entire world, overwhelmed by responsibilities and worries, it would have been excusable to forget what a French applicant had told him under certain conditions so ill-suited to fixing the memory of an interview. The Pope took an interest in this question with this astonishing his work ethic allows him to forget nothing. he had Lasserre's voluminous memoir read to him, and very probably the decision of the Congregation of the Zndezx will be reformed with a few purely minor corrections shape.

The very insignificance of these corrections, including None of them touch on the dogma, proving to what extent he would have It was easy for Bishop Richard to do what certain others would have done. tainment in his place a German or American bishop, and to defend the writer to whom he had given the printing press mature.

Some of the requested corrections are even very unhappy ones. Lasserre had written: "The "The mustard seed is the smallest of all." The Congregation- The Zndex entry requires that it include: "Mustard seed is the smallest of all seeds." Now, Lasserre rightly replies: "Jesus Christ never said that. It is enough, in fact, to go as I did to Vilmo- rin, and we will convince ourselves that there are three thousand plants whose seed is smaller than that of mustard; the seed eucalyptus, which reaches prodigious heights, is smaller than a mustard seed.

310 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Lasserre returned somewhat comforted, but-a new- A terrible ordeal awaited him upon his return. He had published a Month of Mary of Our Lady of Lourdes, and he had received a truly Charming.

Dear and esteemed friend,

You were kind enough to pay me: tribute from your New Month of Mary of Our Lady of Lourdes? ÉenHnenE you Shall I give thanks?

I have just finished reading the prayers that precede the Monthly exercises; I offer you in gratitude the sweet and This reading left me with a profound emotion.

In my priestly youth I read the Soliloquies of Saint Augustine. I cannot tell you with what vividness Reading yours brought back memories of those prayers to me. Soliloquies too; – both born of. same inspirations of the heart: so much so that, in you As I read, I thought I could hear the illustrious Doctor.

As for the episodes, I won't tell you anything about them. I've read them: We will read them in our chapel at the Bishop's Palace, every day. of the month of flowers. Here, it is the facts that pray, but even more so the heart that tells them.

My deepest respect to Madame Lasserre, and to you, dear and eminent friend, the assurance of my tender devotion in Our Lord.

Nicolas Joseru,
Bishop of Périgueux and Sarlat.

The author of Our Lady of Lourdes was in the process to reread this letter when an order reached him– Bishop Perraud's statement that it was inappropriate New Month of Mary, as declared by the Bishop of Périgueux had compared it to the Soliloquy of Saint Augustine and which defended reading in the diocese of Autun.

I do not know Bishop Perraud personally.
but I like him very much because he wrote the life > of

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 311

my cousin Cambier–Drumont, who died a missionary in China. I had this booklet carefully bound and I have placed in a special library with all the books which remind me of some precious memory in my heart. It must be admitted, however, that the Bishop of Autun has acted in this circumstance in a completely inco– heresy. If he had wanted to exercise his apostolic zeal, Bishop Perraud only had to look around him at the Academy to find people who are professors of immorality and corruption. I won't say not: that he should go so far as to sing the rondeau himself Métella. Or to hum upon entering the session:

Tell me, Venus, what pleasure do you find
To cause my virtue to collapse in this way?
Cascade
Cascade
My virtue?

What is certain is that he lives in good intellectual fashion.
agency with all the low-level clowns to whom We owe this literature and that it AEPIDUS of the prizes
. of virtue with them.

Bishop Perraud is perfectly aware of the disgusting role that...
Zola made him play a vile character that he
It was deemed appropriate to bestow upon it the name of Jesus Christ.
If Zola is elected, which cannot be long now, Bishop Perraud will not have the dignity of Bishop Dupanloup who, in a On a much less serious occasion, he left the Institute and this prelate who, every day, offers the Holy Sacrifice in the name of Jesus Christ, will perfectly agree to sit down at on the side of the writer who insulted Jesus Christ in such a way 'filthy way' that it is difficult to recall; he _träitera. of "dear colleague" as big as your arm!
Honestly, even when you have the purple belt.
floating, it is truly unique to reserve its public stigmatization of Catholics like Lasserrewho write about the Months of Mary.

$

312 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

It's the same old story again. The enne-
Members of Christian society have all the joys.

On the morning of an execution like that of this scoundrel of the 19-year-old who was guillotined last year at La Roquette prison, Gréard can be satisfied with his work. When he thinks to this van which is leaking a few drops of blood while crossing early morning Paris to go to Turnip Field carrying the corpse of a kid who

With his head between his legs, he might say to himself: "They will Okay, my little secularists, and the law on education atheist, to which I have worked more than anyone else, wears Definitely good fruit. That doesn't stop Mr. from Broglie, who is one of the leaders of the Catholic party, of having received me himself at the Institute and having told me that I was famous. Meanwhile, the writers who defended the God in whom Mr. de Broglie believes starve to death searching for rehearsals they don't They can't find it, or they work in low-paying jobs. encyclopedias.

Léon Say, who, as Minister of Finance, delivered the French bank owned by German Jews and ruined 40,000 families to serve the interests of the Rothschilds, sees the hand of the same Duke of Broglie, whose son almost lost some of his honor in the General Union catastrophe.

Ludovic Halévy and Meilhac mocked the army as long as they could; upon entering the Institute, they find soldiers in formation, drums beating, and a an officer saluting them with his sword.

Bourget and Maupassant can already look at each other as from the Institute. One of them told us at length why M^r. de Tillières, who loved Poyame, could He sat with Cazal; the other one tried to make us to understand why André Mérielles, who had some pleasure in sleeping with a young girl from Fontainebleau he was abandoning her for Mr. de Burne, with whom he had previously lying down.

I'm not fussy, and I remember that

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 313

Shakespeare said in Love's Labour's Lost: "He All men must love a woman. "Or a Jeanneton." I couldn't ask for anything better. than to see Bourget and Maupassant as academicians. I I would only like these skilled psychologists to... explain, in a lovely study, why these Per- Raud, these Broglie, these d'Haussonville, these Vogué, these Simon, these Mézières, some of whom practice, while others speak incessantly of "the great "Moral laws necessary for any society," they always vote for people whose work is a perpetual call to Lust. What does this bishop have to do with any of this?

Why are they all playing this charade? Like the the public worship that antiquity paid to Venus was more honest in its naturalistic sincerity, all these Hypocrisies!

One could, at a stretch, understand if Catholics were to mix with those people to push us and our ideas, that they seek to seize the fortress to let friends in. It's a system like another one who succeeded for schools and for men who, twenty years ago, made the crowd explode to laugh. Through sheer persistence, Proust finally managed to put Manet at the Champ-de-Mars and he almost put it there at the Louvre. Once at the Institute, Zola will bring little to Almost all those who stir up manure. It's his aesthetic-He's right about that man.

It is certain that in the eight years he has been at the Academy-
My friend, Bishop Perraud could have made a speech A fine tribute to a writer like Henri Lasserre; he... could have said to all these purveyors of debauchery who strutting under the dome, all these ro- makers obscene or lewd operettas: "There are no than you in the world; there are great writers who con-
"They lift up the souls you bring low."

Catholic leaders are careful not to act in this way.
Far from thinking that they are honoring infinitely too much
By mingling with that world, they believe themselves honored to be there to be. As soon as they were admitted into this ambiguous environment where, alongside some good people, one encounters corrupt financiers, corrupt ministers,

18

314 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

These bedroom writers believe they have grown up; they They blush at us like poor relatives, they they look at them like they're nothing at all and they don't care-They only want us to harm us (1). When They, like Bishop Perraud, flirted and flirted a great deal.
We exchanged pleasantries and greetings with...
Insulting the Church, they say to themselves: "Hey! What if I went Should I shake up my Catholic writer brother a little? If I al-
"Would you like to kick my servant?"

The story of the misadventures of Catholics who wanted to get involved in defending the Church.

What episode, from this point of view, is the founding of... tion of the Journal de Rome! The founders, to obey at the Pope's mere wish, they give their money, their time, their intelligence, their work for a company a catch that cannot bring them any serious benefit.
They forget what Antonelli said about journalists Catholics.

Full of innocence, these naive people set to work by imagining that all Italian Catholics will to help in their campaign in favor of the temporary power
"porel. Immediately, with an extraordinary ensemble-supporters of the Pope and supporters of the King recognize each other.
cilient on their backs like those natives of the islands of the Probes that temporarily suspend their battles between tribes to eat together the unfortunate

(1) Henri Lasserre was, this time, less patient than usual.
Under this title: Self-defense: letter to His Grace Myr the Bishop
From Autun, he wrote a small masterpiece of irony and verve.
Never was a beating administered in a more masterful manner way. He had his brochure printed and sent it to Bishop Per-Raud; he gave me a copy and, at the last minute, he hesitated and did not put Self-Defense into commercial use.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 315

shipwrecked, cast ashore by the storm on their inhospitable shorealier.

As soon as they smelled money, all the struggle for Vatican disseminators cling to themselves like octopuses
These French people are full of illusions, and they make you pay dearly.
gold in the Papacy's newspaper the slightest piece of information lies about Roman affairs.

Galimberti, the current Nuncio in Vienna, demands a trai-considerable amount for articles he never makes-but he is incapable of doing so because he doesn't know a French word. Finally, he steals the subscriber list-born from the newspaper and founded a rival newspaper: the Montthe author of Rome, in which he accuses Mr. des Houx of all sorts of nasty deeds. After more than two After years and a half of patience, Mr. des Houx gets angry and he wrote: "It is time for these infamies to cease, their

The author is Mr. Galimberti." He receives the wrath of the
The Vatican and L'Osservatore Romano blame the newspaper from Rome for having dared to answer a prelate.

We were still being careful with the newspaper because of the money Father Franciscis, a stenographer, was not absent. from the Vatican, also finds a way to get himself given salary as a "theological consultant".
His first concern is to oppose the publication of a article which demonstrated the necessity of the pousee temporal!

"I cannot allow this article to be published," he said; "I am here to defend Italy and we don't want the pousee temporal.

The article still gets published. Father Franciscis submits his resignation and demands a substantial compensation dable. In court he presents himself by saying:
"Can an Italian allow an article to be inserted?" in which the dismemberment of the Fatherland is called for Italian? Naturally, the judges grant her everything.
what he is asking for.

A cardinal of admirable virtue, an ascetic, the Cardinal Pitra tries to take from an Am- newspaper

316 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

sterdam, the Amstelbode, the defense of the Journal de Rome.
All the schemers and cynics that the Pope brought in The people of Perugia heap insults and threats upon this old man to remove the purple from him.

In conclusion, Mr. des Houx was imprisoned by the Italians, disavowed by the Pope, attacked from all sides, is forced to leave. The Pope demands the disappearance of the Journal of Rome; to please some intri-wearing gloves from his entourage, he destroys a property that has cost 400,000 francs in sacrifices to French people who are who came to serve the persecuted Papacy.

All these facts, note that, are known to everyone;
Mr. des Houx recounted them in full, and I will tell you about them.
barely provides a light sketch as a note on the present time. No one would dare contradict me. One of my friends, who were victims of unspeakable practices favorites of the Vatican, lost a considerable sum found in this journal founded solely on the intention to serve the Pope's cause, according to the expressed desire Would it be more accurate to write, "parlui, sur un ordre de lui"? since I saw a letter from him recommending the day-national and signed by his own hand; this friend still has some documents; it's a small thing, but it must be added that these documents shed a completely new light on Roman life uplifting....

REFLECTIONS AND ADVICE

I hope that this study on the situation carried out in Catholic writers at the present time will have informed you- I drew some thoughts; that's at least the goal I I volunteered.

In any case, reading this work will have changed you- I read in my life 375 articles in which we learned about the world that this old lorence seller from Offenbach had composed of operettas with Ludovic Halévy and the Crémieux at Saint-Germain, at the Henri IV pavilion;

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 317

Albert Wolff regularly writes ten articles a year on this topic.

Let's see, Wolff, Prussian of the day before yesterday, Frenchman from yesterday and Knight of the Legion of Honour on top Let's settle this matter once and for all. It's about the market. It was in the Henri IV pavilion that Offenbach composed his Crossroads music?

- It's at the Henri IV pavilion, in Saint-Germain, at the very place where Louis XIV was born.

- This is extremely interesting. This German Did he say anything there?

- Yes, he told Zulma Bouffar: "Not the beine of Sing, my little child, I don't need us to sing My music: if I dared to have it sung, I would become to perform at the Grand Opera.

– And what did Zulma say? Wolff, don't tell us Don't hide anything about Zulma!

– Zulma! She was listening... She was drinking drunkenly everything that came from the maestro.

– Well! Wolff, now that this point of history–
The date is set, couldn't you let us– to be a little quiet with your compatriot Offenbach and go back to your job as a "customer of your– Bleaux?

It seems, in fact, and this is the first point I
I would like to point out to you, if you don't mind, that there is nothing in the world of thought outside Jewish actresses' love affairs and works of Jews, more or less Prussian. Thanks to his system of base oppression, to the shameless audacity with which She constantly returns to everything that affects her, to her obstinacy in speaking only of this, the Jewish community writes vanity, in agreement with the daubing and musical Jewry quante, managed to persuade us that all those whose fathers had not lived in ghettos were unworthy of attracting public attention.

It is therefore necessary, first of all, to shake off this tyrant–
Ouch, which is heavy and irritating at the same time, like all 18.

318 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the tyrannies of servants, and to convince you properly everything related to Catholic writers belongs to the history of the intellectual movement.

Having considered this first point, the other point to look at is this: Catholic writers are no more beasts than the sons of Iouddis. The greatest successes of
At that time, from a sales perspective, they were Our–
Our Lady of Lourdes and Jewish France. No work Victor Hugo's work has not been translated into thirty-eight languages.
like Our Lady of Lourdes.

As soon as we speak, the crowd rushes forward and we listen.

Unfortunately, far from glorifying themselves in glorifying Catholic writers, the great seilleaders, Conservative Party leaders, and even certain certain prelates who want to appear in the movement reserve their pleasantries for writers involved in prostitution. those who used their pens to corrupt the souls and demoralize the country. Too often, as well as As you may have noticed, the Catholic writer is overwhelmed with sorrows by those who should, at the con-milk, encourage and support him.

That one, an old man of seventy-two, is struck in the face, reportedly at the instigation of a bishop, and the archbishop of Paris is only concerned with excu-to identify the perpetrators of this attack. He sees this as a proscribed individual. a book deemed inappropriate by a bishop another bishop found it admirable.

Those are the lucky ones; they have known the Success, they are capable of defending themselves. I know that Bishop Perraud made a rather nasty face when he read Self-defense, Henri's vengeful pamphlet Lasserre. I imagine that after the observations a little green as I have been in the painful necessity of to address him in this book, Baron Reille reserves the right to... will now vote in the Tarn elections and abstain:
dra to get mixed up in Gros-Cailhou with things that don't concern him-
They don't keep them.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 319

What we should hear sighing are the faithe gentle, the tender souls, the men to whom We made them lose their jobs at the time of the decrees in promising to compensate them, and to whom no one has They never gave anything, the publicists who were there to support election campaigns and who were dismissed after like mercenaries, because, confident in the According to the Catholic leaders, they had not had the precautionary measures include requesting a treaty.

This explains why somewhat discerning people who don't are not hostile to the Church, but for whom the good-temporal time is not indifferent, they move away from a same party and, as they say, are pulling each other's legs out with an eagerness that I understand.

The duty of all beings of right conscience is So, to react against the influence, the almost pressure material effects that certain names exert on the brain constantly repeated, to take an interest in writers ca-Catholics, to the men of their race and their religion region, to create around them a kind of current of fraeternal sympathy and affectionate attention.

Perhaps it is already too late for the generation that entered life around 1870; for her, the die was cast
It is the Jewish press that dictates its fashions and vocabulary.
his enthusiasms and admirations, his ideas and his great men.

There is still time for the new generation of don't pick up these bad habits: she will already be very large, compared to the previous one, if she accompanies tumie to think for herself and especially not to routo be among his own.

The example set by those who came before her is meant to to educate this new generation. The Con-
The servants were ashamed of their brothers, the writers.

Catholics; they reserved their smiles for the gentlemen on the other side; today they serve as They are a laughingstock. Where are they? What are they intellectually?
Lying and politically? Poor dogs without masters

220 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

who smell the wind, suddenly dart into a They head back to the ct with their tails between their legs.
followed Boulanger to the sea which they could not cross to have surgery because there was too much water; today they sleep they were right behind Constans with the sad look of A stray dog says, "Take me with you, will you?"

HI THE CHURCH AND MONEY

Writers who know history too well. – Crisis of atony and the pusillanimity that the representatives of the Church are experiencing.
– Ritual murder, – The various stages of civilization. – The Human sacrifices in Dahomey. – The assassination of little Abd-el-Nour. – An archbishop who is afraid of the Jews. – Abbot Des-doors and Bishop Thomas. – Pitiful letters. – Killed by the Jews... – Yesterday and today. – Jewish shops and the Con-Groupings. – The Blessing Sisters of Lille. – A merchant which is not content. – Public opinion since the decrees.

– The Catholic World and Money. – The Capitulations of conscience. – The suicides of distinction. – The priest and the doctor. – The Blessed Sacrament removed for one hundred thousand francs.
– To Saint-Philippe-du-Roule and Notre-Dame. – The Abbot Frémont and Abbot Le Nordez.

One of the causes of the hostility that the members in-Fluent members of the clergy bear witness to Catholic writers,
This is our knowledge of Church history.
history, we find all the pages of it as well They're beautiful, and we don't want to tear any of them. That inconvenience for accommodations, small arrangements ments, dinners out.

We couldn't ask for anything better than to admire the A liberal Dominican, a supporter of modern ideas, but we cannot forget that the Dominicans of Spain
They were ardent patriots, patriots in our own way.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 321

and that, to save their country, they did not hesitate to eliminate all the Jews who wanted to surrender Spain to the enemy and exploit the poor people to enrich themselves at his own expense.

At the beginning of this century, it was still being shown
In Seville's main square, the cobblestones were blackened, literally charred by the flames of the pyres that had been erected there for centuries. For three hundred years, the mulassembled titudes had been able to glimpse there, at certain days, draped in their white robes, Spaniards at the proud and energetic figure, which was not specifiedtenderly towards those whom Father Didon calls "the "Great Semites."

Many of these Dominicans, Saint Dominic in head, having been canonized, it follows that there is nothing of better things to do than imitate their manly virtues and to deto split like them our Heritage, our Homeland and our race.

One of the most pressing issues right now currently some clergymen eager to put themselves
The issue of ritual murder, of the good relations with Israel, is the question of ritual blood crime.

The fact of the murder of Christian children by the Jews is a fact as obvious as daylight.

It's a kind of monomania that perhaps affects more to physiology than to religious history, a a kind of ethnic neurosis, one of the most striking manifestations of atavism reviving, in the Jew proscribed throughout the earth, the voluptuousness of blood proper to Semitic, the taste for these human sacrifices that the Pro-
The phetas had so much trouble destroying in ancient Israel.

It has never been claimed that the Mosaic religion ordered these murders; it has, however, been demonstrated in the most indisputable way that ritual assassination was a constant practice among the Jews of the Middle Ages and that in countries where the Jew is still in a na-
These crimes are constantly being repeated.

322 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

We all talked, listening to the Lautars at the Exhibition, with Romanians who were raised in Paris, who are just as Parisian as we are and who each year, at the time of the Jewish Passover, note murders of this kind, committed on their land, almost right before their eyes. I have countless testimonies of owners in Poland and Galicia on this matter.

The Sisters of Charity who lived in the East tell their story all of them, powerless to prevent these crimes or to to obtain repression when they have been committed, they ensure that the children in their care do not do not leave them at the time of Passover.

Religious figures have told me about these events twenty times.
like when talking at home, without hesitation.

Despite the silence of the French press, almost everything the whole was sold to Israel, all of Europe read the letter na-the mother of little Abd-el-Nour, murdered by the Jews of Damascus last April; all the
The world heard the heart-wrenching appeal addressed to France

by a mother who was demanding justice and who did not meet that indifference in this country, once so quick to to be passionate about any noble cause.

The author of The Mystery of Blood, our courageous friend Abbot Desportes published in October under this Title: Killed by the Jews, Story of a Ritual Murder a remarkable brochure that traces in all its details of the assassination of the unfortunate Abd-el-Nour and who not a single one of the accumulated lies remains standing by the Jews on this subject.

The past is full of such stories. The chronicles, the memorial monuments, church stained-glass windows, the Archival documents, judicial records, all the elements of information, in short, with which one writes History attests to the slightest peculiarities of these crimes. If it were necessary to deny such abundant facts If proven, one would have to deny all historical facts that do not have been transmitted to us only through ana- testimonies loges. There isn't a single student from the École des Chartes who don't have their hands full of evidence of the existence of this monstrous superstition which was in an endemic state mic among the Jews of the Middle Ages.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 323

As for the Church, it cannot have any hesitation on this point; she has placed among the Saints or the Blessed- some of these child victims of the Jewish ferocity; she assigned a day to celebrate their celebration and the Bollandists dedicated long pages. There can therefore be no doubt about these crimes, especially considering the rigorous investigations that precede them the canonization processes and the guarantees that Rome He surrounds himself with experts before making any decisions on these points.

To cite just one testimony among so many thousands bound by documents, the brief of Pope Benedict XIV is formal on this point. Benedict XIV did not write, however- dant, in the night of the Middle Ages, since it is agreed to contemporary onlookers that he never did of the sun before 1789, this holy pontiff lived in the tenth- eighth century, and its brief is from 1755.

If our clergy had a taste for these strong and beautiful studies that did not frighten the monks of old, if had the courage of truth as was the case in the past, Never was there a more favorable opportunity for him to use current medical research and to show how many, as with hypnotism, they confirm and explain the misunderstood facts of past history and to what extent they justify everything the Church has done.

As the universe expands, we can, in Indeed, to contemplate them as they were thousands of years ago years the primitive states of humanity and embrace as in a synoptic table the stages of evolution human evolution. While some elders of the family through sheer progress they touch upon senility, that is to say In their second childhood, the younger children have barely emerged from the first... Early childhood. Many eat their own kind. as in the early days of the world and still are to cannibalism, which is the rudimentary form of struggle-life, the first level of a scale whose companies from Erlanger, Bischoffsheim or Rothschild represents the pinnacle.

324 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

In the Jew who is very old and whose race has preserved almost intact, you will find simultaneously, by simply changing countries, different states. Alongside the Israelite steeped in literature, who by some aspects, more superficial than real, it seems to personify the extreme refinement of civilization, you can still see the Semite molo- in operation Schiste. You encounter sacrifices in Dahomey humans as celebrated by the priests of Baal on the high places and, in all likelihood, these Fetish-choirs of King Béhanzin who water the festivals with blood The Great Custom, are Jewish Semites (1), of Mathan, any kind, priests of the king.

East of Grand-Popo, says Mr. Elysée Reclus, begins the territory of Dahomey, kept at a short distance from the entered through the considerable town of Gléhoué, which the Europeans have been designated by the various names of Fida, Hwedah, Whydah, Ouidah: ancient authors called it Judah; its inhabitants they were called the Jews and they were indeed considered as a remnant of the scattered tribes of Israel; to the north the the Allala river, whose real name is Efra, had become the Euphrates for scholars (2).

From another point of view, the theory of evolution of neuroses perfectly explain the persistence of this Molochist madness in some countries and its disappearance in others. The change of environment is the great healer of neurosis; also, among the Jews of America

(1) This explains the efforts made by the government current plan to seize this country which has no interest for us. The Jews of Paris want to re-establish the link between themselves and their brothers over there, and that's why our infantry soldiers The marine crew will die like flies on this coast Damn it.

(2) Elysée Reclus: Universal Geography, Volume XII.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 325

risk, who are in completely unsafe living conditions renewed, we never hear of any acts of this genre. In the East, on the contrary, in Romania, in Galicia, where Jews have lived for centuries on the others, where the hereditary ferments, the germs symptoms of this dreadful monomania are in the incubation stage. These acts are constant, occurring at every moment.

We'll never know what those stories cost.
money and lobbying of influential Jews in Europe;
They must be furious at certain times, no matter what.
They always intervene, as with the assassination of Father Thomas, or the Tisza-Ezlar affair. They pay the fund-Austrian, Romanian or Turkish tionary; they pay the Judges, they pay false witnesses, they pay the press from Paris who insult the victims; they pay for everything.

We can see that there are elements here of a very laughing for a clergyman who had leisure time.

In any case, ask a Catholic priest to Denying the existence of ritual murder is quite simple-asking him to acknowledge that the Church, in its beatitude describing the unfortunate little children slaughtered by the Jews, have engaged in the most odious of impostures, that she cynically exploited the credulity of peoples.

The Jews, who shrink from no impudence, had the audacity to solicit this confession from certain prelates degrading.

Bishop Thomas, Archbishop of Rouen, gave in this circumstance, a new proof of this servility which crosses all boundaries.

The author of The Mystery of Blood was finishing his studies at the major seminary, when he was summoned, by the archbishop, or to renounce his book, or to leave immediately the seminar.

The archbishop, mind you, had absolutely no—no reproach could be made to the young seminarian; he had He hadn't read the book, he knew nothing about its contents, he

149

326 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

He only knew the subject. It was under these conditions that tions that, in the hope of being named cardinal, for to pay court to the Jew Hendlé, prefect of the Seine-Inférieure laughing, to pay court to the Jews, to pay court He didn't hesitate to ruin everyone's career of a man aspiring to the priesthood. God had called a young man his own man; he had given him the calling, and the archbishop, who should have been the spiritual father of this young man man, his protector against the enemies of the Church, rejected him from the sanctuary.

Bishop Thomas didn't even bother to hide the motives that drove him to act, he said verbatim to young abbot: "The Jews are a very unkind people—They are small, but they are terribly powerful and I don't "I don't want to do business with them."

Don't fear that the Archbishop of Rouen has held there. The poor abbot left the seminary in Rouen, took a tutorship and also took refuge in a another diocese... The vocation was obvious, the conduct irreproachable; the Bishop of Amiens understood his duty, welcomed Father Desportes and called him to the subdiaconate for last Christmas's ordination.

What do you think Bishop Thomas did? He only had to leave this young man alone, he was no longer dependent of him. He had the sad courage, to please Hendlé, to pursue this unfortunate man: he sent the former superior—laughing at the Rouen seminary, intrigued near the bishop from Amiens to persuade him to drive out the one to whom he had given asylum. The city of Amiens did not want to sell. :

Bishop Thomas then devised another expedient. The

'banns of the subdiaconate which is like the marriage of the Priests, in accordance with the Church, must, as we know, be published in the town where the future subdeacon was born. The arch—The Bishop of Rouen forbade the priest of Yebleron to paroisse inhabited by the parents of Abbot Desportes, of proclaim the banns!

Note that the cardinal had no kind of

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 327

right to act in this way, since he no longer possessed authority on Abbot Desportes. The parish priest of Yebleron nevertheless had to They must obey, under penalty of being persecuted themselves.

The spectacle of this prince of the Church hunting down a young priest to satisfy the hatred of a Jewish prefect is one of the most repugnant facts of that era. He probably won't strike the leaders of the Catholic party—lic; they are in advance for the prelate who lives in a palace against the humble seminarian whose entire fortune It fits in a suitcase. All the villainy seems to them natural and we have not forgotten the baseness of soul of the Duchess of Chartres going to pay her respects to Hendlé's wife, at the moment when the duke came to be expelled from the army. True Christians, at the con—milking, those who, in the words of Louis Veuillot, those who know something about Jesus Christ will experience a A feeling of poignant sadness upon seeing where things stand The French episcopate has fallen.

This is yet another "fin de siècle" prelate showing off here entirely with an almost naive unconsciousness, and one 'is happy to be able to compare this pusillanimous the courageous letter written to the persecuted by Bishop Trégaro of Séez, who, as we have seen, has not always been so inspired:

Séez, March 7, 1890.

Dear sir, |

I read your work carefully and with great interest.
entitled The Mystery of Blood among Jews of All Times. Ge
The book is undeniably relevant and capable of opening up the eyes to a large number of blind people, more or less voluntarily-silence. It will give rise to sad reflections in many hearts.
on the role played by so many Catholics today.
May he open their eyes!

Please accept, dear sir, the assurance of my devotion.

François MARIE,
Bishop of Séez.

328 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

After this partial success in France, the Jews considered operating in England.

At the time of the appearance of the Mystery of Blood, the
The chief rabbi of London, Adler, dared to write to the cardinal Manning to ask him to declare that the Jews did not had never been guilty of ritual murders following which the little martyred children had were canonized.

Cardinal Manning is 82 years old; in a life that was fruitful and glorious, he worked hard enough to have the right to aspire to rest, and madam! in her capacity as ar-Bishop of Westminster, he slipped away quietly.

He wrote to the one he called: "My dear rabbi Adler » a cottony and vague letter in which he protested that he had "no sympathy for" such horrors." Did he lack sympathy for those who commit the horrors or for those who What are they telling us? We tried turning the letter inside out.
As for the senses, it was impossible to derive anything from them. As well as I explained it to you in a previous chapter, the

The word "sympathy" (1) is used for everything: sun patheo,
I feel with it.

(1) This is not about sympathy or antipathy, it is about to know if the facts related by Abbé Desportes according to the Bolland-
The writings of ecclesiastical authors and other writers are true or false, if it is
It is true that the Jews slaughtered Christian children in hatred of the Christ and that, after a rigorous examination, these children were canonized endorsed by Popes.

Pope Benedict XIV's brief is unequivocal on this point. After having rappe:é the name of various martyrs of the Molochist sacrifice, that he
It would be too long to list them all, after having noted what information-he surrounded himself with people to authorize the public worship of one of these little martyrs, he adds:

V.- By acting in this way, we have only followed the model left to us by our predecessor, Sixtus V.

In the year 1485, a child from Trento, who had not yet reached
At the age of three, the blessed Simon was killed by Jews along with the
The latest act of barbarity. This appalling crime has provoked numerous and very great disturbances, and the Jews, for their part, having used all the means to avoid the punishments they deserved and escape from The righteous anger of the Christians, Sixtus IV judged he could not dispense with

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 329

"Dear Rabbi Adler" was not pleased and there was cries of fury among all those London Jews, including an issue of Graphic, which is very valuable to consult. gave us one day the curious physiognomies in grouping, in a striking drawing, all these heads of caimans and lynxes, otherwise ferocious and hateful than those of our Jews in Paris.

The "dear rabbi" had the audacity to challenge us again-Cardinal Manning's calf regarding a letter that the Cardinal Rampolla had addressed the author of the Mystery blood, and the excellent Cardinal Manning pushed the con-descendants, eventually passing it on to Cardinal Rampolla the letter from the "dear rabbi".

Cardinal Rampolla would only have had to reply truth and to recall the date of the beatification decrees
From the little martyrs of Israel, he gave birth to a letter Italian, that is to say, a masterpiece of obsequiousness and of deceit; he apologized without apologizing and said Not a word about the question itself. Cardinal Manning transmitted this piece to Adler in a letter which was designed as follows:

Dear Rabbi Adler,

I sent your letter to Rome and it was officially communicated to the Secretary of State, Cardinal Rampolla.

to intervene personally and forbade continuing to honor the blessed Simon of a public cult, until it had been clearly recognized that he had been slaughtered by Jews out of hatred for the Christian faith.

We have inserted this brief from Si Sixte IV in our work: On the Canonization (Book 1, chap. xlv, no. 4).

But, subsequently, the light having been made full and complete and the evidence leaving no doubt, both about the death and about the the reason for which it had been given, and the certainty being acquired that the murderers were Jews – as is evident from the trial which is still preserved now in the secret archives of Saint- Castle Angel, – all things which we have related in our work: From the Canonization (Vol. III, chap. xv, no. 6), the Sovereign Pontiff Sixtus V, in In the year 1588, a brief was issued to authorize the celebration of Mass and of the proper office, to be recited on a specific day in the city and throughout the diocese of Trent, in honor of the blessed Simon, with indulgence plenary session for all those who, having confessed and received communion, visit- would visit the church that day in which his relics are venerated...

* *

330 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The answer is "that the Pope ordered the letter to be written customary – which acknowledges receipt of the books, without recommending them to send a letter – to the author of the book you are complaining about. That is the purely formal letter that is sent to everyone before that the book is examined and often even before it "not to be read."

Nothing could be further from the Pope's mind than the idea of gratuitously hurting the sensibilities of the people Jewish.

Believe me, your faithful servant,
(Signed): Henry E.

Cardinal-Archbishop.

At the time the brochure appeared: Killed by of the Jews, Abbot Desportes addressed to Cardinal Ram-Polla, the beautiful and touching letter that we are about to read:

Your Grace,

I had the honor of addressing Your Eminence yesterday two copies of the brochure I just published: Killed by the Jews. I tell the story of a horrible ambush in which the Human justice has not yet exacted revenge despite the evidence of the most obvious guilt. It belongs to the European powers, and especially the Church, which formerly canonized the innocent victims of the Synagogue, to elevate the vix and to demand that justice be done for the poor mother.

I request Your Eminence to deposit a copy at feet of the Holy Father. I offer it to His Holiness as a submissive son and devoted. I have no doubt that the great Leo XIII, the Saint and The Just One, bless my work, and do not ask, he too, shedding light on this murky affair.

He is a child of the Church who is said to have been martyred.
ridiculed for our faith. Is it not the duty of the Church to know the truth and to demand that the Turkish authorities do An investigation? The Italian government did it, the government-
The English have done it: the Church cannot remain behind, cannot can do less than an excommunicated person and a heretic for one of his children.

I have suffered greatly, I, a simple, unknown clerk, I
I am exposed to exile and poverty for proclaiming the igno-

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 331

mini one of the worst enemies of Christianity. I will be largely Paid for my efforts, may the Holy Father deign to bless my work and myself.

Please accept, etc.

Cardinal Rampolla replied with the following letter:
sells: |

Sir,

I received your letter of October 29th, and the two copies of the booklet you mentioned. You have taken care to place one in the revered hands of the Holy Father. I am pleased to inform you that His Holy-Tété gratefully received your filial tribute and that From the bottom of her heart she sends you her apostolic blessing.

Now that you realize all of this, I thank you.
eagerly awaiting the copy intended for me and with sentiments-
With the utmost respect and consideration, I declare myself, Sir,

Your devoted servant,
Mr. Card. RamPoLca.
Rome, October 31, 1890.

This time, the Jews will not be able to claim that the Cardinal Rampolla was unaware of what it was about and that he sent a simple acknowledgment of receipt as a courtesy.

Decision of the French archbishop, letter from the archbishop English, a letter from the Roman Secretary of State, all of that, Isn't it true, it awakens in us the idea of an extraordinary Pair of cowards?

I understand that such a spectacle must be inspiring.
Some pride in these great Jews of the capitals whose fathers languished in the squalor of ghettos and who, now, masters of the world, have subjugated riel, see the Church itself retreating before them.

"What," they say to themselves, "is this the Church to whom God..." gave power to bind and to loose on earth and in heaven, this Church which claims to be the custodian of the Veimmutable truth that speaks to Time in the name of Eternity
nity!

332 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

"Now she no longer dares to admit what she used to say."

formerly in such a solemn manner. She seems ashamed. now the Saints whom she once designated for worship faithful followers and, if she does not completely disown them, she relegates to a corner like saints who have ceased to please.

"In past centuries, she was not afraid to stir emotions" the crowds with pilgrimages to the tomb of these children martyrs, she paraded their bones through the cities.

"The Jew, then, was the pariah, the despised and re-urged on by all, and thus proclaimed through homage It was revealed to the victims that crimes had been committed. it was, in many circumstances, not only to devote the executioners, but their brothers in the massacre and the death. The Church's only excuse for acting this way, It was about believing that these crimes were real.

"Today, the highest dignitaries of the Church they stammer gloomily when placed at the foot of the wall and protest that they do not intend to hurt "the "Sensitivities" of the Jews. What was needed to motivate such a change of attitude, to bring the Church to admit that the children of Israel had the right to have "Sensitivities"? It took the Jews to triumphant, let them have the millions and the castles, let them whether they be barons, ministers, or lord mayors.

I understand the kind of ironic sadness, the dis-bitter enchantment that I observed while talking with some Jews of the high order, the disgust with which they are seized in the midst of this victory which shows them the nothingness of everything, kneeling before the gold of authorities who teach in the name of God himself.

They are mistaken, however, in imagining that it is the Church that lowers itself in this way.

No, it's not the Church, it's men; it's an old man crushed by a gigantic amount of labor and who wants to die in peace, he is an oblique Italian and re-Tors, he is a prelate consumed by the desire for the purple.

The Jews understood this well. Following these incidents

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 333

teeth, they had thought of getting them given by the Pope a patent of innocence, a solemn certificate of good conduct.

They want, says the Magdeburg Jewish Weekly, to ask—der to the Pope for wanting to nullify, by a docu—in public, the accusation often leveled against the Jews of to engage in bloody sacrifices in their religious practices gieuses.

In the first part of their petition, the authors... relying on the testimonies of leading figures in the clergy, since the Church Fathers up to the present day, who declare that This accusation is an abominable slander. They are requesting then the Sovereign Pontiff formally declared that nothing, neither in Jewish rites nor practices, has—allows us to believe in these human sacrifices, the existence of which supposes This question has caused so many innocent victims in some countries. poorly lit.

The petitioners express the hope that Leo XIII will not will not refuse to comply with this urgent and good prayer founded in the name of truth, justice and humanity.

The Jews did not dare to take this step and those of their friends who know Rome have Wisely dissuaded. This time they would have found no plus corruptible men and accessible to all covetousness, but the Church itself. The monsignors would have, for a price, promised everything that had wanted, the Press would have announced in advance the re—As a result, he then supposedly met a "white soul". as they say in Rome, who would have drawn from the Archives the file of the canonization process of the little martyrs and The Papacy reportedly replied: Non possumus.

What reason could the high clergy have to make themselves So, the complacent Jews? What advantages even Is it there? We've searched high and low, but we can't understand.

This submission occurs in all forms. I've already spoken about the Jews who had almost mono—polished the trade in sacred objects; what one It will be hard to believe, because in most cities provincial Congregations and most Catholics—Influential groups, following their example, only supply themselves in Jewish shops.

One cannot imagine the harm the clergy has done to itself.
Thus. There existed an intermediate class of brave men.
People of old French stock, not bigots anymore.
but Catholics as they are French, in the marrows. These people had no hatred for the priest, They welcomed the begging Sisters and gave them—they willingly gave their small contribution.

The Congregations have managed to alienate this good world, to annoy him, to exasperate him with the contempt that one made of him, while all the preferences were reserved—rences for Jews who suddenly arrived from Germany Magne to conduct both trade and espionage swimming.

In Nantes, it's a slogan imposed on Catholics—schemes to buy only from Jews.

A Catholic from Nantes wrote to me: "It was a joy for me to give to the Sisters; I decided to give them to throw out, very politely no doubt, but very firmly... I told them: "It is now a "My principle is, I don't want my money
"out of my pocket to go into that of the Jews."
"When you need us, you know our "address, but when it comes to shopping, you don't"
"You don't remember anymore; I've had enough."

The Lüllois (1) published the letter of a very merchant rightly indignant, which forms a genre painting entirely Done. We see each character in action: the Christian who hands over his offering and politely leads the Sisters all the way to the door, and the Sisters turned their backs on her to to take his money to the Jew.

Here, in fact, is that story:

Recently, two nuns came to ask for my

(1) Lillois, January 25, 1891.

a small donation for a charitable cause worthy of the greatest interest.

I gave them ten francs and accompanied them when they they withdrew, all the way to the door.

Imagine my surprise when I saw them as I was leaving at my place, crossing the street and going into a shop where the Jews, under the pretext of liquidation, had made a great deal of packing of all kinds of goods.

Rightly intrigued and indignant that the money of the Catholics-liques was going to enter the stock market of these pons chuifs so as not to Unable to leave, I followed the two sisters with my eyes and observed their looks.

Naturally, the Jews welcome those who pros-to perish their gloomy bed, the Catholics and the nuns Above all.

They made many purchases, and I saw them acquire at good prices for the lingerie items that I was selling myself.

Yes, I sold them myself at the same price as those Jews.
and my goods were not on sale.

So, with my money, the money of a Catholic, of The nuns had been robbed by Jews, right under my nose.
merchant!

Well! I assure you I regretted my money, I-I would have preferred to be twice as generous and serve them
They can buy the items they purchased for free in my shop.
For the Jews, the benefit would have been for their poor.

That's insane!

Well, what these two nuns did, all the Catholics-
They do it.

. + ...

If this fact were disputed, I could name names.
Mr. L'*, the merchant so justifiably outraged by pareils processus.

As for the Jew, he employs very generously, to the point
From the Synagogue's point of view, the money he earns the Sisters, and he is among the donors of the Community Jewish community of Lille; he is a natural Freemason.
ment; he was initiated, in June 1885, into the lodge
The Awakening of the North.

In Lille, moreover, it's a habit and the large devout women would never buy anything even slightly expensive

336 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

that in the novelty shop that runs there—down there is a well-known Jew.

You can't say everything, or you risk being accused.
of exaggeration, but there are obviously traitors in the upper echelons of the Church, prelates affiliated with Back Lodges of Freemasonry which, with skill infinite, suggest to the clergy everything that, in the small things like in big matters, can harm him in the mind of all, to prevent the opinion from returning to him.

It is not natural, indeed, to be so clumsy than the clerical party. For ten years, the Congregations have ruined the best opportunity they could have never have. After the Decrees, they were not instill popular, but they had ceased to be unpopular lares; persecution had done them infinite good.

If the religious figures had known how to take advantage of the element which I mentioned earlier, if they had been interested in existence, work, and the concerns of all French people of the middle class, victims of the Jewish system, crushed seized by the department stores, if they had conducted a active campaign against the German Jew, they would have had quickly regained the lost ground.

This is how the monks of old acted, initiating closely associated with the lives of their contemporaries.
Modern monks have missed the opportunity. When A politician who has run out of options will demand expulsion definitive, following a scandal involving Freemasonry nothing will have been organized in a convent, the religious will not will no longer even find the movement of opinion that something happened in their favor ten years ago: "What

"What do you want us to do?" the less enthusiastic will say.
"Hostiles; they're a nuisance to us, in the end."

The triumph of Money embodied in the Jew has visicompletely removed all composure from a certain part of the the Catholic world, which is not the least active part health and the least disruptive. Faced with this establishment With a new strength, the Church seems, at times,

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 337

to lose her sense of self and forget her doctrines of yesteryear.

The roles are reversed now. It's no longer the Kabbalist, the Jewish alchemist who seeks the great work,
These are clerical figures who carry out conspiracies.
in order to find the secret of the famous Catholic Bank-the lique, which has been discussed for twenty years, the means to make gold out of nothing.

Serious financiers have long been aware of this.
on this subject and they know there's nothing to try, since the Rothschilds, possessing all the governmental power national, would immediately be strangled by their judiciary any establishment that would hinder them - as they did for the General Union.

An army of petty swindlers does not continue less inclined to follow the idea. There is a whole staff of Rastafarian financiers already compromised in Argentine or other affairs, of relatives of Nuncios, of Roman princes, some more authentic than others. The nephew or the Nuncio's cousin extorts a semi-approval-tion of any cardinal, is installed, like the the last one we saw at work, at the Hotel Bristol in the royal apartments, he spent six thousand francs there three weeks later, he had his bill paid by an old, devout woman.
and leaves Paris to go and fool people elsewhere.

There would be a very strange chapter to write about that;
I had started it, I threw it in the fire, because these sides of the Catholicism is really annoying.

What I simply wanted to highlight is this internal struggle for priestly power is very not-fascinating for those interested in the movement of ideas. No doubt because of what it represents of eternity, it re-will soon become aware of himself up there; but,

Because of his human nature, he is subject to the weather.
the base attractions of the moment, the influence of money.

The Rich Man, whether he takes the form of a Jew or a Christian, deceitful, he is clearly trying to tempt the high clergy, he goes to him, he he shrinks before him, he desires not to know that

338 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This gold, which the Jew gives him, is stained with human blood.
And when someone offers to teach him, he prefers not to be educated. When you talk to him about certain men, of catastrophes that have resonated throughout the world Completely, he feigns astonishment, he says: "Wouldn't it be Rumors that are being spread? I prefer to absolve and to marry without knowing anything; if I knew, I would be forced to talk of restitution and maybe they'd let me have my "Absolution on behalf of."

The high priesthood that wants to ignore how the rich people have lived, it also holds, in certain circles constants, not to learn how they died.
Suicide is the crime of crimes, it is the crime of Judas, the only one the Church declares damned because he has despairing of God's mercy. For centuries
In this regard, the Church refused religious honors to those who committed suicide.

Perhaps... but the service is first class.
The curtains have already arrived, and whether it's Archduke Rudolf, Prince Melissano, of Pas-
At Denfert-Rochereau, the Church capitulated; it grants his prayers to the speculator who killed himself with a With astonishing composure, she refuses them to a poor devil.
of an artist, harmless and good above all others, who succumbed in a duel. It is true that the artist had died without a and that canonical jurisprudence would change pro-probably if some big capitalist had the idea of to kill on the field.

In these instances, the high priesthood seeks a rethe one covering him and, without false shame, goes to ask-back to Science, which he had anathematized the day before, of lend him an umbrella, sign a piece of paper like a passport.

"Unhappy man! You deny free will, you preach-
You want to eliminate man's responsibility!
claim that, dominated by purely physical impulses
In music, he is not free to choose between Good and evil.
"Wow! That's abominable!"

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY: 339

The refrain changes in the case of a distinguished suicide.
Go find the doctor.

- What a disaster! Poor X no longer had Aware of his actions, isn't he?

- Him! He was magnificently cool-headed. He is died like a Roman, like Valerius Rufus who, before killing himself, he had gone to take a look at his a bonfire that was being erected in the park. He noticed that the flames rising would blacken the statues and damage-
They would eat the trees, and he had the pyre set up a
A little further on. X has settled all his affairs, he has been
To see his mistress before he died, he wrote a final... a letter of admirable lucidity. Moreover, there is a a year ago he told me of his intention to kill himself, if The venture he was counting on was not succeeding.
It's like me, I have an organic disease, in six years she will have reached her last period ct I will Like Bersot, I will lock myself in my room. warning a friend to come the next morning, and he told me will be found dead.

- How awful! How awful! It's that the fa-thousand ordered a first-class service and the
The grand organ. This absolutely must be fixed.

- What do you want, Father?

- The usual little slip of paper noting that this poor
X died in a bout of high fever.

- There you go. We'll tell the family about that.

- Thank you, dear master, if anything bad happens to you,
We will give you a splendid funeral.

- Not for that! If you were the men of your principles, if you remained true to what you declare were the laws of the Church, perhaps I would have been yours;

But you are merchants like any other, you bend all your rules when it suits your interests.
at stake and my corpse will go to the cemetery without prayers.

The next day, the bells rang out joyfully.
Funeral bells; the church is stretched taut from base to summit,
The chairs are draped in mourning, with their ornaments

340 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

black, the priest's chasuble stands out, with a solemn-sad unity that impresses even the most frivolous, under the countless candlelights.

The street is crowded with carriages. The guards of Peace makes the crowd line up. Sometimes, in a group, a old country priest with big shoes, with a so-worn tane, asks:

– What is it?

– Where are you from? It was Mr. X who committed suicide.
three days ago and the Church buried them with all his pumps.

Then the old priest thinks about what he was taught at seminary, to the traditions of the Church, to the inflexible rules benefits that were the same for the rich as for the poor. He is initially tempted to blame the laxity of our clergy and to say: "Ah! those Parisians!" Then He thought about it and told himself that his bishop would do the same.
and he remembers that he's already had it on his fingers for having wanted to conform to the teachings of the Church.

In this way, the priests of wealthy parishes did not they never stop and every day they deliver something Moreover, for a fee.

All of Paris was talking about the scandal that occurred at the... last spring on the occasion of the wedding of the son of a a prominent Jewish banker, with a young aristocratic girl cracy.

For the wider Catholic world, this was yet another date in the descent. Until then, the weddings of this
The order was preceded by the Jew's abjuration or:
Jewish, and the world, in its amiable skepticism, in his desire to always be happy, took the event On the right side. It was a market, no doubt, we knew that.

good, but, all in all, a tribute that was being paid to Catholicism.

The money taken from the Jews is money that comes in.

In that case, the marriage could be celebrated at the church. The Jewish Archives, which have brightened up, regarding this marriage, the ease with which the Catholic clergy... a way to bend canonical rules in the face of Banknotes explain the case very well.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 341

Since the nuptial blessing is considered by the Church to be a sacrament
In fact, the ecclesiastical authority previously required, from the part of the Jewish spouse, the prior conversion to Catholicism licism and it only consecrated the union if this formality, to which one does not easily resign oneself to, had been fulfilled.

Sometimes, without bending this rule that she considered as a matter of canon law, she authorized the priest, when one of the spouses belonged to Judaism and did not want to renounce it, to grant his pure and simple blessing without accompanying the usual rites, without Mass, not in the church, a consecrated place, but in the sacristy, neutral ground.

This time the large sum was given and the marriage
The marriage of a Catholic woman to a Jew who remained Jewish was celebrated.
no longer in the sacristy, but in the church itself which the Blessed Sacrament had been removed and that they had transformed in a synagogue for the occasion.

Without any tasteless ostentation, the Jews took deed of the bargain. A Jew well-known in fashionable Parisian circles He put the hat on his head.

"Excuse me, sir," the Swiss man said, "we're taking our eyes off each other."
in a church.

"I'm not in a church," he replied firmly.
He lies to the Jew without raising his voice.

kept his hat on his head for a few minutes to clearly mark the right that one of his own had paid and He then removed it, like a man who wished not to scandalize.

The Swiss man didn't mind; he was in rapture—and shouted to anyone who came by: "We need more laughter like that every day."

Disgust came to many at this spectacle, from before these priests so easily swayed by money and who made something that Popes wouldn't have done, in front of this poor woman

342 THE WILL OF A Doctor

Iphigenia, too, was a little girl from the aristocracy, no longer in Aulis but in Judea, married under conditions that were known. The priest was selling the house of God to the Jew, and the father gave his daughter to him.

It was a bit sickening, all the same, and, somewhat However accommodating it might be, the elegant world had, despite — his hypocrisy and his frivolity, like 'the feeling of a desecration; it seemed to him that he was witnessing a sacrilege. light and that it would not bring good luck to those who had been there.

The men, no doubt, were thinking that the matter was good, and yet some reminiscence of them returning from their early education, from their beliefs of yesteryear. Getting back into their coupe, the women they remembered the impressions of the convent, the fervor young people, the vigil held in turns before the Saint-Sacrament, the short prayer that sprang from the heart, so ardent and so spontaneous, in front of the statue of the Virgin which adorned the vestibule or the garden, the hours when the soul she had felt as if rapt in God... We talked about it by all for eight days.

As for the priest, since then he has become bizarre, a bit wacky; he seems astonished by what he He did. He received one hundred thousand francs, it is said; perhaps he regrets, like the magistrates who judged the last-denying the prosecution of the financiers, for not having asked more so. He has a point. At the price the Life, indeed, selling God for one hundred thousand francs However, it's really not paid.

Country priests are better than that.
But here's the thing... They're forbidden from talking about us, and we allows those who attack us to rage against we in the pulpit. How many times, after France
As a Jewish woman, when I was in Normandy, I heard...
Priests tell me: "If you only knew how much the language affects us itching to say a word to our flock about your work and your ideas, but the bishop would not want

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY | 343

"No." Abbot Frémont did not have this scruple and he devoted half a sermon to a scathing attack on the Jewish France.

It was in Saint-Philippe-du-Roule. All of them were there.
these little Jewish girls who divide their time between the Synagogue:
and the Church, daughters, wives or sisters of all the Jews Germans, stock market strategists, founders of shady companies. There were streams of lace there.
which had cost the lives of unfortunate people who had killed while being ruined, diamonds bought with the money of old people shamefully deceived by misleading brochures like those from Honduras and the Bingham mines and which had given the eco-Twenty-year-old nominees against a few scraps of paper which was now being negotiated at 40 sous.

Before such an audience, the priest in the style of
he was in his element and he did it for these beauties.
ladies, a speech so well-suited to the situation, that the Ar-Israelite scribes published it in its entirety, e-shouting: "This is what the Church thinks of the book of Mr. Drumont!

No, no, Cahen, you are mistaken, just as you were with the Crime of Blood, you know better than I do that it's not Not what the Church thinks: that's not what the priests, that's simply what a bad person says priest, an ambitious priest who tomorrow will be a bishop domestic.

People from outside, however, experience a veritable of astonishment at the attitude of some representatives of the French clergy vis-sister of the Catholic cause. I still remember a an excellent man who shared with me his astonishment—

He was one of those whom my book had stirred, you know—that he was a freethinker; he had never set foot he had been in a church for twenty years; one day, he entered Notre-Dame; he claims it was because it was raining,
But sometimes we make a mistake: we think we're entering a church because it's raining, whereas it's because

344 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

God is waiting for you there without you even suspecting it.

A priest was preaching about the readings that should be done
Women of the world.

My man listened and his arms almost fell off.
when he heard this sacred orator also give himself over to a scathing critique of my books. He told me
He wrote his impressions in a letter and I let him speak.
himself:

Abbot Le Nordez is not kind to writers.
current; no one finds favor in his eyes; he condemns them all without exception, he asserts that all readings are traps set by the devil's spirit and that God, later, will demand a strict accounting of the time spent on these readings by Christian women who indulge and delight in it, with criminal curiosities, in the knowledge of horrible things, written for their perdition.

Abbot Le Nordez ended his lecture with an attack direct attack against a writer, because he disapproves of the war that this publicist made to the people of the Jewish-financial gang contemporary.

The speaker, with the skill that characterizes his peers, with endless circumlocutions, with meticulous and learned during his oratorical periods, he railed against the aggressive and acerbic style.
employed by the writer, whose Roman Curia cannot sanc-
"To counter the attacks," he said.

Using ingenious circumlocutions, and while defending himself Abbot Le Nordez asserted that he wanted to create personalities that reading such writings was a pernicious thing. and blameworthy and that the campaign conducted with such a valiant effort against the sons of Judah.

He therefore recommended abstaining from such reading material. contrary to the moral teachings of the Catholic religion lique. War waged in this way would only serve to disrupt the blessed tranquility of the souls of Christian women.

According to the peroration of this conference, it appears that Mr. Drumont is formally disavowed by the pontifical clergy.
fical, and that, from the pulpit of Notre-Dame, the clergy French people forbid reading books in which are so the actions of financiers were strongly condemned Jews so closely unionized for the exploitation of the classes productive and hardworking.

THE FIN DE SIEGE CLERGY 345

I've thought about that more than once. I liked it a lot.
Notre-Dame, and I know it as well as Victor Hugo. When I wrote in Paris through the ages the chapter devoted to Notre-Dame, I spent some entire days spent in the old basilica. It's the a great witness to the history of France, but he does not reveal the the secret of his soul that, in the long run, he only answers to those who question him patiently and devoutly, in the intimacy of morning interviews, while one looks-mine all alone without the escort of the beadle pressing you, and urging you to quicken your pace – and that one can to put one's heart near these venerable stones and the listen to talk.

I would gladly have done as the old bell ringer did who it only descended at rare intervals and I would be remained in the upper part of the church – a region so little known, where bizarre monsters, Chimeras, and fantastic animals seem to hold together, at-above Greater Paris, a conversation full of mysterious and profound things.

I kept replaying that scene. A priest is preaching in the an-basilica, in the name of this Church which for some centuries fought against the Jew, defended Christian society stand against the corrupting tyranny of money, a protected everyone's work against exploitation by para-websites and loan sharks. And this priest glorifies Mammon!
This priest praises Rothschild, Ephrussi, Bischoffsheim; he declares that it is criminal to attack these benefactors of Humanity, criminal to speak of Probity and of Justice. Then, pleased with himself, he hitched up his cassock.
and rush to collect his salary at some bank.

This is worth Erlanger, after his acquittal, coming play an adagio on the cello at the moment of the Elevation, at the grand mass in Deauville.

8346 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

IV THE PRIESTS

Seminary education. – Narrowness and inadequacy of this Education. – The priest's entry into life. – Inexperience The beginnings. – Crises of the soul. – The isolation of the priest. – The Freemason machinations. – The Echo of the Last Battle. – Jewish France and the clergy. – An act of charity intellectual. – The priest raises his head at the sight of the indignity. of those who attack him. – A book and an age. – The files of Jews and Republicans. – The dirty phase. – From 1880 to 1885. – Priests fit to kill. – The conference of the hall of the Capucines. – A schoolteacher who is dismissed because she

'goes to church and a prefect is honored because he goes to the synagogue-goguë. – A poster that would have been useful. – The conserv-The vans don't want to move. – Joy and fear of the priest in reading a page of truth. – Bishop Dupanloup and the right to judging the bishops. – The Pope's premonitions. – Why

We remain silent. – An inevitable transformation. – Difficulties of Recruitment of the clergy. – A circular letter from the archbishop of Rouen. –]. The separation of Church and State, – The Catholics of Ireland. – The free clergy and the slave clergy.

If the Church in France successfully resists so much of internal and external enemies, it is thanks to the priests, as the people say, who confuse titular priests clerics, vicars and ministers under the general title priests' grumbling.

These priests are good people, and it's a
A glorious militia, this plebeian militia. The crowd, even when she is not hostile, when she does not obey not to foolish prejudices, too ignorant of what suffers These elite men are confronted with this and hardly penetrate the inner workings of the timidity of their being.

Therefore, at the beginning of this chapter, we need to do this that we did for the bishops and try, in

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 347

In a way, the psychology of a priest's soul contemporary.

To these men who must be guides and mentors seillers, to these men destined to live in the midst of a
A nation troubled by all kinds of doubts, at a time when All questions are raised, the Seminar gives the most false and illogical education that one can imagine; the only concern is to trap them
-to know of this world into which they are going to enter.
They are taught a lot of sacred history, they makes you learn | almost word for word a History of the E-already old gtis, but no high education brings these pages to life before these young people, doesn't show them that this history of the Church is, in reality, the history social for eighteen hundred years.

Some of them write to me or come during the holidays.
I wonder what I should read to be a little bit in current on the social question; they have never heard to speak neither of Proudhon, nor of Lassalle, nor of Karl Marx...

Everything that can affect human passions is strictly forbidden to students. In some semi-
In the past, reading Racine is forbidden! The precautions under this report, even to the point of childishness: in-incredible: a priest told me that he had received from he-inheritance of a magnificent Bible that belonged to Saint François de Sales and bearing his signature; he showed it to the director who returned it to him after making some cuts ink-painted monkfish with a naked angel that appeared in the engraving of the frontispiece.

Three months before leaving the Seminar, we put the Diaconal services in the hands of these young people and we abruptly introduces them to all the refinements of the De-Bauche, to all passionate aberrations, to all the corruptions of the voluptuary and the jaded. To these sons of peasants who, for the most part, lived in a Absolute purity, this reading has the effect of a visit in a huge Dupuytren museum. They were left ignoring all the mysteries of the human soul and the va-peculiarities, the infinite subtleties of feelings and im-pressures, and suddenly they are shown the man and the woman in the form of anatomical plates such as We see them in medical books.

There was the young priest ordained, and suddenly the engraving anatomical comes to life, takes on a body and presents itself in the guise of woman, the eternal temptress always-troubling days because she is always troubled and who is searching, involuntarily and almost against her will, for a to be the one who helps him solve the enigma of his own heart.

You can imagine the storms raging over these places novices of the priesthood. They distort, they sometimes break unaware of it, the delicate instrument they are touching their inexperienced hands. At first, they would believe failing in their duty by neglecting to ask certain questions that open up new horizons for their penitents which they often didn't suspect. It's only Gradually, this tact, this experience, will come to the priest.
 heartfelt sincerity, this discretion that one might have expected from him
 To give back to the Seminary by teaching a little about life to men who must lead the lives of others.

Despite everything, the falls are few and the Scandals are rare. That is the admirable aspect of the clergy.
 French. No doubt, there is the grace of state, but it is necessary also recognize that these sons of the people who constitute almost exclusively today the lower clergy help us to receive grace through a strength of faith, a respect for their dress, a tenacity that would not waver in the face of the enemy that would not be found to the same degree in the clergy other countries. There are many complaints about the aristocracy and the upper middle class now offer only rarely their sons in the Church. From this point of view, I don't know if It is an evil. The children of the soil bring into the priesthood, the qualities of resistance, the spirit of discipline Pliny that the soldiers and officers who came out of the rank in our old army. These commoner cadets are not as elegant, as supple as they used to be formerly the younger sons of the nobility who were placed in the orders; they are perhaps more severe for them—even, less accessible to certain training sessions.

HAS

If they had not been abandoned by the high clergy, Our priests, primarily seeking well-being and rest would have tired out Jewish Freemasonry; well warned by people like us, maneuvers of the enemy And left free to act, they were invincible. The Jew-Verie would have broken his teeth on these beings of real French breed. As in 1815 and 1870, these are the marshals who betrayed.

In ordinary life, the young priest at the beginning demonstrates the same inexperience as in the confessional. He identifies the Church's cause too closely with that of certain Jewish Conservatives who are not worth better than the current Republicans; he is building himself up head with newspapers of fake combat that flatter their readers by spouting tirades to them every day indignant; he takes seriously the nonsense of Meyer. First it was: "Montjoie Saint-Denis! The king on horseback amidst the papal Zouaves," more Later it was "the breakthrough", now it's "the envelopement".

It is worth noting, in fact, that this Jew, who does not cannot keep his composure in front of a naked sword, He has a fondness for the language of warriors. All the vocabulary Vegetius, the knight Folard, and Jomini pass through: the catapult, the assault, the march to the front, the development—lying at a right angle, the flanking movement. Those who Those who read this later will say to themselves: "Certainly, this publiciste was an old soldier who had fought in the war for forty years, and who, retired to his homes, used the terms of his former profession.

If the priest, as he is beginning to do, explained to the peasants the plot hatched against the France by the German Jews, if he showed them the Financial Jews enriching themselves at their expense, he would be listened to by everyone, because he would speak of facts that everyone was able, alas, to verify this at his own expense. When, on the contrary, the members of the clergy, showing absolute solidarity Republic in the merchants who occupy today Today, those in power claim that there is no salvation except in the Monarchy, they clash with the fixed idea of the rural which wants to avoid any revolution, any change in the order established, also by his instinct which suggests to him that kings Those of today are not true kings, that's all. a fact of the Royalty.

After some conflicts in which he was involved- The priest, truly abandoned by his superiors, takes the decision to withdraw into itself. In the The first few years of enthusiasm, everything was fine; the The priest is entirely filled with the joy of the priesthood; he is, if one can be expressed in this way, during the honeymoon phase of his marriage with the Church; he sees in its brilliant aspects the a sublime mission he will have to accomplish in the world.

Around thirty-five or forty years old, the best They are experiencing a crisis of anxiety and bitterness. Grace seems to be withdrawing from them, and prayer no longer has the the soothing and gentle power she possessed at times of youth. Even in times of ardent faith, the Religious figures experienced this period in the cloisters of sterility and boredom, and it is for them that it is written in the Zmitation: "I know the secret of your heart and I know it is useful for your salvation that you be sometimes in dryness, lest a Continued fervor does not lead you to presumption, and that, through vain self-indulgence, you do not You imagined you were something you are not.

The priest then casts a glance at the pleasures of this world which he renounced by dedicating himself to God; He thinks about everything other men have had and about what that he will never have, and he says to himself, "So that's what My lot on earth will have been: 900 francs as an allowance. ments, a mayor who calls me suffocated because

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 351

I don't approve of him neglecting his wife to run

After all the Gothons in the country, a schoolteacher who He insults me when I walk past him in the street.
a city council that refuses to repair the roof from my rectory, which leaks water everywhere, Jewish newspapers accuse me of capturing inheritances stages while I'm literally starving to death, and a bishop who wants to promote his nephew in the administration administrative and which always proves me wrong when I "Come and complain to him about me..."

To understand what priests suffer, one must I remember receiving many letters from them.
from a handwritten journal that got lost at one of my publishers and which arrived incomplete; I don't know at the just who he is and I hope that the author, with the en-A father's legacy, he will recognize it from my description; there has pen drawings and notes in the text from a trip to Italy. It's the outline of a beautiful book.

Lost in a small parish, returned from certain hopes for a larger theatre where he could have used his faculties, the priest, while writing, looks around Him. His is a village in Boeotia; the council municipal council is made up of Homais and the children of the catechism class.
The schism is already a small Homais. The poor priest, so as not to lose the habit of exchanging ideas with his peers, has no other resource than a castle neighbor where a kind gentleman and his wife live, and a bourgeois house, halfway to the castle, where lives an intelligent old maid, but with a strange mood.

"They say solitude is the bread of the strong!" he exclaimed.
the unfortunate man, "no doubt, but it is solitude by vo"cation and in any case, occupied solitude." He expresses This is what many of his colleagues who don't find around them no food for intellectual life electual.

Solitude for us is merely the absence of foolcivic-minded, annoying, tiresome, and loudmouthed; she is filled with a thousand impressions and a thousand memories, charming ghosts, dear vanished shadows, even remorse and pains that hold companions gnie. For the priest, on the contrary, when the thought of God, somewhat veiled, does not fill her; solitude is The emptiness. That explains the excessive crowds.

352 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

frequented by some country priests at the castle;
They are criticized for it and we would probably still be... more severe for them if they went to converse in the cabaret with the village intellectuals who insult them.

We must not think of engaging in apostolic zeal, to to show initiative, to take some action pressing on certain souls who only ask to to wake up, to take sides with the weak against the strong. His Lordship said: "I am counting on your prudence-density; the inhabitants of your parish are already well
"They're bad, don't exasperate them even more."

There is a long way to go from the promising prospects of the Seminary, and the priest sometimes thinks back to the day he received the sub-diaconate. Porter, acolyte, exorcist, he was not yet bound by no connection; he was warned at the time of the subdiaconate; he was told: "There is still time to
"You can withdraw, but if you are determined: Go ahead!"
He took the step forward, he chained himself forever.

Happy are those who are left alone in their corner. Some have a worse fate; they have They dreamed of martyrdom, they have it, but it is Masonic martyrdom.
Fuck, martyrdom in the mud.

We are on the eve of an election; the republican candidate-blicain told the minister everything he needed:
So many tobacconists, so many fine waivers for fraud, exemptions from military service such as family breadwinners, so many kilometers of road and Finally, an attack on morals committed by an ecclesiastical officer.
tick.

The minister sometimes tries to reason with the candidate;
He said to her, "Do you care a lot about this attention-

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 353

tat? We could give you something in exchange, dismissing some old employee in charge of family and put in his place one of the pillars of the pub
Who are fueling your candidacy? – No, an attack will do very well, the Lantern will talk about it and it will be of a "Good effect."

So the prefect and the public prosecutor... tend with the Lodges that are equipped for this and One carries out an attack as one would carry out a conspiracy if the
The ministerial candidate demanded one. Many officials officials of the administrative and judicial order like-would be better off engaging in other occupations, but they have family feelings and, without their place, com-
How would they raise their children? It's the administration-French tion which began to do paperwork in couthe head-turning during the Terror and which continues in a another mode.

How many hidden tragedies lie within these news items or in These legal debates! The public can't read and doesn't understand them.
understands nothing, but we others see ourselves perfectly-
The horrible plot was being organized, the probabi-
As the possibilities multiply, the likelihood increases.
that on the day when the innocent himself wonders if he is not
Not guilty.

Some escape, but they are hit hard.
heart and die like that unfortunate Abbot Pellisson, which the Nouvelliste of Bordeaux told us about, at last September, the touching funeral to which all the honest people of the town sat were.

The deceased was only fifty-four years old. All the
The world saw this priest passing through the streets of Bordeaux.
calm, sad, resigned, bearing on his face the imprint of the deepest sorrow and the most intense grief. The life of Father Pellisson, broken several years ago by a
A terrible catastrophe, it was a long martyrdom.

Subjected to the most vile slander, he was condemned by the courts, despite his protests of innocence. His 20.

354. THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

His name was entered in the prison register and, for a long time months, victim of a monstrous miscarriage of justice, the abbot Pellisson remained locked in a prison.

Could one imagine the moral torture that he must have endured?
to restore the pure and innocent soul of a priest amidst the individus that society is forced to intern in order to defend itself against their culpable actions?

Abbot Pellisson experienced this painful life. Finally, his His innocence was recognized. The courts gave him the most justice.
a brilliant tribute. The magistrates proclaimed at the same time time, his virtue and his martyrdom.

Who doesn't remember this trial and this rehabilitation?

It was too late. Father Pellisson already had it in his heart
This pain that kills. Her mother had lost her mind.

The victim's hair had turned white, it looked like a an old man of seventy. However, those who meet himtraitors could not sufficiently admire the resignation and calm of this broken soul.

Apart from religious newspapers, no one is in-
We care about these victims; we leave them to fend for themselves.
They can.

This explains the cry of anguish that sums up the A priest's book, a moving and stirring book: The Echo of the Last Battle (1):

"Have pity on your priests!"

I really like these books without literature, where
The man speaks ingenuously of his thoughts, where the wounded being Deep within himself he exhaled a groan which truly stirs every fiber of the human soul.
"If man," says an Arab proverb, "did not have the "He sighed, he would suffocate." Some books are simply sighs.

Listen to this old priest sigh:

It is said that the clergy is very honest, it's true, they will not harm no one; but I know priests who are more than

(1) The Echo of the Last Battle, by Aristide Chevalier, with a preface by Paul Féval fils.

This is because, being in a position that would make others jealous, stonemasons, however, they have smiling faces and the heart satisfied.

If only that were all! An investigation is currently underway at subject of an unfortunate old man, priest of a detestable parish on the banks of the Saône. This priest, too frank, had Numerous and relentless enemies. The Savior was crucified by those he had called hypocrites, and the old-Lard didn't hesitate to give their names to the scoundrels of his village, without a care for what might happen. Also the Freemasonry, having been warned, swore that, during Lent, the The scandal would be complete.

Indeed, a diabolical plot is afoot, and it is the insti-tutor who is its soul, he with whom the priest has every year the extreme kindness of sharing the fruits of his orchard. These unfortunate ones there, though friends in appearance, are enemies to Deep down, they are traitors driven by ambition and sometimes by necessity.

The first case involved the desecration of a grave. One evening, An iron wreath placed on a tomb was slightly chipped. and diverted. The poor old asthmatic was blamed for it who went to the correctional court and was sentenced to eight days in prison. His enemies hoped to drive him away; moreover, to To accentuate the scandal, witnesses were called to this trial as unjust as it is ridiculous, the whole pack of enemies that the The priest had experienced things in his life, and that we drag behind us like behind the armies are followed by jackals and vultures. Thugs and prostitutes were put to work bution.

There, baroque memories were revived; there was no Whether it was a crime, a horror, or a farce, this unfortunate priest had not committed. He was given a record that is capable of to make us all into the mob of anticlericals. He had eight days in prison, and he recalled them in vain. From there, news fury: What? He's not leaving? We won't be able to... How to get rid of it? Here's how they did it: They ran the country, approaching the children of catechism to make them to say hateful things against the priest. The daughters of his enemies, And the most intelligent ones recited this as if it were a lesson. What public prosecutor wouldn't have been happy! That one- He, it is said, had long balked at these tasks. criminals, but the Lodges had frightened him, the newspapers had provoked him; his substitute was spying on him.

When the poor old man, surrounded by his wolves, had been
 When questioned at the town hall, he told the prosecutor: "Now, Mr. Prosecutor, we must go to the theater of "Crime..." Sad times indeed, when common sense is absent from people's souls.
 a horrible battle between unquenchable laughter and tears poignant; where hatred, that of the Redskins and the anthropo-pophages, inspires the magistrates and dictates the indictments...

Would you like an example of the things this priest is accused of?
 He was accused of having wanted to poison children at catechism-schism. The unfortunate man had done as we all do; by cha-In his rites, he had sometimes prescribed certain common remedies.
 while waiting for the doctor to arrive, and the sick people that these remedies had not cured, now they were talking about poi-sound. Let us beware of our enemies and even our friends; do not Let us not lend rope to anyone; it would be used to hang ourselves.

He was also commonly accused of using a diamond mysterious for cracking the bells of the parishes he passed through.
 The day we are accused of wanting to put in our pocket this school palace where they teach us to denounce
 We old priests will be lost.

And note that my story is not invented; that I tells of well-known events that happened to a well-known man...

Hear ye, Christians, this canton mayor, very radical and very protected from conservatives, who provide our gold Fierce enemies, listen from here to this mayor, manager of one of the the noblest families of France, answering someone who He spoke of the enchanted diamond that cuts through bells: "But this That's not impossible.

The fact is that the priest was once again sent to correction-nelle, but the court declared itself incompetent and sent him back at the assizes.

The red newspapers that are conspiracy theorists and affect the subsidies preach Lent with these calumnies, before the Christian people. And you see, therefore, the appalling situation-
 The unfortunate clergy are a disgrace. Here is a priest accused of...
 In a manner even more infamous than ridiculous, to which his lawyer,
 To console him, he declares that he is doomed from the start. That's it.
 this priest, old and sick, enveloped in monstrous tentacles of the Freemasonic octopus, without consolation
 And, without hope, prison. There he was, alone, absolutely alone.

against this merciless, barking mob. He has nothing on his side that the mute pain and the fearful and anxious anguish of

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 357

honest people and the silence (a sad resource) of the newspapers religious. Conservative newspapers, moreover, remain silent. always. In the same canton, a schoolteacher once really grilling in a real pan, a real child who...
It was really annoying. But nobody talked about it... Ah! Tell me
So, we are indeed the scum of the earth, come on; is that
That it's not true? Tell me? Isn't it true?
What could possibly drive a son of Adam mad? Is that It is not true that the brains of priests should be Now armored with triple bronze?

This country priest is not ungrateful like the Lords of the Clergy who allied themselves with the Jews against He is grateful to us for the little we have. tried to do.

Thank you, Mr. Edouard Drumont, thank you. Through you, we We are somewhat avenged. Through you, a little pity enters into the soul of our fellow citizens for this unfortunate minister of The Gospel, more idle and powerless than ever. By For you, irreligious hatred diminishes and gradually transforms into of good and holy hatred against persecution, con-between cowardice, against the evil opulence that Christ has Damn it so many times. Thank you. I thought this book was a echo of yours, not precisely because the things that The issues addressed there are absolutely identical. There is no [existing condition] h like these financial questions of a major flight; these meticulous dissections of the social corpse; this palpitating interestas long as a self-assured master knows how to give stories current, historical and poignant... but there is the same faith, a host of shared ideas, the same fever, the same horror of injustice, the painting of a corner of the same landscape and incidents linked by an unbreakable thread to the the same horrible war: war waged against faith and life even of the Christian by Jewish Freemasonry.

The author of an Echo of the Last Battle, in perhaps overly benevolent terms, expresses a sense-time which is in the soul of many members of the clergy.

Hello spoke beautifully long ago about charity in-

358 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

ecclesiastical. For the ministers, for the priests of campaign, Jewish France, I can say it without false modesty, was a great act of intellectual charity. tuelle.

Do you know of any torture comparable to that of a unfortunate man who is locked in the hold during that the ship carrying it is struggling against the storm? He is tossed about terribly, he hears the waves that move, and perceives above him an inactive movement accustomed, but he distinguishes nothing of what is happening, he doesn't know why the ship is being shaken so violently by laughing tremors.

In many respects, this situation was one of our priests for many years. At the time when The French Kulturkampf began; they didn't know what were their true enemies, they couldn't explain themselves not the reasons for the relentless persecution they faced. They had been told about Freemasons, about the impious, enemies of the Church, but no one had said that it was the Jew who was leading everything.

Thanks to Jewish France, the clergy were able to climb back on the bridge, observe the state of the sky, see the pilots' faces evildoers who were steering the ship onto reefs, to become aware of the maneuver; if you prefer, he was able to grasp all the threads of the grand organized conspiracy by German Jews for the destruction of everything which represented national traditions, the Fatherland French in a word.

That was the first result of our book.

Jewish France had a different outcome. It learned to the poor priests to raise their heads by proving to all, through irrefutable testimonies, the indignity moral, the ignominy of those who attacked them; -she showed- revealing to the slandered what this Mayer was really like, who allowed them to attack Frenchmen of impeccable character Honesty: Family of 'Cologne Jews'; the uncle steals the Cologne pawnshop; he is condemned to prison; the father kills himself to avoid returning to Mazas;

the son is stigmatized by a ruling of the Douai court and convicted of blackmail in the House.

Then there's the Rappaport affair. This Rappaport, a native of Wilna, takes his daughter to restaurants at night to sell her. The mother is claiming the child and The court replied: "We cannot you * to return it because you live in a common-law relationship with a Parisian journalist and that it's a bad example to give to this young girl.

Following these incidents, the father either kills or does not kill. his daughter, and it seems more likely that they are both murdered by a character of Semitic type whom we had seen someone lurking in the house on the morning of the crime: in short, They both expire and are buried...

There is nothing particularly mysterious about any of this. The one who would have entered the Palais-Bourbon, even in The public gallery could have witnessed the execution of Mayer by Christophe, of whom the said Mayer became the defender, and the one who would have passed through rue de Richelieu the day of the tragedy at the Rappaport's (1) could have to go up with the crowd that had rushed in shouting "Murder!"

If there was any merit in publishing about Jewish France, This achievement is largely due to my age.

Mr. Maurice Barrès, despite all the acuity of his talent delicate and fine to the point of being sharp, could not have written such a book; he would have been prevented from doing so by happiness that he is only twenty-eight years old.

To write a book like this, one must have been of a generation straddling, in a way, the end of the Empire and the beginning of the Republic; one must have saw the Jewish invasion begin; saw the birth, development-Lopper and grow the Judeo-Germanic world that op-prime at the moment. The men of the generation

(1) These Rappaports, moreover, fuel the news stories of all countries; you can find them everywhere. There's a Rappaport mixed in with the der-to deny the organized plot against the Tsar by German Jews, the Mendelsohn, the Reinsteins, the Lavreniuses, the Brombergs.

Barrès only saw the merchandise in place; we,
We witnessed the unpacking.

All these triumphant Jews of today were arriving at the end of the Empire as Prussian quartermasters; they tou-for espionage, they sent small sums of money from Germany Magne, who wasn't very rich at the time, and they grafted on top of that all sorts of shady industries; they circulate-they talked a lot, they chatted with those they met-They dealt with, and formed bonds with, mistresses through women.
officers or artists. It was the time when Mürger was walking in the Meudon woods

With Germans singing about their homeland.

Today they are French citizens, presidents of all electoral committees, organizers of all types of societies for national recovery, patriots down to the roots of the hair, but there are still some people who remember knowing them under different aspects.

When these parade in public ceremonies gentlemen with long noses, covered in decorations, puffed up of their importance, making balloons, the young officers peace is seized with respect, but sometimes there is in in the procession an old police commissioner who, retired Now, pruning the rose bushes in the countryside. He was passing by by chance, he couldn't cross the street, he re-
The guard said to himself: "Hey! I know that person!"
I searched his home following a complaint in Scam; I questioned this majestic lady before ordering his transfer to Saint-Lazare.

The same is true, to some extent, of the Republicans. Two months before the war, a politician, a close friend Radicals were arrested in a horse-drawn carriage in the middle of the square.
of the Place de la Concorde, teaching a little boy the principles of a completely secular morality. (1) It is the Emperor-

(1) This story about the carriage is different from the one I talked about Regarding Lockroy.

the president himself who opposed the prosecution. A former
The head of the vice squad kept the entire file of the case, and he was telling the story, some time ago again, at a dinner at the home of a former minister of the Em-worse.

Around the same time, one of our friends stopped for clandestine prostitution, a young lady who, Having since become part of the family of a statesman, it features today in official ceremonies and diplomatic receptions.

An academic has seen the file of a civil servant
A Jew, a passionate aberrant, caught on the upper deck of a omnibus at the time he was engaging in practices that were not honest about a young apprentice. We had even thought to ask the writer for this testimony at the time of the Germiny affair; in any case, the fact is beyond doubt.
and the academician has never made a secret of it.

A police commissioner was recounting at a full table, he not so long ago, the disastrous adventure which had happened to her in a special house placed under the patronage of Sappho. He is scolded, he is
He is criticized for his inertia, and complaints are placed under his thumb.
from the neighbors, he arrives inflamed with a fine zeal in com-accompanied by his secretary and two agents; he notes,
He was writing his report when suddenly a
A half-naked Bacchante rushes at him and overwhelms him with insults; he first begs this furious woman to get dressed a little while before asking him his name. When he had-Having heard that name, he fled in a panic, forgetting his chaskin. The Bacchante was the wife of one of the people-influential figures of the Republic!

If a man like Macé added a key to his books written simply from a physiological point of view and social, some nice sif- strokes would come out of this key flet for this mandatory and not free part that we calls for Republican Virtue.

I am not claiming that these facts, known to everyone in Pa-these things prove nothing against the republican principle itself.

362 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

– even. All men have more or less a little
 The pig that sleeps within them. Only the Republicans
 Cains, instead of locking this disciple in the pigsty Epicurus's uncleanness, have an unfortunate tendency to oc-to cut the little pig from others.

In any case, it was necessary to clearly show our poor priests, as I did in France Jewish, who were those who attacked them? Outside Jewish journalists who are vile, among them the others are very good boys, very funny, very pleasant to be around, but most of them
 They are extremely debauched and have no right to speak on behalf of of Virtue and one should not be affected by what they say.

This recommendation is not useless.

It is in vain that a slandered person has his conscience on his side;
 the ceaseless outrage, the outrage constantly renewed with new refinements, despite everything, have a de- effect Moralizing. Walk for three hours at night.
 under one of those light rains, one of those heavy rains-pours that filter through a foul-smelling fog, and you will feel your height decrease, you will shrinkrez, you will curl up into yourself in an involuntary movement of failure.

The French priests experienced five to six years, something similar. They bent their backs mechanically under this rain of slander which... stumbled upon them, they were obsessed with all of them.
 feces, and everyone had that impression Like them. We were as if enveloped in miasma.
 similar to those noxious vapors that emanate of Lake Asphaltite, and the indifferent themselves, by dint of to read every morning the ignominies in their daily newspapers
 -naux, sometimes thought of filth when they saw a priest. In some villages, priests avoided certain-certain paths, they told you with a kind of anxiety:
 "Not that way! There are workers!" They were afraid of the "Roaring!" Allusions to some lamplighting filth.

It was yet another stage, another phase. The story of the last twenty years have thus been composed of short phases, very different from each other. When a large stone falls into the water, and she performs a series of concentric circles: the catastrophe of 1870, in tombant on French society, it made circles, it circled successive waves which, like ripples in water, went always growing larger.

Between 1880 and 1886, Anus was king. People only spoke of him. of anus, sodomy, and similarly disgusting things; on you were given illustrated leaflets where one could distinguish the buttocks of a nun being whipped by an immodest monk; only images of lewd, drunken, or scoundrelly priests. That was the fine weather of the excremental tales of the Lantern and Semitic pornographies from Croissant Street.

Since everything happens very quickly during times of dissolution, this phase already seems to belong to a distant immeasurable past. moral. Moreover, the ingratitude of the leaders of the Catholic is always ready to serve as an auxiliary to the instability of their memory.

The Nuncio, hating me, puts his hand in my hand by Léo Taxil, who was then distributing them in the streets tickets from the Holy Farce where priests were horrors to the Sisters of Charity. For this prelate who prefers the Golden Calf to Jesus Christ; the enemy is Me. Didn't I say it was cruel to think that men had three thousand million, three billion, while entire families were suffocating because that they could no longer eat? Did I not write that it was cruel to kill a human being for a tree leaf? Such audacity cannot be super- to carry.

The priest does not have such fleeting impressions. The His life is structured around the liturgical year which... unfolds with the course of the seasons; he lives a long time on the same underlying ideas, he remembers what he suffered- fert for a few years and the consolation that we came to bring him at the moment when he was suffering freshest.

Jewish France remains in the priest's eyes what it was a fine cavalry charge that cleared the terrain. Our campaign paved the way for this policy of reconciliation, which alone can save France and which would have succeeded if Boulanger had been a different man, if he had not sold himself to the Jews. The Semite was less bold as soon as he had been undressed, stripped naked, whipped, exposed to everyone's eyes in all its hideousness.

To be convinced that I am right, it suffices to content to be astounded by what happened to the Lantern. In 1883, The Jews of Cologne believed that our worthy priests were only good for shooting, and they wrote it frankly. in a newspaper which at the time had a circulation of 150,000 copies.

"You find," replied the Lantern to a correspondent corresponding, that we were wrong to shoot the poor catotins in 1871. We hold a contrary opinion and we even believe that too much men—"They had no choice but to act in their own direction. They hadn't stolen it."

At the conference in the Capucines hall, I naturally eager to serve this to the louddis who. They accused me of intolerance, and that was all it took to put them in an indescribable state.

I can still see it with its deformed, grimacing head and baroque, his mouth convulsed by a lock of hatred, an old Jew who had the gift of exasperation to perish; he was standing right in front of me, he was fidgeting like a hanged man, he writhed like a snake Pharaoh. I was just showing him a little more—a piece of paper on which this quote was written and I told him: "You see, sir, that I am infinite—I am more tolerant than you; I never asked I simply asked that your rabbis be shot. Mr. de Rothschild would be kind enough to provide us with some explanations on how he was able to acquire three thousand "Liards in such a short period of time."

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 865

What a dramatic evening! For fifteen years, the Jews had insulted us to our faces, what do you expect?

the anti-clerical meetings; they had poured on us barrels of rubbish and they were frantic at the thought that we dared to attack them in turn. Gathered in a pile around the door, they were making a ta- The devil's page... Jacques de Biez's voice resonated like a bugle. As for Mores, he had mounted on a table, and with the slightest movement, with its tall stature, it would have fractured his skull; I only had time to... to lower.

Our loyal friends were at the back of the room, good people whom we do not often show, esti- They say we'll see enough of them when the day of punishment arrives. will have arrived for Israel: former officers, bourgeois or workers of Gallic origin, monarchists or republicans Cains, but republicans of the good Republic, of the French Republic.

"Enough!" shouted one of them, addressing the Yutres.

The Yutres continued...

Suddenly there was a movement and, in the blink of an eye, in less time than it takes to write it, the Jews, swept away with blows of boots, with blows of canes, with blows umbrellas disappeared with a sound of shattering glass. calm was suddenly restored.

My old Jew, alone, hadn't moved; he was still- days there, in front of me, and I always showed him the pa- Pier, who observed how much his fellow believers were respectful of the religion of others.

The Jews were afraid at that moment; they went to the Lantern, money in hand, and after seven years The Lantern finally disavowed the wretch who had wrote this atrocious sentence, declaring that it was a employee and not editor, and that the editor was not not responsible for what appeared in the Little Cor- response.

I don't need to dwell on these stinking explanations. The blatant lie. The Little Correspondence is absolutely part of the newspaper; it's the one that puts di- directly the reader in relation to the newspaper and she is, in well-made newspapers, the object of all care individuals.

366 THE WILL OF AN ANTI-SENITOR

What is essential is that the Youtres of Cologne cannot say that they declared that our priests were good at killing like dogs without that a Frenchman dared to protest.

The priests who read us carefully did not, Moreover, there is no doubt whatsoever on this point; they know by-in fact, if the Catholic deputies, instead of they seriously wanted to play their eternal charade attacking the enemy, that is to say the Jew, they would have . quick satisfaction; they would only have to take facts; These facts would speak to everyone.

Here is a schoolteacher, a secular schoolteacher. The existence-Tence is not always very cheerful for these poor people Women. Perhaps that one has some inner sorrows, sadness of soul; she feels the need to go seeking some consolation and hope near God; she enters a church. She is dismissed and The prefectural decree cynically explains why: for to have expressed religious sentiments.

She is not accused of violating school neutrality. laire, for having led his students to church, but simple-the fact of having been there herself, of having exercised what the modern street performers have so often celebrated with blows From the bass drum: the freedom to believe and to think.

Now enter this synagogue in Belfort. You will find the prefect there. In Belfort, the prefect is Jewish, naturally. Belfort will have decisive importance. sive in wartime, and the Jews are still at good places.

It is Yom Kippur and, wearing the falet, head and With arms covered in ephilim, the prefect prays: & manifty of religious feelings.

The Belfort Cross shows us the prefect in this attitude which, after all, is nothing but honorable-rable:

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 367

The Yom Kippur holiday, which is for the Israelites the most
The great festival of the langée was solemnly celebrated by Mr. Prefect.

Mr. Sée was seen at the synagogue with his head covered of the traditional veil, covered with strips, to make her unveilings tions and chanting in Hebrew amidst his coreligionistsnaires.

If at the upcoming All Saints' Day celebrations some function-Republican, but Christian (the two are not mutually exclusive) not at all), decided to go and put on the surplice and sing
In the master's office, what a commotion the next day in the papers Opportunism and the Prefecture!

No doubt the Republican press is in the pay of Israel.
finds the conduct of old Youtre admirable and appalls-
The young Christian woman's conduct is commendable, but believe although the people would think differently if they were made to-knows how to pinpoint this monstrous inequality.

I still remember an election meeting. They told me said:

- Is it true that you wrote that you would go to the eleven o'clock mass before you go to your voting section?

I replied:

- Perfect! I'm going to the eleven o'clock mass.
Am I not allowed to go to mass when...?
Mr. Camille Dreyfus attends synagogue services with his parliamentary insignia?

It was a public meeting organized by Mr. Lopin in the playground of the municipal schools, on Camou Street; the au-the district obviously was not composed of my party-without, and yet, no one protested; everyone found it perfectly natural. I believe Camille Dreyfus was in the room; in any case he didn't say anything and he hadn't Nothing to say.

Suppose there are men with a name in the party
Catholic: Albert de Mun, Paul de Cassagnac, Ches-

Nelong, Keller, signing a poster that looks simple-ment:

French, ;

The Jews treat France as a conquered country; they refuse to the French, now that they are the masters, the rights which they so loudly claimed for themselves.

A humble schoolteacher from Pagny-sur-Moselle, mademoiselle-Pagez, who was deprived of her bread "for having protested" religious sentiments."

The Jewish prefect of Belfort, Sée, spent the Yom- holidays Yom Kippur at the synagogue; nothing was said to him.

Do you think that's fair?

Imagine this poster plastered all over the walls of Paris. After a few hours, all the posters were gone. would have been torn down, just like those of the Anti-Semitic leagues that never lasted more than one day, but the next day the unfortunate schoolteacher would have been reinstated in her position and the prefect of Meurthe-et-Moselle would have brought him a rosary for Say it for her benefit.

The Jews don't like that kind of advertising; they know that deep down they are hated by the people and they do not don't care if attention is drawn to them (1).

(1) At every moment the Catholics in the House would have an opportunity to intervene in a way that would put the laughers in their place on the side, which would make one realize the impudence of these Jews who deny others what they call "sacred rights" when- that it is about them.

The Archives israélites of October 23, 1890, reported:

"Mr. and Mrs. Léon Lambert of Brussels, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. Baron Gustave de Rothschild of Paris, have just done to build, near Chantilly (Oise), a castle including an Israelite oratory.

"Chief Rabbi Zadoc Kahn will, it is said, proceed nextnoment, at the inauguration of this small temple, in a picturesque region
"Area where the God of Israel did not yet have an altar."

Is it a young right-wing MP, one of the students of these Religieux, whom the Jewish Lantern denounces every morning, would not have had to go up to the podium and ask the minister: "What measures

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 369

We were able to observe this at the time of the case.
Schænebelé. We had invaded the square of the
The stock exchange was run by hawkers shouting at the top of their lungs the elo-
Jacques de Biez's closet: The financial conspiracy German Jews.

At the corner of the Jouffroy passage, this confluence of necks Parisian rants so well suited to counting, where one does not can stop for five minutes without noticing fifty Jews, we could see groups of unhappy Yuddis who hugged the walls and hurried home
They knew very well that the execution had not yet for that day, corn, thinking of all that their had arrived in the past, they had mo- thoughts roses. They have more common sense than you'd think, these Those people: they don't believe in the articles they put on in the newspapers; they know that in all eras their insolent triumph has always been followed by a a terrible catastrophe, and they have good reason to suspect what It's hanging over their heads...

We had thought about the League doing something something similar in favor of this worthy schoolteacher of so much sympathy, but it's always money that lack. We must not think of the mothers of the Church, to the devotees of Saint Thomas Aquinas or of Saint Clotilde, to those whom Veuillot called the "spicious-Sardinians." The fate of a schoolteacher reduced to dying of hunger or to do a job that you guess the touches little; if we asked them for twenty-five cents, they would go to consult their confessor, a very discreet priest

Do you intend to use the opening of this chapel for your own purposes?
Jewish, since you have just had the seals replaced.
"At the Catholic oratory of the Dominicans in Le Havre?"

It would have been fun to see Camille Dreyfus go up to the tribune to explain to us, in the name of the principles of '89, why-why Father Monsabré could not have an oratory and why-what Mr. Léon Lambert could have one "in a region picturesque.

21.

370 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

distinguished and totally "in the know" and you CRIenGeE Until the answer is received:

– Countess, you can see me clearly, Subse
The Counselor of the sanctuaries whom Jacob sends me 40,000 francs for 1,000 francs free of charge; with the bonus scale, it's the operation without speculation.
lation. The Guide for Good Shepherds, which has just been founded by Lévy, it guarantees me one hundred percent a year, it's the operation with speculation; the operation on:

closed outside the bonus scale. It me it seems that the first system is more in line with Church laws.

– You are right, Father, stay on the scale of bonuses, on Jacob's ladder; with that he – There's nothing to fear.

– Besides, it's in Scripture: the one whom God
The guard is well guarded.

All of this explains to you that the honorable clergy to which we have shown the truth, to whom we have shown Real life, as it is, remains our friend.

Obviously, upon reading this chapter on the clergy, "end of the century," the good priests who love us experience-will experience both great joy and great fear: a Great joy that we have finally said out loud what they say
A deep, silent fear at the thought that their bishop they might suspect of having approved such hor-Remarkable speeches. I see them here raising their arms to the sky.
. before the head of the diocese and lamenting the audacity that

I showed it.

They know, without a doubt, that I have
I exercised my right as a social historian in a very good way.
moderate.

So many stories to tell, stories that everyone knows.
like the story of this bishop candidate, of which... brightened the corridors of the Chamber for so long, and which eventually won the mitre by courting the mai-A radial MP's braid!

4

|

|

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 371

Writing the truth about bishops does not prevent in any way:
.to believe with a humble and faithful heart in all that The Church teaches.

When, in the chair of Hagia Sophia, the patriarch Nestorius attacked the divinity of Jesus Christ and me-Eusebius, "a layman," knew the greatness of the Virgin.
.of Dorylaeum, stood up in the midst of the people and protested against the blasphemies of the heretic. The Church glorifies him.
rification for this fact.

Saint Bernard, in his letter to Henry, archbishop of Meaning, De moribus et officiis episcoporum, said of things much stronger than me.

Bishop Dupanloup fully recognized this right of
...to judge the bishops. "Yes, he is good," wrote the bishop
"of Orléans, to let the bishops judge."

This is good for everyone, this is good for the bishops, good For the Church, good; for the country, good; for the dignity of customs and character. Yes, it's good to know that one can to be judged, and that one will be judged, and that the Church does not find it wrong-I am going; no one reforms or judges themselves more severely than she-even. It prides itself on being a company that works perpetuallyforced to judge itself and reform itself by force of the spiritual regeneration that is within her and that comes from God. Three thousand councils or synods, up to the council of Thirty, are an immortal testimony to his holy severity for the bishops, for the priests, for everyone. We do not...

It's not our profession to be perfect. Dieh left us the freedom, so that we may have merit and virtue; freedom evil that proves nothing against the Church, because the Church,
She herself condemns him more severely than anyone else.
on Earth. And besides, isn't that one of the things we
He said the most against us, 'that we lack justice'

. for ourselves, that we cast too complacent a veil about our mistakes, that we defend ourselves at all costs the others, and finally that one cannot believe the word of a Priest on a priest?

Everyone understands that the high clergy has a a large share of responsibility in the current crisis.
The Pope himself, political as he may be, so accustomed

372 THE WILL OF AN ANTI-SENITOR

to spare all that is powerful and strong, left a day his heart speaks about it.

In the utmost care of life, as death approaches which already gives a vision of things beyond, the Saint Father seems to have had a premonition of the catastrophes that will punish all the hypocrisies of the Present. In an en-interview which has been frequently cited, he indicated, with more to clarify that in the Encyclopedias, the responsibility what will the current Catholics have in the events which are being prepared. There is a kind of grandiose air about it.
melancholy in the words he addressed to the pè-Belgian lerins.

"I am neither a prophet, nor the son of a prophet," said Leo XI.
But my heart is troubled by painful forebodings. society is threatened with great punishment. The tide of evils that will strike the stone on which the Church is built will not it reveals on the horizon the threat of God's wrath.

Our Lord will no longer come with a face gentle and peaceful, but with an irritated face, for to strike and purify his Church. For, he added, there has many stains even among the righteous, and among those who should be the best there are rotten members.

As for the prelates of strict virtue and high intellect-agencies that still honor the French Episcopate, they se-will be the first to approve of me deep down. awareness.

What would be the point of lying and concealing a
A situation that everyone can see very clearly?

The entire social structure was patched up by Napoleon I" with debris from the old regime and revolution materials tionnaires are falling apart... The fragments of The old regime was solid; the worker's grip The force that cemented this was vigorous, and the building was able to last nearly a hundred years. Bad and bastard by The institutions themselves were valued through the men they employed. by what remained in these men of the qualities of the old French race. With the men of today- Today you have the Episcopate and the Magistracy that you Look: bishops who do not defend the Church at the provided they are left alone, these magistrates who acquit the big thieves on the condition that they to make them participate in the raids.

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 373

You have these bishops and these judges because you you cannot have any others under the conditions current. When you have as Keeper of the Seals the associate of a crook like Jacques Meyer, you don't You can't ask a Thévenet to choose you bishops who are like Saint Cyprian or Fénelon or judges who are Mathieu Molé or des d'Aguesseau.

For those with a discerning eye, the bishops and the clergy, of whom I have just given you an impartial overview images already belong to the Past more than to the Present; This is yet another phase coming to an end and the movement A transformation is already taking shape.

No doubt everything is still in a latent state, and it is up to

It's hard to hear even the faintest murmur.

Men who were involved in this phase want to finish in peace and the bishops, as I explained to you, have made wonderful use of a persecution that never weighed on them to impose silence on everyone; They brought out a very real tyranny from their situation. tion of false victims (1).

(1) We can point to vague manifestations of a state of mind seeking to make itself known, an eloquent pamphlet by the abbot Georget: The Clergy and the current situation and Stand up! "urgent" 'An appeal to the clergy of France.' Also worth reading is a book that is rather An elegy: The French Clergy in 1890, by Abbot X. The author didn't even dare to name himself to complain, for fear that someone His sadness should not be considered a crime against him.

The beginning has a penetrating accent:

"It is to you, Church of France, that I dedicate these heartfelt pages.

"My sadness increases with all my powerlessness, for my dis- Courses won't be of much use to you.

"I write, nevertheless, because writing for you, O good Church-

374 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The force of circumstances prevails nonetheless. The death of: Leo XIII, whose despotic character we endure, will untie many languages, and it will be difficult for his successor to maintain the system of passive obedience that the circumstances have allowed us to establish.

The evidence, moreover, is there, and we historians- Let's see social nothings separately. It's in vain that you tell the doctor that the subject he examined-. Mined has all the signs of good health. He stuck his "He listens to the back of this sick man; he knows there are caverns there." of those formed in the lungs, he knows that there are in the brain lesions that are still unknown, it is aware of the organism's secret decomposition processes. ... Despite the theatrical declamations, the decadence of the nation appears at this sign that France no longer of children. Despite the grandiloquent declarations pretenders, the impotence of the monarchical principle this sign reveals that for a hundred years no power hereditary, it could not be transmitted from father to son. that none of these powers could defend themselves. They are powers that can no longer.

The best proof that spiritual life tends to
The difficulty is that it is drying up more and more in France.
what the clergy experiences when recruiting. It was possible to draw from

: FT
D

To love you is to love you still; to rest, to avenge your abandonment; it is to still dream of your glory and prosperity.

"Who knows—forgive this lingering filial illusion—who knows if My discouraged words will not go forth, like a tiny spark,

'to ignite the fire in some noble and powerful soul' virtue?

"For there are in your bosom great and virtuous priestly souls—" killers, who moan silently over the darkening of your

. fame and the obscurity of your rank. Will they not show themselves; in the end, to express the regrets, complaints and alarms that their "Inspire your fate?

"Therein lies the cause of your misfortune: no one dares to use the sword: O Church" who knew how to give speech such frankness and brilliance!
fears disturbing your peace; we're afraid of scandalizing the little ones; we

"Doesn't want to offend the powerful."

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 375

long in the reserves of devotion and self—the concept contained in old peasant France; but Everything wears out: the rich veins become rare and the mine,
However rich it may have been, it eventually became poorer.

The priests, led with an iron fist by the bishops whose character they do not value, whose character they blame servility, and they know all its baseness, 'have the dignity to avoid any public complaint, but they

They speak in private; their resigned attitude attracts no attention. not the youth towards the priesthood, the vocations of- come rarely.

You can read a very remarkable article on this subject. Circular letter addressed by the Archbishop of Rouen, primate of Normandy, to the clergy of his diocese on the ecclesiastical vocations (1). This man that you have seen descending to the most shameful complacency towards The Jew Hendlé acts badly, but writes very well.

Bishop Thomas recalls with what fervor the priests who had escaped the scaffold during the Revolution or to deportation to French Guiana, were busy re- to recruit new servants for the altar (2).

(QG) French Observer, December 8, 1890.

(2) "Today, we are making an urgent appeal to you in favour of of the Work par excellence, that of ecclesiastical vocations, and: We pray to Jesus Christ, the Bishop of the Immortal, to inspire you to: all the admirable zeal of our fathers in the priesthood, of these revered priests who, at the beginning of this century, reorganized - nisé én, France la militia sainte. Raising with one hand the ruins from our temples, on the other closing the wounds of Religion, they prepared for the future, by training in the school of their virtues and their science has cleared the auxiliaries 'whose infirmities demanded' the workers destined to cultivate after them the vine fertilized by their sweat and perhaps by their singular. Like in the earliest ages Through faith, we saw the presbyteries become like little nurseries. from which emerged a new generation of priests, numerous, strong and disciplined, truly worthy of those heroes who, at the hour of the: persecution, -had crowded around the tottering ark, to to defend it with a valiant heart and to fortify it with a double rank of confessors and martyrs.

376 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Today, nothing is the same, and this difference is I understand. The Revolution was martyrdom with its magnitude: the current regime is internment in an indefinable situation, full of a dreary and bla-makeup boredom where one suffers in a thousand ways with the feeling-to understand that this suffering serves no purpose.

"Glorious vocation!" the priests said after the Terror, a glorious calling to which many of us
"found a holy death." "Damn state!" they say to the-Today, the old priests, where one is reprimanded from the start that we want to act. » |

We must also take into account the law on military service
The clericalism of seminarians, against which the bishops have only raised rather weak protests and who will exert, whatever one may say, a very considerable influence influence on the young clergy. The priest who will have Having been through the barracks could make an excellent priest;
But he will have made contact with general life, he will not be no longer the timid person of today, the fearful person of the world terror, and clinging to his bishop's robe like the child clinging to his mother's dress, saying to himself, "Where Will I go if they throw me out? What will become of me?
Alone on the road? I'll be eaten by wolves.

It was this young clergy who would be the first to demand and to make separation necessary through his attitude of the Church and the State.

This separation of Church and State can alone to save the Church in France, and that is precisely why
The red Tartuffes always promise it in their electoral programs and never vote for it.

After a few years, Freemasonry
The Jewish community will tell us about this measure.
Men will come to the sermon when the priest is stripped free from all privilege, but also freed from all chains, will be able to speak freely in the barns that will have replaced the churches, when he can tell how-merit has constituted this dreadful financial feudalism

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 377

candle that puts pressure on our unfortunate country and ask why a Frankfurt banker has three thousand thousand lions, while so many French people are dying of misery.

After a while, some guys from countries that will have been the comrades of this priest in the regime-and who will tell him: "We are in a very bad situation in this barn. If we were to move into the large Ferrières fair, we might be better off sat. "

The Irish admirably understood what the State-provided salary deprived of independence priest; they resisted all the attempts he made England to pay the Catholic clergy.

In 1818, Bishop Quarantoti was appointed by the Pope of a mission similar to that of Bishop Persico in the early 1990s. section of the campaign plan (1). In exchange for the right to

(1) The choice of Bishop Persico was, moreover, one of the most deplo- Mgr Persico was inspired by Leo XIII. Bishop Persico belonged to the order of Saint Francis who, in the Middle Ages, was always the friend of The poor and oppressed, and the Holy Father may have assumed that his envoy would be inspired by these generous sentiments. However, Bishop Persico, during the entire duration of his stay, did not visit only once an Irish cottage; it repelled him to that extent Italian. Stayed for three months with Archbishop Walsh. From Dublin, he did not speak to her once about the agrarian question. Bishop Walsh once had him have lunch with Messrs. O'Brien and Dillon. to enlighten his conscience, but, during lunch, Bishop Persico spoke about absolutely nothing but the weather. He spent his life with wealthy landowners and landlords, lord Badon, Lord Emely, Lord Sligo – yet another ugly name, by kin- Thesis. When your name is Lord Sligo, you should marry Mr. O'Shea and call upon Mr. Peace as a witness...

Bishop Persico received a considerable sum from the land lords for to give a favorable report to their cause and slander those who succumbed to hunger, and, upon returning to Rome, they were worthily deceived the Pope. The excess of his bad faith and even the exaggeration of his Lies prevented a conflict between the Papacy and the Catholics. Irish. The Irish got out of it wittily: "This plan of "A campaign that the Pope condemns," they said, "we condemn it."

even more energetically than him; he has nothing in common with the OUR. "

378 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

England, which grants a veto over the choice of bishops, such lavish benefices to this perfect Anglican clergy-domesticated, offered to provide treatments very high to the bishops and priests of Ireland.

Bishop Quarantotti wrote to O'Connell to inform him of these proposals, and the tribune called a meeting monster to consult the Irish. "No priests"
"State-paid priests! No salaried priests!" they cried.
fifty thousand votes, as soon as O'Connell had begun reading Bishop Quarantotti's letter... O'Connell
He then took the letter, and with a superb gesture he tore it up in front of everyone.

In this unfortunate Ireland, which does not support itself that through the Catholic idea, the priest, thanks to the contributions voluntary actions of all, is placed in a situation financially befitting the office he holds; the priest
The lowest paid earns seven to eight thousand francs per year.
That's a far cry from the 900 francs paid by our priests.

Oh! those 900 francs paid for so many submissions, concessions, humiliations – these 900 francs constantly reproaches made to the clergy by Republicans whom we we knew without boots and who would not be satisfied 900 francs for their cigars of the year, – these 900 francs that cost so much, who will get rid of them?
Once and for all! Lord! If you love your Church from France, deliver her from this humiliating sport and Give him back his freedom!

In Ireland, bishops are not appointed of a Martin-Feuillée or a Thévenet.
©" When it is necessary to fill a vacancy
At the bishopric, the priests gather and pray together.
They deliberate at length and choose three candidates.
These choices are then submitted to the bishops of the pro-Vince, who in turn vote, and the Pope appoints generals the candidate who appears first on the list.

It is understood that a bishop called to the Episcopate in these conditions make one more independent, more in a state of to stand up to the English oppressors, closer to the heart:

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY 379

of his flock that the French clergyman who, for to be a bishop, to have lingered in all the antechambers, had resorting to all influences, demanding the support of the deprostitutes or Freemason senators who often him

they paid for their recommendation with rude... jokes. That one wouldn't be able to fulfill his duty of servant of Jesus Christ, by failing in honor human, by betraying commitments at least moral principles he adopted towards his protectors.

This type of bishop is inextricably linked to the state of current affairs, it will disappear with him. High Clergy re-Crude and constituted by Opportunism, High Banking, The judiciary, all of this will probably fall under the once, all in one piece. It will be a large block that will detach one day when there is a lot of wind, one day of storm.

Digitized by Google

BOOK FIVE

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890

"There's some good in that!"
(A voice in a public meeting.)

PRELIMINARY

In my previous works, I have highlighted, for all those who are interested in my travaux, two episodes meticulously studied, designed to help them grasp the mechanism of contemporary life poraine: Erlanger, his judges, his defenders and his victims and a nineteenth-century enterprise: Panama.

These pages were not, in my intention, acts of accusation and even less pretexts for declaiming tions, but simply readings for those who know read, for those throughout France who have availability situations to draw a lesson from what they have read.

382 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

In writing these two studies, I had intended to

to clearly fix the movement of current life, to show at work the social authorities: Parliament, Magistrates, Press, Academies; to show everyone how Society operating in a subversive mode, everything that would seem to be the one to protect honest people, would in reality ensure the success of the big thieves First, impunity second.

After these two large canvases, I present to you a sketch of a completely different kind. These two chapters Regarding social documentation, I will add it, if you would like. Please, the picture of a municipal election in Paris.

The proportions, this time, are quite reduced. It's no longer a question of hundreds of millions, but of a modest seat as a city councillor. Instead to be scattered over a vast area and to go from Pacific shores at the Mont- suburb stream Marten, the interest is confined to the narrow space of a Parisian neighborhood. For those who have the leisure and the a love of reading, the subject will nonetheless be suggestive and fruitful in reflections, because, apart from general ideas that it will inspire, it will allow us by its very nature to look at the physiognomy of life present in a small corner of the capital.

The main theme itself is quite simple.

Here is a writer who has earned his reputation through... resounding works. This writer was not raised by the Religious; he did not receive the slightest service from the priestly party, when that party was all-powerful; he did not He only declared himself a Christian when the Church was persecuted. té. It was then that, in defense of her, he made himself heard a voice that resonated throughout the world.

This writer has lived in the same neighborhood for fifteen years. third, he occupies a small pavilion that all of Paris knows; It was there that, in full view of everyone, a An existence that was entirely about work.

At the time of the municipal elections, he had the idea of

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 383

To submit his application, he thought to himself: "Well, the opportunity is..." good for presenting my ideas. The workers of this

The residents of this neighborhood are, for the most part, of French origin; they they may have the good sense to understand the dangers that the invasion of German Jews is causing them to run come to carry out raids on our land, like the coup Brass instruments. In any case, he adds mentally, I—I will always have the voices of my Catholic brothers that, For many years, I have always encountered the di-sleeve at Mass, or at Easter, at the communal table nion. » |

This reasoning is not at all extravagant.

This forty-five-year-old writer, who had a million readers, does not demonstrate ambition excessive in seeking a seat on the Municipal Council pal.

He doesn't harm anyone's interests, since he hasn't no conservative opponent in his district; he does not trouble, no acquired rights. Facing him, he has only two competitors who have a chance.

One is an opportunistic-radical Freemason, free-thinker and secularist, and not hiding it.

The other is a young man of twenty-seven, without no kind of mere thing, completely outside the Church and whose conduct is far from exemplary; he is a laughingstock even of the Boulangist party, to which he claims to belong-nier.

Under these conditions, it is clear that the man of va-their, the well-known writer, the practicing Catholic, must counting on the votes of the Catholics in the neighborhood.

By showing you the influential Catholics of the circ-conscription relentlessly trying to prevent entry to City council this writer who is Catholic as As for them, I am not acting out of personal resentment. I simply propose to let you experience some

-pointing at what the Catholic party is, or rather, its baseness, the imbecility, cowardice, perfidy, and selfishness of those who boast of being the leaders of this party.

384 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This is the goal I set for myself in this a study for which I ask your indulgence, because

I am obliged to talk about myself there, since, as well as
As you guessed, this is the election of the Big-Caillou, in April 1890.

He

A tour of the neighborhood. – A bit of election statistics.
The members of my church council. – Monarchists and Bonapartists. – Captain Lambelin. – Baron Legoux.
– My priest. – A sensible Swiss man. – The brave ones.
people. – The union of the dismissed. – The cowardice of the dis-distinguished.

First, I'm going to give you a tour of my neighborhood. The whole world passed through it at the time of The exhibition and nobody saw it.

It's a mixed neighborhood, as we used to say of certain... certain clothes in the Middle Ages. It is both aristocratic-crat and popular; it is a mixture of Menilmonboth from Montrouge and from the Faubourg Saint-Germain;
It is aristocratic, with the Avenue de Latour-Maubourg and Bosquet Avenue, where sumptuous hotels stand modern, almost rustic at the top of the street of the University with its low houses, its (grounds waves, its enclosures where laundry is hung out to dry, its Chickens pecking on the pavement, garrison town with Lamothe-Piquet Avenue and the area around the school military, always crisscrossed by officers and soldiers.

There are picturesque cabarets there with Gazebos and painted signs: A must-see!
boatmen or À la bonne matelote which date from a time when Gros-Caillou was almost a suburb and where people used to go to these parts to eat fried food like

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 385

in Asnières today; streets attractive because of their solitude itself, this Surcouf street, for example, hu-midday, cool in the middle of summer, where footsteps echo in the si-incense as in certain streets of the Marais where it does not
No ten cars pass by in a day.

Instead, venture into the surrounding streets

Nantes, around noon or around six o'clock; you are right in the middle of factory district. You see the workers marching by. encampment, mostly former soldiers, who have still a military look; then it's the exit of the tobacco factory, of those old cigar makers or young and pretty as a picture, or worn and withered early on due to the double fatigue of motherhood and work. The merchants of the four seasons watch—The doors open and people crowd around the small cars to buy what's needed to prepare the meal of the husband who will return home on his own. All these women's tongues upon which the instruction weighed from the workshop, they untie themselves as best they can, and for a while Within a quarter of an hour the street filled with a joyful movement.

Take a few steps away from all this noise, pre-nose the quay of Orsay, along which the Decau-city, and you will feel transported a hundred leagues away from Paris, on a mall, a boulevard, a provincial boulevard and you will stop to dream under these tall trees which will disappear. That's the question of Moulineaux. which I've heard about so often in meetings electoral. We all want the head of the line of the Moulineaux railway or at the Alma bridge; the Western company, to get a head start and to intervene in the future Metropolitan, claims to all force, and despite the unanimous protests of the inhabitants, install this station at the esplanade of the Invalides; Through bribery, she will get what she wants. and will wreak havoc on this part of Paris.

A little further on, you will find the marble depot. It's a quiet, shady spot, wonderful for working with all kinds of large statues

°2

386 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

men: some are awaiting their next inauguration-tion; the others ceased to please and were put back-stayed there until the day their turn came to eat again. to return to the squares.

I often went to see Clésinger there. He had a The workshop was as big as a market hall, but the door was too narrow for him to fit a horse in and he complained bitterly about the government.

It is typical of a sculptor, moreover, to complain. I I have never seen a sculptor who did not protest against something or against someone; the sculptors... drag on like this and then they fight with more energy.
train with earth and marble.

As for the electoral situation in the district, it is simple. The number of Conservative votes there fluctuates between 1,500 and 1,400 votes. Mr. Deville, in the municipal elections municipal elections of January 30, 1886, obtained 1,509 votes; Mr. Da-Guilhon Pujol, in the elections of May 8, 1887, had 1,411 votes. In the last legislative elections, where the votes Conservatives were divided, Cochin still had .086 voices, exclusively Catholic.

However, of the 613 votes I was able to gather, I certainly did not
He didn't get 300 Catholic votes and it's easy to forget about it. convince. I barely managed to get a few votes in the second-tion of the avenue Bosquet which is the Saint-Ger- suburb main area, and it was the popular section, the section of Camou Street, which gave me the number of votes the highest. There were some brave workers there who They said to themselves, "It is unfortunate that this man should go to the Mass, but he is still right to ask Why don't we arrest financiers who steal so much?
millions, while arrests and driving are carried out prison of poor devils who steal a tablet of "Penny chocolate."

The members of the Parish Council, with whom I had dinner at my priest's house, they all voted against me, at with the exception of the Viscount of Damascus. Just to please him

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 387

To Baron Reille, some were quite mischievous.
to boast of having preferred a minor author to a Christian Look, just like them. I see another one, a big guy.
with the head of Iscariot, a mischievous eye and a solemn-prefectural unit, which was handing me some time after the chaplain at the church. I couldn't help but re-to keep with such contempt that the unfortunate man almost to drop his purse.

Reille publicly congratulated himself on having made the vote an entire mutual aid society was against me.

on which, it seems, he exerts some influence.
conch shell.

Despite de Mun, who was very good in this circumstance stance, half of the members of the Catholic Circle, to whom I have been paying my dues for eight years, voted against me.

Don't assume that I behaved in a di-literate, that I considered my candidacy simply like an opportunity to put up posters on walls and to assert my ideas while waiting at home for the result.

I attempted this challenge with great awareness, as I do everything I undertake, even when This doesn't amuse me. I've put myself in the position of... the necessary actions to have a vote count that would Honor to my cause.

In the days when parties still existed, the suf-Conservative factions, in Gros-Caillou, were divided roughly equally between monarchists and Bonapartists.

The monarchist party was represented by the Committee action of the seventh arrondissement, whose office they met in Place Saint-François-Xavier, where they had founded a small, popular library.

The chairman of the Committee was actually one of my Friends, Captain Lambelin.

Lambelin is a fine type of soldier, a man of acier, dry, sharp, slightly pointed at the corners, pro-fundamentally good and kind once you get to know him.

388 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

In Tonkin, he was not gentle with his men, but he he got everything he wanted from them, because he was Always moving forward. In Parisian life, he is the same.
After a stormy public meeting, two hundred People were shouting: "Long live the Commune!" Lambelin takes off his hat and, simply, without provocation, without With arrogance, in that stiff tone that was so characteristic of him, he said:
"Long live the king, gentlemen!"

Lambelin, in fact, is a fervent Orleanist. He is the the only passionate Orleanist I have ever known and he did not miss the opportunity to get arrested at the mo- the trial of the Duke of Orléans, by going to deliver a crown on the statue of Henry IV.

This man, so distinguished in every respect, did not have He has only one flaw: he admires the Revue bleue. In Haiphong and in Saigon he had seen it on many tables in European salons; he wanted to found a similar one, but in a less sectarian and less narrow spirit; to Upon his return to France, he created Samedi-Revue, where he he gathered around him elite writers who spent They have a lot of talent there. Like the Conservatives they subscribe to hardly any newspapers except those that are more or less Judaizing, Samedi-Revue only lasted a year. Lambe- Lin, I believe, only experienced a moderate grief at his failure- these, because his fortune allows him to pay himself from time to time in time, the luxury of a magazine.

Lambelin came to me and said: "Introduce- So you went to Gros-Caillou, instead of going to ask the question- Semitic tradition in another district, our Committee will support you beyond any political point of view tick.

I went to this Committee and I saw many good people there as there are still some in corners of old Paris twice, workers, merchants, small rentiers faithful to the traditions of old France. I will show them- I told them my ideas; they accepted them and they acclaimed my application. I didn't fool anyone. One of the seated- so many having expressed the desire that I bet on my poster: Conservative candidate, I tell him frankly- ment: "No. I like honesty in words, I find The political regime we are subjected to is harmful and deadly. sounds, I have only one desire: to rid myself of them Homeland. Wouldn't that be a lie, under these conditions? tions, than to declare oneself a conservative? Would one understand- on a man who would say: "I had the misfortune to attract- Perla syphilis, but I am conservative and I insist on the "preserve"?

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 389

As I was leaving, I was told: "You can count on "We do, but we are not responsible for the Bonapartists."

The next morning, the Committee sent me a note of three francs fifty, the amount of oil which had burned during that memorable discussion and I paid for it with joy, thinking that we could at least accuse of having been subsidized by the monarchist party. * I then hailed a cab, saying to the driver: "Rue de "Lisbon," and I went to find Baron Legoux, who received me with infinite kindness and goodwill grace.

You can well imagine that Baron Legoux doesn't disagree. He did not mandate the re-establishment of the Empire at Gros-Caillou, no more than Lambelin had asked me to restore the Monarchy. A scholar himself, he knew me better. that nobody; he knew that I had always lived in de- outside of political headquarters, which I had no political opinion, and which I preferred a hundred times over, as all French people, moreover, an honest Republic to a corrupt monarchical government; that I have- I would prefer, for example, a Republic with a Garcia Moreno as president, rather than a monarchy with a despicable scoundrel like Crispi as prime minister.

He told me, "You want these financiers punished." cosmopolitans who are ruining our unfortunate France, you want the appeal to the People to try to get out of the mud into which we are sinking deeper and deeper; all Our friends agree with you and they will all vote for you. YOU " .

22.

390 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

I finally went to find my priest. I don't have, moreover- theirs, far to go; my wall is shared with that of the The rectory and my windows overlook the garden. I see, during the day, the big dog ravaging the flowerbeds and, At night, I hear the sonorous voice of the faithful animal who defends the pastor's house.

He is a worthy man, my priest, a priest from the Pa- laughter from the past more than from the Paris of today.

We have some very complicated priests in Paris: the a financial priest, like the one from Saint-Honoré, who jumped like a simple stagehand; the collector priest, like Abbot Lerrebours, who will arrive in front of the sorting-God's baptism as if before an exhibition jury retrospective, with a collection of enviable trinkets to the celebrities of curiosity... My priest, on the other hand, is simply a priest.

The furniture in the presbytery is that of a priest of countryside; the study has only one piece of furniture. The old bailiff's office and the living room are hardly elegant.

My priest, who came from a good bourgeois family, had however, a fairly considerable heritage when it entered the Orders, but he gave everything, simply, without fanfare, without music.

No one is less noisy, indeed, than my pastor; No one is less "fin de siècle". In the high life Catholic in his neighborhood, he is regarded as a Stupid. That's the opinion of handsome gentlemen and beautiful ladies. Ladies; it's not mine. He talks to me gladly, because we have a popular side that reminds us of... close, and I always found him very witty, very subtle. like the old priests who have seen a lot and beautiful-a sudden observation, and a completely instructive conversation tive and profitable. In the pulpit, it is admirable to simulate complicity and anointing, and when he says the Lord's Prayer, he He's really stirring, because you can feel that he's praying with all his heart. heart. .

The poor priest must, however, live a life. He had little contact with the wider world. His parish, as I said, has two aspects; it is both aristocratic and popular.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 891

The Jewish element has even already made some inroads into the quarter-third and it is represented on Avenue Bosquet by the Cahen from Antwerp, who follow me everywhere. I run into their crews when I'm in town and I meet up with them barbed wire when I'm in the fields.

I imagine that if we had the idea of doubling the parking and to give my Eure a choice, his choice does not. It wouldn't take long: he would choose the workers' quarter and the poor, and would leave the selected neighborhood to some worldly priest who would quickly make a name for himself there pretty ball of yarn. In fact, it's always on the side of the streets where It is painful to encounter this priest after one's own heart. of Jesus Christ; he will do good there, but almost in hidden and always silent.

The excellent man had his trials. The marquises and the countesses of the neighborhood did try to put on the train and launch into the Gaul a any month of Mary, where more or less women Less separated and divorced people would have sung the praises of the Immaculate Virgin to the tune of Offen-Bach; he said nothing, because he doesn't like open conflict.
But he evaded the issue and, without appearing to do so, he discouraged.
all these fine people, through an apparent attitude of inertia-An income that hides a very sharp mind. High society saw that there was nothing to be done with him and he was por-elsewhere his religious posturing.

So I went to see my pastor and I said to him, "My Dear priest, you know that I present myself as a candidat at the Municipal Council in the Gros- district Pebble.

- Ah! my poor child, how you are going to have of evil!

- What do you want? Here are the first lilacs that are budding, and I'd rather sell Bobetm'en go to Soisy; but one must fight for one's ideas.

- May God be with you! I know that you are.

392 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Good Christian, and I will vote for you. That one too.
he added, as he walked me back and showed me the Swiss man who was busy with gardening work.

"That's settled," I said to this excellent Swiss man, "you Will you vote for me?

- Ah! sir, how could I not vote for You? Of all the candidates running, you you are the only one I meet, every Sunday, at the church, when I sound my halberd in saying: "For the needs of the factory, if you Please!

This honest man had just summed up the situation and this word will remain as the definitive lesson given to Baron Reille and his despicable friends; he indicated where was the duty of all these members of the Council to fabricate, to all those Tartuffes we see on certain days, walk behind the canopy with lit candles that they let it drip onto the clothes of the faithful.

You can see the situation from here; there was only one left. The guidelines for Catholics in the neighborhood: s'em- do their best to support a candidate who was, through his life as well as his writings, the representative of their ideas.

The children did not fail in this duty and I saw the Treasure of devotion that still exists in this good a world that is gradually disappearing, but whose debris persist here and there like the image of generations in disappearing.

From this point of view, an election campaign is truly- Interesting. Upon entering these houses in front which we have passed by indifferently for so many years, in climbing dark and rough stairs, we are surprised to find that so many people still exist full of zeal, faith, and goodwill, so many people not fearing their punishment.

The household has an interior reminiscent of a bygone era, like that of a craftsman. of this shoemaker on Avenue de La Motte-Piquet, who was so eager for me. You arrive there, you find The man, the woman, the child working by virtue of their profession. From that they heard the general alarm, all of them set in motion. The father, built like a Her- he follows you to public meetings and he does it there his stentorian voice resounded, his good, working-class voice which sounds vibrant and warm.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 393

The woman, valiant as a Vendée native, mul- Tiplie for you, runs around the neighborhood, inspects the work display operators take your cause more to heart than you do. same. It evokes the countryside of yesteryear and De- a city that almost made it and missed out on a few voice only; if he had listened to her, he would have been appointed!

The child distributes your printed materials as they leave the factory. tobacco bills or workshops. All of this in the same way the most passionate and also the most cordial and the most selfless, unwilling to accept anything, and by intervening denying in a thousand ways to make you spend the least of money possible.

This is the old world of the Rey family enclosure as described by Daudet, the world of the artisans of Nîmes or porters from Marseille, the energetic race of the royals plebeian lists that the Count of Chambord never knew how to use it and which, for nearly a century, remained Faithful without knowing exactly what for, ready to devote herself without the armchair politicians ever suspecting a thing the extent of this devotion.

The Bonapartists also have a staff that Nothing could bring him down, which undoubtedly sees his ranks to become clearer each day through death, but which is not still completely dispersed.

The president of the Bonapartist committee of Gros-Caillou, a little tired now, was for a long time the type of A militant Bonapartist, from the ever-solid Ratapoil to post. Former regimental provost marshal, built, him Also, as an athlete, he always looks superb in a meeting electoral union. He runs a furnished hotel, Passage Saint-Dominique, and he built a veritable garden there...

394 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

hanging where fruit trees grow. Nothing is curious as to suddenly find oneself in the middle of greenery, after having crossed this vulgar passage and gloomy, where people are crammed together, so as not to live too far from their work, poor working-class households.

The kindest assistant I have ever met in this campaign, was the vice-president of the Bona- committee partyist. I have kept the memory of that young couple where, once again, the Paris of yesteryear came to life.

The husband is a sales representative; the wife is a seamstress and employs a few workers. When I had climbed that damp staircase, with its sticky banister, I found this graceful young woman in the middle of a swarm of little girls and, right away, when I had him I explained my situation, she made herself available to me gen-

They fought bravely and she, too, distributed some professions of faith as long as she was able.

All these people, mind you, live off their work, they don't have He has very little time to himself. The husband is busy all day. During the day, he only came home in the evening, and it wasn't much that on Sunday morning I could find him at Him. Never mind! These beings of spontaneity and integrity are with you as soon as you have caused a quarter an hour with them, eye to eye, as soon as they They feel sincere. The vice-president of the Bona- committee The party member is not clerical, but he saw in the com- mere the infamies committed by the Jews and, as soon as he understood that by fighting the hoarders and the vo- "Them, I will fight for France," he did everything. that he was able to do to assist me.

© Even among those who were hostile to me because they They were bakers, I met many honest people and loyal, whose hands I was happy to shake.

The union of dismissed employees was based at Mr. Lint- zer, wine merchant, avenue de La Motte-Piquet where Mr. Catherin, the vice-president of the union, lived there.

This was like a third manifestation of this need for devotion which is in the soul of the people

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 395

Parisian. All these naive people had believed in Boulanger, they they had thrown themselves headlong into the movement, they had been cruelly hit and deprived of their jobs which provided for them and their families. They had moments of sadness, they felt they had been exploited, that they had served as instruments for the cunning of the group who had themselves appointed as deputies and who they scorned them, now that they no longer had any need. Nevertheless, in April 1890, after the shameful escape, after the ultimate revelations, they they still believed in Boulanger, the fugitive, calm- settled in Jersey with his mistress and living in luxury, thanks to the money swindled from the Orleanists, pen- while his supporters were dying of hunger.

When you've had a vermouth with convincing... With similar cases, you have a completely new vision of the story of Napoleon I. It was only then that

You understand well the faith that they must have in this man, those who had seen him in fifty battles, who had entered with him into all the capitals of Europe.

This neighborhood of the school with its distant taratatas in the barracks, its officers' cafes, its soldiers who return to the neighborhood, suddenly transforms, and you Imagine what the state of mind of the entire population must have been. soldier who was camped there between two campaigns, between Austerlitz and Jena.

In any case, I found no evidence among these victims of Politics, what good practices, such attention to detail They listened attentively when I explained to them how Boulangism had been a lost cause as soon as the Naquet and Meyer, the Jews, had slipped in there to betraying everyone; they were a little angry with me for it. Last Battle, but they recognized, along with me, that I had the right and the duty, as a historian, to write what I believed to be the truth.

One of their own, Citizen Boulogne, who, after having fought for fifteen years in the neighborhood for the

396 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Republic, was abruptly revoked in circumstances particularly cruel constants, was charming for me. He had taken care of those workers from the Campe—who are paid a pittance and who, after after many years of service, they eventually obtained With great difficulty, a semblance of retirement. Upon learning that I was interested in this question; he handed me the volume—nine files that he had gathered, only in the thinking that it might serve a cause he believed in just.

As for my competitors, they were always for I, with impeccable courtesy, except for Mr. Delagneau who, after asking me for money to install his application, had the audacity to prevent me from entering an election meeting organized by him, — which does not I don't think that's ever happened in a Parisian election.

Lopin was Lopin, he remained Lopin, which was his right, that is to say, the perfect current city councillor, the man who obviously corresponds to a state of mind since it is being renamed.

Apart from him, there were three other candidates: Sellier, proofreader at the Official Journal, a great grammarian with an open face and speaking very well; a Lelorrain, a possibilist, who also spoke quite a bit, but it was impossible to tear them away from the stands when he had settled there; finally, a gentle man, a pharmacist Volland, who came to dispense some phrases with an air of unfathomable melancholy.

I had nothing but praise for everyone. I didn't find, on a single occasion, in the presence of a being belonging to the true people without encountering any kindness and sincerity. God knows if I've seen any Men from different backgrounds! I talked with the representatives of all branches of government: from coal-merchants and grocers, seed merchants and lamplighters, wine merchants and cabinetmakers...

I even remember talking with a butcher-

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 397

a third of gigantic size and who, with his knife in hand his belt gave the impression of an ancient priest. I would have eventually won him over to my opinions, if I weren't He arrived at a bad time. He was just coming to make his "little fat ones", and all sorts of pastries. Steaming teas gave off appetizing smells; it was like a feast of fresh pork products. We washed by everything with plenty of water, and, to chat, he introduced me into a little corner where some sausages were being prepared. I told him Say politely: "I don't want to take up too much of your time, because I see that you are busy with useful things. I simply wanted to hand in my homework to you, as As a candidate, I am presenting myself, as you know, as an anti-mite - which is not at all displeasing to you - and I "I take the liberty of sharing my program with you." He] He replied, "I'm not saying no!"

This kind man was much loved by the candidates. dates. From time to time, in the middle of a speech, one heard a deep voice crying out with a With a tone of conviction: "There's some good in that!" He repeated this several times each evening. but with a commendable eclecticism, whatever the can-

Didat, and you can't imagine, when you're on the springboard, in a public hall or in a schoolyard school, as this word of encouragement does pleasure. v

Among those I saw or who came to see me, beautiful- They were, no doubt, separated from me by abysses, or at least they believed they were separate from them, thanks to the slander spread against me by the Republican press in the pay of the Jews, but they had a certain sympathy nonetheless for the honest man a man who fought for his ideas.

However, I did not find any support, any information- a handshake among Catholics wealthy people who live in the grand hotels of the district. There of the Jesuit students, not a single one remembered I had once defended his masters.

23

398 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Among these useless and idle sons of good families, there were none I didn't find a single one to come to me, to tell me: "The The campaign you are conducting with Morès must be good tiring; can we be of any use to you, can we help you? Little? You must spend a lot, do you need a little money? I'll be without par-tie to the circle or I won't bet on the next ones shopping.

All those cowardly little men stayed home. A few- Some, it is true, had their state of health as an excuse: like the young conservative in my neighborhood who The story made headlines for a few days, all the sa-Lons of Paris.

This representative of good principles that I heard to hold a conference in a church, moreover, to be a real pain-mantle, to the young men of Saint Francis Xavier, was due to marry the daughter of one of the leaders of the Right. Everything was agreed between the parents and the basket was already ordered, when, seized by a scruple, honorable After all, he came to declare to his stepfather that, wounded mercilessly by Venus, he was unable to marry.

You can imagine the look on the future father-in-law's face, who is a man full of pomp and dignity; he did not... sole, thinking that the young man had his place marked for the future in the Constitution- group nels....

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 399

III

BARON REILLE AND THE CATHOLICS OF GROS-CAILLOU

My neighbor on Latour-Manbourg Boulevard. – Three sticks of marshals in a family. – Under the Sixteenth of May. – The Catholic-financial licism. – A very busy administrator. – The bona-Baron Reille's party

The influential Catholics in my neighborhood do not... did not attempt to give any support to their brother in their predicament; they actively occupied themselves with the empe- It's expensive to succeed.

It was Baron Reille, president of the church council of Saint-Pierre du Gros-Caillou, who took charge of organiser lacampagne contre moi.

The car of Mr. Delagneau's election agent sta- every morning, it was held at the door of Mr. the Baron Reille. This agent, who I believe isn't exactly rolling in money... no more than his candidate, had suddenly taken a car per month. At the time of this election which interested all Jews; indeed, no one was Unlucky at Gros-Caillou. Never, since the helmet In Belisarius, we had never seen so much spending...

Even Naquet, more accustomed to re-duty than to give, has not broken with his habits and had not wanted to contribute to the campaign; he allegedly took 2,000 francs from the patriotic profits that he brought back-carries smokeless powder, and would have put them at the disposal Mr. Delagneau's position. It is true that, according to Mr. Delagneau, this sum was allegedly stolen by Mermeïix and would never have reached her destination. I would add that I have only moderate confidence in this story, which delves into these dirty money debates, Bakers have a specialty in this area.

What is beyond doubt, in any case, is the active Baron Reille's intervention in favor of my adversary sare.

Note well, first of all, that by thus intrigued against In my opinion, this Reille was committing a real act of treason. He is one of the leaders of the Bonapartist party, he certainly had the right to urge Baron Legoux to appoint another candidate besides me, but as soon as the baron Legoux, "SAI's general delegate," had spoken, Baron Reille only had to obey His Highness's order. That is what the president did honestly and loyally. of the Bonapartist committee of Gros-Caillou which, living a somewhat removed from contemporary events, had never—but I've heard neither about the Semitic question, nor about Jewish France, nor me; he told me: "From the moment that it is His Highness's order that has been transmitted to us through its delegate, we only have to vote for "You; in the meantime, please accept a drink."

You've captured the complete lack of restraint perfectly here, in real time. the shameless selfishness of all these conservative leaders. The flock of voters must obey the instruction and, in the Tarn, Baron Reille would find it very bad that Bonapartist voters voted against him; He is not bound by anything at all.

We had seen soldiers firing on their generals, he was reserved for the Conservatives to show us generals firing on their soldiers.

He's a guy my neighbor on the boulevard of Latour-Maubourg, Baron Reille, whom I alone appreciate—from the point of view of public life. He is the son of Marshal Reille, he married the granddaughter of the marshal Soult, Duke of Dalmatia, and he is allied to the family of Massena, Duke of Rivoli; There are therefore three marriage in his family and he takes care to remind everyone of it in any occasion.

The thin, upturned mustache, looking handsome despite an unpleasant mark on his face, this little man walks triumphantly through life with the Trophies won by three heroes. Seeing him so busy and so pleased with himself, one would always think that he arrives from Switzerland where he has just won the battle of Zurich and that he runs in Tarn-et-Garonne to gain to win the battle of Toulouse.

These somewhat boastful attitudes were not, in the beginning, without causing any trouble for our man a few inconveniences in the House. More than one once, a colleague, still unaccustomed to the ridiculousness of The character looked him straight in the face and said: "What kind of ways are these?"

In those cases, Baron Reille once again becomes the man of Sixteenth of May; he stammers and merely replies: "Don't pay any attention!" Soult stood like this in front of the lines of Torres Vedras.

Although braver than his son André Reille, whose Cowardice is legendary, Baron Reille, indeed, shone only with a moderate brilliance during the period of the Sixteenth of May. Seeing him curl his mustache, one had vast hopes were placed in him; he was entrusted with the position of Undersecretary of State at the Ministry of Integration inside and we say to ourselves: "Fourtou will be the leader, But Reille will be the enforcer.

Alas! if the head was haunted by mad terrors, the his hand seemed to be agitated by a convulsive trembling. A few old bailiffs, who have survived everything, laugh. still of those two timid people who frightened each other—how. The Fourtou venette was a venette of Gascon, noisy like a victory fanfare; the Reille's venette, to be less demonstrative, was

'as intense as that of the man from Riberac; he passed—knows his life, asking in a flat, strangled voice through emotion, if the Republicans held a grudge against him—cut.

There was a long way to go from the beautiful intrepidity of a Morny playing the game of December 2nd with the phlegm of a so-laughing at a dandy or even at the jovial cynicism of a Cons-tans, leading the anti-Boulangist campaign with the good-humored, mocking, from a maker of great appearance.

Under these circumstances, it is understandable that poor Ma-réchal, who had given his word "to go all the way", had stopped halfway. If the Memoirs of which Marshal MacMahon reportedly gave communion If you tell a few friends, if they are sincere, we will know the truth. on this point, and the former president will undoubtedly explain, that with men like Fourtou and Reille, he hesitated to engage in a battle that was already a disaster.

Baron Reille, like all the leaders, lost nothing to adventure. The little ones, the humble ones who had come-promised on the Marshal's affirmation were thrown onto the paved roads and they had to try to earn a living by any means necessary. resources; the wives of dismissed civil servants re-ta-they took off their old hats and mended their dresses as best they could... Reille and his friend Fourtou took them by the hand and had themselves appointed administrators of the Orléans railway with 25,000 francs of work tement.

The administrative side does, in fact, play a role in existence Baron Reille played an equally significant role than the military side. If he belongs by his ancestors to Victories and Conquests, he rightfully returns by himself to the History of Speculation in which Chirac has given a place.

What is Reille an administrator of? I ask myself. will you. He is the administrator of everything; he is admi-contractor of the Orleans railway and the road of Iron Belt, he is president of the council of ad-Ministry of Mines of Carmeaux; he is president of the board of directors of Alais; he is president or administrator of another company in Arnette; he is even a member of the board of directors of

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 403

Funeral services, but this time, as president of the Parish council of Gros-Caillou, and I even dare to hope that, for this reason, he will have me buried gratuitement...

It is Briareus himself in a word, Briareus of the hundred arms. Everywhere attendance tokens are received, you see Reille's arm appear with a hand at the end to feel.

You can almost hear that austere statesman sitting at all the tables and taking part in all the feasts, e-shouting in a group of Right-wing MPs: "My-Gentlemen, you see, this is what condemns the Republic, "It's because it's the regime of appetites." Soubeyran joins in the chorus and murmurs modestly: "Alas! yes, material interests are too important for the Republicans, while for us... »

As he is, the character must have had for me an invincible hatred. He is precisely the opposite of the Catholic as I understand it. It is par excellence The Catholic, involved in financial affairs, accommodated himself very well aware of the current social system, which is so monstrous and However unjust it may be, by benefiting as much as he can, while living in good understanding with the Jewish Plutocracy and n'af-showing Christian sentiments only through a kind of pose and worldly ostentation.

We ask ourselves, once again, by what right these Those people allow themselves to call Republicans a-famous and pleasure-seeking. The comparison between them and The Republicans, on the contrary, would have everything to gain. of the latter.

We can understand, at a stretch, why a poor member of parliament responsible for his family, having only his allowance to live on, is tempted by a position as administrator. How Baron Reille, who is worth millions, who owns a hotel, a castleteau, doesn't he understand on his own that he lacks compassion? balance between the mandate of a member of parliament and the functions of an ad-Minister of four or five companies? What time can he find to attend to the affairs of the country? What independence can it even have in certain questions while he is burdened with so much in-interests? What guarantee of impartiality can be offered, by for example, in the voting process for a law such as the Conventions a man who is both the administrator of a com-Railway company and member of parliament?

404 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This is self-evident and a jury would find it in-
It is undeniable that my reasoning is irrefutable.
Also, you will notice how carefully I encourage jury, quite logically, because, in definitive, it is the public figure, the deputy alone who is in cause. What I criticize this shameless job-hopper for is wanting to be both a representative of the People and administrator of so many companies.

My precautions, it is true, are quite useless. If Reille wants to sue me, he'll go find Constans with some Right-wing MPs who are experts in these indirect negotiations and will ask him to order the The criminal court declared itself competent. Constans, full of esteem for me and contempt for them, he will tell them with his mocking air: "If that pleases you-
"Sir, my children, let's go!"

IV LEO TAXIL AND THE POPE'S NUNCIUS

The sincerity of the defender of the Jews. – The cynical lies. – About Mary's Rosebush. – A Tartarin from Marseille. –
– The commodore and the commander. – My "manor" of Soisy-sous-Etiolles. – What the translations of My books. – The delicacy of Americans. – A journey to the country Garbage. – The Secret Loves of Pius IX. – The Little Sister who begs. – Outrages against the Virgin. – Offenses against morals. – An eighteenth-century print. – The Bad Book.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 405

– The Pope's Nuncio sends his card to Taxil. – Moral sense of a Roman prelate. – Distinguished Catholics do not feel than moderate indignation in the face of the ignominies spewed forth by Taxil. – The work of Saint Michael. – The great French saint of the fifteenth century. – What is done with it today. – Reserve elevated minds of free thought in the face of what Taxil, the friend of the Nuncio, covered with filth.

For their fine campaign against me, the Catholics—Léo Taxil joined the Gros-Caillou faction.

I am not expected to argue against a unworthy opponent. He frightened me for a moment, I—vow, but it wasn't when he attacked our ideas,
It was when he pretended to defend them. I was afraid that he did not pretend to support the anti-Semitic cause — which would have absolutely disgraced us.

At that time he sent us all sorts of ar—
Articles against the Jews published in Le Petit Catholique and Christian France, and that we were pretending to ignore him in order to avoid any contact with him.

It is good to say, indeed, to prove sincerity and the honesty of the gentleman who speaks "on behalf of the high clergy," that a few months before taking heat—fortunately defends Israel and declares that "the names of Rothschild, Pereire, and Cahen d'Anvers, de Hirsch, Ephrussi, Camondo are universal "Solely esteemed," Taxil attacked the Jews relentlessly.

and showed them wreaking havoc in Vienna as in Paris.

In Vienna, said the Little Catholic of October 15, 1889, the Jews are practically masters of everything. According to Recent statistics show they own 40 percent of the houses in the city and 40 others are mortgaged to them; which This amounts to saying that outside of municipal buildings and a few aristocratic palaces, all the private wealth is in their hands. In 1848, not a single Jew owned a building in the Austrian capital.

These immense riches allowed them to confiscate at their profit industry, commerce and even intellectual life—

23.

406 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

the nation's political and social issues. The Press, even government—mental, depends on their whims and is directed or written by them.

Public education at all levels has become a docile instrument of their religious hatreds; and if the project Prince Lichtenstein's school law has met with so much opposition The problem is that the Jews don't want it. There are unions universities where the teaching staff is predominantly Jewish; in Vienna, in one of the oldest universities in the world, and which by virtue of its founding letters, should be a university—a fundamentally Catholic city, the majority of professors are formed by Jews. If this continues, the famous German science will be reduced, in a time that one can plan, to courses on the Talmud and Schoutchan-Brouch.

The judiciary, the medical profession, and the bar are being invaded. by Jews. The bureaucracy is steeped in their principles and obeyed their command. There is something more heartbreaking, yet again. Thanks to the properties they acquired, the Jews in Austria hold 63 ecclesiastical patronages; so that there are as many priests forced to request their investitures to Jews! The Court itself is no longer safe from Semitic invasions, and the moment will come, without no doubt, where the archdukes will be only too happy to marry Daughters of Israel. Only the army was able to keep the Jews at bay.

In the diatribe he published against me, Taxil declares that Freemasonry has nothing to do with the Jews, that "Freemasonry was not founded by the Jews and is by no means a Jewish institution" (1). »

(4) We don't even really see the point of this silly lie. The Israelites themselves, in fact, acknowledge what is also true Their undeniable, Jewish origin of Freemasonry. In the Yearbook of the Israelite Archives, for the year of the world 5651 (of September 15, 1890 to October 2, 1891), a well-known scholar, Mr. Schwab published a very interesting article on this subject. citing the testimony of the Talmud and Rabbi Pinhus B. Yair, Mr. Schwab demonstrates that Freemasonry is copied in its minor details about the organization of the Essenes.

"Those who entered this order," said Mr. Schwab, "come They would wrap their loins in a leather apron; they would put it on by gathering to wear on themselves in an ostentatious manner

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 407

On December 18, 1889, Taxil showed in the Christian France, Freemasonry and Jewish Associations concocted to try to dishonor the figure of Joan d'Arc.

In France, sectarians dominate the assemblies deliberative, applaud the revolutionaries of Brazil; They had warned them long ago about their projects. All the Masonic Jewry of Paris and the departments sends warm congratulations to the FF .-. bré-siliens.

Here, the sect is more militant than ever. It hasn't No throne to overthrow; but the altars are still standing. Faith is reborn, the churches become full again, the people no longer listens to preachers, as he did a few years ago of atheism. There is an undeniable movement in France of return to religion: such citizens who are disinterested in the politicians highly deem that religion must be respected. Also, Jews and Freemasons seek by what means they will be able to stop this movement.

They'll do anything.

An example: – We know how much Joan of Arc is sympathetic to the people; she is the personification of Christian France; its wonderful history proves how much

God loves our country. Well, in the presence of the testimonies more numerous and more vivid days of admiration from our compatriots for the heroic virgin of Domrémy, the Frances-Freemasons and Jews, worthy sons of Voltaire, are plotting to diminish, in the eyes of the people, the great figure of liberation-trice of France.

the emblem of their zeal and activity. '– Similarly, in the "Freemasonry, he who is received into the first degree or as an ap-

. prenti porte ccmme insignia, dans les assemblées (more precisely (in the outfits), the white leather apron.

"It is evident once again," Mr. Schwab concluded, that Freemasonry is connected to, both in its overall structure and in its details, to Judaism; it was according to him that it was formed, organized and, to His example, his followers spread throughout the region. face of the earth.

The few clergymen who trusted what was written

Léo Taxil now know what to expect regarding its veracity.

408 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

They have, in effect, staged a supposedly popular drama, which will be performed soon in Paris: Joan of Arc is the the subject of this play. And, to represent the per- The sublime Christian woman's son, the enemies of God have chose a Jewish actress whose scandalous affairs regularly make headlines in the tabloids diers. This Jewish woman will strive to play the role of Joan of Arc in the wrong direction; she will make her a hallucinating, hysterical woman; it will give her extravagant airs; of the holy girl She will make a crazy and grotesque virago.

This plot by the boulevardier Jewry will fail, we will We are convinced. Joan of Arc is above all others. Masonic enterprises. Despite our attempt If we denounce it, the people will admire and venerate without reservation the he- royal child, who, inspired by God, saved from the invasion our dear French homeland.

This is how Jews were spoken about in December 1889 the one who was supposed to rent them warmly in April 1890! I wish that the Jews, reduced to using a pa- reil defender, have adequately paid for this misfortune- reux. The welcome they had received from the true writers the futile attempts they had made until then must have We'll make the fees a little more flexible. remembers Villiers de l'Isle-Adam's response to at the very moment when he found himself in the most extreme misery. He was offered the opportunity to write a book to refute the Jewish France. "We will give you whatever you want," they told him. "Oh," he said disdainfully, "the price has been set for some time now." 1800 years; that's Judas's wage: thirty pieces of silver.

Everything Taxil wrote about me is absolutely as true as what he wrote about Pius IX that he told us shows abusing the Clelia and Felicita that their con- the teacher had them asleep and saturated with opium to deliver them to Mastai.

Of everything contained in this volume, I will not mention that the passage relating to Mary's Rosebush, because it allows us to capture the character's impudence in the moment.

I was surprised, in Last Battle, that the Rosier de Marie inserted articles by Naquet.

Taxil shows Mr. Lautier arriving at my house to me demand explanations.

He hadn't expected such a visit. He imagined, probably, the Rosebush of Mary had a committee at its head old maids, and that his attack, which was unmotivated, pro-would evoke sterile lamentations.

When he saw before him an old, green, and robust soldier, an officer of the Legion of Honour who didn't look happy,
He hastened to offer profuse apologies. If the
The commander had raised his voice; he was going back underground.

I ask those who hate me the most, me do they see clearly, going back underground upon arrival of what-than a home?

My views on dueling are well known. I have never but sent witnesses to those who had most violently insulted. I have never refused, I do not refuse-I will never repair anything for someone I have attack.

I believe that in our age of universal lies, he
It is necessary to tell the truth, and by this truth, I mean
To put it in my own way, but it is clear that, by the fact that I discuss someone's actions with a certain Harshly, I sign a promissory note to this person on me and that I would be, like Ferry, "the last of the "cowards," if I didn't live up to my signature.

This consideration never stopped me. After the Meyer's duel, which was a mere assassination attempt,
I had rather sharply criticized Messrs. Saucède and Washiewicz who were undoubtedly the first Paris shooters. Mr. Washiewicz, in particular, was known as a marksman of unparalleled virtuosity;
He was the Paganini of foil fencing.

The matter was settled between us in the following way.

more courteous, as almost always happens between good people. The letters exchanged on this subject were published by the newspapers. These gentlemen acknowledged the first ones that they had been mistaken and I made hom- Their honor was beyond question.

410 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

has been for the best and I have had the pleasure since lunch- to meet Saucède at our excellent friend Gaston's place Jollivet. Saucède even wanted, at the end of lunch, he taught me a low-shooting technique and he gave me a foil strike right at the top, to the top of the head. But I didn't hold it against him...

What I did for Messrs. Saucède and Washiewicz, I did it for everyone I felt I should talk about. the world knows that there is no man in Paris less I'm less of a braggart than myself, less Captain Fracasse, less de-radiate from armories; no one either I doubt it, I believe, that to defend my ideas I am very calmly determined to do anything.

As for disrespecting me in my own home, that would require... You'd be crazy to even think about it. I always have some in my pocket my trousers, like Mr. Paul de Cassagnac and Mr. Henri Rochefort, an excellent revolver that was given to me carefully chosen by Gastinne Renette, and which I de-charge every two weeks to make sure it works It works well. I couldn't be assassinated except by... striking from behind in the evening; there is on the platform d'Orsay, a very deserted and very dark place which would be very suitable for that.

I would add that, like Taxil, one must never have attacked that priests and Sisters of Charity, and be completely unfamiliar with matters of honor, to imagine himself- to giner that there is cause for a duel in both lines regarding Naquet's collaboration at Le Rosier de Marie. In that case, Mr. Lautier wouldn't have come. himself. When you want a meeting, you send two of his friends, quite certain that with the zeal of friendship They will make sure to muddy the waters.

The truth is that Mr. Lautier showed up at my house: in the most suitable way, and that he was received in -man: well-bred by a well-bred man.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 Aii

The director of Marie's Roster has nothing, by the way, ...the mannerisms that Taxil attributes to him. The author of the Amours Pius IX's secret claims that I saw before me "a old soldier, green and robust, officer of the Legion of honor, and he didn't look happy.

However, Mr. Lautier is not old, he is not a soldier, He is not green, he is not robust, he is not an officer of the Legion of Honour; the only point that is somewhat The near truth in Taxil's account is that he had not He looked content. Physically, he was a man between two at ages, more inclined towards the second than the first, one of those men who are said to be making a comeback when it might be more accurate to say that they are about to leave.

He's not a bad man, I believe, but He's a real Tartarin of Marseille, a deserving sacristan-dional of a most curious kind. Naquet, who is from Carpentras, he wrote to him "my dear commander"; As for him, he modestly signs "the command. Lau-third party," but he eventually came to believe that he was actually commander.

This is the story of this Englishman who had taken a trip In Paris, he had been so ill during the tra-the crossing from Dover to Calais which he no longer wanted to cross Island strait, he settled among us; a joker called him a day "the commodore". This name stuck with him; during For fifty years he was for everyone "the comm-" "Dore X." In the end, he was absolutely convinced that he had commanded squadrons and circled the globe ten times world. As for the circle, we didn't agree on one Regarding maritime matters, we would say: "Let's address ourselves to... "Commodore"; and he was gravely giving a consultation.

These minor quirks don't harm anyone. People Some people are content with a smile. Men, these illusions, in the long run, become so deeply ingrained. with the true personality, that touching the imaginary being pairing would wound the real being in the most painful way. himself,

The situation only becomes dangerous when a Taxil brings this out of the half-measure and gives it a brutal accentuation, and transforming a ridiculous situation of which one jokes into a lie that one is forced to unhide.

It is therefore good to put everyone in their place.

Before becoming president of the Saint-Bar Association Pierre, Mr. Lautier, who has never been a commander, had been an accountant for some time in a firm of bank, then he had been involved in setting up a insurance company, Clémentine, intended for to insure the churches.

As for the lawyers of Saint-Pierre, it was imposed upon me— It is impossible to know exactly what this institution was. tion. A certain Count Agnielli dei Malherbi had indeed attempted in the past to found a similar company, but the The Roman Secretariat of State had to intervene at the following abuses that had occurred and the project appeared— knows it has been abandoned.

Taxil is not content with simply making Mr. Lautier this that he is not; he attributes to him, as well as to me, remarks which have never been kept.

The speech that this attributes to me in this instance... Taxil's liar, is a continuation of the speeches he attributed to Mastai.

After stammering for quite some time, Mr. Drumont finished by saying:

— Ah! I'm so annoyed by everything that's happening to me... it's It's discouraging... everyone's attacking me, it's... which will overwhelm me; I am swamped with complaints. They're conspiring to deceive me... I see what it is; they're... gives false information here and there, in order to discredit To say my work... You see, I'm the one who's the victim in all of this.

"But really," said Commander Lautier, "from whom do you get—" Are you telling the lie that you printed in your book?

— How am I supposed to know? How do you expect me to?

Remember me? I have so much to do, so many worries, so much Worries! I'm losing my mind... Wait, I think I'm... To come... Yes, that's it... A long time ago. A little dark-haired man, with sideburns... No, his whole beard, he It seems to me... It appears he knew me... He stopped me in the street; he congratulated me on my works, on my campaign— He was against the Jews... And he said to me at the end: "You are right to attack Naquet; he's a phony, he eats at two racks; at the same time as he collaborated on Voltaire, he is the principal editor of The Rosebush of Mary; he is the first to laugh about it and tell the story.

Here, on the contrary, is the verbatim response I gave to Mr. Lautier.

"I never write anything without having done my research with a lot of care and without being sure that one thing is true as much as one can have certainty in the human affairs. The fact of Naquet's collaboration. I was told about the Rosebush of Mary last spring denied by Mr. Le Hérissé, with whom I was having lunch at Brébant restaurant, in the company of Mr. Mermeix, since deputy of Paris and then editor of the Co-carde, and Mr. Willenich, administrator of the Co-carde. Mermeix confirmed to me what Mr. Le had told me Bristling, and yet, despite everything, I had gestures of Denial, Mr. Le Hérissé mimed Naquet lying down for me in an armchair, after a good dinner, and exclaiming: "Isn't this annoying! I have to go write an article." for the Rosebush of Mary (1). »

I reproduced this answer in the 120th Century,' at at the moment when Mr. Lautier felt compelled to protest publicly— lie against this passage from Last Battle, and neither Neither Mr. Le Hérissé, nor Mr. Mermeix, nor Mr. Willenich

(1) Do you want to see what this very clear statement becomes under Taxil's pen: "He (Mr. Drumont) unconsciously writes what It crosses his mind and he is bewildered when asked for explanations. cations. He no longer knows where he gets his information from, he has "He lost his memory."

They contradicted me, because what I had said was the expression even of the truth.

Admittedly, there's a long way to go from that statement to this... theoretic to the babble that Taxil attributes to me, and one will then acknowledge that, for an important detail Secondary after all, the testimony of three people Mr. Naquet's friends had sufficient documentation health to support what I was writing.

If Mr. Lautier had had this frankness, which is lacking unfortunately, all too often within the Catholic party He could have replied to me: "Your good faith is beyond question." -Regarding any dispute, you have inquired with absolutely reliable sources; only we have a little -exaggerated the scope and extent of this collaboration. Naquet was not the collaborator of the Rosier de Marie in the ordinary sense of the word; we have done simply campaigning together at the time of the mou-baker's garment (1). »

(1) For those who can read, the letter written by Naquet to clear The "dear commander" shows that I am absolutely right.

"Dear Commander,

"I see that, despite my denials, however clear and so Categorically, we continue to make noise about this absurdity. fable: my collaboration on the Rosebush of Mary.

"I think that, despite how ridiculous they are, these allegations are likely to bore you, just as they tire me out myself, and, to put an end to this once and for all, I come to you Please insert in your newspaper a strong protest of my share against rumors that are absolutely unjustified.

"I have had the honor of knowing you for many years." During the Boulangist campaign, you were resolutely placed on the ground of national reconciliation; if having followed This common policy means we have been collaborators, we have summer: we have, in effect, each worked in our own sphere, on this work of appeasement and national recovery.

"If, on the other hand, one wants to claim, by this word 'collaboration', that I provided you with articles and that you inserted them, We are stating something absolutely inaccurate and that your character

– I understand the character of your sheet – wouldn't have been more allowed me to accept that I wouldn't have been able to offer it to you

"Please accept..." To A. Naquet.

.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 415

That's most likely where the truth lies. Naquet was linked for a long time with Mr. Lautier who had busy with business like him; he will have written an article in the Rosebush on the Tours speech, and, to give of importance to his friends, he would have said that he was very influential in the Catholic party, and that he was the regular contributor to Le Rosier de Marie.

Everything in this book is of the same order. It is no longer the attack, often amusing and witty in its perfidie that I usually find in my opponents, It's a stupid and crude lie, a cowardly lie and lazy, who doesn't even bother to sit down to increase; this is the assertion of the former Anticlerical, the assertion of facts that are known to be false.

According to Taxil, I earned 552,000 francs with my books; 272,000 francs from Jewish France alone!

All of this is completely false. Jewish France having been printed at my own expense, the photographs being my absolute ownership, I could have claimed, no doubt, some substantial royalties, or sharing the profits with the publisher; however, my copyright in France Jewish rights have always been inferior to my copyright. on the other volumes for which the publishers paid the impression.

The matter is easily understood. The essential point was then to pass on this book, which carried such a noble and such a generous idea, which could have done so much good for country, to spread it throughout the world. To succeed It was necessary to interest the publishers in the success, and above all, Marpon, an excellent man, whose passing I regretted, but who was infinitely more of a money man, More greedy, less literate than Mr. Flammarion. He it was a moment of flux and on the verge of letting go circumvented by the Jews, who wanted to stifle the work;

But when he saw the large profit at stake, he made his decision.
was superb and replied to everyone: "We serve the cause

416 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

"Ideas," and he always dispatched them. Through sheer dedication to service.
the cause of ideas, he ended up buying a yacht which extended his life by three years.

My translation rights paid for my house.
countryside near Soisy-sous-Étiolles... Now, my house
The countryside is not my property.

This house is a real thatched cottage, like This has been observed by the countless reporters who are came to visit me; she is known in the country as the called "the house without windows"; it turns without with her back to the road, as if she despised the vain movement of the passing world, to position itself opposite of Nature and to contemplate the work of God.

This cottage, which the Jewish Archives ap-pompously call "my manor of Soisy-"Étiolles" contains three rooms, one for working, one one for eating, one for sleeping, a guest room, a stable for Bob and a large, half-wild garden vage. I rent the whole thing for 800 francs a year from the Count de Vandeul, who lives at 116, avenue des Champs-Élyséessées, and near which one can obtain information.

Not a day goes by that this house is not re-approached by French journalists in the pay of Israel, who find it quite simple that German Jews possess thanks to their shameless speculations, do-immense estates and princely castles.

You see the poor profession of trained dogs barking at the French, what are these unfortunate people doing?
Cleaves of the pen? They are indignant that one of their own...
Let me have a roof over my head! Where do they want me to sleep?
However? I still can't take my bag.
at night, holding his hand, and come knocking on the hotel door from rue Saint-Florentin, saying to Rothschild:
"Do you have a room you could give me?"

Regarding translation rights, would you like to know How did I attach them?

- I told Señor Grabulosa, when he wanted to... forgetting Jewish France and the End of a World in Spain

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 417

gnol (1) and he asked me his price: "I hold sim-in addition to enforcing the principle of property rights taire; I will cede to you the translation rights in full coins, and you don't have to thank me; it's just the less than I can do for a country like Spain, who took the initiative for this Inquisition tribunal, tribu-patriotic and humane above all others, that the Jews have so often attacked, because he had protected the honest Christian "Thou art against the invading and exploitative Semite."

Those who might have any doubt on this point they only need to address themselves directly to Don Grabulosa, Immaculate Conception bookstore, 13, rue Buen Suceso, in Barcelona. He too will be able to provide them with information at this topic.

For Italy, my conditions were the same, and I
I couldn't decently do less than show myself Convenient for a country where the Pope lives. It's true. that the Pope has rewarded me very poorly for this good thought of sending Rotelli as Nuncio.

Poland is dear to every Catholic heart. The na-
The martyred tion has, without counting the cost, shed her blood for us on every battlefield, and I never once thought to request no payment from the newspaper Rola, which has I published all my books in Polish. God willing my work, which has aroused so much sympathy there, may have rekindled in the soul of all Polish patriots hatred for those infamous Jews who betrayed and handed them over to the enemy, for these implacable Jews when they can to be with impunity, who at Wilna threw our soldiers injured by the windows, at the time of the retreat Russia!

(4) La France judia, translated by D. Rafael Pejoan Pbro, with censura eclesiastica.

The End of a World, translated by D. Pelegrin Casabo and Pagès, con censura eclesiastica (with ecclesiastical approval), - this which means that the Spanish clergy is a little more in the know

Church traditions and somewhat less subservient to the Jews than the French high clergy.

418 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

I admit that I had placed some hopes on America, but the Yankees were smarter than me. Under this title: The Real Mr. Jacob, they were able to—I have created an almost complete translation from French Jewish, and not only did they not give me a but also they added to the volume a preface in which unpleasant things were said to me—bles.

Minerva publishing pulled off this great coup. It's a bookstore whose emblem is a Minerva head nerve. "It is Mercury, god of thieves, whom you abuse." "You should have taken him as your boss," I wrote to the director. to which this assessment was infinitely less painful—reuse than would have been the obligation to pay me an in—any compensation.

They are a young people, but a promising one. In any case, the citizens of the sister Republic have, on respect the property of others, notions which should not be used against them. to be very important in life; I understand that our Republics The Catholics offered them a Statue of Liberty; they are equally thieves of both sides of the Atlantic.

The Germans were the only ones I managed to... They had the loyalty to pay me something. 1,500 francs for my copyright and personal rights, I Believe me, you won't blame me for accepting this small deposit. out of our 5 billion.

As for the priest 'who, according to Taxil, refused the hundred sous I offered him for his poor! because that he found the sum insufficient, I challenge the author of the Loves of Pius IX of Citef the name of Cetecclesiastique. Every penny I've ever given has always been received as cordially as they were offered, as the alms of a poor man to the poorest; I could not unfortunately, I'll have to give some to everyone who has some from me. requested. The combined copyrights of Dumas père and by Dumas fils, adding those of Sardou and a Even a dozen more wouldn't be enough to rebuild.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 419:

all the churches for which people have contacted me in a single year, to open all the private schools.
that I was invited to create.

All of this, once again, is of considerable interest.
secondary.

What confounds the mind is seeing the archbishop of Paris does not protest when such an individual dares to de-
To declare that he speaks on behalf of the high clergy is to... tender the author of The Secret Loves of Pius IX claiming that he has a mandate from the Church to attack a writer whose past is unique and who, even when he . was not a Christian, never wrote against what the Christians respect a line that makes them blush.
Today.

I was curious to explore the work of wave of -this man so dear today to the ecclesiastical authorities-ticks. It's understandable that the first publishers of these books were by Jews: Strauss in Paris, Millaud in Marseille. It's truly a descent into Hell.
Jewish, in this excremental Hell that Sweden described-Borg, in this "defiled Jerusalem that exhales a the stench of rats, and through which the Jews.
covered in mud up to their spines, they run through the mud after a few gold coins.

This is neither about the mockery of a Voltaire nor about the eloquent blasphemies of a Proudhon, nor protesta-disturbing tions of so many great rebels; it is the ab-pure injection, it is the literature of the Zanterne which launched these publications and ensured their success; it is the
The Talmud states that dreaming is a good omen.
of fecal matter.

What man would not have been disarmed by this angel-
The gentle and sweet figure of Pius IX? The protégé of the ark-
The bishopric has certainly surpassed this old man, the limits of human ignominy.

For a long time, Mastai was content with the virgins he:
they delivered the women's convents, but he found them too cold. The Jesuit general, who serves as his His supplier introduces him to a Jewish woman, Zhora.

How could Zhora have resigned herself to the thankless task of
To feign love for the benefit of an old man she hates?

Old Rebecca is there with her knowledge drawn from the harems of the Orient. She knows how one can lead astray the mind of a young girl; she served the passions of so many old men rich men who populated their seraglios with barely nubiles, and who would have been angered that their victims had attempted even the last battles of modesty in its death throes.

The Gesu is rich; Rebecca is well paid; her greed is fulfilled. Besides, she's afraid, old as she is, she clings to the last days of existence that nature can still grant it to him.

At the slightest sign of rebellion, she will be condemned without mercy, without pity, and his imagination horrified by the sinister tales that the old women of the ghetto whisper in each other's ears, his image
A terrified woman showed him the deep, populated dungeons unspeakable tortures, which Christians keep in reserve for those of his race.

Mastai can come at any hour; he will find his beloved.
plunged into the lucid intoxication of the favorites of the harem.

He himself, under the influence of intoxicating perfumes, will lose all memory, all feeling of the actual situation. He—will sleep in those ecstatic paradises that Muhammad promises its elected officials, and what the drugs extracted from the Poppy and Indian hemp. Then, he will wake up dejected, exhausted; it will take him hours to regain control of his own accord.

Remorse will come, it will tear at his heart; he will summon his Jesuit confessor, and will pay dearly for calm and absolution.

* When the sun disappears, then his brain will be haunted through intoxicating memories; he will try to banish these dreams
They are impure, but prayer and exorcisms will be powerless.
will let himself go and run to the ghetto.

Women's convents, however learned they may be, do not have the profound science of harems. They will put a woman to sleep and will deliver her inert, almost dead; thus Mastai had Because of Félicità and so many others, but how much Rebecca was more knowledgeable!

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 421

It was not an inanimate body that Mastai was pressing into his arms, while lying on the silk cushions, the hookah with With her lips, he gazed at Zhora, dressed in diaphanous gauze, who further accentuated her nudity and made her more desirable; No, she was a furious bacchante, drunk with unfulfilled desires. and constantly reborn, whose kisses burned like bites.

What a shame when Mastai, having regained consciousness, very late in During the day, men and women would kneel before Him! If he closed his eyes, he could picture those scenes. of orgy... Prayers, signs of the cross, nothing could drive out the An unwelcome memory.

He had taken refuge in Castel Gandolfo, hoping that the distance would calm her desires, but when the serene night invaded the horizon, when the stars lit up in the deep azure from the sky, when the sea breeze was imbued with the scents of Orange trees in bloom, which had been overheated by the day's heat. Then, he could no longer contain himself; his desire, absolute and sovereign, seized him; he ordered a light carriage to be harnessed, and dressed in civilian clothes, accompanied by Valecchio, con- Driven by a reliable coachman, he was speeding along the road powdery, irritated by the slowness of the horses, the curves of the path.

The next day, Valecchio brought him back with lifeless eyes, the Lips drooping, speechless, almost breathless!

Poor Mastai! Saint and good Pope! What a must say up there when he sees Leo XIII sending brief congratulations to the one who dragged him along like this, not in Mud, but in manure!

You can't imagine what it's like to review, even hastily, even while avoiding -touching them for a long time with my finger, these books of sterco- raire: the Borgias (History of a family of monsters) (very). Down with the Cistercian class, the sacristy idiots, the Bouffe-Jésus, "an anticlerical, soporific and half-raculard, Official Monitor of Syllabusons and Vati-Ducks." We see here the RP Skirt-Trousse of-to request that an address to the Pope be voted on; Abbot Cinqagainst one takes care of the workers, and he is supported by 24

422 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Abbot Belle-Tante, but Cardinal Hector de la Sodothe mother requests that the solution be postponed until the following year tion of this question and he intones the Vent creator.

A few months ago, when the curious volume appeared by Mr. Quentin-Bauchart: Caricature during the
I was curious to look at the seat and the Commune.
my collection; it is not complete and contains at barely 400 to 500 pieces. For a whole day, I I saw this Paris of the seat pass before me again, this Paris strange, who, dying of hunger and always under the weapons, still found a way to hang on the nails of 'all the stalls nearly a thousand loads, of carts-A collection of drawings. Nothing in this work incredible, which will remain one of the astonishments of history; the sovereigns and ministers of yesterday are attacked Defend yourself against all the pillories, the republican state villains
Those who were acclaimed the day before were thrown into the Gemonian Stigmata the next

Nothing is spared. I'm mistaken, and it's: a observation made before me: a figure appears never in the midst of these Saturnalia which begin at September 4th and ending with the May Days. Pen-during this time of absolute freedom, in the dreadful descent-the unleashing of all passions and all angers,
'in the exasperation of this city which has fallen asleep in full of joy and who suddenly wakes up in the hor-No Frenchman, driven by the desire for a siege, has ever had a soul vile enough to insult the white wimple of Sister Charity...

It was as if this Paris in uproar resembled the Forum of Rome. Sedition was brewing beneath the ardent words the Gracchi; Clodius's assassins were engaged with Milon's friends; they shouted, they threatened each other,
They were slitting each other's throats. Suddenly, the shouts subsided and

The daggers were lowered... At the entrance to the square which resounded with cries of civil war, had just arrived the lictors who preceded the white procession appeared Vestal Virgins...

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1840 423

The first one who insulted the holy Daughters of Saint-Vincent de Paul, the first to shamelessly raise the issue the sacred monk's robe for all was the current favorite of the Archbishopric and the Nunciature.

It's a date, a degree in the sewer. If we had a a buometer to indicate the low water level of the muddy river which sank over France, this would be found indicated with a name.

Here she is, the Sister of Charity, in the Anti-Key Albumrical (comic drawings by Pépin based on Léo's text) Taxil); her real name is: The Little Sister Who Begs.

It was during Lent. The convent chaplain preached a sermon {quite pathetic, about the tears that make to pour out to Christ the sins of humanity. "My Sisters," he said the abbot, who was a scholar, when one of you forgets to say As he rose, he prayed, and then a tear fell from the sky. Christ, lacryma Christi. When an impious blasphemer, new tear of Christ, re-lacryma Christi. Every sin is a tear, semper lacryma Christi.

The tears of Christ weeping over the sins of men, you can imagine how this lends itself to comment-despicable silences...

Sister Marie des Anges drinks Zacryma Christi;
She's drunk as a skulker, she's picked up by a cheapskate.
She was put on the violin and after nine months we We find her again in the final drawing with a huge her belly that she's showing off.

We must continue and overcome a challenge.
taste which is expressed in a completely physical way.
Walking through this sluice, one believes in each to have reached the final hiccups; we are mistaken; there is yet another new pile of excrement, a new puddle of excrement.

The Life of Jesus Christ, which is displayed on the docks, is perhaps the most despicable thing one can imagine in this work where the ignoble is everywhere (1).

(1) Life of Jesus, by Léo Taxil; comic drawings by Pépin.

424 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The Virgin is covered in filth. Everything that what concerns, moreover, is the development of a ca-abject lomnia of the Talmud which I have already condemned and which shows us the Virgin Mary coupling women and in-pregnant by a soldier named Panther.

While Joseph was speaking, Marion had resumed her story a little... Nancy. She tried to coax her fiancé, pouting slightly. A hug, to make him swallow the pill:

– Joseph, my big rabbit, I give you my word of honor No one knows that I am still worthy of you... No man can only boast of having kissed the tip of my fingers.

– Ta, ta, ta, I don't mistake bladders for landull... Who, if not a man, put you in This damn position?

– It's the pigeon, Joseph!

At that point, the carpenter became very angry.

– That hussy! She's still mocking me over the top the market... Good heavens! She's proudly happy had started his stunts before we had passed in front of the mayor... Once the marriage is complete, it's Bibi who would have been in a fine mess!

At this, Joseph withdrew in a fury. It is regrettable that The evangelist Matthew, who tells us about this incident, we were not given the text of the good man's complaints. Man with the lilies. The words I have just lent Mary's fiancé must be very weak compared to those which he must have actually uttered. "Vaurienne" and "galopine" are very pale adjectives compared to those that a certainthe carpenter, offended, applied these words to his unfaithful fiancée; for it is to be presumed that our plane and jointer handler he didn't mince words when telling Marion everything he had on the heart.

As for Joachim and Anne, they were like pies,
They opened their mouths enormously, so astonished was he about them.
The situation was extreme.

When Joseph had gone out, there was a scuffle in all The rules. Unpleasant words rained down on Marion. The Dad and Mom desperately wanted to know which politician his neighbor was the author of what Joachim and Anne,

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 425

in their ignorance of God's designs, considered like a dirty job. There was even a certain cousin, named Panther, on whom Mother Anne arrested particularly his suspicions; this cousin Panther wasn't bad of his person and, at one point, had asked the small in marriage.

It is the Immaculate Virgin above all who seems to excite the hatred of this infamous man.

It is on the Virgin that the anticlerical Almanac and Republican, by Léo Taxil, preferably pays garbage cans. That's where you find, under the sign-Bibi, a poem that will certainly delight the sa-aristocratic and Catholic residents of the boulevard of the Tour-Maubourg who encouraged Léo Taxil in his campaign against me.

This is called the Virgin of Conveniences.

Greek art, that divine art which has hardly anything impious about it,

Among other Venuses, the Crouching Venus bequeathed to us:

This Venus is not Cypris emerging from the water,

Nor Cypris of pigeons driving a quadriga,

And it's not the Venus Callipyge either.
Nor the Venus de Milo.

It is beauty, however, splendid, calm, austere,
Whose folded body almost touches the ground
And whose charming back almost touches her heels.
Well, when she came to the garden under a tree
She squatted down and assumed the pose of that marble statue.
The one we were talking about earlier.

But as she stood there, shivering, her veils
Neatly raised, by the light of the stars,
Very close to her she lived, under a flowing cloak,
A radiant being. – It is the Virgin Mary,
Who, speaking French, said to her: – “Poor dear,
"It's my son who's not happy!"

“No, he is not happy, because too many souls are deaf.”
"When it is necessary to visit both La Salette and Lourdes,"

24.

426 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

"Because too few would emerge pure from its crucible."
"Oh but! Free thinkers, fear his wrath!..."
The Virgin spoke, and then vanished, light as a feather, Above a toilet.

The pen trembles in the hand as it retraces these ignminis, but they must be transcribed in order that we know clearly what the Catholic party is in France, so that it is well known that the wretch who has vomited, that filth could rise up against me and say that he blamed me "in the name of the high clergy" without that an authoritative voice was heard in favor of-to test.

The anti-religious war was only there to mask the most abominable speculation, the desire to get rich by corrupting and defiling souls. In this order of ideas, Taxil published Prostitution, a book which is sought after today because of the engravings which, without to be worth those of Rops, a master in the diabolical genre—like, have the knack of exciting fans of these kinds of products; the work was seized, he protested by declaring that he had every right to put a book on sale of anatomy.

He sought, however, another way to make safe pornography and found it with the Manual of Confessors. We know what these are manuals; they are responsible for initiating this priest who must be chaste by nature and also know nothing of faults or vices of humanity; they foresee everything, they are as comprehensive as a clinical textbook. Sometimes they present as cases of conscience paintings which bring to mind some article from La Vie parisienne, like the case of Blaisine, for example.

Blaisine, who doesn't dare to categorically ask for the duty to Her husband makes her understand through his looks, through his caresses—His, by her attitude, shows that she desires him. Jacques, who sees him Well, is he legally obligated to return it to him?

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 427

Answer. Jacques is like a debtor who knows that his creditor suffers, although he dares not out of kindness or timidity—said to him to claim what was owed to him. As such, the debtor is bound in this case, to pay one's creditor, when one can, likewise Jacques must hand in the assignment to Blaisine, if that is the case. possible.

This is not the case with women, generally speaking; because, says St. Thomas, men do not act with the same discretion to ask their duty women. However, as there are husbands, inequality exists. conditions, the pride of their women, a natural shyness In reality, in the case of Blaisine, their wives are forced to give in to their desires, however tacit and indirect.

Sometimes these manuals also have to touch on a domain, which is part of the priest's social mission. We have already observed the legitimate emotion produced by these disheartening statistics from Dr. Lagneau who affirms, using irrefutable figures, the birth rate today decreasing in France, the voluntary infertility of this people who have four times fewer children than the neighboring peoples, the Germans, the English, the Russians. For the very salvation of the Fatherland, the priest must remind those who address him of the true purpose of Marriage and the meaning of the word of Scripture: "Be fruitful and multiply!" He must repeat this to the Christians who strive by all means to avoid the charge children, what the poet Martial said to the pagans of his time:

Quod perderis homo est.

However delicate the subject may be, the Church, in a word, must be concerned with everything related to the perpetuation of the protection of the human species; in the very interest of our French race, it must speak, in order to condemn the use of these frail ribbons that some husbands, followers of Malthus, will buy, in the surrounding areas of the Palais-Royal, to a large namesake of the former King of Serbia.

428 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

This is what Bishop Bouvier did by quoting in his Diaconal two decisions of the Sacred Penitentiary on this point.

To ensure no question goes unanswered,
These manuals are forced to plumb the abyss of depravity.
human vations.

We see evil deeds there
Written in tawny furrows,

And the burns from the furnaces.
Where corruption breeds;

The debauchery in the Capris,

Gambling dens and brothels,

Of wine or blood, dyed
Like the boredom of old Caesars.

No one had thought of removing those books from the cupboard. Crete, for which they were made; most of the Laypeople were unaware of its existence. Taxil, former As a seminary student, he knew they existed and he had the monstrous idea to make them available to young men and young women.

This is called the Secret Books of the Confessors revealed to fathers, the famous book launched by the Lantern, "the only complete edition published by Mr. Léo Taxil, and containing the Diaconales of Bishop Bou- Fourth, the Compendium and the Maechialogy or Course of lueure, treatise on sins of impurity and all the matrimonial questions by Father Debreyne, reli- "Gious Trappist monk."

In this act of villainy, Taxil was truly- infernal ment. At five francs, the volume seemed to him still too expensive; to reach the little ones and their to reveal all the secrets of Debauchery, he published a volume at one franc fifty and it flooded France with it. (The Sacred Pornographers: The Confession and the Confessors, by M. Léo Taxil; available from the author (and at all bookstores.)

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 429

You see the effect produced by these readings in the working-class backgrounds.

Who doesn't know this engraving, which is one of the masterpieces? works of licentious art from the eighteenth century: Shame on him who thinks evil of it, dedicated and presented "To His Highness Monseigneur the Duke of Chartres?" One The young girl is lying on an armchair, a book languishing- held firmly on the knees by the left hand. We cannot see the right hand, but the swooning face, the eyes, overwhelmed by voluptuousness, are burdened only too much with I'll tell you what that hand is doing under the skirt.

The true title of this print would be The Bad Book, the Book that awakens bad thoughts, thoughts lewd, and the print could serve as a living commentary on Taxil's work.

Thousands of beings, until then innocent, — thanks to these books, the revelation of sordid mysteries, of unsuspected vices, of unknown refinements in evil. It was no longer just about attraction. passionate which, in spring, when the birds They sing in their nests, and Nature is in love. has always, since the beginning of time, made people run Daphnis after Chloe and Pierre after Françoise. It was something else. Everyone, from now on, could have access in the Naples museum; in front of twelve-year-old children In the past, the curtains of the alcoves where courtesans were kept were drawn. experts in all forms of prostitution, had fits—debauchery. For one franc, the Sodoms and the The people of Lesbos told their stories to the youth.

Thanks to Masonic propaganda and advertising From the Lantern, you could find these books everywhere and you could He is still found, because Taxil, who tells us that he has de—thought 5,000 francs to furnish "a small corner", didn't never considered removing these infamies from circulation. It is Mr. Taxil, it seems, who owns the publications of the Anticlerical Library and that is what which explains why we can buy at the same time, from the same bookseller, The Poisoner Leo XIII and the

430 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

Taxil's books honored with a brief from this poisonous pope—neur.

These filthy conditions are found in the smallest places. hamlets, blackened by the calloused hands that have flaky, stained with wine spots; they took on the the place formerly occupied on the shelf by the book Mass, catechism and almanac by Mathieu Laëns—berg which was sufficient for our good ancestors.

Sometimes, a father feels ashamed; he bought the vo— He was disgusted because priests were being attacked there. from what he reads; he throws the ignoble work into the attic; a The child finds it, reads it, and secretly makes it read to his little friends.

Do you want to know what the man who cor— thinks of broken so many beings, the Pope's representative, the Nuncio apostolic, Mgr Rotelli, archbishop of Pharsalus? Read the Christian France of June 12, 1890, which makes account of the conference held against Anti-Semitism at the Capucines hall.

The day after the conference, His Excellency the Nuncio apostolic had his card deposited with Mr. Leo Tail!

This is a very "fin de siècle" trait and which confirms what we said about the baroque style, extravagant, caricatured and clownish that take the societies that are ending,

When we think of those countless little girls of the workshop or the countryside, tainted by these readings filthy, and we see Rotelli fraternizing with the other The author of all this filth, one must not despair You're welcome. We can expect to see something the day the Apostolic Nuncio, with her fine lace and his purple cape, strolling arm in arm with the under with the imitators of Vodable or Menesclo.

Even then, the comparison is only half accurate. The unfortunate people who commit these terrifying crimes They boast of Paris and belong, for the most part, more to doctor than executioner; they are irresponsible brutes sands; their brains are mush; they carry the the weight of all fatal hereditary traits. Here, it's crime. intellectual; the seminary student who describes herself as coldment: "I will make money by defiling the soul" Little girls and little boys.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1860 431

So the Nuncio sends him his card.

This will not harm Rotelli in the world of the Nonciature, near the marquises and countesses who had become devout women after the departure of their last lover, and for the which religion reduces to grimaces and si-grudgingly; but more than one freethinking worker comp-will take my Christian sadness before such a spec-tackles and will say to himself: "What scoundrels these prelates are!" Romans!

Rotelli, for his part, is delighted with himself.

It is the Italian monsignor who is turning everything upside down notions of our good, right-wing, pure French Christians awareness. Our people arrive in Rome full of illusions. we were, with all the candor of an ingenuous soul; we told them to put down the satchel of the Saint-Penny Pierre, whose precious alms have swelled before God of so many poor believers, and when it's over, everyone, Roman, clerical or anticlerical, black or white, they laughed in their faces.

They find prelates from the Pope's household pen- others, directed by Crispi, served as secret agents to two or three governments at a time. They dine at a grand lady who gathers members at her table of the Sacred College and, on leaving, a friend who knows Rome, as well as Mr. Henri des Houx, teaches them What is this great lady? After having been famous in Paris, she married the famous Marquis de Maubreuil and d'Orvault whom she had dine in at the kitchen Father Schumacher was a coachman, the brother... He was convicted of murdering his sister and was sent to the penal colony in the following a trial that caused quite a stir at the end of the Empire; we have seen all that, we who we have not yet reached extreme old age.

432 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

The unfortunate feel their faith slipping away; they They are unable to leave, they can only pray when they returned to French soil, to their parish in them, where the priests are, like them, good people.

If these pages fall into his hands, Rotelli will not will not even understand how his conduct is hon- he is completely obliterated; he has a total clouding of his moral sense. For him, virtue consists of faithfully paying his rent. at Calmann-Lévy, where he had taken up residence in waiting until the Marquise de Plessis-Bellièvre had de- He inherited from his parents to bequeath them a hotel. He closed- would ruthlessly open the doors of his chapel to some honest, not very wealthy Christian who would like to be married there; he opens it wide to Mr. de Gontaut-Biron to marry the daughter of Mr. de Lesseps who ruined some Thousands of naive people. That is the moral of this Nuncio's message.

"This Frenchman isn't political," he will murmur.
perhaps by reading me; he didn't understand the combina-zione. Léo Taxil is doing well with His Excellency Moussu Baron Rothschild and the scruffy Baron Rothschild is very good; he made me do some little things
"business."

They're all like that in that country, and the ark-
The bishop of Pharsalus has no more scruples about doing his Nigra did not feel any concern for the Jews in making the ri-Empress's sotto in a silver casserole.

The model of all these monsignors who make their readers read breviary by their valet, while they have For bedside books, Machiavelli and Aretino, it's Albé-Roni, whose beginnings Saint-Simon recounted to us.

The Duke of Vendôme, as we know, held his audiences on his chamber pot and Alberoni was seized with enthusiasm siasm at the moment Vendôme rose. « O culo di
"Angelo!" he cried, and he kissed her with rapture.
Alberoni was made a cardinal, Rotelli will become one as well.

Rotelli would even have been a cardinal for a year if we

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 433

had not wanted to let the trial be forgotten which took place at the Perugia Assize Court in March 1890. He was a pharmacist, who Rotelli knows him very well, and who had murdered his brother stabbed; the brother was a canon which Rotelli also knows well.

It was feared that in the modern Sacred College the a representative of a race of fratricides did not appear a little too sixteenth century; it was also feared that the
The new Eminence should not experience any embarrassment for preaching to the impious about the practice of family virtues.

You know, Your Excellency, that I am not like your friend Taxil and that, when I state a fact, it is that it is absolutely true.

11. It must be noted that, for the Catholics of the aristocracycracy, this card sent to the corrupter of so many

There is nothing particularly revolting about young beings.

Regular guests of the hotels on Avenue Bosquet have not not the delicacies, the skin sensitivities of plebeians who love or who despise violently; who, even when they do not attend church, suffer—
It's frustrating to see a priest fall as low as Rotelli.
The idea that a man who has drooled, vomited, and spit on May Christ now touch the holy things of those hands, still poorly dried of excrement that he used to hurl with both hands at the Virgin or the Sisters of Charity, does not shock the pretentious souls distinguished duties, as they shock us — same.

Habit has produced its usual effect.
the fact of being too familiar and too frequent—
In contact with the Divine, it materializes... core the lower natures; unable to reach themselves
They raise him up to this Divine, and they lower him down to themselves.

For both women and men of this world who were raised in con—Gregorians, their relationship with the divine idea, their duty

2

434 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

fulfilled towards God through prayer, assistance to offices began as a chore, a burden.
This duty then became a habit and many—
For most, it is an attitude, an outfit, a practical, in a word. They've all arrived at it, more or less.
less, at the prayer wheel of Japan; they are in the the simulacrum Carlyle speaks of, in idolatry, that is to say—to speak in the completely mechanical adoration of the image painted, from the piece of gilded wood; they no longer penetrate in the essence of Christianity; they have no idea not even traditions like those of certain saints represent for French souls.

That's a sense that's lacking in those classes. Consider that
The Saint-Michel Foundation is responsible for printing Taxil's newspapers! They must be Brothers, the Brothers of the Saint-Nicolas School, who make up the day—the fate of a man who dragged misfortunes through the sewers two religious schoolteachers, who had reduced them to no longer daring to show themselves in the streets for fear of being... tenderly call them sodomites.

Obviously, these poor Brothers remain when even respectable people, but it is clear that they do not have a sense of their dignity as men, this feeling—the element of self-respect that must still exist at the Monk's house.

These are not males who have tamed their senses to practice heroic chastity; these are neutrals embracing those who covered them in filth and fundamentally hostile to those who have so often de-split.

For them and for us, Saint Michael evokes... Completely different ideas. Saint Michael, for us, He is the great national saint of the fifteenth century, the Saint in whom the Fatherland placed its hope during the war of One Hundred Years. The sanctuary of Saint Michael, the Saint Michel du Péril de la mer, the impregnable fortress, was the sacred place towards which all eyes were turned, towards which all pilgrimages were directed.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 435

People live there, even making pilgrimages of children. Extremes... Children fleeing France set out on their journeys, walked straight ahead... In the naive lighting In the pages of the missals, one can see the good religious men mounted on the ramparts and raising their arms to the sky, giving all signs of utter astonishment, a the day they see a group of toddlers wearing the pilgrim's staff heading towards the monastery.

Along the way, these kids encountered some mishaps. while traveling. One day, some of them, being very hungry, they entered an innkeeper's house, man—they manage with a very youthful appetite and could not pay. The hotel owner slapped them and chased them away. kicks. Turning around, he found on the dresser—the price of the children's meal that evening and, touched by this pro-Dige, he ran after the children, gave them the money and asked them for forgiveness.

Everything came to Saint Michael. It was in the fortress, under the protection of the holy warrior, Duguesclin,

When he went to fight, he left his wife Jeanne de Laval, she who, through an admirable feminine intuition nine, sent to Joan of Arc, at the moment she left was for the siege of Orléans, the ring of the valiant conntable.

It was Saint Michael, who haunted everyone's imaginations.
of that time, who first appeared to Joan of Arc in the Domrémy garden. It was to the cry of: "Saint Michael!" that Jeanne was rushing headlong into the thick of the fray; it is Saint Michael, whom she still invoked from the depths of her prison.

Go ahead and talk about all these naive traditions and sublime, childlike and heroic to regulars of the Nunciature; tell them that, after all, this story was that of France, they will look at you as hallucinating or chimerical.

Ask to see the work of Saint Michael. You you will find Brothers raising the letter before a copy of Taxil, no doubt laughing at scatological humor

436 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC

From the old days: "The peg in the hole... Five against
One. The widow Poignet... » Ugh!

In the midst of all this, poor Saint Michael, whom we seen on the cover of the work, wearing the cuirass scaled with gold and brandishing the flaming sword, made a strange figure. Quis ut Deus? says the motto.

Léo Taxil accused me of associating with the worst enemies-members of the company, Jules Guesde and Benoit Malon.
I only had the pleasure of having dinner with Jules once.
Guesde; it is true that I have had cordial relations friendship with Benoit Malon, and that I regretted that they were interrupted by the illness that forced the a great socialist writer who took refuge in Le Cannet. What I can declare that among the revolutionaries, the atheists, the socialists, the positivists whom I have freof those I've met, I haven't known a single one who was bad enough suitable for writing about the Virgin of the toilets. These jokes from odorless toilets can be watched-ideas deemed very funny by the Pope's representative who sends his card to their author. In intellectual circles-readers of a somewhat high order, they would not excite than the nausea of those who are most hostile to the church.

For most socialists, man is merely a accident in Matter in perpetual transformation Paradise is empty, just as ancient Olympus was, and the poetic legends that have nurtured the enthusiastic soul of our fathers are disappearing under the the drying breath of Science. Louis Bouilhet, in His posthumous poems showed us the last pontthe remains of a dying cult:

The old, bent priest carrying the dove, coming to offer in the deserted sanctuary the sacrifice of premen to a God who no longer has any followers. The hour is close, according to some socialists, to where the priest of Jesus-

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 437

Christ, too, will come to pray in solitude, like prayed fifteen hundred years ago to the Flamen of Jupiter.

Believers are permitted to grieve over this situation.
of mind, but it must be acknowledged that there is a long way to go there to the foul deeds that earned Leo Taxilla sym-the pathy of the Archbishop of Pharsalus who, to you nothing To hide, seems to me to be a very dirty archbishop.

Some even feel, in the face of these dogmas whose supernatural character, the melancholy, they deny mixed with the respect inspired by things that come to an end, when these things were great in themselves and ennobling for the human soul.

Among the Positivists, the Virgin Mary, far from being insulted and defiled, has retained a place in the tributes published blics due to the pure images that consoled and grew Humanity. For Auguste Comte, the Virgin, intermediarydialogue between God and man, throwing into the rough
The Middle Ages, an element of tenderness, announced the part greater than that which was to be done to the love of Humanity nity in the concerns of the people.

Admirable efforts, wrote Auguste Comte in the Positive Tics, were then tempted to institute the systematic cult-thematic of Woman, necessary precursor of Humanity nity. They were responsible, in the main century of the Middle Ages, for the increasing preponderance of the more suave type than com-She carried the Western revelation. This mediator truly humankind announced the state of normality better than the divine Mediator. evil of our worship. Its gradual ascendancy, both systematic-tactful and spontaneous, it became all the more decisive as the souls superiors then strove to humanize this ideal type, by rejecting the mystical zeal that tended to distort it.
Dante's principal outpourings of affection towards the new goddess, will now apply to the worship of Woman and of humanity, especially in the characteristic tercet.

In te misericordia, in te pietate.
In te magnificenza, in te s'aduna.
! Quantunque in creature è di bonitate.

438 THE WILL OF AN ANTISEMITIC
TS SR D = -

CONCLUSION

Here are Strausses, Sigismond Lacroixes, Cal-Vinhac, to take names at random. They have everything against them: one was convicted of desertion;
the other is a Polish Jew of sordid origin; the third-his election to the City Council was overturned because he had no home. They are without any of value, do not present any surface, do not have no resources, but they find people who push them, who support them, who compel them
They command. The Lodges raise them, support them, and they de-
They come very young city councilors or members of parliament.
while waiting for them to become ministers.

Here is now a writer in the full force of age, in full possession of fame: he does not-He doesn't ask anyone; he has earned, through his work, from how to pay his election expenses. He is aiming for the most modest mandates; he is in particularly difficult circumstances favorable; he has lived in the neighborhood for fifteen years;
even though he was very poor there, he lived very well there.
honorably; he paid his grocer regularly and its coal merchant and the neighborhood is an old neighborhood of Paris, whose inhabitants are mostly honest people and, consequently, are quite prone to honest people like them.

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890 439

So, from the depths of a magnificent hotel, a member of parliament Conservative rallies all Catholics against a man who defended the Church; all the members of the Factory council, except for one, all affiliates of society-Religious communities vote against him; he obtains a minority valuable, no doubt, for its quality, but insufficient-health as a quantity, and he will get some fresh air at the cam-loincloth, - which I did..

END

TABLE OF CONTENTS

PREACE...

ee tt

BOOK ONE

TESTAMENTARY WORDS

I

The reason for this book's existence. - Why Antisemitism has not-Hasn't he triumphed yet? - Good advice. - A so-to come from Frohsdorff. - A false conception of the situation. - Fiction and reality. - History is made. - Cardinal Lavigerie and Mr. de Vanssay. - The Count of Chambord and Madame Récamier. - A true Capetian. - The year of the confession. - The conservatives. - Fear .de Rothschild. - Dupont to Baylen. - The religious orders. - The generation formed by the Jesuits. - The Je- party Suite. - All the Catholic leaders are against us.

Before and after May 4th. – Article 7 reappears. – The Lanterne and the Dominicans of Le Havre. – The Jacobin domesticated. = "Let the dog loose!" – Brisson is working. – A review of human miseries. – Meat at a good priceché. – Jeanvrot gets involved. – A village in Seine-et-Marne in 1890. – The true mortmain. – Dialogue of the cow

...and the Jew. – At Vaux de Cernay. – Palanquin and chair Breakthrough. – The Jew, by turns insolent and vile. – The Woodcock Impertinent. – A gentleman concierge. – The first act of the Parisians. – Oppert of Blowitz. – The inauguration-tion of the Exhibition. – What the Anti-Semitic League has Received. – Edouard de Rothschild and Baron Hirsch at Circle of the Rue Royale. – The descent of the courtyard of the Boulangism. – One gets used to the mud. – The committee from the Duchess's purse. – The Jews in the Boulangisme. – The rabbit trainer. – "Fin de siècle" and "End of France. – The Duchess of Uzès. – The right of Asaka-Meropie. – The Jew-operator in the world. – Arthur Meyer and Bocher. – The Philistine defeated by the Jew. – The triumph due to the clothing trade ss... CCE

TABLE OF CONTENTS

BOOK TWO

THE PRESS AND PUBLIC OPINION

I

CONSIDERATIONS: ON THE ORGANIZATION BT THE FUNCTIONING OF CONTEMPORARY JOURNALISM

Obstacles to the development of antisemitism by the current organization of the Press. – What the Masters of Thought think about the venality of the Press.
– Pasteur, Jules Simon and Mézières at the Crédit Foncier.
Mr. Le Trésor de la Rocque. – The Crédit's advertisement

.fonciet. – The Association of Republican Journalists and Blackmail. – The counterfeit currency of words. – Diffé-
The relationship between advertising and blackmail. – A pantomime social. – Raid and counter-raid. – The deputies who touch. – A speech by Mr. de Lamarzelle. – The Literary articles. – Journalism of yesterday and today.

of today. – Old and young. – A few daytime portraits–
Nationalists: Mr. Francis Magnard, Paul de Cassagnac, Sarcey, Henri Rochefort. – The End of Thrases. – Paul Strauss or the secularizer for others. – Séverine and Violette, – Boulevard socialism. – The figure that took– Charity would be like if it came down to earth. – Laughter
0: AYDs 5 22 00 dede D cote es à Le dla ce den 0e de de re Vote

He

THE BOULANGIST PARTY AND ANTISEMITISM

Always the question of money. – Paul's Variations Déroulède. – The vice-president of the League of Patriots and smokeless powder. – The munitions suppliers of the Triple Alliance. – A sensitive bakery journalist.
STE and Rothschild, – The Count's 135,000 francs
From Paris. – A fine self-assurance. – The grandeur of the humble.

HI

$

IMPOSSIBILITY FOR THE FRENCH TO KNOW THE TRUTH:

The Jewish lie. – The final straw for the tyrants of Padua.
– Appearance of things and caricatures of men. – Mr. de Gavardie. – Laur or the Companion of the Tour de France.
– At Nohant. – The takeover of the sardine canneries. – The
The ruin of a French industry. – The Englishman in our country, – Alone among all the members of the Left, Mr. de Mahy has 25.

441

57

442 TABLE OF CONTENTS

A little discretion. – The oil question. – The Famine pact. – What would happen at the time of the war. – The Hachette monopoly. – An honorable writer-net. – The Clergy under the Third Republic. – What prefers the Hachette publishing house. – Specimens of literature-ture adopted by a respectable bourgeois house of the Nineteenth century. – The Venus of Mr. Catulle Mendès.
 – Some Zolatria, – Mr. Maurice's speech Barrès. – The Right votes for Guyot, former editor of the Lantern, and acclaims Sir Luke. – The million-Mr. de Lanjuinais and his friends abandon the poor Catholic writer. – Small provincial bookstores sacrificed. – The triumph of the rut. – Rothschild, master absolute of France. – The draining of gold, – An af-Chirac's confirmation. – In other countries the Jews exploit, in France they betray, – Rothschild and Italy. – Fantastic loans. , ... 107

IV

THE JEWISH QUESTION ABROAD

The French are ignorant of everything that is happening abroad.
 – William II. – The beginnings of a reign. – Israel re-takes possession of the Emperor. – A declaration of Israelite Archives. – Ahasuerus-William and Mordecai-Singer. – The Badhan. – Miquel's Triumph. – A Rou-German vier. – Stæcker's disgrace. – A good
 A matter and a bad deed. – The Tsar's greatness of soul.
 – The Jews in Russia. – Industrial syphilis. – A Article from the North. – Dangers threatening the Tsar. – The Adler the Jew. – An insulter of France decorated by the French government, – Disdainful reply from Mr. de Kotzebue. – The Death of Alexander II. – The Nihilists betray their race. – The assassination of Bralystok. – The Sir Henry Isaacs's meeting of indignation. – A people of cannibals. – England and Ireland. – Philanthropy Jameson's trophy. – The Anglican bishops. – The exploits of Sir Henry Isaacs in Paris, – The store of:
 Grands Boulevards. 140

BOOK THREE

ANEMIA – ANESTHESIA – ATARAXIA

I

It is impossible to get the current French people out of their Apathy. – Public meetings. – The City Council and the irreducible subscriptions. – The French are not Not pessimistic. – Their view of life. –

TABLE OF CONTENTS 443

Complete degeneration of moral sense. – Ideas News about theft and prostitution. – Osiris Iffla or the Benefactor of Humanity. – The cult of great men.
– Ms. Adam's enthusiasm. – What the Court of Appeal de Bordeaux thought of this Egyptian god. –Ilyavingtans.
– President Toutée and the Cow Ball. – A corner of the provinces. – Maës and his friend Le Senne. – The diminu-Birth rate. – Death to children. – The two pilgrimages. – Indifference to financial catastrophes cemeteries. – The shareholders of Panama. – Silence newspapers. – Henri Rochefort. – The Patriarch of The scam. – Mr. Monchicourt's report. – Some Fantastic figures. – The gullible always trust.
– The Macé-Bernard Bank and the Clergy. – Investments of Upper Italy. – The Gaulois advertisement. – Death in sin. – The Magistrates. – The Metals Affair.
– Attorney General Sarrut and President Calary. – The-Veissière and Comet. – A dinner of magistrates. – The implantcognition towards the humble. – A man killed for a flower. – A party in Boulogne. – A special code for The Jews. – Mary Raynaud and Rodrigues. – The Marquis de Salaberry and Naquet. – “That’s alright, all the same!”
– The servility of the Academies. – The election of Bischofisheim.
– A literary mandarin – Lavissee and God.
The Scholar and the Shepherdess. – A Visit to the Empress from Germany. – The Hugo-Daudet marriage. 169

BOOK FOUR

THE FIN DE SIÈCLE CLERGY

THE BISHOPS

What people say and what they think. – The German Cultural Camp
 Mand and the French Kulturkampf. – Wise words of the Cardinal Czaki. – Dancing Catholics. – The law on religious orders. – At the Opéra-Comique. – The statue by Bizet. – The Widow's Husband. – Persecuted of Byzantium and persecuted in Paris. – The current Episcopate. – Public opinion of a Director of Religious Affairs. – Honesty of morals. –
 The exceptions. –The death of a bishop. –At the Opera. –
 A sacred civil servant. – Painful and pre-lower clergy. – The interdict. – All resistance
 The authority to power is broken.– For what reasons is it in-forbade certain priests. – The Bishop of Séez and the parish priest of La Chapelle-Moche. – Yet another negotiation by Mr. de Mackau. – The financial administration of the bishops. –
 The old regime was based, the current regime is liquid. – The ecclesiastical property. – Resources available to the event–

444: __ TABLE OF CONTENTS

that. – Waste and disorder. – 800,000 francs in debt.
 – An ingenious vicar general. – The bishops who chan-garrison officer. – An inheritance of 1,500,000 francs.
 – The pension fund. – An archbishop at the end of the century.
 – Cardinal Place. – A corrupt consul general.
 – The Institute of the Little Sisters of the Poor. – The dis-
 The passing of Father Lepailleur. – The end of a saint. – Around from a safe. – A diocese in revolution. . , ... 237 t ® T0

. '
 $4 L

He

CATHOLIC BISHOPS AND WRITERS

The bishops' hatred for Catholic writers. – From Embarrassing defenders. – Bishop Guilbert and the Press

Catholic. – Why? The bishops are angry with us.
The memory of Saint Athanasius. – Bishop Richard and the Universes. – The literature of a bishop's nephew. – The Joyeusetes in kepis. – Without a shirt! – Urte note d'arbishop. – Ecclesiastical ferocity. – The torture of The trough in Persia. – Impossible to answer. – The good Pure comrades. – Mr. Paul de Cassagnac has his turn. –

A scene from a novel by Ferdinand Fabre. – What suffered Henri Lasserre. – The creation of a city. – The Jews, merchants of holy objects. – Blasphemy in the Saint-Sulpice district. – The Fathers of Lourdes.
– The translation of the Gospels and the congregation of The Index. – Incredible inertia of Bishop Richard. – How An archbishop of Paris is being treated in Rome. – Bishop Gibbous and the Knights of Labor. – A conversation with The Archbishop of Paris. – An article by Mr. Cornély. – Bishop Darboy's slap in the face. – A trip to Rome.
On the stairs. – A papal audience. – The Newspaper

Rom. EDT Area. nl ati 282

He

THE CHURCH AND MONEY

Writers who know history all too well. – Crisis of apathy and pusillanimity that the representatives are experiencing The Church's tribulations. – Ritual murder. – The various estates of civilization. – Human sacrifices in Dahomey. –
The assassination of little Abd-el-Nour. – An archbishop who
He is afraid of the Jews. – Abbé Desportes and Bishop Thomas. – Pitiful letters. – Killed by the Jews... – Yesterday and Today. – Jewish shops and the Congregations.
– The Blessing Sisters of Lille. – A merchant who is not
Not happy. – Public opinion since the decrees.
The Catholic World and Money. – The Capitulations of conscience. – The suicides of distinction. – The priest and The doctor. – The Blessed Sacrament removed for one hundred thousand

' TABLE OF CONTENTS

francs. – At Saint-Philippe-du-Roule and Notre-Dame. – Abbé Frémont and Abbé Le Nordez

IV.

THE PRIESTS

Seminary education. – Narrowness and inadequacy of This education. – The priest's entry into life.
The inexperience of beginnings. – Crises of the soul. – Isolation–
The priest's lie. – Freemason machinations.
– The Echo of the Last Battle. – Jewish France and The clergy. – An act of intellectual charity. – The priest
He raises his head when he sees the indignity of those who attack him.
– A book and an age. – The files of Jews and republicans.
blicains. :- The phase of filth, – From 1880 to 1886. – Priests fit to kill. – The conference in the hall of Nasturtiums. – A schoolteacher who is dismissed because she goes to church and a prefect is honored because he goes to the synagogue. – A poster that would have been useful.
The Conservatives don't want to budge. – Joy and fear from the priest while reading a page of truth. – Bishop Dupanloup and the right to judge bishops. – The premonitions of Pope. – Why are we silent? – An ine–

445

320

. vital. – Difficulties in recruiting the clergy. – One. |

Circular letter from the Archbishop of Rouen. – The separation–
The relationship between Church and State. – The Catholics of Ireland.
– The free clergy and the enslaved clergy ,

BOOK FIVE

A MUNICIPAL ELECTION IN 1890

PRELIMINARY.;; 5.2 geese of 4 se LU Rd RE .

He

A walk around the neighborhood. – A bit of electoral statistics.
rale – The members of my church council. – Mo-Anarchists and Bonapartists.– Captain Lambelin.
Baron Legoux. – My priest. – A Swiss man full of – Common sense. – The good people. – The union of the dismissed.

– The cowardice of distinguished people PACE

346

384

446 TABLE OF CONTENTS

IT

BARON REILLE AND THE CATHOLICS OF GROS-CAILLLOU

My neighbor on Boulevard de Latour-Maubourg. – Three marshals' batons in a family. – Under the Sixteenth-May – Financial Catholicism. – An administrator very busy. – The Bonapartism of Baron Reille. . . .

IV

LEO TAXIL AND THE POPE'S NUNCIUS

The sincerity of the defender of the Jews. – The cynic men-dreams. – About Marie's Rosebush. – A Tartarin of Marseille. – The commodore and the commander. – My "manor" in Soisy-sous-Etiolles. – What they told me reported the translations of my books. – Delicacy Americans. – A Journey to the Land of Garbage, – The
The secret loves of Pius IX. – The Little Sister who begs.
– Outrages against the Virgin Mary. – Offenses against public morals. – An eighteenth-century print. – The Bad Book.
– The Pope's Nuncio sends his card to Taxil. – The meaning
The morals of a Roman prelate. – Distinguished Catholics feel only moderate indignation in the presence of